The delay in the schedule seems to have done the Seconds a world of good, because they were definitely in top form. Their passes were accurate, and they were breaking around the basket with the polish of a senior outfit. Gregg started the ball rolling by sinking a long one from the side. Beers then tossed in a one-hander, and Red McLaughlin followed up with two points on a clean breakaway. The Blue team were stepping fast, and the bewildered Aggies could not settle down. In the first three minutes of play, Jim Gregg of the local aggregation tossed in no less than six points. Finally, the Farmers awoke and Chapman dropped in a couple of nice field goals.

The Blue seconds in the first half, garnered most of their points on clean breakaways, and they caught their rusty friends flat-footed time and again. At half time, the not-so Blues were resting comfortably on the good side of a 33-10 score.

The second half started with the same speed which characterized the play of the first period. Flynn tallied on a neat shot from the corner. McLaughlin tossed in a neat rebound, and Flaherty put in two successive shots of a similar variety.

Personalities Pictured In Print

By Mary Conlin

Scarlet and Gold co-eds are best typified in Varsity sporting circles by genial, unassuming Mary Casson, second year student in the Pass Course. After winding up her collegiate career in a blaze of glory, and with the C. A. Brown Trophy for "Scholarship, Character, Leadership and Games" firmly tucked underneath her arm, little Mary left Riverside C.I. to storm the portals of the Eastern Commercial emporium.

There, as at her Alma Mater on Gerard St. East, Mary excelled in everything she attempted whether forming friendships or solving the intricacies of Underwood. Her athletic loyalties were then, as now, divided between the swimming pool and basketball court. The Dolphinette Swimming Club, of which she is now a senior member, has given her valuable experience, and last year the free style title went to Mary at the Vic swimming meet. Having been initiated to the class via a football playing brother, who formerly starred with the senior intercollegiate team, at an early age Mary revealed a preference for "the good-sport-and-manly-man" type of ed.

As the popular secretary of her class at Vic, basketball player extraordinary and particularly for her noteworthy sportsmanship and modesty, Mary is chalking up an enviable record at Varsity. As a skier we have yet to hear from her. Although she was entered in last Saturday's meet, the race was over before Mary, lacking one ski, considerably late but in her usual affable mood, arrived. Until the next meet you'll find her skating circles around everyone else over at the rink. Yes, she is that tall brunette—but she won't be there Thursday night. It's practice night for the intermediate intercollegiate basketball team. Heck.

SKI TRAILS

The men's intercollegiate slalom competition will be held on the Varsity Ski Club trails on Saturday afternoon. The meet is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock. The road into Newton's is open at present and will be kept open. Bus tickets for the meet must be secured by 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Ted Macdonald, of the ski club executive, has chosen a run that he claims will be a fair test of the runners' skill. It features a large pine tree on one of the turns, we understand.

Although the competition is for men only, the more courageous girls are also invited to try the course. Entries for the meet will be obtainable at the Varsity cabin on Saturday.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Sam Lipin

VARSITY NATATORS ARE GOOD

For your enlightenment this information is tendered, although some of you may have realized, especially when you were watching a swimming meet, that pretty fast times were being made in many events, yet few of you realized that as you watched that swimmer churning up the water a record was beginning to topple. Yet a glance at the records will show you that this year's intercollegiate team will undoubtedly shave the whiskers of many records, some of which have stood for ten years or more.

For instance, in the Blue team's first meet this at Rochester, five records fell. At the senior intercollegiate meet last Saturday both Nels Earl and Ged Clawson bettered the old time for the 100 yard free style, taking 2-5 of a second off the previous record and setting a new time of 58.2 seconds. And this Saturday when Buffalo State Teachers College visit here, the chances are that the Blue splashers will be pushed to breaking at least one record.

Varsity's swimming schedule this year is an extensive one. With three meets behind them, a Buffalo State meet this week-end, the Blue team have yet to meet Penn State University on Feb. 10, Syracuse University on Feb. 18, and then, the culmination of all the pre-season training, on the 25th of February, compete in the senior intercollegiate meet in Montreal. For two years Toronto has held the Dougall Trophy, emblematic of intercollegiate swimming supremacy and despite the fact that the Toronto team must journey down to McGill and a strange pool to defend their championships, showings to date seem to indicate a third successive triumph.

Although the personnel of the team is still undergoing changes, such stalwarts as Earl, Clawson, Girvan, Clarkson, Green will undoubtedly be included in the final selection. Maurice Murphy, too, welcomed back into training a few days ago, can always be counted on to garner a few points. Newcomers to intercollegiate circles, Staples, a back stroker, Meen, a sprinter, and Menzies, a tireless distance man, will bolster the team up to last year's strength while the sprinters, to make up the necessary quota will be chosen from a most promising group of recruits.

INTERFACULTY WATER POLO—HARD BALL

With the half-way mark to be reached tomorrow, three teams are not only leading their groups, but have yet to lose a game. Sr. Vic in Group A, Jr. Meds in Group B and St. Mike's in Group C. The St. Mike's team have provided the greatest upset, winning all their games quite handily despite Green coaching and inexperienced players.

Last Monday's struggle between Jr. S.P.S. and Jr. Meds was a classic matched only by last night's encounter between Sr. Vic and Sr. Meds. Both games were rough, tough and nasty and in all probability this year's Echardt Cup winners will emerge from one of the above teams, although possibly the fast swimming Trinity team may hold different views.

IN THE RACE FOR THE DURBAN TROPHY

Clawson is ahead just now with three more events to go—the 100 free style, the 440 free style and the diving. It looks, though, as if anyone else will have a hard time catching Ged, who at present is almost 1000 points ahead of Murphy, in second place.

DENTS' BASEBALL TEAM PULLS OUT VICTORY

In a four inning baseball game, Dents nosed out Trinity in the final stanza to take the contest 10-6. Trinity scored the only run of the first inning and added four more to Dents' three in the second inning. Both teams scored one run in the third inning to put Trinity two runs up in the final turn at bat. Dents showed some real batting in the final inning to score six runs and kept their opponents scoreless. The game ended 10-6 in favour of Dents. Deuts: Willer, Nesfky, Smokum, Sproule, Humenick, McCall, Hamby, Dave.

Trinity: Hussey, Snyder, Carruthers, Hodgins, O'Grady, Seed, McMichael, Boddington.

JUNIOR VIC DEFEATED IN BASKETBALL GAME

In the intercollegiate basketball wars Jr. U.C. defeated Jr. Vic yesterday afternoon on the upper gym by 31-24. The game was fast and fairly close with the losers leading 13-11 at half-time, but from then on it was all red and white as the Vic shooting suffered a bad attack of erratic fever. Leading the scoring wave for the victors was clever Harold Scott with 11 points and tricky Bill Scott with 10. Ross Cummings accounted for 9 of Vic's points and played good ball all the way.

Jr. U.C.: Scott, Axon, Pyne, Jones, Klein, Balmer, Detweiler, Boore, Burt-Gerrans.

The Sportswoman

By Mary Conlin

Varsity eds who went up to the Ski Club last Saturday to enter the men's meet didn't even get a chance to prove their ability. There were so many delays in running off the women's event, that it was decided to postpone the men's downhill-salon until this Saturday. Now that we definitely know that the road in is snow-blocked, we can allow time to ski in the two and a quarter miles, so that this week's events should start on time. The executive of the Ski Club has invited the women skiers to make use of the men's run this Saturday, in order that it may be able to pick the co-ed team one of these days. So if you know you're good and want some competition the course is yours. But don't be late.

Highlight of the exhibition game the seniors played Tuesday night against the Y.W.C.A. cage team came in the dying moments when our Bobby McDonald-tossed a perfect shot at the wrong basket to give the Y the final decision. Fortunately the result didn't mean a thing since the game was only arranged as a practice fixture. Joan McMaster, who has been refused permission to play basketball, has traded places with Marg Pickering, erstwhile manager and interfaculty star. The forward line of Marg, Helen Gurney, Beryl Pollock, Nora Rean and Bobby (Corrigan) McDonald, represents the tops in shooting stars. The guarding angels, Jean Lennox, Janie Church, Kay Bennett and Patsy McLaren, comprise a formidable defence.

If perchance you looked for the hockey schedule which we mentioned yesterday as "elsewhere on this page" you may have discovered it among the missing. If we have any influence at all it will be included today, if it isn't too late. U.C. and St. Mike's, whom you may have heard about before, are scheduled to play tonight at seven. Players, scorers, time-keepers, coaches, gallery and other officials kindly take note.

ART MUSIC AND DRAMA

Schoop, to say the least, doesn't. In attempting to make clear the fact that their work has an almost unexpressed serious motif running through it we are probably giving much too profound an impression of Trudi Schoop and her Dancing Comedians. Their name expresses their primary function, and the undercurrent of gravity is no more obtrusive than that of a Chaplin film.

Last night's program at the Eaton Auditorium consisted of two ballets, Current Events and Fridolin on the Road, both apparently creations of Trudi Schoop, with music by Paul Schoop. The opening scene of the first, sub-titled People without Work is an amazing representation of utter aimlessness; one of the most frequently used devices of the troupe is prominent here, that of having several people or groups of people moving about the stage without giving any indication that they are aware of one another's existence. It's a remarkably effective way to suggest a crowd scene.

Fridolin on the Road shows a part of the progress through life of a well-meaning but mentally negligible young man with something of the blindly trustful nature of a comic-strip character called Lili Abner. Trudi herself took the part of Fridolin; description of her work is almost impossible, criticism equally so.

The music for the two ballets, played on two pianos by some geni called Luther Perl and Max Fichtel, is mostly in a sort of polytonal jazz style, very catchy and more expressive than any jazz we have heard except perhaps that of Gershwin.

earn both board and clothing through summer work and odd winter jobs. Admittedly there are such cases. Yet this is seldom true of women. How many women can earn anything during the winter? How many can earn enough in the summer to pay for eight months of board and lodgings? How many jobs are there open for college men that pay two hundred dollars in three months? And the majority of those that do exist are for senior men.

Your implication, by no means explicit, that the scholarship grant would involve a considerable addition to the budget is scarcely accurate. Does one tenth of one per cent, to be specific, seem excessive as an investment for the future of the country?

We should be the first to admit that there are other important fields that demand attention, for example the salaries of teachers, and we would be glad to provide you with considerable material for an editorial comment on these other weaknesses in education. But must we then delay improvements along one line until changes have been made in other fields? In any case our suggestion does not pretend to be a complete solution to the problem of university education.

You have emphasized that university education is worth going into debt for. Yet what would a debt of hundreds of dollars mean to one of these underpaid teachers, or members of any other profession. If, on the other hand, repayment is not obligatory what difference is there between unpaid loan and a grant? Is it that the beneficiary will borrow less? It seems to me that "the sliding scale" system of grants will be as efficient as any scheme.

The principal of the loan fund as it exists on this campus is undeniably beneficial. It is not with that that we quarrel. However, would not the loan system, government-ordered, be subject to whatever patronage you may suggest is involved in the grant system?

The editorial says "everyone who needed funds could get a university education instead of letting one graduate from every twenty high-schools have a scholarship." Admit that people would borrow less than they would accept without limitation. Admit that a percentage would repay the loan. Does that yet provide enough to lend everyone in Canada who has the ability to borrow enough (up to $500) to attend university? Further, it must be admitted that indiscriminate loans would not always bring the ablest to college, and so would not fulfill the purpose of a government grant.

For these reasons, Mr. Editor, we feel that your criticism was the result of misinformation rather than opposition to the basic principles. We have no desire to antagonise either the S.A.C. or The Varsity in any way, yet we do hope that what has been said has clarified the situation.

We are grateful for this opportunity to explain our position.

Very sincerely yours,

David E. Woodsworth, for the Toronto Student Assembly.

what dictionary character of the actors; also several of them did not have the experience necessary to be able to turn around on the stage without leaving something behind.

The first play, In a Glass Darkly, was intended to reveal tragic irony by the curtain line, which unfortunately the heroine, Gwendolyn Jones, did not say very clearly. John Barnes acted as well as the lines would permit, achieving a most dramatic exit. But he wavered between flippancy and intensity through most of the action.

Get it at Drury's was a mixture of underplayed facetiousness, overplayed melodrama, one 2-minute wait while a ending. Here mainly the inexperience of the principals showed through a rather thin plot.

The Falcon, by Alfred, Lord Tennyson, was the best-handled of the three. The set and costumes were colourful, and the acting, particularly by Gwendolyn Jones, and John Barnes, convincing. Perhaps costumes give self-confidence. At any rate, the only fault with the play really was Lord Tennyson's dialogue. Longwinded speeches go well enough in Morte D'Arthur, but do not carry much vitality on the stage.

... which was built by refugee students after their colleges had been destroyed by Japanese bombs. It is typical of the temporary quarters housing thousands of Chinese students, many of whom have traveled as far as 1000 miles to a centre where they can continue their studies. The picture was taken by Dr. Grant Lathe, who will tell of his experiences in China last summer when he spoke at Dr. Gordon's Class on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Lathe Describes Future For Chinese

"Indeed Chinese students are facing the future," said Dr. Grant Lathe, National Secretary of the Canadian Student Assembly (which has committees in 23 colleges and universities), who is in town in connection with its National Scholarship Campaign, and who is to speak on Sunday afternoon at Dr. Gordon's Class at 44 Hoskin, on "Chinese Students Facing the Future."

Last summer Dr. Lathe spent ten weeks in China and travelled 6,000 miles as guest of the Chinese government and visited student and youth centres in company with Molly Yard, representing the United States Student Peace Committee, Bernard Floud, of the University Section of the British Youth Peace Association, and James Klingman, Secretary of the World Student Association of Paris.

"The dormitory at Chungking is typical of the most luxurious type of student hostel, although you might compare it to a lumber camp," said Dr. Lathe. Another type of emergency university is the Kang Da University in Yen An, north Shensi province. Here the accommodations were dug out of the sides of the valley as a measure against air raids, and because it seemed a simpler style of construction. The students sleep in the caves, eating and attending classes in the open.

"One of the aspects of the war, not seen in news reels, or read of in the newspapers, is the mass-education. Here is found a system in which the student-teachers divide their time between attending and conducting classes. The university students spend much of their time teaching primary and high school pupils. These, in turn, circulate among the peasants and soldiers, organizing study groups and teaching them recreational activities, such as singing and dramatics.

Blue Basketeers to Battle Western To-morrow Night

Clash With Yale Set For Arena Struggle May Place Intercollegiate Crown

Varsity Players Face Victory or Elimination

Yale Victorious Last Year but Toronto's Reserve Strength and Home Ice Advantage Give Hope

The historic blue of Yale takes the ice against the royal blue of Varsity's hockey squad at the Arena tomorrow afternoon. Defeat practically means elimination for Toronto and they will be out to re-establish their prestige in the eyes of the Toronto students with a smashing victory.

It was Yale who threw a monkey wrench into U. of T.'s title hopes last year when they tied Varsity 4-4 at New Haven in the second game of the year. Toronto never fully recovered from this setback that put McGill in the driver's seat from the start.

The chances are that this week Varsity's attempt at evening up old scores will meet with more success than they did in last week's game, when they fell before Queen's 2 to 1. For playing on their home ice Toronto on its record should win handily.

But in the international intercollegiate league experience has proved that past records mean very little as Queen's further emphasized last week. Yale, coached by Murray Murdoch, the former New York Ranger star who was known as the "iron man of hockey," have already defeated one Canadian team, the University of Montreal, and hope that tonight they will add Queen's whom they play in Kingston, and to-

LIBEL TRIAL DATE TENTATIVELY SET

Examination of Evidence to be Reviewed Tomorrow before Referee—Trial February 9 or 14

Yesterday, the libel suit action that is being brought by the Swing Club against several editors of The Varsity came one step closer to trial when the counsels for the defense served the defendants' statement of defense to Messrs. Kayler, Hilton, Dubin and Yaremko, who are acting for the plaintiffs.

The examination of the evidence will be reviewed tomorrow before a referee. The actual trial, which will be held in the Moot Court of the University of Toronto, will take place either on February 9, or February 14, according to information released yesterday. Defendants in the suit are the editor-in-chief, managing editor and night editor of The Varsity. Acting for the defendants is the firm of Shiffman, Goodman, Lennox, and Vannini. The action is for ten thousand dollars.

The libel suit action which is being brought by the University of Toronto Swing Club, through its president, Bruce Harris, stems from an article attacking swing music and criticizing the Swing Club for sponsoring such music on the campus. The article in question appeared in the issue of Monday, January 23, under the by-line "by" (Continued on Page 4)

COLLEGE DEBATERS APPROVE OF C.B.C.

Motion Carried by Vote of 22-10 with Aid of Victoria College Debaters

The government of the U.C. Parliament, assisted by Don Ray and Marjory Beaton, Victoria College debaters, was successful in carrying the motion "Resolved that this government approves of the C.B.C." by a vote of 22-10 yesterday afternoon.

On the "freedom of speech" issue, Prime Minister I. Sussman and his supporters argued that the C.B.C. did not prevent George McCullagh from broadcasting on private stations, as it might have done, but would not let him broadcast on C.B.C. stations, simply because he can afford to buy a program. Members of the government also contended that C.B.C. entertainment is calculated to educate the public to an appreciation of fine music and interesting discussion, and contains less advertising than any other network on the continent.

The opposition, led by the Rt. Hon. Robert Barnes, attacked the C.B.C. as "another government money-waster," which undercuts private enterprise with public funds. They asserted that C.B.C. programs are remarkably poor, and that the public wishes to be entertained rather than educated.

Extension of Services Announced by N.F.C.U.S.

Montreal, Feb. 1 (CUP)—Augmentation of its present services and an increase in the total number of services of the National Federation of Canadian University Students was announced by John H. McDonald, Federation President last night.

The announcement followed the decision of the Executive of the Federation to implement the Policy of the Conference held at Winnipeg over the Christmas holidays last winter.

The chief features of the revitalized program announced by the president are the increase in the Federation's Scholarship, travel, and information services. Additional services in the form of an Employment Bureau, a Dramatic Club, clearing house, a student Radio Hour and the formation of an advisory council were announced. The next Executive Conference of the Federation will be held in Ottawa on December 27, 1939, McDonald said.

The National Federation of Canadian University Students is an organization formed by the various Students' Councils of Canada in order that a central mass bargaining power of student opinion might be utilized for the benefit of Canadian students, he explained. Some of the most successful ventures of the Federation have been in the development of the Canadian University Press, in the obtaining of

COUNCIL RECEIVES NEW SUGGESTIONS IN CHANT REPORT

Extension of Financial Aid and Employment Services Recommended after American Tour

As a result of his recent visit to three American colleges during which he made a survey of student service departments, Professor S. N. F. Chant of the Psychology Department, has submitted certain recommendations to the Students' Administrative Council, it was learned yesterday.

Professor Chant made the trip with Mr. Macdonald, visiting Yale University, and the Universities of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania to inquire into the organization of the departments of student health and personnel in those institutions. "The report calls for a further extension of the services which give assistance to students in financial difficulties," said Mr. Macdonald, who in his radio interview last night pointed out that these American organizations dealt especially with loans, employment and bursary aids.

"It is felt that we here might develop our employment service into a permanent organization to help in the placing of graduates," added Mr. Macdonald. "This would call for closer contacts between the university and business and industrial firms in order to find positions for graduates."

It was hinted that the report proposed an increased staff for the Students' Administrative Council in order to cope efficiently with the wider extent of services performed. Mr. Macdonald stated that as soon as the report has been approved by the President and the Board of Governors, the complete details will be made public in The Varsity.

Varsity Holds League Leadership but American Reports Indicate Strength of "Wind-sorites" High

By Bernie Shifman
It can almost be said that the intercollegiate basketball crown will be decided on Saturday evening when the Western "Windsorites" meet the Blues in the feature attraction at another of the Athletic Directorate's "Big Events".

The Varsity team at present are holding the league leadership on the strength of last week's twin victories, while Western have still to play their first official game. From reports from the American colleges the "Windsorites" are the strongest Canadian basketball team to ever invade our friendly neighbours.

This game will be the crucial test for Rogin and Aitchison and Co. as they have always been an on and off team, showing brilliance in form one evening and a complete reversal the following evening. If this game is lost (Continued on Page 4)

Drama Committee Play "Holiday", by Barry Opens Next Week

Holiday, a play by Philip Barry, which has had two screen versions, will be presented by the University Drama Committee as their major production for this year on Feb. 9, 10 and 11, in Hart House Theatre.

Anne Armour, who plays the leading role as Linda Seton, a characterization made popular by Anne Harding and Katherine Hepburn on the screen, played a major part in the production by the Trinity Dramatic Society of Hay Fever. Anne Marshall of Victoria College, plays Julia Seton and Stewart Parker of Trinity College, plays the young Johnny Case, who astonishes the family of his rich young wife in taking not the slightest interest in mercenary interests.

The rest of the cast includes Hugh Henderson as Ned Seton, Lou Wein-garten as Nick Patter, Jean Booth as Susan Patter, Hal Axler as Edward Seton, Dan Lang as Seton Cram, Frances Halpeny as Mrs. Cram, Leslie Shemel as the butler and Mary Harrison as Della.

The production is under the direction of Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre, who coincidentally took part in the same play while attending Queen's University.

In 1928 Holiday was chosen as one of the ten best plays of the year by Burns Mantle, New York critic. On Broadway it enjoyed a long successful run which is promised to Barry's latest play, which is at present entertaining audiences on the "Great White Way".

Friday Afternoon Recital

The Friday Afternoon Recital to be held at 5 p.m. today in the music room of Hart House is of unusual interest inasmuch as it is to be given by Frankish Styles, a member of Hart House. It is all too seldom that members of the House are qualified to give a program at these recitals, but Mr. Styles is a well-known pianist who has already given concerts in many places in Canada and the Music Committee were delighted to extend to him an invitation to play this afternoon. Mr. Styles is a student at the Ontario College of Education and is already well known in Hart House as one of the pianists for the Songsters.

"Crystal-Gazing"!

Once again Thomas Richard Henry (Tom, Dick 'n' Harry) has given us three cents worth of advice. Last time it was how to run the U.C. Follies, and before that he explained who the Athletic Association should or should not have to coach its rugby team. It might be worthwhile for the columnist to suffer the pain of reading The Varsity, or at least study something to give him a little more information about the University before he starts emoting.

As an example of his powers of observation he says: "The space was largely taken up by stories on world affairs that the students probably don't read, and probably wouldn't understand if they did."

By actual measurement, that issue of The Varsity contained over three hundred inches of news copy pertaining to matters of interest to this University and other Universities. We apologize for publishing twenty-one inches of copy on world news . . . five inches on Review of World Events, four on a story concerning the death of William Butler Yeats in France, and a story from H. N. Lochead, last year's feature editor, who is now in London.

After all The Varsity is not trying to compete with papers who employ "newspapermen", in fact it isn't even trying to compete with the Tely, which after all, is a daily.

In the same column Mr. Henry has described in his usual sparkling way (a style he probably attributes to his University education), his sorrow at the loss of his old arm-chair whose "Castors buckle over like the ankles of a heavy girl who is having her first experience on skates . . . But," he continues, "I liked that chair, I felt that it suited and fitted my personality."

How indicative!

In the next three cents worth of advice we expect to hear Toronto's most humorous columnist advising the University to do away with its history and economics professors, and read the Evening Telegram for the latest up-to-the-minute advice on current topics. Just to help out the circulation of the Telegram and assist the poor benighted college graduates who are trying to get along.

Objection Sustained

Television is on the way. It will only be a matter of comparatively short time until this accessory to broadcasting equipment will be "on the air". As the spoken dialogue succeeded the silent picture, so it seems that the picture feature is to ally itself with the vocal radio program. However, the transition in the latter instance involves technical and commercial considerations radically greater than the difficulties relating to the former change-over.

The introduction of television on a continental scale will mean the backing of a billion dollar enterprise, and the financial underwriters must be assured that the people (consumers) are psychologically prepared to co-operate in this stupendous financial adventure before finally proceeding to place television unconditionally before the public.

Obviously, the installation of television will not be realized in its fullest possibilities at the outset, but will come by easy steps,—extensions in service and the adoption of the more elaborate facilities to be introduced as the public demand justifies them.

It appears England is in the lead in respect to putting television into actual operation, but in technical development, probably no single country in the world is at the top. While in England the government (through the convenient economic medium of the taxpayer) is co-operating with the broadcasting system, in the United States the advertiser is obliged to "foot all the bills". But what price television! It is said in substance by a science writer for the "New York Times Magazine" telecasting over a sixty-mile radius from the metropolis would cost as much as a present-day hook-up to an audience, perhaps, of one hundred million people from coast to coast; and that on a nation-wide scale the advertiser would be charged $45,000 per minute as against a maximum of $30,000 per hour for sound broadcasting.

Since the advertiser naturally expects the public to reimburse him, it remains to be seen just how soon the people will clamor for a telecasting set-up on an inter-oceanic basis. —S.W.A.

ALBION MUSIC

Altercation Department

Our review of the Village Players' modern-dress Macbeth, which appeared in Monday's paper, has produced a not altogether unexpected response in the form of a letter in defense of the production from Mavor Moore, II U.C., printed in today's Correspondence column. The controversy is not of a kind that can ever be brought to a conclusive settlement, but it does hold considerable interest for the modern theatre, and some amplification and elucidation of our position appear to be expedient.

In essence Mr. Moore's argument seems to be that traditional methods of study, presentation and criticism have destroyed Shakespeare's vitality and obscured his dramatic power for modern audiences. "The schoolboy of today," he writes, "regards the most exciting playwright of the world as buried under a mass of unintelligible pedantry, and most of his characters as mummies." Modernization of costume, he suggests, will help to conquer this difficulty by allowing audiences to see Shakespeare's characters as normal human beings like themselves.

Now it should be understood that we fully admit the existence of a problem here, and have nothing but praise for the motive behind the experiment. Nor have we any quarrel with the manner in which the Village Players conducted it. (We even stand blushing and corrected as to the whereabouts of the faultlessly turned-out Seyton.) But for reasons touched on, though not elaborated, in the last paragraph of our review, we cannot admit that modern dress achieves its object.

Shakespeare's stories, translated bodily into the environment of our time, simply do not fit, and the curiously distorted vistas of modern society which are suggested from time to time are frankly provocative of some amusement; all humour is based on the idea of something out of place. Mr. Moore will argue perhaps that the new setting is to be regarded as imposed on the play, not the play as forced into the setting; however this may be in theory, in practice an audience will see only ludicrous confusion.

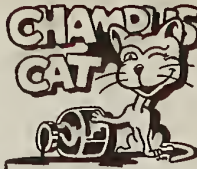

Our point about language is merely another aspect of this formidable difficulty; to take a comparatively mild example at random, gentlemen wearing dress shirts do not say things like

"Be innocent of the knowledge, dearest love,

Till thou applaud the deed."

And we don't mean simply that they don't speak in iambic pentameters. The example quoted is presumably a poetic impression of the common speech of Shakespeare's period; the plays of Maxwell Anderson show how the same thing is done by an eminent modern playwright, and the contrast is greater than can be accounted for by mere difference of personality and inequality of poetic skill. Shakespeare himself could not write today what he wrote in his own time, even if words and phrases now archaic are left out of consideration. That is self-evident but none the less inescapable.

Any other opinions on the matter will be welcomed although extended discussion in this column is hardly practicable. —H.C.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT OUR UNIVERSITY

CONVOCACTION HALL has been purchased by a group of Dr. Halls who intend demolishing it and erecting an all-Canadian Stonehenge in its place.

THERE ARE very few people alive that recall seeing anybody entering the Observatory Building.

THE UNIVERSITY of Toronto actually has a Library and books may be taken out overnight.

A QUAINAT FUNERAL custom is being practised by Arts students these days. Most of them are buried in books.

STRANGE AS it may seem there was a West House residence until the Black Plague of 1896 wiped out its occupants and in the following year the Great Fire destroyed the building.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE was once known as King's College until the Conservatives came into power.

MEDICAL STUDENTS are transported past the Engineering Building in armoured trucks.

A Varsity Newspaper

Reprinted from Thos. Richard Henry's column in the Evening Telegram.

After being spared the pain of perusing the University of Toronto Undergraduate Newspaper for a couple of decades, we had it called to our attention by somebody yesterday.

We do not think that we have missed a lot in the years between writing for "The Varsity" and seeing it again, but we were amused by a printed letter from one "Gordon Sinklower".

After enjoying that story we glanced through the rest of the paper and found it just about as we expected to find it.

The space was largely taken up by stories on world affairs that the students probably don't read and probably wouldn't understand if they did.

We don't know why "The Varsity" doesn't denude itself.

We mean, instead of trying to imitate the big dailies, we don't know why it doesn't try to imitate an interesting small town weekly.

If the students want the world news they can get it for three cents a day and incidentally help the circulation of newspapers that employ newspapermen.

But there are thousands of students at the University of Toronto, each one doing a lot of fairly important but more or less interesting things every day.

And very few of these thousands ever get to know each other. "The Varsity" could help that way, too.

We don't know why it doesn't run several columns of personals (like the weekly newspaper personals). We think they would be read with interest.

There must be a lot of interesting ordinary people at the University of Toronto, but we imagine that it is necessary to die or win a scholarship to get your name mentioned.

While it is true a large proportion of the names of the Varsity student body are carried at the masthead of the paper, it would be interesting to let the rest of the scholars break into print with their small affairs.

The charge for this advice will be only the usual three cents for the Telegram.

Correspondence

To the Editor of The Varsity.

Dear Sir: In view of Mr. Cowan's interesting criticism of the Village Players' Modern Dress Macbeth, it would perhaps not be out of place to take up the gauntlet and detail some of the virtues of such a method of production.

Not for a moment should it be thought that any "modern" presentation of a play could take the place of one "with all the trappings", no more than a two-hour "Hamlet" should supersede the full-length play. But for so long the stress has been upon research rather than representation that the same fate has befallen Shakespeare as has befallen the classics. The constantly narrow-minded approach of a great deal of scholastic criticism has resulted in most classics of the stage being regarded as museum pieces by the theatre-going public—the public for whom they were written. The schoolboy of today regards the most exciting playwright of the world as buried under a mass of unintelligible pedantry (and with some justification), and most of his characters as mummies. It is high time a little missionary work was done to re-educate his audience so that his characters as Shakespeare from burial alive, and are walking around today, that he talks for the most part the same language that we talk (the differences have been vastly overemphasized), and that he has something to say to us.

The story concerns a very happily married pair (resembling the Lum-Fontaine stage combination) who while attempting to leave the Broadway musical-comedy stage for the cinema industry, are separated by the heartless scheming of those financially interested in their personal appearance work. As one of the mercenary group, Mische Auer plays interestingly as the vice-writing partner of a version of the Gilbert and Sullivan team. It seems that the writers of this opera believed in borrowing from life, but the production can hardly be called "realistic".

CORRESPONDENCE

duction, have remarked how little difference it actually made. Shakespeare's magnificent psychology is impervious to the garb it wears, and the actual advantages of modern dress are very great. The distance of time is spanned in some degree; the audience sees the characters as more nearly related to themselves, and the cast is able to give a far more natural and therefore powerful interpretation without ludicrously artificial costumes and affected mannerisms. Incidentally, if Mr. Cowan had glanced at his program he would have seen that Seyton was not "strolling about the battlement in correct morning clothes", but about the castle before the battle.

The claim that "Shakespeare's magnificent language must be mutilated to accommodate modernity is, in our view, mistaken. The notorious Mr. Orson Welles pretty well murdered "Caesar" in the attempt to make it live, and it was perhaps for that reason that the Village Players carefully noted on their program that the text was unchanged except for the cutting which any orthodox producers find necessary. As for the language, there is a great deal to be said for grand words spoken in the grand manner, but most of its value lies in the fact that we look on a great deal of Shakespeare's language as verbal extravaganzas, and on a higher plane than we can feel. This is wrong. His language may be grand, but it is rarely high-falootin. At its grandest it is simplest, and at its simplest it is universal. To make his language less removed, and more "common", is not to mutilate it but to vitalize it.

Of course the "serious experimenter" is not out to spoil Shakespeare for the amusement of the audience. But surely he will be out to stimulate interest, to show light to the blind, to make an audience gladdened with literary dogma seen (as a distinguished critic remarked about a similar venture) "exactly what is good about Shakespeare". If the play became alive and real to anyone who thought it was dull, the experiment has in some ways succeeded. If Mr. Cowan can say, "as tragedy we enjoyed the show immensely", was it not perhaps the reality and "presentness" that we have been talking about taking effect?

CLASH TOMORROW

to the band from London another championship aspiration will have bit the dust.

But all is not lost for the boys in Blue. The scoring of Moose Rogin is being highly over-rated. Not in the sense that he doesn't score as much as he should but in the sense that his setting up of plays on the floor is his strength. Add to this his ability in setting up the not too strong defense of the team. Aided in this double duty task of scoring and playing a strong defence is his former Windsor playmate Scrubby Aitchison. Everyone who has heard of Canadian basketball has heard of the special abilities of this sterling defenceman, Aitchison.

Two players who were with the team last year who have come along well this year are Wail McGregor and "My Boy" Percy. McGregor has developed into a real barracuda on the defence, and is much more sure of himself on the floor. Singer too has seemed to have lost a little nervousness that put him a little off last year. He has also managed to subdue his flashiness and managed to concentrate on pure team play. Lavarnway, the newcomer to basketball around these parts, has proved himself a natural on the floor with polish, a good eye, and a good team player. This combination has showed itself powerful against the other two colleges and ought to show itself pretty formidable against Western. But it is to be remembered that Western isn't like other teams.

The Western team, composed of four senior football players and the star of the intermediate team, having the entire team consisting of footballers. Their skill doesn't end there, however. This quintet has defeated teams like Niagara, in Niagara, which ought to indicate something.

Elliott, Casey, Farmer and Hurley, who have played for the last three years with the Mustangs, both in football and basketball, are back, forming the backbone of the current basketball team. Casey is the fastest man ever seen on the local courts for a long time, and teams up well on the defence with Hurley. Farmer has already established himself in basketball at Western.

of lesser ability. Since then they have adopted the inter-form type of play. But it is well known that in every sport there are always some girls who will shine and continue to shine over the other players. It is neither fair to them nor to the other players to force them to play on a team whose playing standard is lower than their own. Besides, to play on school teams is an incentive to every girl with basketball ambitions and does much to elevate the school spirit. The result of this type of high school basketball is that some girls come to college who do not even know the fundamentals of the game. This is, of course, no fault of their own; the point is that the fundamentals should be learned early in high school and college basketball should consist of learning the finesse of the game, trick plays, and on the whole, of a well-polished, smoothly working machine.

It is rather hard, for this reason, for a coach to pick an intercollegiate team and undoubtedly it is this factor which accounts for the absence of collegiate graduates on our teams.

With all this chit chat, of course, we do not mean to slight the present girls on the intercollegiate teams. They have earned their places fairly and squarely and are undoubtedly the best players on the campus. It's just that we would like to see some products of Toronto schools making the team. Western can do it so why don't we follow their example? The W.O.S.S.A. (Western Ontario Secondary School Association, thank you) is one of the most highly organized leagues in the country. The secondary schools play the same type of basketball as the colleges, so the girls just step right into intercollegiate teams with no difficulty at all. And look what it's got them—the intercollegiate championship for the last three years!

Krol, sensational intermediate footballer, has managed to catch a starting berth on this team of stars. This is his first year with the squad and will surely make himself known on the Varsity court on Saturday night.

These Westerners not only have an exceptionally strong starting team, but are reinforced with plenty of substitutes. Clem Faust, who has played quite a good deal of basketball, is playing his first year. Sheppard, who played regular last year, is back again to strengthen the team. Mannes and Marshall complete their roster.

Western will enter the contest favoured to win by a narrow margin. If Varsity is playing the ball they are capable of they might upset the dope.

Quick! A Mirror!

A co-ed reached across the table in Victoria library, her eyes wide with fear. She pointed a trembling finger at an ed's face.

"A spot," said she.

"Out, out, I say," and he rubbed at the spot with his handkerchief.

Young ladies at the next table met each other's eyes over their books. They looked miserable. One felt her throat tenderly. "D'you suppose I've got it?" she said. Someone got up and opened all the windows.

"Just in case," said he, feeling his burning cheeks. "Just in case . . ."

A healthy brunette breezed happily into the gloomy library and approached a downcast young man. "Keep away!" he said nobly, backing up.

"What's the matter with me?" she whispered angrily.

"Nothing—yes. D'you know so and so? Well, I was talking to him just yesterday . . ."

Chorus: "And so was I . . ."

"And today he's got the chicken pox."

The co-ed fled.

Urho Saari, one of New York State's fastest butterfly breast stroke swimmers will be leading the visitors. Saari won his event last year as well as pacing the medley relay event to a new record. This year, however, Varsity have Clawson and Girvan, two redoubtable breast stroke swimmers, which will probably make the breast stroke one of the most exciting events of the evening. Finlayson and Shuter were outstanding for School and netted most of the points.

Varsity BASKETEERS UPSET FAVOURITES BY 47-40 WIN

Bailey's Pucksters Trounce Yale Western Team's Rally

LAMPHIER DISCUSSES COMMUNIST MENACE

Charging that "Communists seek to insinuate themselves into every organization," Father Lamphier, director of the Radio League of Saint Michael, set forth the need for vigorous "Catholic action against all their enterprises" by university students at a meeting of Newman Club last night. Denouncing Communism as a philosophy because it is materialistic and as a practical policy because of its failure in Russia, he appealed to his listeners to "stop the beginnings" and to combat it by living themselves as Christians should.

Although Father Lamphier stated that Communism was not yet numerically a direct threat in Canada, it was potentially, and pointed out that Communists seek first of all to control. "In Russia," he said, "one and one-half million Communists rule the rest of the people." In Canada Communistic agitation in the mining districts, the Communist press, and the many Communist schools were mentioned as the greatest dangers.

FINAL JUNIOR LOSS ENDS POOR SEASON

Oshawa Generals Administer 7-1 Defeat to Jinxed Blue Team after Schedule with Only One Win

Varsity juniors wrote fairs to their Big Eight junior O.H.A. schedule Saturday afternoon at the Gardens as the Oshawa Generals flattened them 7-1. The reverse left the Blueshirts anchored in last place in the group with one win, three ties and ten defeats for a total of five points.

By dint of the two-point triumph the Motor City men kept pace with Native Sons, runners-up in their division. The Sons pulled out a 4-1 verdict over the Guelph Indians in the afterpiece, to pull away from the third-place Young Rangers.

HART HOUSE QUARTET COMMENCE CONCERTS

The Hart House String Quartet will give a series of concerts commencing February 13, it was announced over the week-end. The concerts will be known as "Monday Pops," and will be presented in Hart House Theatre.

The Quartet is known throughout the world and has made many European and American tours. They recently presented a recital at McGill University.

Do Students Enjoy Lectures?

Disquieting rumours that lecturers here are almost frightened as they enter the classroom by the students' bored faces showing no expression except joy at the end of the hour, have been discredited by enquiries among university professors.

"My class listens with strained attention in order to catch every word, and pass examinations," declared Professor Wilkinson, Medieval History.

Professor Nash, Anthropology, stated that he sometimes wonders "whether that occasional glazed look is due to indifference or misunderstanding, but it usually turns out to be misunderstanding."

Ten Goals Amassed By Varsity Sextette

Yale Team is Victim of Varsity's Revenge for Defeat Handed Them by Queen's Last Week

By Bruce Smith

Varsity's powerful pucksters came back into the intercollegiate hockey picture with a bang Saturday afternoon by handing Yale a convincing 10-1 shellacking at the Bloor Street Arena. It was a case of sweet revenge for the Toronto team as it was Yale who blasted their championship aspirations last year. The victory also re-established the prestige of the Blues, insofar as Queen's, their conquerors of last week-end, administered the same Yale team a 9-1 defeat on Friday night at Kingston.

The 900 or more spectators had scarcely arrived at the scene of hostilities when Bill Morison proceeded to pick the Yale lock with a shot that whizzed through a mass of legs and lodged behind Rooney in the Americans' net. Mr. Morison waited just three more minutes before he notched another by swiping at the puck as he balanced on one knee. Dick Craig ended the scoring for the frame by sliding the bootheel under goalie Rooney after a neat combination play by Morison. Cam MacLachlan received the only penalty of the first twenty minutes for bending Barr over his knee, but the

STUDENTS RESPOND TO QUESTIONNAIRE

That the response to the questionnaire on religion, sponsored by the Religion and Life Week Committee of the S.C.M. is quite satisfactory to date, is the opinion of Dr. Wilfred Lockhart, Secretary of the Student Christian Movement.

When asked what conclusions might be drawn from the questionnaire, Dr. Lockhart stated that while there seems to be campus-wide interest, many students have neglected to hand in their forms. Unless there is a sufficiently large proportion of forms returned, it will be impossible to draw any conclusion which would be indicative of student opinion on this campus.

The committee is considering the advisability of reprinting the questionnaire in The Varsity this week, to afford students an added opportunity to assist in this attempt to sound out student opinion.

"Students at Dalhousie University used to express their approval or otherwise at lectures by stamping their feet on the board floors until dust rose in clouds," said Professor Dawson, Political Science.

Students who were asked whether they would like to have such decided demonstrations here seemed against it. "We go to lectures to study not to act as though we were at the movies," said Bob Ferguson, 1 U.C. one tender-hearted co-ed was afraid of hurting the professors' feelings by showing open disapproval.

Symphony Tickets

A limited number of student tickets for the concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra tomorrow night will be on sale today at the Warden's office. These tickets are available to undergraduate members of Hart House.

THIRD YEAR FORESTRY VISITS TIMAGAMI TO STUDY LOGGING METHOD

Last evening at eleven-fifteen, the third year of the Faculty of Forestry left Toronto bound for Timagami.

The nine students, accompanied by Professor Coates, will spend one week in the north woods, studying the logging conditions of several Timagami woods concerns.

Upon their return each of the Foresters will be required to submit a report of the trip, six thousand words in length, commenting on the methods of logging, and in general giving a complete report of the operations observed. The report is to be supplemented by photographs taken on the scene of the cutting, skidding and hauling of the wood.

The purpose of the Timagami jaunt is to add to the subject matter of the course in Forestry known as Forest Utilization.

SCHOLARSHIP DRIVE STARTED THIS WEEK BY STUDENT GROUP

National Scholarship Week to Get Help for Brilliant Students Needing Funds, is Started

With the proclaiming of the week of February 5 to 11 as National Scholarship Week, the Canadian Student Assembly is inaugurating an intensive campaign to attract public attention to its scholarship drive.

The aim of the movement is to show that some provision should be made, on a national scale, to ensure brilliant but needy students of a university education.

According to David Woodsworth, vice-president of the Toronto Assembly, plans have been made to distribute petition postcards amongst the students. Printed in duplicate form, one card will be sent to Honourable Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour, and one to the local members of parliament.

These cards are available the first few days of this week at a booth in Hart House main hall between the hours of 11 and 2; and in the Economics Building and U.C. rotunda from 10 till 1 o'clock. At these places students may obtain the cards and the names of their local member.

Varsity Managers

Important meeting of all Varsity managers and assistants Monday at 5 p.m., Room A, Hart House.

DYNAMICS OF RELIGION

IS SUBJECT OF TALK

"The Christian imperative is 'love', to quote the words of the Epistle John," said Gregory Vlastos, professor of philosophy at Queen's University, when he spoke on "The Dynamics of Religion" at Wymilwood Sunday morning under the auspices of the S.C.M.

"The Writer claims," he said, "that love is the essential predicate of God, and if one knows love he knows God and if he does not know love he does not know God. This relation is obviously one of man to man, for the injunction is 'Love one another.'"

"This love is violated in social conflicts and racial animosities today not only in the pogroms of Europe but in the intolerant spirit which is unwilling to admit helpless refugees fleeing from terror to even our country."

DR. LATHE DISCUSSES WORK OF ASSEMBLIES

Dr. Grant Lathe spoke on the Youth Assemblies and their work in China at Doctor Gordon's Bible Class Sunday afternoon.

Doctor Lathe has made an investigation of these Youth Assemblies in his ten weeks' tour through China last summer. He told of the organizations of these groups, and how war itself did not succeed in destroying them. He told especially how they had succeeded in teaching the common people not only something of reading and writing and simpler subjects in education, but also had aroused their national spirit.

Western Star Hurt

Al Hurley, brilliant Western guard, suffered a fracture of the zygomatic process during the second half of the basketball game here Saturday night when he collided with a teammate in the second half. The zygomatic process is located close to the cheek-bone. Hurley will be out of the game for several weeks unless a special guard is worn.

THOMSON PRESENTS 'HOLIDAY' THIS WEEK

"We are presenting a good, fast comedy, in preference to the stereotyped drama with which students are fed up," said Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre, in reference to the production of Holiday which is being presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week by the University Drama Committee.

The cast is composed of both experienced actors and some who will appear for the first time before an audience. Anne Marshall of Victoria College who plays Julia Stron, recently spent two years at the Repertory Theatre of London, England, and Hugh Henderson, who takes the part of Ned Stron, won an award in the Drama Festival last year. Johnny Case, who amazes his fiancée's family by taking no interest in the amassing of wealth, is played by Stewart Parker, who holds the inter-collegiate boxing championship in the 135 pound class, although he does not display any of his pugilistic feats in the production.

Most of the colleges of the university are represented in this comedy, which will be performed on the evenings of Feb. 9, 10 and 11 in Hart House Theatre. It has been announced that tickets may be obtained from any member of the cast.

U.C. LITERARY SOCIETY TO HOLD JOINT MEETING THIS THURSDAY EVENING

Thursday, February 9 will witness the joint meeting of the University College Women's Undergraduate Association and the Men's Literary and Athletic Society when the former will play hostess to the latter.

There are two joint meetings held every year for the women and men of University College, and this Thursday will represent the women's part of the entertainment, which will take place at the Women's Union.

MUSICALES STARTED AT WOMEN'S UNION

The newly inaugurated series of Sunday evening musicales to be held in the Women's Union of University College which is being sponsored by the W.U.A. and men's Lit., commenced last night. The plans for this undertaking have been in the making since the Winnipeg Student Conference of 1938.

Three more Sunday evening musicales are being planned to take place at the Union. The participants will be local artists who have already favoured Hart House with their presence.

Enthusiastic Crowd Watches Varsity Win Fast Struggle with Team who Conquered Niagara

Eleven hundred basketball fans saw the Western team, conquerors of Assumption College and Niagara University, battle bravely against the amazing Blues, who outscored them 47 to 40 last Saturday night. Varsity, playing their best basketball of the year, took an early lead which they maintained in spite of a last five minute rally, till the final whistle went. This game started at a killing pace and the terrific pressure was kept up to the amazement of the madly excited spectators.

The first few minutes saw Varsity assume an eight-point lead without the Mustangs hitting the score board. Lavarway and Rogin divided these points. Capt. Casey broke the Varsity zone defence by a long shot to score the first London basket. Casey got another point when he was fouled by Singer. Singer made up for it the next play, scored a basket. Altheison, the whirlwind defenceman, scored a basket. Hurley then found himself under the basket with the ball by himself, and scored two more for the bewildered Mustangs. Lavarway and Rogin added

MEDICAL STUDENTS ATTEND CONFERENCE

A report of progress toward their objectives was announced at the second annual conference of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns held in Hart House Friday and Saturday.

The Association is working towards betterment of conditions in the health of students and internes, said W. Kerr, secretary-treasurer, and during the past year they have furthered plans for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis among these students and internes.

A proposal to establish an Intern Board was passed at the conference. This board is to supervise appointments to internships.

A national executive for the coming year was elected at the conference, which was attended by delegations from seven Canadian universities, including the two French-Canadian universities of Laval and Montreal.

Plans for a conference next fall in Kingston were drawn up, the new conference to be held on the 30th anniversary of the founding of Canada's first hospital, L'Hotel Dieu, at Quebec.

A Chair of Dramatic Art

The problems of federalism which occupy political leaders and the popular press to the exclusion of less temporal interests, appear in as persistent and as urgent a manner in the sphere of campus dramatics, and threaten to create there the disunity of aim and of achievement which they have brought to the national scene.

Politics and dramatics may seem unrelated fields. But this year has revealed a dichotomy in University dramatics comparable to that in dominion-provincial relations. On the one hand are the several college societies, utilizing such facilities as Cartwright Hall and the Players' Guild stage. On the other hand is the University Drama Committee. Relations between these two groups remind one of the King-Hepburn affair. The difficulty in this case is that the college societies are autonomous and tend to be self-sufficient, the Committee consists of representatives from them and depends upon them for support, and the Committee lacks authority.

The University Drama Committee was formed to co-ordinate dramatic activity on this campus. It was to provide a focal point, to be a centre. It was to stimulate interest in the theatre and in dramatic literature. It was to stand for the University as a whole in things theatrical. Toward this end it strove mightily, sponsoring such diverse enterprises as an annual three-act play (last year Miss Elizabeth Bennett), a series of five o'clock lectures, and an annual University Drama Festival. Each of these functions has been eminently successful (remember Pawnee!), and in total they represent an admirable achievement. But the co-ordination of University dramatics seems as remote as it was before The Inspector General.

This week the Drama Committee is producing Holiday, a comedy-with-an-undertone by Philip Barry, recently screened with Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant. It is directed by Willard B. Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre, and includes in the cast players from Trinity, Victoria and University Colleges, and from S.P.S. These things assure an outstanding production.

But one play is not co-ordination, despite the co-operative effort which it embodies. Nor is the University Drama Committee to be blamed for falling short in a task for which it is ill-fitted. If there is to be a University dramatics, if co-ordination is to be achieved, if the existing societies are to contribute more than sporadic dilettantism, then there must be a Department of Dramatic Art in the University.

The C.B.C. Policy

The following is reprinted from the columns of The Canadian Forum:

"Mr. George McCullagh, editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, cannot buy time on a national network to advertise his opinions on the state of the country. The ordinary commercial facilities were, of course, available, and the charge that he has been kept off the air is ridiculous. But our financial oligarchs are so accustomed to control all propaganda agencies, that when there is one they cannot buy, they think it monstrous. Hence the hue and cry raised by the Globe and Mail—supported by the Montreal Gazette and even by Dr. Manion in the House—all about free speech and dictatorial censorship. That is nonsense. The C.B.C. regulation about controversial and political broadcasts, clearly applied is that "no individual may purchase any network to broadcast his own opinions" and the same holds of any "profit-making corporation". As to the wisdom of the regulation itself, which only applies to the nation-wide hook-up, Major Gladstone Murray convincingly defended it in his letter to the applicant. "The admission of the right of an individual to buy network time to propound views would entail, for example, the approval of the representatives of a profit-making corporation influencing public policy in favour of his corporation . . . and an individual sponsoring his own opinions by virtue of the advantages of wealth." It is to be noted that Mr. McCullagh refused an invitation to take part in National Forum discussions from time to time.

"National time belongs to the nation and is not necessarily for sale to the highest bidder. The C.B.C. policy "to encourage the fair presentation of controversial questions" by discussion, is right. We hope that the new policy contemplated for election broadcasting will "assign such time on an equitable basis to all parties and rival candidates" (Can. Broadcasting Act, Sec. 22, i.e.). For the financial means of political parties vary as much as those of individuals."

This gives an aspect of the C.B.C. free speech controversy which has been ignored by two of the controversial downtown dailies. The power of the press is still a very real thing, and we feel that it is only fair to print this article in order to offset the biased accounts of matters pertaining to public relations.

AR MUSIC Drama

Eugene List

Two years ago, a young American pianist named Eugene List won a radio contest for young American artists sponsored by a dairy company. Since then his rise has been meteoric; he has appeared with leading symphony orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, and last Friday visited Massey Hall on his first major concert tour.

To begin with, Eugene List is an artist. Besides a magnificent technique, he has a deep feeling for his art and the ability to express that feeling through his technique. He has a bold, definite style and an extreme vitality in his playing that transmits itself immediately to the audience.

As we have mentioned, his technique is prodigious, but he is prone to make careless mistakes in the simplest passages. His approach is often exaggerated, and his subtler shadings are often rather angular. But these are but rough edges that will be smoothed out with time.

On Friday, List was at his best in his two Debussy selections, Soiree Dans Grande, which is very good Debussy, and Feux D'Certifice, which is pretty good Debussy. The major work in the program, the Beethoven Sonata, Opus 57, the Appassionata, was given a thrilling interpretation. But his group of Scarlatti sonatas was hardly inspiring.

The artist's Chopin group deserves special attention, for it is by his Chopin that a pianist usually stands or falls. The popular Fantaisie-Improvisation was played with a fluidity that was magnificent and the deeply lyrical E Major Nocturne was performed with feeling.

In passing we notice that Mr. List performs under the exclusive management of Arthur Judson. The latest issue of Time has an interesting report on Arthur Judson and racketeering in music as investigated by the F.C.C. Reuven Frank

Conservatory Quartet

From time to time in the natural course of events one encounters a concert that is so completely negative in every respect as to make a review virtually impossible—an embarrassing situation, egad! And that's what the Conservatory String Quartet was like on Saturday.

Even some plain bad playing would have been welcome; there was a little, of course, but not enough to give the concert any character, and as a result we can hardly do more than report what was on the program. There were two quartets, one by Beethoven

DEAD END KIDS IN 'HOLIDAY'

Little Hoodlums Welcomed Back to Legitimate Stage by University Ham Committee—Third Degree at Convocation Hall

WON'T TALK

Toronto, Feb. 6: Students of the University of Toronto were delighted to hear that the Dead End Kids had returned to take part in the University Ham Committee play Holiday. Before entering Hart House the little actors were searched by the Hall Porter and the Comptroller's office was securely locked.

Speaking for his group, the leader of the kids thanked the University for the warm reception and harked back to his undergraduate days in Kalamazoo Reformatory.

Few oldtimers will recall the hectic days when the kids were enrolled in the University. Once trapped into attending a lecture they shot their way out and escaped without a scratch. Another time a lone member of the little band held up the Tuck Shop and fled with a squash racquet, Varsity pennant, Eskimo pie, running shoe and a copy of Da Vinci's Mona Lisa.

In those days bombings were not infrequent and the kids managed to collect huge sums of money from faculty members as tribute. Who has forgotten the Faculty Members' Protective Association?

And now, these lads, now alumni, have returned to trod the boards in the Ham Committee's production of Holiday. Needless to say, Dead End Kids Inc. will collect all the tickets and look after checking. The careful little tykes have arranged that a car be at the stage entrance with the motor running. The leader, however, is sure of his boys and is said to have said, "We'll be better than de Immoral Duce!"

Little Augie

let's go places

There's horror and murder most foul at the Imperial this week. If you care for that sort of stuff. (Explanatory note: Frankenstein is not the monster but the inventor.) Basil Rathbone returns to find that his father's creation (Boris Karloff) is very much alive and kicking the townspeople around. The monster is Bela Lugosi's stooge and goes around killing Bela's enemies and Bela hasn't any friends. Lionel Atwill is the town constable who helps Rathbone finally polish off the Edgar-Lugosi-Charlie McKarloff combination. The horror film is gripping in spots and should provide a pleasant evening. Donnie Dunagan, new child star, makes his debut and looks good.

Victors in six out of seven bouts with Queen's boxing team, the Varsity mitt-men easily took the honours for the evening in the upper gym on Saturday night. Varsity's ability to make their punches count for points made the difference in many cases.

The only Tricolour triumph came in the initial encounter as an experienced 125-pounder named Lawrence took a Glancing over the results of a hectic week-end of sporting events on the Varsity campus, we find the stock of Toronto's intercollegiate athletes reaching an all-time high for this school year.

The senior basketball team registered the major win with a sparkling 47-40 victory over Western. The Toronto quintet put in one of the finest performances for many years to upset the highly touted Canadians.

The Blue pucksters came into their own on Saturday afternoon, swamping Yale with a lopsided 10 to 1 win. Yale's one- and two-man rushes failed to make any impression on a strong Varsity defence and the fast-skating Toronto attack was functioning on all cylinders.

The swimming team won decisively over Buffalo State Teachers. Ged Clawson was an outstanding performer with a new unofficial breast stroke record for the Toronto pool. But over in Buffalo the wrestlers and fencers lost to even the count.

Only one Tricolour boxer managed to win against Varsity's constantly improving boxing squad. The Blue fighters have one of the strongest teams seen around Hart House for several years and should keep their intercollegiate title without much difficulty.

Varsity junior boxers ended their schedule with a 7 to 1 loss playing Oshawa Generals.

NEW INAUGURATES DURHAM SERIES

"Durham appeared as a gift to Canada of liberalistic or perhaps liberalism," stated Professor Chester New of McMaster University in his lecture entitled "Lord Durham and the British Background" at University College Friday. This lecture was the History Club's contribution to the commemoration of Lord Durham.

This is the beginning of a series of lectures on Lord Durham. On February 16 a second lecture will be held entitled "Lord Durham and the Canadian Background."

decision from Swick of Toronto, who was fighting his first bout. Lawrence started by landing good body punches and then waited for Swick to carry the fight to him. The Varsity laid fought gamely, but Lawrence pulled up points by steady use of a straight left.

A real slugging match by a pair of good boxers was served up by Bill Raymore as he added another win to Varsity's credit in his bout with Maclean. The two 145-pounders went at each other like wild cats, each fighter being willing to take a punch in order to land one. Stiff jabs in Maclean's face followed by solid body punches won the bout for Raymore.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shiffman

HERE... THERE... IN FACT EVERYWHERE

If there was a T. A. Reed Trophy in the intercollegiate league like we have here at school, Varsity's stock would have taken a sky-rocket leap into the leadership of the race. It was a gala week-end with the "Boys in Blue" winning everything except the Pulitzer prize or the Irish Sweepstakes or the Numbers racket $10,000 prize... but who cares for all those prizes (except me) when we won the basketball game. To be brief (and you'll know why we're brief if you take a look at the back page), we were riding a streak of luck in Toronto this week-end. We specify Toronto because the only loss we received was on our ally's shores (see Pres. Roosevelt's speech to Congress) when Lady Luck threw us for a fall, in fact several falls, when the Buffalo wrestlers gave our gang the resin to rub into their backs. But we got our revenge in the swimming pool. Yes sir, our boys kept kicking and splashing so much water in their opponents' eyes (Buffalo again) that they couldn't find the end of the pool and as a result came in after the water calmed down and they could see. It was a real night for the water-bobs and especially for Ged Clawson, who set a new record in breast stroke swimming in the Hart House pool. He set this new record, but unfortunately it's an unofficial mark.

HYPNOTIZED OR TRANSFORMED?

The mittmen came in for their share of points too, that is, assuming that we had this trophy. Fully recovered from last week's close decision when they lost to the Coast Guards, the boxers lost but one of the entire card, giving a lone decision to the Tricolour ring men. But the highlight of the evening, the crowning achievement, goes to the bewildering, fast-stepping and close-checking basketballers. In our limited sports experience we have never seen so complete a change take place to a basketball team as we did on Saturday night. From a little above average team, this team in a two-week space of time was converted to a sensational quintet equal to any team seen playing the game from here to Florida. And a good thing it was that of all the nights to pick on they picked last Saturday night to make this transformation. The Mustangs have never seen a stronger team out in the field in the basketball sport, having a beautiful starting five and four men on the bench to match any one on the starting five. But Varsity had the desire... the pep and will to take this highly touted outfit with the enviable reputation and retain their grip on the leadership of the league. In spite of the fact that we are in favour of more individualism and initiative in sport and less machine-like precision of a team, it would be a pity to single out individuals as stars in last Saturday's game. Everyone on the floor on both teams played a brand of basketball that was superb. We don't think that a better basketball game was ever played on the Hart House floor. Fast passing, excellent defensive work, brilliant shooting and the climax coming in the last few minutes of play made this game the spectators' delight. Both teams played the game for all it was worth and Capt. Casey made good his promise that he made before the game via the P.A. system when he said that they were trying to win and would make it a close thing if the weren't fortunate enough to win. The game was won in the last few minutes when after a remarkable Western rally, Toronto threw in a long shot to put them so far in advance that there just wasn't time to score the necessary points (especially as Toronto froze the ball).

four more points to Varsity's 12 points. After Casey's next basket there was an exchange of free throws on which Aitchison scored one, Faust scored one, and Rogin scored one. Lavarway and Rogin added four points to put Varsity up 22 to Western's 9.

Even in the first minutes in the second half it seemed as if the game was going to be a runaway with Singer getting two baskets and a free throw. McGregor, Aitchison and Mahoney, who had replaced Singer, got baskets. The game seemed over when Casey was removed from the game for four personal fouls and Hurley was injured with a jaw injury. But then the Mustangs showed some real scoring power. Faust, Elliot and Krol, by a combination of baskets and free throws, brought the score to 39-36, Varsity's favour, with five minutes to play. The game was put on ice when Capt. McGregor, who had played beautiful defensive ball, scored a long shot and a free throw a little later. Aitchison scored a technical foul, making the score 43 to 36.

The snappiest bout of the evening was Patsy Huggan's—he lasted about thirty seconds. Neil Mustard beat his man with a neat roll and body press after five minutes. MacKenzie had to go into overtime to win his match. Art Scott, at light-heavy, took his third straight win. He has won against O.A.C., Rochester and Buffalo.

Our sensational heavyweight, the Fergus Thistle, was snowed under a few tons of Ukrainian meat by the name of Voskchewitch (or something).

Al Garcia, Bob Wilson, Torchy Tucker and Bill Horsey were the fencers.

the beginning when he had Wilson backed against the ropes, but the boxer from Queen's was always sufficiently in the game to land solid counter punches after rushes by Mees.

In the 155 group Ted DeWolfe had the crowd roaring as he floored Brown of Kingston for the night's first knock-down. Brown landed four perfect body blows as the two gladiators met, but was caught off balance and was sent to the resin. From then on they slugged it out, Brown landing some good uppercuts. DeWolfe won the fight in the last round by following his infighting with uppercuts which landed on Brown's chin as the latter crouched to avoid body blows. Jack Piggett provided the grand finale in his technical knockout over Woodman.

Another successful ski week-end for Varsity co-eds, although none of them ventured to enter the men's downhill event held on Saturday up at Aurora. By the way we do know that the club 15 beyond Aurora slightly, but it is much easier to say up at Aurora, omitting the boring details, so from now on we shall refer to the club at Aurora. Well, to get on with the story, despite the fact that the cream of our co-ed skiers were up at Aurora Saturday, they were content to do their skiing privately and merely watched the men's event, even though they had been invited to join the fun. It was probably a wise move, because it removed the "women" clattering up the course" and then some may have decided that it was bad psychology to be a man in a game which was feminine wiles.

Playing before the largest gallery they have ever had, St. Hilda's swamped Meis in a hockey encounter Friday night at Ravina Rink. The girls from Devonshire Place, whom we have been calling all along to take group honours this year, turned in an impressive display. It was a fine gesture on the part of both teams when they agreed to play their game at Ravina instead of using the much more conveniently situated Varsity rink. The game was included in a charity program, and the play played by the Varsity girls was much appreciated. Joan Griffiths with four goals, Helen Wilson with the same number and Tils Amesley counting for one, were the Saints' scorers. Helen Douglas, the Saints' goalie, was the outstanding player on the ice.

U.C. chalked up a win over Victoria the same night, but the Scarlet and Gold were successful in holding them to two points. And now for a sentence which seems just vaguely familiar. U.C. play St. Mike's at 5 Thursday.

Like the youngest in the family, the intermediate cagers will be sporting band-aids for their next outings. However, they are not complaining; in fact they are thrilled with the uniforms which the seniors have passed on to them and posterity. In comparison with what the intermediates have been wearing for the last few seasons, the new tunics are almost too good to be true. Brand new tunics have been ordered for the seniors, who will wear them for the first time in London at the end of the month. A week from this Friday the intermediates will travel up to Kingston with the men's intermediates to play the Mac Hall girls. Not the men; they will be matched with O.A.C. Elton, Household Scientist, was appointed manager of our intermediate team at the last meeting of the Directorate. From our very slight knowledge of players on both teams making the trip to Kingston, Elton won't have any trouble getting her charges to the bus on time. In fact seats will be at a premium.

in F Minor, and one by Haydn in B flat (The Swans); and there were moments of distinction in each, contributed for the most part by Leo Smith on the cello. Otherwise they were, to say the least, arid—and we don't place the blame for this on the composers. The other item was Schubert's Trio in B flat, with Viegro Kihl at the piano. It was really enjoyable, thanks to Schubert's melodic inspiration and Kihl's playing, which was easily the best of the evening. The fact that ordinarily we share with Tschickowsky the view that the string trio is an unpromising form is perhaps an additional indication of how the rest of the concert impressed us. Herbert Casau

U.C. Musicales

The committee in charge of the first musicale at the Women's Union last evening were most happy in their choice of guest artists. Clifford Poole and Gordon Hallett were introduced as a two-piano team. The emphasis must be placed on the team rather than the two, for although they exploited the two piano range, their playing was marked by its unanimity.

The program chosen displayed the charm of their style. The clear bell tones, and the antiphons with perfect timing, especially in the vivacci sections, marked the playing of Brahms' Variations on a theme by Haydn. Saint-Saëns' Dance Macabre displayed the rapidity and precision of their dynamic changes. The Gate of Kiev by Moussorgsky showed the penetrating volume of tone they could command. Brahms' Waltz in A flat was a most charmingly handed encore.

The singing tone in Poole's rendering of Chopin's Nocturne, and the faultless technique in the Etude, and Hallett's easy rendering of the three movements from Ravel's Sonatina, left no doubt that they are excellent solo performers, but it is the sympathetic merging of their styles as a team that leaves the lasting, most pleasing impression.

VARSITY TROUNCES YALE

Yale power play failed to carry any sting during his absence.

After one minute of the second period Jock Maynard put Toronto four up by beating in his own rebound, and Johnny Ross added another on a passing play with Copp and Taylor. The dependable Varsity defence duo of MacLachlan and L'Heureux went on the attack as Bud Humphrey went off for tripping and the former picked a corner from the blue line to make it 6-0 for Toronto. Yale's efforts were finally rewarded at this juncture when Clem Kite knocked in a rebound after a spot of nice playing by Dave Rodd and Paul Gillespie. This seemed to inspire the visitors and it remained for Dick Craig to dampen their spirits by clicking on the best effort of the afternoon when he whirled through the entire opposition and drew Rontey out of his goal.

The second cano ended as Bill L'Heureux drove home the disc on a solo effort to make it 8-1 for Toronto. Bill Hunnissett took over the net-minding chores for Varsity in the last period and kept his citadel free of pucks while his team-mate, Art Boddington notched number nine and Tom Callen sliced a perfect putt from a few yards out. Game over, Toronto 10, Yale 1.

GIVES STRENGTH WITH LIGHT WEIGHT

A FISHERMAN reels in a fine, silvery trolling line. It is made of "Monel", an alloy of Nickel and Copper—tough, strong, rust-proof. Somewhere out in the Atlantic a chain 4200 feet long drags a 10½ ton plow which buries transatlantic cables in the ocean's floor. It was forged from steel containing 3½% Nickel—light in weight, but more than twice as strong as ordinary chains of the same size.

When alloyed with iron, steel or other metals, Nickel gives increased strength, toughness, hardness, and resistance to wear and corrosion. So industry the world over makes use of Canadian Nickel. A locomotive in India, a coal cutter in a British mine, a truck in Africa and a dredge in Malay all operate with fewer breakages because of Canadian Nickel.

The sale of Nickel to peaceful industry brings money back to Canada. This money pays wages not only to those who work in the mines, smelters and refineries, but also to those Canadians who produce the food, cut the timber, manufacture the equipment and supplies, and man the railroads which feed Canada's Nickel industry.

DEFENCE HEARING FOR LIBEL SUIT HELD BY GUOLLA

Editor-in-Chief of 'Varsity' and Vice-President of Swing Club Examined

Examination for defence in the libel suit of Swing Club v. The Varsity was held yesterday in the chambers of Louis Guolla, master of the supreme court. Examined during the hearing were Alfred C. Forrest, editor-in-chief of The Varsity, and George Carty, vice-president of the Swing Club.

The trial will commence on Thursday in the law building, it is believed, and will be transferred later to the junior common room of University College. The jury will be empanelled in the afternoon from students in U.C.

According to the lawyers for the defence, they are well satisfied with the results of the hearing and are confident that the honour of The Varsity will be upheld. George Carty for the complainants, remarked that he hoped that his lawyers were holding something up their sleeves for the trial.

Teamster Proud of "Jean" She Keeps Walks Clear

By W. J. Armstrong

With a proud carriage, straight and beautiful of limb, and with innocent and soulful eyes—that's Jean.

It was four years ago that she first came to this university, and ever since she has been plugging steadily along. Having a perfect figure and being a small eater, she is of such a type that would charm any man. Obedient and faithful, Jean is Alf Rigler's greatest love.

Alf Rigler is the teamster of the University of Toronto. He is a short fellow, wears greasy overalls and a smock with three pencils in it. You'd never think from looking at him that he had any romance in him, but his love for Jean is genuine.

Now Jean is no co-ed. No girl Jean is the shaggy beast of burden that is responsible for having all the university sidewalks cleaned in time for the student to trek to the library without snowshoes. Jean and Alf generally start out between three and four o'clock in the morning and plough the ten miles of sidewalks in four hours.

Jean and Alf may be courting disaster, but it was also revealed that they are the ones who are responsible for delivering the examination papers around May.

"Now about Jean," says Alf, "there is no doubt about it—she's the best little beast ever put in harness."

Between seven and eight hundred students have filled out the S.C.M.-sponsored questionnaire to reveal their religious leanings, it was revealed by John Coleman, president of the Student Christian Movement, to The Varsity yesterday.

It is not definitely known how long the survey will last, but it is believed that one thousand answers is the objective. The survey will last for a day or two more at least.

Whether or not the results will be published is not definitely stated by the S.C.M., but it was indicated that the results might be withheld from the press and be kept as statistics for the S.C.M. and any campus organization.

Because of the cancellation of their European tour, owing to unsettled conditions there, the Hart House String Quartet will spend more time than usual in Canada this year, according to members. The Quartet has recently returned from a triumphal tour of the United States.

At the suggestion of the Hon. Vincent Massey, and with the co-operation of the Massey Foundation, a series of six Monday twilight concerts will be given in Hart House Theatre, beginning February 13, exclusively for the undergraduates. A nominal admission price of twenty-five cents will be charged, to cover the cost of printing the programs and the general expenses. Even with Hart House sold out, the gross receipts could only reach one hundred dollars, wherefore no one could imagine that this is a money-making (Continued on Page 4)

To make sure that no graduate or undergraduate of the senior college, U.C., would be able to complain of having missed the social event of the year, the Arts Ball, because of ignorance of its approach, every person in these categories was sent a formal invitation by mail with the letter R.S.V.P. printed in gothic characters in the bottom left hand corner.

Phil Benson, social director of U.C. Literary and Athletic Society, reports that he is virtually swamped with replies, and that he was unaware that so many college people know the correct thing to do on formal occasions. Although it never occurred to him that those invited would reply, or even that they would know what the letters R.S.V.P. mean, Phil Benson received the surprise of his life when the first reply came in. He was reassured when he read that the person in question was only informing him that he would be unable to come. Subsequently, however, (Continued on Page 4)

"The gay colours of which the habitants are so fond lived not only their houses but their home-made clothes," said George Pepper, reviewing the exhibit of oils by his wife and himself in Hart House Gallery at noon yesterday.

Their simple lives are punctuated by the gatherings at the church on Sunday mornings, and an occasional soiree where there is much singing, fiddle and accordion music. (Continued on Page 4)

Despite Complete Self-Out Music Club Loses Money

Despite the complete self-out for the four performances of the Victoria Music Club's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Pinafore, the club has not yet been able to meet expenses, it was reported yesterday. According to official sources, a debt of between $100 and $200 was incurred by the club.

A balanced budget would have required five performances to capacity houses, it was revealed, but only four were allowed. An agreement between the staff of Victoria College and the (Continued on Page 4)

Parking Activities On Campus Seem To Bother Law Guardians

Without snow shovels or superheated constitutions students have recently found themselves against the law with regard to traffic regulations about parking activities on the campus. Police, intent on the orderly and proper distribution of motor cars, have been issuing warnings to check up certain infractions.

Members of the faculties, under similar conditions, forsaking their St. George St. parking lots offer competition for the favourite posts in the morning scramble.

During the day co-eds after finishing a lecture at U.C., take to their automobiles and are off to the south end of the front campus. They turn their cars into a convenient gap and step out sometimes without observing if the vehicle is in proper relationship to the curb, parking signs, or even to fire hydrants.

On Saturdays police duties are taxed to the utmost in the daylight hours and also in the evening when people are drawn to Convocation Hall or to the ever-active Hart House.

Police assert that those nasty little tickets would not be necessary if motor car operators would co-operate with them and use a bit more observation and common sense.

Athletic Nights

Last Saturday night there were almost eleven hundred participants and spectators at the Hart House "Athletic Night". As far as we know this is a record, and certainly more than has ever been seen at such an affair during the past few years.

The Athletic Association has been working faithfully towards establishing such affairs regularly for the students of the University, hoping to make the athletic win a centre for good, wholesome, and exciting student entertainment, at a fee which is out of the reach of no one. These things are for the students, and the dancing afterwards, which is an attractive feature, isn't introduced especially as a drawing-card, but more to top the evening's fun. Although there may have been some who were surprised and disappointed that they were not able to get in to the dance after the athletic events were over, the officials are to be commended for their attitude. The athletic wing parties are not cheap dances. The music is for the sake of those who are interested in seeing the games, and who come out and give the teams a hand, and make the bearers of the Blue and White in basketball, swimming and other indoor sports realize that rugby isn't the only popular sport on the campus. It isn't meant for those who wish only to go to a ten o'clock dance.

The Public Address system is a very important and valuable addition to the gymnasium, and Mr. McCutcheon proved himself a real sports announcer by the very commendable way in which he handled the program. It is believed that the fans would appreciate even more of the introduction system. Perhaps Captain Walt McGregor of the local senior team might give a little speech of welcome to the visiting teams.

The unfortunate arrangement of the big gym, which limits the number of spectators of a basketball game, is a serious handicap which should have been foreseen before the building was erected. But when a big game is coming off, it might be possible to arrange for a few more seats even yet. The necessity of a gym where a good crowd of spectators might be accommodated should be a serious consideration of the authorities when the new women's athletic building is erected.

A cheer-leader at a basketball game would be another valuable acquisition. The fans themselves are of that exceptional calibre which makes them cheer loudest for the team which is down, and if a cheer-leader were to be brought to a game, he should try at all costs to maintain that good spirit, which, although it gives the Varsity boys the feeling that they have supporters behind them, makes the visitors leave Toronto with the idea that the Varsity people are good sports. Because there is not the number of rooters to follow the winter-sports teams, as accompanies the football squads in the autumn, it is necessary for local supporters to be a little more impartial in their support, than at the football games.

If Toronto lives up to the tradition which she is following this year, she will develop and maintain the reputation which she now has, of being one of the best hosts in the athletic union.

The Coming Holiday

It is seldom that the several colleges and faculties of this university combine in pursuit of an end worthy of the University as a whole. An example of such united effort, as welcome as it is rare, is to be found in the coming presentation of Holiday under the auspices of the University Drama Committee.

Such collective effort—in the cast are people from three major colleges and the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering—deserves the support of all students. This is as much a University affair as the Saturday afternoon exploits of the "Big Blue Team" or the reminiscent summarizing of Torontonensis, and promises to be as exciting as the one and as significant as the other.

The University Drama Committee is to be congratulated on its persistent efforts to rescue campus dramas from the danger of diversified effort in which it is exposed by the unrelated activities or several college societies. Earlier this season the Committee invited Mr. Sholome Gelber, recently returned from dramatic school in New York, to produce a one-act play for presentation in Hart House Theatre at five o'clock in the afternoon. This step was an attempt to show what might be done in the way of an afternoon show if the best of talent were selected from the campus and if the best facilities were used. The near-perfection of the performance justified the venture, and promised well for a future where the college societies are secondary to a University Theatre.

A second and similar effort is Holiday. The Drama Committee were very fortunate in securing the services of Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre, as director of the production. Prominent names in Canadian theatre have promised to attend the premiere this Thursday evening.

It is the hope of The Varsity that the coming production will secure the support to which such worthy effort is entitled.—R.G.A.

Dear Sir:

The annual West End Creche book sale, where students have become accustomed to purchase many books each year, will commence on February 20th. The proceeds from this sale are used entirely to help keep up the creche where working mothers are able to leave their children while at work. Used textbooks, especially, are valuable, and it would be appreciated if any students who have books lying around which are not being used, would turn them in for the sale.

If desired these books will be called for. Please phone Mo. 4172, and leave the address.

Sincerely,

Friday Afternoon Recital

Standing room only was in order at last Friday's recital when Frankish Styles, a member of Hart House, was the guest artist. He showed great versatility, playing a diversified program covering as it did works from Bach to Gershwin.

Mr. Styles was very sure of himself, a quality sometimes lacking in a young pianist, and his interpretation was most exacting. His playing possessed the happy mixture of strength and delicacy with always an effortless feeling of sincerity that never allowed exaggeration.

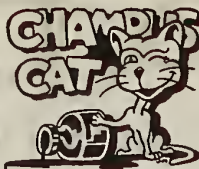

Reflets dans l'eau, a lovely tone poem by Debussy was played with great finesse requiring as does so much of Debussy's music, an almost imitative technique.

The pianist's playing of a Toccata by Yorks Bowen was phrased with beautiful deliberation. His performance at all times was scholarly and finely expressed.

In George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue he was excellent. This is certainly not very easy music to perform, moving as it does through jungle jazz to sophisticated harmonies, but Mr. Styles was equal to all its intricacy. The impression of sustained tones, most difficult on a piano, was well done.

tions from well-known operas, which have so intrigued the actors that Willard Thomson, director of the production, has been forced to hide it in order that rehearsals may continue uninterrupted.

Bert Stanley, stage manager of Hart House Theatre, discovered that this music box was a replica of that used in the movie starring Katherine Hepburn and Cary Grant, when he attended a recent showing of that film. He immediately recognized that the picture inside the lid of the phonograph which his father had obtained was the same as that pictured in the movie.

Mr. Thomson assures the cast that he will bring it out of its hiding place in time for the first performance on Thursday, Feb. 9, and he guarantees that it will give a first-rate performance.

Lou Weingarten, who plays the mirth-provoking Nick Potter in the play, has his fingers crossed with regard to the performance of the music box, for he has to change the records in the second act, and he does not have the same confidence in the music box as Mr. Thomson.

Yesterday at Varsity Arena Trinity I and Sr. S.P.S. hockey teams battled to a 4-all tie. Leading 2-1 at the end of the first period, Trinity were outscored 3-2 by the Engineers in the second frame. In the last period the Engineers settled down to play defensive hockey, holding their one goal lead while keeping the Red and Black off the score-sheet. R. Galway was high-scorer for the Schoolmen, netting the puck three times, and Prince got the other tally. Mills of Trinity aided his team with three counters, and the fourth was shot into the twine by Hodgins.

Facts and Findings In Sport

By Bernie Skiffman

Hank Luisetti's record of thirty points scored in one game of basketball was recently broken when Ralph Vaughn of Southern California got thirty-six points, as much as his entire opposition U.C.L.A., who were defeated 69-36 in the contest," says Dan Parker of the Daily Mirror. It certainly is strange when you consider our own Moose holds the Michigan State record of thirty-five points.

Lew Young, Clarence Kinper, and Jack Clark of the University of Wyoming basketball team, recently quit because of disputes over campus employment. They were voted back in the line-ups by their mates with apologies to soothe their wounded feelings. Thereupon they went out and helped kick Denver 44-32. It is also interesting to note that Art Evans is considering going to school after working for four years.

Larry O'Connor of Toronto got bracketed with Allan Tolmick of Detroit as tops in the hurdles last Saturday night at the Millrose Athletic Association track meet at Madison Square Gardens. Bill Fritz of Queen's University came second in the feature attraction, which was won by Wallace of Fordham University, who came through in the last five yards to take the event.

Pop Warner, famous Temple football coach, has resigned his post and Fred Swar, former Stanford star, is taking his place.

The "Boys from Syracuse," led by Singh, are riding a five-game streak and play Manhattan College at the Gardens this week-end. Manhattan took the Niagara Purple Eagles in their last encounter.

Western University basketball team have finally taken it on the chin. They lost a twin engagement this week while Windsor Alumni took them handily while Assumption College revenge an earlier defeat.

Ed. Note: They also lost to the Blues on Saturday.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Ed Goodman

THE DAY OF RECKONING APPROACHES

Now that the senior basketball team have made certain that they will at least be in at the final fight for the title by defeating Western, we turn to the other long-awaited athletic encounter of the winter semester, the first league Varsity-McGill hockey game. Ace Bailey's squad leave for Montreal this Thursday where they will meet U. of M. on Friday evening and McGill on Saturday. The Blues should have but little difficulty in winning the game against the Frenchmen, which will serve as a prep contest for their game against the champion Redmen.

It has been seven years since Varsity defeated McGill and won the championship; and as has been constantly repeated throughout the columns of this paper this is the year that the Blue pucksters seem to be a really potent threat and have an excellent chance of dethroning McGill. With a rather naive abandon we are prepared to throw out the Toronto loss at the hands of Queen's, on the grounds of home risk or something, and call Varsity to defeat McConnell, Anton et al. In doing this we fully realize that McGill's record is equally as impressive as Varsity's, and that they defeated the Toronto team 2 to 1 in an early season exhibition game at Rye. However, the Blue pucksters are looking better on each appearance, and when to this we add their fierce determination to bring the crown back to Toronto, we think that at the worst, they can be placed as an even-money bet to win right in McGill.

Bill L'Heureux's charley horse which has been bothering him for several weeks is rapidly disappearing and when he reaches top form the Toronto attack will be noticeably stronger.

THE INTERMEDIATES REAPPEAR

The only title that a Varsity hockey team has won for quite a while is the intermediate intercollegiate championship. This league was inaugurated last year. Tomorrow the Blue squad make their season's debut against O.A.C. In reality this is the junior squad bolstered by a few senior alternates. And while we are on the subject of this year's juniors we want to correct an erroneous impression prevalent around the campus.

While the record of Jimmy MacPherson's boys does not look impressive on paper, they were a mighty fine team. Off to a very poor start due to lack of early practice, they improved rapidly towards the end, and at the present time are playing a lot better hockey than other teams in their league who made the O.H.A. playoffs. Unfortunately the juniors do not at times get the credit they deserve in The Varsity, as it is rather hard to tell a person who was not at the games that they were outlucked. But such is the case, and perhaps if the Blues get in S.P.A. pre-season series next year, they will have a better chance to go places in their league.

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE

While glancing over the Daily Princetonian, to read all about the clashes between Yale and Princeton's hockey, basketball, squash and polo teams, all in a week-end, we noticed the following item that should be of interest. We reprint:

Even Princeton's rugged puckchasers are not free from the eternal struggle between love and duty. Before the Williams game the telephone in the Daily Princetonian's Information Bureau rang.

"Is there a hockey game today?" asked a sweet young voice.

"Yes," said the Bureau.

"A great, big game?"

"Oh, dear." A low moan and a pause. "Oarling, you'll just have to go back," murmured the sweet, young voice—not to the Information Bureau.

PENN STATE TEAM TO COMPETE HERE

Captain of Team Unable to Swim Against Visitors in Meet

Nels Earl, outstanding Varsity swimmer, who was elected captain of the team by his mates last week, will be unable to swim in the meet against the renowned Penn State team this Friday night. Earl is president of the Victoria College Union, and as Victoria is celebrating its annual at-home Friday night, he finds it necessary to be on hand to take his place in the receiving line earlier than he would be able to if he were to compete in the swimming competition.

Doug Green, who will be swimming, and Sam Lipin, manager of the team, will be on hand, but will desert the pool for Simpson's Arcadian Court as soon as the meet is over. Ged Clawson, former Olympic representative from Canada, will be swimming in both the breast stroke and the free style, and will be exchanging his bathing suit for a set of tails and a white tie, in time to slip into the other part of the House to the University College Arts Ball.

JUNIOR STICKMEN TO TACKLE O.A.C.

1938 Intermediate Champs to Meet O.A.C. in Varsity Arena Today

Last year's intermediate intercollegiate hockey champions, Varsity juniors face their first intercollegiate competition of the season when they tangle with O.A.C. in Varsity Arena at 4 p.m. today.

With the full junior squad, with the possible exception of Thor Stephenson, who may move up with the seniors, Jimmy McPherson has added George Wood and Ed Smith of the senior squad, to fill out his team.

Based on their showing of last year and their improved play in the last games of their Big Eight schedule, the Blues have high hopes of finishing the season with the intermediate title.

The Guelph Aggies are on top of the league now, having defeated a highly rated Western team 5-4 over the week-end, and would like nothing better than to defeat the Blues on their home ice. However, with Pentland in goal, McGilligan, Boxer and Smith on defence, and Quigley, Jones and company leading the attack, the Aggies face their toughest competition of the year, and their task is a difficult one.

THE GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

By Marg Conlin

Saturday morning lectures for the past few weeks have been considerably brightened by the attendance of students gaily clad in ski clothes and such. The brightening effect though merely included the pictorial aspect and not any mental territory, so we are told. However, the campus did achieve that northern atmosphere for a while, with the featured players trying hard not to be too self-conscious about it.

Thursday night the basketball moguls have arranged a practice game between our senior and intermediate Varsity teams. If you don't know the senior team by now you can't say we haven't tried. The peppy intermediate squad is composed of a fairly representative group. Annabelle Macdon and Mary Bennett from St. Mike's; Ruth Dauder from the University of Toronto; Molly Moore and Mary Gason, star Victoria products; and versatile Ann McDonald, who teams up with Peggy McLaren for the honour of U.C. This scheduled game about which we shall tell you more anon, will be well worth your attention. Especially if there isn't any ice Thursday. Unaccustomed as we are to weather-forecasting, since there is a hockey game slated for Thursday, there probably won't be ice. Now, maybe a direct challenge will change the thermometer.

Intercuticly badminton, delayed because of term exams and such obstacles in the path of the true athlete, should be producing some surprises soon. Most of the clubs have finished their tournaments, but St. Mike's won't have their results until the end of the week. Until now everyone's been too busy "cheeping" the accompaniment to Arty Shaw's "Indian Love Call".

JR. MEOS 4, DENTS 0

Jr. Meds, showing lots of fight, nipped the hopes of the Molarmen in the bud by running up 4 goals. Young of Meds, whose suspension was lifted in time for him to play, scored three of his team's goals and inspired the Ocoors to their best efforts this season. Twenty-two students entered the slalom race, only event at the University of Toronto Ski Club over the week-end.

R. Smart of S.P.S. made the best time for the combined runs, being clocked at 35.8 and 35.5 seconds respectively. Best time for one run was made by G. Bailey of Forestry, who completed his second run in 32.7 seconds. Jack Ames of S.P.S. was second on the combined time records and A. McDonald of Meds was third.

Weather conditions were excellent and the trails were in perfect shape. Jumping and cross country events will be held this Saturday at 1 sharp at the Varsity cabin.

The Doctors broke into front position in the first inning with a two-run rally. U.C. finally tied it up in the third when Cutler batted in Fowler and Boyce with a double through the centre.

In the final inning Meds scored three times. Goldenberg, Green and Brenzel crossed the plate after Ginsberg had driven the ball high and far into the rafters over the track. Reingold, pitching for Meds, fanned five men during the four inning game.

Jr. Meds: Green, Brenzel, Ginsberg, Jolly, Reingold, Henders, Goldenberg, Rath.

Jr. U.C.: Fowler, Harvey, Boyce, Cutler, Gerby, Mackintosh, Epstein, Gould, Nichol, Robinson.

but the dancing is confined to intricate steps by the men alone.

Kathleen Daly and her husband spend their summers at Baie St. Paul, near Quebec, where most of the landscapes and the habitat portraits were done.
Mr. Pepper suggested that the blond hair of some of the children indicated their descent from Scotch soldiers who settled there and intermarried. Although the natives were in most cases willing to pose, they soon lost interest and so the portraits had to be done very rapidly. The old lady in the rock-ing chair in the painting on the right side of the east wall is 98 years old.
She was married at 16 and had her first baby at 17. Besides a $100 fee to the midwife who was the only attendant at her 12 childbirths, her only medical expenditure was $200 for having the doctor fix her ear. Her daughter-in-law, who is in the background and who appears in the centre picture on that wall, died in her 18th childbirth before the latter portrait could be finished. Most of the Indians were painted at Point Bleu, on Lake Saint John.

Much of the country is very rolling and the artist did not know how the farmers made ends meet. Fields, such as the almost perpendicular ones in the one over the fireplace, have to be harvested by hand. The two children with the green apples cried when they were asked to pose, but when they were asked to hold the belles pommes so that the lady could paint them they co-operated most willingly. Mr. Pepper could not remember the final fate of the apples, but commented that children in Quebec eat many things that seem far more indigestible.

CLUB GOES IN DEBT OVER S.S. PINAFORE

Music Club was reported to have been reached before the production by which the club was limited to four performances. The executive is believed to have realized beforehand that the expenses would exceed the profit.

It was pointed out that the primary objective was not the financial gain, but it was felt that another performance of Pinafore would undoubtedly have at least met the expenses.

The probable deficit may be made up from the reserve fund of the Victoria College Union. The matter in question now is what will be done in future similar cases.

Costumes, lighting, printing, rental of Hart House Theatre for the performances, and other expenses, contributed to the $2,000 at which the cost of the production was estimated.

A dance is to be held on February 24 for those who took part in the production.

VIC HOCKEY TEAM TO PLAY AMERICANS

On Thursday the Victoria College hockey team leaves for its second annual trip to Clinton, N.Y., to meet Hamilton College. The Scarlet and Gold is slated to tangle with the town team at Clinton on Friday and the Hamilton College squad on Saturday.
Though the Vic puckmen have not shown much fight in their league games to date the power house that outfought St. Mike's of the Jennings Cup last year remains practically intact. "Pep" Kelly of the Toronto Maple Leafs has been signed as coach to file some of the rough spots off the powerful but disorganized sextet. Under his expert tutelage the team has begun to resemble once more the snappy, well-oiled machine that swept to the interfaculty title last spring.

Doug Haig in goal has replaced
"Angel" Hunnissett, who has gone with Varsity juniors. Johnny Hogg, formerly of Perth Blue Wings and Ian Mac-Leod of Varsity juniors are the only additions.

MEN! . . . Have you ever seen a beautiful co-ed pass by, and wondered how old the damsel was? . . . Have you ever grown bold enough and ventured to ask the pretty girl her age, and had her blush and coyly reply "You Guess!" . . . Well, men, your worries are over, for information has been received from the Texas Physical Education Department that a girl's maturity is bared by a bone in the foot. . . .
It seems that there is a small bone called the sesamoid bone on the ball of the foot and if the aforesaid co-ed is more a woman than a girlie that bone will show. . . . Of course you will have to use an x-ray, but that will not daunt us men. . . . INVESTIGATION WILL BEGIN IMMEDIATELY!

CO-EDS WITH DIRTY FEET. . .
This is not from the picture of the same name, but an actual fact discovered in a recent foot contest held at Okahoma University, where a foot contest was held. . . . However, in spite of this fact, two co-eds, namely Maude Allen and Mary Beth Huddleston, were chosen as winners because of their corniness and bunionsless feet. . . . The reason for their success is easily explained. . . . Both girls used to romp barefooted through the dusty streets of their home town. . . . Another reason is that both girls never owned a pair of high-heeled shoes until they got glamorous at their senior high-school dances. . . . And so, you girls who like the three inch spikes. . . . Supposing we had a contest here in Varsity, where would you be? . . .

THE MODERN AUTOMOBILE
will soon pass out of existence. . . .
This is true as far as statistics go across the border. . . . More students in the American colleges are riding bicycles than ever before. . . . Especially in Vassar, the girls have accepted the bicycle as the correct mode of conveyance, and already a fine system has been set up for students who are reckless enough to ride without a taillight. . . . This makes us feel very sad. . . . It seems that the only people who have nerve enough to ride bicycles here at Varsity are the professors.

NOTES OFF THE ELBOW. . . .
All girls who wear strapless evening gowns are in for trouble. . . . It seems that they might be arrested on vagrancy charges because they have no visible means of support. . . . The University of Mexico student council has petitioned the library to remain open more hours of the week. . . . (Voice in background) "You can't make me believe that stuff". . . . A new study of evolution is being made at Indiana University where Professor A. C. Kinsey is examining 100,000 specimens of the gail wasp. . . . How jolly for Professor A. C. Kinsey. . . . Actress Helen Hayes became Hamilton College's second alumna this month when she was awarded a Doctor of Humane Letters.

G. LATHE STRESSES SCHOLARSHIP NEEDS

success, Dr. Lathe smilingly replied that whereas only a year ago there had been a mere handful of students mildly interested in the problem of national scholarships, there are now no less than twenty-five committees actively engaged in furthering the work throughout Canada. And, continued the doctor, "we have just had our first Canada-wide broadcast", proving that such has been the interest aroused by local propaganda that nation-wide publicity is no longer difficult to obtain.

Dr. Lathe was questioned with regard to his opinion of the attitude toward scholarship funds expressed in an editorial in this paper a short time ago.
His reply was to the effect that statements such as "Canada needs other things more than scholarships", are usually not substantially fortified by arguments. Those who advocate national scholarships do not profess that these will solve all problems of the educational system, but merely that it is a step in the right direction—a direction in which "Canada is lagging far behind, as usual, in comparison to Great Britain and the United States."

Returning momentarily towards the end of the interview to a few brief remarks upon the attitude of Chinese students towards the war, Dr. Lathe stressed the phenomenal attitude of the Chinese people as a whole towards the Japanese people as a whole.

"We might very well learn a lesson from the Easterners who are civilized enough to separate entirely their bil-terness towards the Japanese military class responsible for the war from any feeling towards the Japanese people themselves."

To exemplify this, Dr. Lathe told of seeing two posters outside a school in Hangchow, one reading, "Down with Japanese Imperialism!", the other, beneath it, "Love the Japanese people!"

enterprise for the Quartet.
As these concerts will be known as the Monday "Pops", the programs are planned to have the widest appeal. Some years ago, the Hart House Quartet gave an annual series of concerts to undergraduates in Convocation Hall, when twelve hundred students regularly attended. Therefore the small seating capacity of Hart House Theatre should indicate to music lovers the necessity of securing their tickets in good time.

John Weatherhead, F.R.C.O., organist of St. George's Church, will play the fifth in a series of Twilight Organ Recitals at Convocation Hall on Wednesday at five o'clock. These concerts, which are sponsored by the University, and feature the Convocation Hall organ which was recently remodelled and improved by the makers, Casavant Frères.
The next concert in the series will be held on February 21, and will be given by Dr. Healy Willan, assisted by George Lambert and the chorus of St.
Mary Magdalene Church.

Hollywood Theatre

The best part of the French program at the Hollywood Theatre Saturday morning was something that was not advertised. This was a "short" made by Alfred Cortot, France's premier pianist and conductor. Pure fantasy was this film based on Debussy's Children's Corner Suite. Such feeling and elf-like touches is something so apart from the regular one or two reel fill-ins that the audience was completely taken by surprise. When the picture finished there was a spontaneous burst of applause.

This suite is divided into short pieces with separate titles, of which the best known is the Gollywog's Cakewalk. In the film the central theme is a little girl, the mistress of a collection of toys and dolls which come to life to move and dance. All this is accompanied by the incomparable Cortot who is seen playing the piano in short asides. The recording of the music is superb.

The main feature was Danielle Dar-rieux in Mlle. Ma Mere. It was an involved production of "Boy Meets Girl", but the girl is the boy's stepmother, which all adds to the tangle. Mlle. Darrieux plays the comedy role so well it is hard to remember that she is the same actress who added so much to the tragedy Mayerling.

Some of the situations were genuinely funny and it was by all means worth seeing, but at the same time it was hard to awaken sympathy for the irresponsible young female scatterbrain who caused all the complications. The juvenile lead was well handled with just the right emphasis of comic relief.
A small part, that of the detective hired to follow Danielle, was one of the best things in the picture. We didn't get his name as the list of characters flashed by too quickly at the first of the picture.

We would like to donate orchids to the film companies that place the list of actors at the end as well as the beginning of a picture. Ted Meek

Students Do Research In Various Problems

CLUB SHELTERS 800 UNEMPLOYED

Good Neighbours' Club Takes Men from Hostels; Financed by Public Subscriptions

Eight hundred of Toronto's unemployed are sheltered and encouraged at the Good Neighbours' Club, 55 Gould Street. About a year ago, the club was started to take hostel men off the streets.

"Our idea is to keep unemployed men employable," said Mr. J. T. Aiken. "After living in a hostel, most men become indolent and apathetic. Some of them could not take jobs even if they should get them. Some of the younger men have never worked steadily and have to be taught. For that reason we try to build a program for them—occupational, educational and recreational. By keeping them interested, we're keeping them useful citizens."

The Good Neighbours' Club is run on public subscriptions and right now about $5,000 is needed to enable it to carry on. Because of the lack of money the members of the club in their occupational work make things out of scrap. The men run the house completely, even electing members to their own council.

Dr. S. S. Dhamie lectures every Friday night to about a hundred men and there is a current history class on Thursday nights. Mr. Douglas Carr of the Workers' Education Society and Arthur McFarlane, a representative of the Carnegie Foundation, have addressed the men as well.

Psychology and Engineering Are Other Fields for Recent Experiments

METHODS VARY

The amount of research carried out in the University of Toronto is not apparent to the average undergraduate. Research work is being done in a large number of faculties throughout the year, and when a lighted window is seen late at night on the campus, it is extremely probable that some investigator is hard at work on a problem of importance to humanity.

While it is well known that insulin was discovered here, and its extraction first carried out, it is little known that an active vaccine for whooping cough has been developed. Results indicate that 98 per cent of children inoculated are rendered immune from this dread disease, which in 1936 caused 29 deaths in Ontario. A serum has been developed for the treatment of influenza meningitis, formerly invariably fatal. Out of 50 cases treated, 12 recovered and are now perfectly normal. Valuable work has been done in the investigation of poliomyelitis, and treatment found to lessen the tendency towards the development of deformities.

Of interest is the work being done on the construction of an electron microscope, which has a range far beyond (Continued on Page 4)

CARDS MAY DELUGE M.P.s IN CAMPAIGN

Petitions to Carry Printed Message Exhorting M.P.s to Support National System of Scholarships

Members of parliament are going to be literally deluged with postal card petitions for a national scholarship campaign if the desks situated in Hart House and the Economics Building maintain the brisk pace of the last two days.

The petitions take the form of past cards addressed to the Federal Minister of Labour and the local members of parliament by which the National Scholarship Committee hopes to establish the existence of a widespread interest in the campaign.

The cards carry a printed message which exhorts the members of parliament to support the national system of scholarships on the grounds that youth is "faced with demoralizing insecurity, and that it is imperative that the many brilliant matriculating students be permitted to cultivate their exceptional talents."

Colder with snow in some parts of Ontario, the weatherman predicts. Already a cold spell which has Western Canada in its grip is moving in on Ontario, although Mr. Weatherman does not expect any extreme temperatures.

C.O.T.C. SLIPS ON PARADE

Imagine the C.O.T.C. on tip toes! Imagine them tripping up University Avenue like a bunch of khaki bellers! Every one of them, from the commanding officer to the private!

The Corps had a lot of weather to contend with last night during their monthly night parade. A fine sheet of very slippery ice coated the line of march from the armories to the corps headquarters. The usually brisk pace was reduced to a slow crawl. All methods of fighting this icy enemy were tried from stamping heavily on the pavement to walking on the tip toes. Everyone from the commanding officer down to the privates were slithering about trying to keep upright.

Keeping in time with the band was hardly possible. When marching at ease, the men being allowed to talk, kept themselves from losing heart altogether by thinking of the bass drummer. Try as they might to prevent it, the enemy overcame many a hardy soldier; much to the discomfort of the fallen.

Suggestions for forming fighting skating companies were suggested by the men as additions to the services of the infantry. This, it was thought, would offset down to the privates were slithering about trying to keep upright.

Doctors Prepare Skits For Daffydil Night

SERIES CONTINUES ON PERSONALITY

Today at 1.30 in the theatre of the Women's Union, the third lecture in the S.C.M. Women's Noon-Hour Series will be delivered. Mrs. J. D. H. Hutchinson will speak on "Women and Men"—their functional and personal relationships, meaning of equality and the difficulties in achieving it.

Mrs. Hutchinson is a graduate of Dalhousie University and of Emmanuel College; she was secretary of the Student Christian Movement at Toronto from 1930 to 1935; and is now assistant to the minister at Sherbourne St. United Church.

SCHOLARSHIP DRIVE TO BE BROADCAST

A broadcast setting forth the reasons for a system of national scholarships will be heard through CBL and CBY at 4.45 p.m. today, when Miss Lockerie, a regular interviewer at that hour, questions Leslie Rowland, prominent Manitoba student, on the proposal.

Mr. Rowland will attempt to explain why the Dominion Government should set aside a certain amount of money to provide brilliant but needy students with advanced education, as a national investment. He is president of the University of Manitoba Debating Union, and an advocate of the scholarships campaign on the Manitoba campus.

SERIES CONTINUES UNDER JOHN DOW

Professor John Dow, popular professor of New Testament of Emmanuel College, will speak on "The Meaning of Prayer" in the S.C.M. noon-hour address in Hart House. This is the second in the new series which began with Sir Robert Falconer's address last week.

Professor Dow is a graduate of St. Andrew's University, Scotland, and has held a prominent place in the academic life of Canada ever since he came to this country. He is a familiar figure at student conferences and understands the problems of the undergraduate sufficiently well as to be skillful in the handling of his subject.

The question of prayer was raised in the recent questionnaire circulated by the S.C.M. and the answers submitted reveal a considerable confusion as to what prayer really is. Professor Dow's subject is thought very timely.

Middle of February is Date Set for Annual Medical Show in Hart House Theatre

GIRLS PARTICIPATE

Once again Daffydil Night and all that it implies looms on the near horizon, for on Feb. 22, 23 and 24 the various years of the medical faculty will strive to outdo each other in ingenuity and farce at Hart House Theatre.

This concoction of skits and Epistaxis was originated nearly fifty years ago by Colonel Herbert Bruce. It soon fell into disrepute, however, and was discontinued. In 1911 the fights between Meds and S.P.S. became so frequent and so much costly damage was done that Sir Robert Falconer hit upon the happy idea of reviving Daffydil Night in order to provide an outlet for the excess of animal spirits shown. It worked. Since then a higher level of entertainment has been attained, and less roystering has been apparent.

Each year writes, directs and acts their own skit. Their plans are kept a secret. The girls of the faculty also produce a skit. This is entered in competition with the others for the Harry Hutchinson Trophy. The graduating year have the particular task of depicting (Continued on Page 4)

UNDEFEATED BLUES TO MEET QUEEN'S

Sporting a record of three wins and no defeats in league competition, Warren Stevens' league-leading cagers entertain a powerful Queen's five in Hart House gymnasium this Friday evening, as part of another colossal athletic extravaganza under the auspices of the Athletic Association.

This contest shapes up as another sparkling attraction, as the Tricolour quintet battled Varsity to a close 54-50 decision on their home court in their previous meeting. The Blues were all out to gain the narrow verdict, and the closeness of the game had the fans in (Continued on page 3)

Maurice Hindus Speaks On Political Affairs

Noted Author of "Red Bread" and "Humanity Uprooted" Declares Hitler is Afraid to Fight Russia

PRaises DIPLOMACY

"Hitler won't fight Russia because he is afraid to. The Russian winter is just as cold and the marshes just as wet as in the times of Napoleon," Maurice Hindus stated in his lecture at Holy Blossom Synagogue last night.

Mr. Hindus is a Russian-born writer who has just returned from a six-month sojourn in Czechoslovakia.

"I do not believe Germany will march eastward. Now Italy and Germany want to control Spain and if war comes it will be in the west with England and France," Mr. Hindus intimated.

In regard to Russia, he declared that her great difficulty is the incompetency of her people. "If the Russians had one-tenth of the competence of the Czechs there never would have been the executions in Russia."

"Hitler is the shrewdest diplomat that has ever lived because he made a large part of the world believe that Germans in Czechoslovakia were being starved, mistreated and suppressed. This is not true," declared Mr. Hindus. "There were 102 daily newspapers in the German language in Czechoslovakia and many German schools."

"As a government, as a nation, as a people, as a democracy the Czechs outdid themselves in the sympathetic way they treated Germans in their own country," he continued.

"On September 26, Hitler shouted, 'I have only one friend and he is Mussolini.' But," Mr. Hindus continued, "look how Mussolini treats the minority group of Germans in Italy. If a teacher in an Italian school speaks to German children in German, he is sent to jail. Germans are not even allowed to write a German epitaph on their tombstones. Hitler has never said a word about the brutal treatment of Germans in Italy."

TICKET SALE RISES FOR VIC AT-HOME

Ticket sales for the Victoria College At-Home, to be held Friday at the Arcadian Court, are "much higher than in former years to date," according to Hugh Pritchard, Social Director.

George Hooley and his orchestra will provide the music, while the Bob Quartette, in a revised version of the Bob song, will satirize peculiarities of various senior students and the staff. Representatives from all other Toronto faculties and from Queen's, McMaster and O.A.C. will attend.

Reservations are booked almost to capacity, and people planning to go are advised to secure their tickets soon.

DRAMA TAKES A HOLIDAY

If all the liquor bottles which will be seen in the University Drama Committee's presentation of "Holiday" were actually full of the old mule kick, it is estimated by casual observers that an investment of up to twenty dollars would be represented.

Most of this hypothetical elixir will be guzzled by a chap named Ned Seton, a character which will be played by Hugh Henderson, last year's winner of the male award in the University Drama Festival.

As Ned Seton, he gets the curse in circumventing frustrations caused by restrictions imposed on him by his money-lusting pappy.

In Interview with "The Varsity" Mr. Hindus Calls High School College Graduates the Backbone of the Nation

IS RUSSIAN BORN

By Jean Love

Maurice Hindus as he rested in his Chinese suite at the Royal York said, "The backbone of the fascist movement in Italy and Germany is not the farmer or the factory worker, but the high school and college graduate."

Mr. Hindus, a prominent lecturer on current world trends, is the author of several well known books such as Humanity Uprooted and Red Bread. "In English-speaking countries students and faculty, unless they want totalitarianism, need to be very much on their guard lest educators and students fall victims to it all," he warned.

"The leaders in Germany and Italy are high school and college graduates," Mr. Hindus believes that since Czechoslovakia lies open for Hitler to assume political and economic control. "What is happening to the Czechs now?" I ventured. "Hitler is trying to chew them to pieces. All their ideals have been smashed to pieces. Czechoslovakia was the finest democracy in the world," he replied.

He described the economic retrogression which set in after the Munich agreement. "There is a lot of unemployment in Czechoslovakia at the present time," he said. "After Munich crippled the country the Czechs decided it was better to keep men in jobs than women."

Date of Trial Set Moot Court to Act

One Out of Every Seven Arts Students Called to Try Swing Club Libel Suit

Jury notices sent out today to every seventh male student on the lists in the Faculty of Arts brought to a close preparations for the Moot Court case of the Swing Club of the University of Toronto Inc. vs. The Varsity.

Notice was received today that proceedings would begin in the Law building at four o'clock on Thursday. The trial itself will take place in the junior common room of University College and will commence at seven o'clock in the evening.

At four o'clock the men who have received jury notices will assemble in the Law building where they will be examined by the solicitors of both parties in the case. The twelve men who will serve as jurors will remain in the company of the student judge until the time of the trial. They will join him at supper in Hart House.

According to Henderson, Seton's drunkenness is a very complex phenomenon and demands a careful attack on the part of the actor. Apparently, Seton is no mere maudlin gutter-snipe, but is rather a fairly sensible chronic but subject to sloppy-joe conditions.

"I attempt to give the impression of a gentleman drunk," declares Henderson, "or the intelligent man's approach to the blotto stage."

Towards the end of the play the inherent strength of character of Seton becomes apparent and he shows himself to be the strongest character in the family with the exception of his sister, Linda.

Culture and Crisis

The political extremists who have undertaken to manoeuvre international trends in the last ten years have had little opportunity to influence cultural trends. Where they have interfered, the results have been disastrous; as their power continues in the crescendo, the future of twentieth-century culture becomes increasingly bleak. Fascist and Communist alike depend for security largely on controlling the public mind, and the inevitable result is that in infected countries culture is subservient to politics. Leaders use not only popular literature, but the theatre and the university as weapons of propaganda.

Fascist educational tactics are so blunt that they cannot even be labelled as perverted culture. At the once-famed University of Berlin there has now been established an Anti-Semitic Department, which accepts as its basic principle the idea that no Jew or descendant of a Jew has ever contributed anything to German culture. "Professor" Joseph Streicher, himself no university man, has announced that for the good of the state and much against his own inclinations, he will lower himself to speak from the lecturer's rostrum. He does not, he says, approve of education. It is enervating for the people and weakens the state.

Communism has not launched a virulent attack on culture in general, but has had a more far-reaching effect. In Russia, a smay be expected, reading lists are very exclusive. In other parts of the world, particularly in United States, the spread of the doctrine has been marked by the appearance of proletarian literature. Left wing writers have flooded the market with stories and plays heralding the working class as the rulers of tomorrow. Creative talent has been drafted to compose leaflets for open air meetings, skits for mass rallies, group chants for working men. Young intellectuals are urged to "abandon their ivory towers and hitch their talent to the proletarian star". In its best form, as represented by the work of John Dos Passos and James T. Farrell, proletarian literature is an effective contribution to the post-war period. But these men are exceptions. For the most part, over-zealous and under-talented converts have produced quantities of drivel, which the proletarians themselves will not read. For instead of creating an American left wing atmosphere, these authors attempt to write in terms of Moscow, and the result is incongruous. Twisted to fit a foreign pattern and forced out of its social context, American proletarian literature is with a few exceptions quite unconvincing save as a sociological phenomenon.

None of the existing extreme parties have been any more successful. It is apparent that mature literature cannot be produced solely out of the immediate plans and activities of a party, but must come from the whole grain and fibre of the national existence. Political and social classifications do not apply in the field of aesthetics. While social experience is the centre of every author's material, it must appear as the spontaneous relation between the artist and his environment.

The shortcomings of proletarian literature are no indication that literature cannot be produced by the masses. Geniuses have appeared in every stratum of society. Nor is literature bound to be inadequate when it pleads the cause of a certain class. There have been authors in all ages who have voiced the cause of the common people. Dickens, Charles Kingsley and George Eliot fall into this class. But proletarian literature errs in subjecting the artistic element to the political. While nearly every piece of literature has some message to convey, in the best works it is subjected to the requirements of the art form. Not so with politically controlled literature. The writer has an axe to grind first and foremost. He must write according to the dictates of a party leader. He is far too busy converting civilization to give serious thought to the idea of enriching it. The propaganda literature of a period of social crisis fails to justify itself artistically.—B.K.

Mental Peculiarities

It would be interesting to know precisely the formula applicable to a mentally normal person. Even had we an unqualified definition it would not be a simple matter to apply the formula in individual cases. Starting with the supposition that we, ourselves, are perfectly normal, we unhesitatingly apply our "normal" prejudices and misconceptions in the evaluation of others. For purposes of analysis, we see other people through the personal medium of ourselves. Common experience assures us perhaps the majority of people see things in most ways much as we conceive them. It is when some individual in his conduct departs radically from what is generally expected from the average person, we begin to suspect that in one or more respects he is somewhat "queer".

There are aspects of human behaviour so palpably different from what we accept as normal, that we unanimously condemn the person evincing them as not only erratic but frankly abnormal. If our neighbour seriously insists that he is Julius Caesar, we conclude that he is actually, though harmlessly, unsound of mind. There may be shades and degrees of mental obliquity, some which "he who runs may read", others requiring unquestionably the services of a skilled psychiatrist to diagnose.

Now and again in the course of history there have appeared characters conspicuous not only in the role they enact, but also in the unconventional and unexpected manner in which they give effect to their office. The world today unhappily provides three outstanding characters in human drama, who vary so considerably from the normal that we are alarmed at their conduct. In this world clinic we find Hitler, whom psychologists have pronounced a "paranoiac", freely translated, "off-one's-base". Mussolini and Stalin are bracketed as "paranooids". Ostensibly this is a milder type of "paranoia".

It would seem that Mussolini's "case" might conceivably be considered a milder form of mental abnormality. It manifests itself (save for the harsh disciplining as ministered in helpless Ethiopia) in bombastic rhetoric and the childish appetit for applause. Nor does it seem fit to an uncritical mind to assign to Stalin a benign type of aberration.

We are inclined to wonder in which bracket of abnormality must be placed the millions of people who not only tolerate but singularly approve of the extreme behaviour of these "off-centred" leaders.

Toronto Symphony

George Enesco sustained the level of his greatness as violinist last night when he played with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra conducted by Sir Ernest MacMillan.

Without ostentation or pretence the guest artist held a capacity audience at Massey Hall extremely attentive to his mastery violin playing. The three movements of Beethoven's Violin Concerto in D were uninterrupted by applause because of the broadcast although the audience most certainly would like to have given outward signs of their enjoyment.

Technical perfection, precision and agility are Enesco's chief attributes as a violinist. Throughout the concerto one could not help but be impressed also with the ease and mellowness of his playing as against vigorous fortissimo passages. With the long solo passage of the Allegro came the first real signs of Enesco's emotional warmth, well marked, but not exaggerated, and a display of roped scale passages and trills that were crystal clear. The Largo of this same composition, a movement of haunting loveliness

And what of the rest of the program? It was relatively unimportant. However, the Sorcerer's Apprentice by Dukas, evoked audible chuckles among the audience and lightened the first half of the program with the rhythmically comic strains of a highly expressive subject which has received a freely imaginative treatment.

Organ Recital

Eight selections, arranged in approximately chronological order from a prelude of the early seventeenth century to a fantasia of the present era, comprised the interesting program played by John Weatherseed, F.R.C.O., organist of St. George's Church, Montreal, at the second of the current series of fortnightly, Tuesday, twilight, organ recitals, in Convocation Hall last evening.

Mr. Weatherseed's phrasing was excellent. Unfortunately the organ is not an instrument which has a standardized system of registration. The arrangements of the stops on almost every console varies, and the names on the pull knobs seldom mean the same thing on two different instruments. Despite the fact that once or twice there were almost imperceptible, yet awkward pauses while the organist searched in vain for the right pull, and one part was drowned out by the others, and the total contrast possible on the instrument were not always utilized as much as they might have been, the recital as a whole was most enjoyable.

At the next recital on February 21, Dr. Willan will be assisted by Mr. George Lambert and the choir of St. Mary Magdalene, in a program based on the Tonus Peregrinus.

WYCLIFFE DEFEAT FORESTRY 25-9

Wycliffe A basketball team romped to a 25-9 victory over Forestry in the upper gym yesterday. The Theodors were far superior in their passing attacks, and took advantage of the disorganized play of the Woodmen to achieve some neat combination efforts. Chalk and Grinnell worked hard to put some zest into the boys in green, but their shooting was off and Wycliffe snaggled the rebounds. Day's basket scored the only tally for Forestry in the first frame, which ended with the Anglians leading 10-2.

During the second half Forestry tried to turn on the pressure but their men were not experienced enough to avoid running up a list of personal fouls. In the last five minutes especially, penalties for slashing were frequent. Forestry incurred a grand total of seventeen personal during the game.

For Wycliffe, Hooton, Barnett and Fry were outstanding, while Chalk, Grinnell and Day were prominent for the losers.

Wycliffe: Sigston (3), Sutherst, Cardy (1), Barnett (7), Hooton (10), Abbott, Fry (4).
Forestry: Grinnell, Hall, Austin (2), Chalk (2), Kirk, Mullin, Day (3), Bruce, Dorland (2), Shand.

Intercollegiate Hockey

The Varsity senior hockey team will face the stiffest competition they have met in their league schedule so far this season when they invade Montreal Saturday afternoon to tackle McGill's mighty Redmen. At present McGill is the only team in the intercollegiate loop which has not the stain of a defeat marked against its record and they intend to keep this up against the Bailymen.

But the boys in blue have different ideas on the subject. Fresh from their 10-1 white-washing of the Yale Bulldogs, they feel that they can take McGill in their stride. It is doubtful, however, if such a one-sided victory is to be expected for either team.

McGill and Varsity have met once before this season in a pre-season game at Rye, N.Y., in which the Redmen were victorious by a 2-1 count. But it must be remembered that the Blues had just completed a tiring transcontinental tour and were not in the pink of condition. Add to this the fact that they were minus several of their stars, and it is easy to understand Varsity's optimism.

WITH PUCK AND STICK

University of Toronto Seconds attempted the jump from junior ranks to intermediate rating yesterday afternoon—and found the task beyond their power as Ontario Agricultural College humbled them 4-3 in a drab contest. The Blue puckmen wound up a fruitless junior campaign Saturday afternoon and stepped into the intermediate intercollegiate ranks confidently, as defending champions, but the Aggies were not to be denied.

Fortunes of war sea-sawed from one team to the other during the contest, with Boxer and Quigley sending Varsity into a 2-1 second period lead after Warner had opened the scoring for Guelph in the first frame. Packman evaded Hummest with a blistering drive early in the last twenty minutes to knot the count at 2-2, but Laidlaw bagged a tally minutes later to send Varsity out on the front end again.

A smart rink-wide pass by Smith was converted by Warner of O.A.C. thirty-five seconds later to level matters for the third time. McCulloch capped the visitors' rally midway of the session to produce the final margin of victory, and Varsity failed to overcome the deficit despite some spirited ganging plays.

By dint of the victory the Agriculturists strengthened their hold on the top rung of the intermediate intercollegiate ladder with two wins and no defeats.

Guelph: Beaupre, Kennedy, Packman, Warner, Williams, McGovern, Phillips, McCulloch, Smith, Privett, McEwen.

Varsity: Hummest, Smith, Boxer, Allan, Quigley, Jones, Wood, Stephenson, Laidlaw, Jones, DesRoches, and Hignell.

In a close game in Varsity Arena yesterday Vic II defeated U.C. II by the score of 2-1.

In the first period U.C. was unable to bang one past Farmer in the Scarlet and Gold net, while Vic penetrated the U.C. defense for two counters, Wheeler and R. McKenzie scoring.

In the second frame, U.C. rallied and Willie bagged the twine. The final score, 2-1 for Vic II.

U.C. II: Smith, Foulds, Nicol, Wilkins, Cohen, Duck, McEheran, Tisdale, Johnson.

Vic II: Bothwell, Beaton, Wheeler, Kirkland, R. McKenzie, C. McKenzie, Wilmut, Casserly, Pallet, Farmer and Zurbrige.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Charles Dubin

THE QUESTION OF ELIGIBILITY

Some time ago, the idea was advanced in this column of having an intercollegiate ruling against players being eligible in their first year for senior intercollegiate competition. Letters were sent to the sports editors of the various college papers sounding them out on this issue. Some of them in their reply, evaded the question by asking how it was possible for O.C.E. men to play on a senior squad.

Well, here's how it's done. According to the transfer rule, any player transferring from a college which is a member of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union is ineligible for a senior squad until he has spent a year in the university. Thus, if a player transferred from Queen's or McGill for instance, to Varsity, he would not be eligible for a senior team in his first year. As it happens, Assumption College is not a member of the C.I.A.U., and therefore players from that college can play for Varsity. This accounts for Bill Rogin and Scrubby Aitchison qualifying for the senior basketball team this year. There was a time when other colleges objected to Varsity men moving on to O.C.E. and playing another year, but it was decided that since O.C.E. is affiliated with Varsity, it cannot go on going there after graduation was not considered transferred.

This answers the question raised by the college editors. Thus, we would still like a ruling against first year men playing on senior squads.

IN HART HOUSE

With Warren Stevens and Mac McCutcheon priming their respective squads for a visit from Queen's and McMaster Friday night, and the intercollegiate leagues in full swing, there is plenty of activity in both gyms these days. Queen's threw a scare into the senior basketballers in Kingston two weeks ago, and the Blues won't be taking any chances against Johnny Edwards' boys. It's been so long since the intermediates have not won the championship, that one wonders if there isn't such a thing as a sure winner. However, it was McMaster which gave Varsity its only defeat last year and one of the very few that the team has suffered in many a year. For six years, the intermediates have ruled supreme, and Coach McCutcheon has no idea of ever letting the title go.

AT THE ARENA

Varsity's revamped juniors suffered their first setback in intercollegiate hockey yesterday afternoon at the hands of Guelph Aggies. Undeclared all last year, the juniors were favoured to go through and win the championship again. But Varsity's athletic life seems to be just one upset after another these days. First the senior hockey squad, which had been travelling at a great clip, ran into a snag against Queen's. Then the Varsity senior basketball team polished off the Western quintet in surprising fashion. And finally our intermediate hockey team took it on the chin in a game which everyone expected them to win. But one upset (and some won't think it an upset) which we really are hoping for, is for Ace Bailey's Blues to turn back the champion McGill Redmen, Saturday, right on McGill's own ice.

ANYWHERE

The Athletic Association has arranged for another big athletic night, Friday night in Hart House. Two basketball games, a swim meet and dancing are on the card. So wherever you are, don't forget to turn out.

an uproar throughout. The Queen's team is in fine fettle and despite the fact that McGill also edged out a victory over them they should give Rogin, Aitchison and Co. real competition.

There is no scarcity of power in the starting line-up of the Kingston university squad. Davis, Jack, Conright, Drysdale and Knowles are all seasoned players who know the shortest way around a basketball floor.

On the other hand, the Blue cagers will be right at the peak of their form Friday evening. Their brilliant victory over the classy Western squad will give them the confidence necessary to spark their best brand of basketball. Rogin, Aitchison, Lavarnway and Singer turned in flashy efforts against the Mustangs and these boys seem to have hit their true stride after a slight pre-season slump.

The curtain-raiser stacks McMaster Seconds against Mac McCutcheon's formidable intermediates, who are seeking their seventh straight intercollegiate crown. The Blues whipped O.A.C. and Western in previous contests.

The basketball double bill will be followed as usual by a dancing program. The loud speaker system, a feature of the last few athletic open houses, will again be rigged up for the convenience of the patrons. A big turnout is expected, as Athletic Nights have become one of the most popular sports events on the campus.

AROUND THE TRACK

Victoria College dominated the events which were run off in Hart House yesterday. Harold Brown, Vic, won the quarter in the fast time of 54.9. Delaney, who was first last year, had to be content with second place. Martin, Meds, the most promising freshman middle distance runner of the season, was third. Keenan, St. Mike's, and Stinson, Vic, tied for fourth and Somers of Trinity was sixth. The quarter mile was much inferior to last year's race. Although there was a large turnout of athletes they seemed to be afraid of the distance and did not compete. There were only eight runners of any consequence in the race compared to fifteen last year.

Wallace and Harold Brown, Vic, were first and second in the shot put. Phil Isbister gave U.C. its first point when he took third place. He was followed by Caven, Meds, Abbott and Rogers, Wycliffe. Next week the sprint relay, the high jump and the two mile will be run off.

Larry O'Connor, former Varsity star, was second in the fastest sixty yard hurdle race that has ever been run in New York Saturday. He was beaten by Roy Stanley, former Trojan star, by four feet.

The Sportsman

By Mary Conlin

Yesterday we gave you a tentative line-up of the intermediate cage team, to which we can add some additions today. Our Wandering Reporter further states that two more likely members of the squad will be Agnes Cameron on the defence and Eric Armstrong on the forward line. Both these players shone during the intercollegiate play-offs, and have been about the most consistent at practice since the furies began working out. If this is any indication of future glory, and our teacher always said it was, they will accomplish great things.

We've been thinking about the hard lot of an Intie player and it really isn't anything to write home about. Practice is always Tuesday and Thursday, making skating a thing of the past for most of the players, who can't afford the time on any of the other nights. Then the practice hour, while not late, cuts up the evening, until there is nothing but the sad alternative of books. In spite of these pessimistic remarks from one who doesn't go to fute work-outs, the undaunted Inties themselves are full of enthusiasm and working harmoniously under the direction of Erna Laing. One of the most heart-breaking aspects of the much-anticipated trip to Guelph next weekend is the fact that the Annesley Formal is the same Friday night and some of the Inties from Vic are going to miss it. Oh well, if it is any consolation, the Victoria boys going to Clinton this weekend to play hockey are on the cold outside for the Scarlet and Gold At-Home. This is all too sad.

Intercollegiate badminton players are urged to study today's draw, printed somewhere in the vicinity. Mary Becker, St. Hilda's chief badminton threat, and her cronies have put much time and effort into arrangements for the tourney, so a little co-operation will speed the preliminary agony.

SPEAKING OF SWING

By Sam Lipin

Many articles have appeared in many publications lately dealing with this matter of swing music but these have dealt largely with only those aspects of swing that are interesting chiefly to the rabid swing devotee. The greater part of swing discussions have centered on the qualities of different bands, comparisons of individual artists, and the merits of the various band leaders.

It seems that one of the most important aspects of this new art form has been rather neglected. In fact many will no doubt laugh and reply that there is no such aspect. I refer to the spiritual value of swing. Starting as the statement may seem I firmly believe that swing, now only in its infancy, has a deep spiritual value that will become evident even to the greatest sceptics as the art of swing is further developed. It may seem that I am ignoring the true meaning of the word spiritual. Perhaps so, but consider for a moment the fact that religious feeling, which is undoubtedly associated with spiritual values, is to a great extent aroused by a play upon the emotions. Possibly some may feel that an approach to spiritual things by means of the emotions is a dangerous thing and likely to lead to a false superficial sort of sense of values. And although this may in part be true nevertheless we should be able to recognize that some benefit can and does derive its source from the various emotions. For example take into consideration the fact that certain progressive churches in the United States have incorporated swing musicians into their religious services and these bands play during the worship services. This scheme is not a sensational bit of hallelujah to draw people back into churches because other means have failed. It is a realization on the part of clever and sincerely worshipful men of the value that can be obtained from a proper utilization of the emotional aspects of modern music.

There are many who will deny any claim that swing has any value whatsoever and stoutly affirm that the only benefit to be derived from music is to be derived from what we today term symphonic music. But the old argument that swing reaches a hundred listeners where symphonic music reaches only a handful makes the realization that swing may have as much value as other phases of the art doubly interesting. A close consideration of the sources of the two phases of music is revealing. Great symphonies usually have their source in some deeply emotional experience of their composer, who possibly later or while actually in the grip of the emotion sits down and records his feelings in immortal works. A great swing selection is usually born in an equally if not more dramatic manner. Who can say that swing has no deeply emotional value that has seen some of the more famous negro swing bands in some impromptu jamming with tears rolling down the cheeks of some of the inspired players. Can anyone deny that Duke Ellington's band cannot stir the deeper emotional senses and set one's very soul in harmonious vibration with some pulse stirring melody? With every man in Ellington's band a reflection and a personification of every Ellington mood, the rendering of such famous compositions as Mood Indigo, Ring Dem Bells, or East St. Louis Toodle-oo, cannot possibly fail to compare with certain immortal selections from the masters.

Many claim that as a vehicle for dancing such music is indispensable and performs a very useful function and in this sphere it is to be tolerated. But the tendency for dancers to cease their gyrations and stand breathlessly watching their musicians is becoming more and more evident and great swing concerts attended by thousands are becoming more and more common, but none the less attractive. Even some of the wildest jitter-bugs have experienced a feeling of awe and even reverence as some inspired hep cat has swung out under the influence of emotion so strong that the end of the improvisation has found the player in an almost trance-like state.

So far with a very few exceptions the more primitive feeling people, the negroes, have led the movement in swing along its new, and yet ancient, paths. With their simple and yet at the same time deep and powerful emotions, negro bands have opened up a new musical field and with passing time as the movement grows and develops, we shall possibly find that swing will take its destined place on a par with its older brother symphonic music.

From the School of Practical Science at the south end of the campus, sometime in the past, has emerged a graduate who has started himself into the literary world in no mean manner. Why he has chosen to write under a pseudonym is beyond our comprehension for he has produced a book as fascinating as any we have had occasion to read of late.

This book, addressed to Canadian youth and pertaining to Canada and Canadian people, is written in a simple dialogue form. It concerns economic interests brought right up to the present time and adheres faultlessly to economic history and theory. The subject is quite timely in these days of economic unrest, political instability, and unemployment.

The author deplores the present set-up where Canada is being catapulted into bankruptcy, as he says, and advises a central banking system minus any semblances of compound interest rates. He makes the book even more appealing by drawing a great many similes between economic terms and ordinary everyday commonplaces.

The sum and substance of the material is that the author sees a planned economy, substituted for our present unplanned system.

But conditions of capitalism, communism, or socialism are inadequate, for he infers that all these doctrines are fallible. He advises taking our profits from Nature rather than from each other's pockets and he explains the paradox of a country like Canada with such wonderful natural resources, and so many people in need at the same time. It is a national tug-of-war between two factions, the one representing eastern Canadian manufacturers desiring more "money", the other representing the western Canadian farmers wanting more "wealth". He shows a marked difference between money and wealth, the former concerned with rising prices and the latter referring to fixed prices. He shows the laws of expanding values, built into our book-keeping and public finance systems, as a factor in what he calls mismanagement of the economic system.

As a possible way out of this economic "mess" he forecasts a new economic order where we rid ourselves of debt by having the People of Canada who are debtors, pay off the People of Canada who are also the creditors, and then setting out on a system of true values. He has addressed his book to Canadian youth who, as he says, must learn the new tricks and then try to explain them to the adults, recognizing the old cliché that "You can't teach an old dog new tricks".

Motorists and gardeners, who have had experience with the deterioration of rubber, will be glad to know that the reason for one cause of ageing has been determined. Heat insulating materials, lubricating oil refining by means of solvents, and wood pulp, have been investigated.

The investigation in the field of psychology has been valuable, and includes a study of inheritance of behaviour traits in mice. A large amount of medical research has been done, of little significance to the layman, but of great importance to medicine.

In engineering, work has been done on problems varying from investigation of "water-hammer" in pipes to research into the effect of carrying canoes on the lower wing of a biplane.

Work on thermometers for use at liquid helium temperatures has been done as well as investigation of the properties of the liquefied gas itself.

With Frank Shuster

IN A COLLEGE RESIDENCE across the border, an embarrassing event happened the other day. . . . It seems that a private still belonging to a group of freshmen exploded, causing the halls to rumble, and no end of discomfort to the adjoining suite, for an odd smelling liquid began to seep through the cracks of the door. . . . The cause of the explosion was that a bottle of turpentine had been poured in by mistake, being mistaken for water. . . . Ah well, FRESHMEN WILL BE FRESHMEN.

IT WAS TOO BAD that Frank R. King of the University of Alabama turned out to be a girl. . . . She refused an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. . . . She was named after her father, Commander King, and was thought by authorities to be his son. . . . She is very sad because she had to refuse the appointment. . . . So are the men of the Naval Academy. . . .

THE PRINCETONIAN carries a story to the effect that students in American schools and colleges may cross the sea this summer for about $40 each way. . . . This sudden reduction in trans-Atlantic prices is the result of the plan of the newly-formed organization which calls itself the American Youth line. . . . The students, however, will have to work, and large dormitories will replace the private student rooms and they will have to carry the bus boy's tray and the steward's towel. . . . Europe is a nice place in which to travel, but somehow or other, we have suddenly developed a great fondness for the peace and quiet of the Canadian countryside. . . .

NOTES OFF THE ELBOW. . . . There is a co-ed at Willamette College whose name is Waste Agdiwhin. . . . She is an Indian princess in her own right and her grandfather was none other than Sitting Bull. . . . The curious thing is that she had to enrol in college before she learned to shoot a bow and arrow. . . . Odd, isn't it? . . . A majority of St. Lawrence University students favour subsidization of athletics. . . . The Colgate senior class presidential election was won by a single vote. . . . Dartmouth College is now laying plans for an annual Summer Drama Festival which will be "a yearly exhibition of the best in the theatre". . . . While this National Scholarships campaign is going on in this university, perhaps it might be well to mention the fact that no less than half of all the University of Vermont students receive scholarships. . . .

N.F.C.U.S. Comment

This is the first of a series of six articles by John H. MacDonald, President of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, on the work of the Federation.

By John H. MacDonald
Kingston, Ont., Feb. 7: One of the first university activities to engage the attention of the Federation was debating and for many years the Federation has sponsored tours of debaters across Canada. Most of these tours have been highly instructive and fairly popular. Teams have been brought from the United States, Great Britain and Australia and Canadian teams have toured Great Britain and the United States. The Federation has also sponsored several bi-lingual debates.

However, during the past few years it has been felt by the members that this particular form of debating has not been as popular as it once was. The reason for this is that when a visiting debating team sets foot on a particular campus it is necessary for the local debating society to entertain the visitors—often for several days. Such entertainment has proved onerous on more than one Students' Council budget. In view of complaints of this nature voiced (Continued on Page 4)

Have you ever wondered if your mirror lies? Have you cauliflower ears? An Il Duce chin? A bristly nose-cushion? If you are at the forthcoming Arts Ball you can see yourself as others see you, for the oddities in your physiognomy will be faithfully captured on request by the well-known cartoonist, Jimmy Mackay. Catering to the prevalent popularity of this form of entertainment, the committee has engaged one of the best cartoon artists in the Ontario College of Art.

The ticket sale for this event is much ahead of last year to date. But there are still a limited number of tickets available, also tables for four or six.

A little note of drama will be added to the gala dance when Manager Des Johnston wires the team's best wishes and the story of its night's success (?) direct to his parting compatriots at Simpson's Arcadian Court.

Sympathy Extended

The tragic death of William A. MacDonald of second year St. Michael's College, just at the close of his twelve o'clock lecture yesterday occasions very deep regret in the hearts of his many friends in the University. The deepest sympathy of the students and staff is extended to the members of his family and his friends in St. Michael's.

ALL-TIME HIGH SET BY S.A.C. LOAN FUND

E. A. Macdonald Reveals that Loans for January Amount to $5,000, Making Total Loan $23,000

Student loans from the S.A.C. have reached an all-time high in the month of January according to Mr. E. A. Macdonald, secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., in an address as guest on "The Varsity Speaks" radio program last night.

Needy students, in the month of January alone, applied for aid and received financial help to the extent of more than $5,000.

Gradually increasing in its scope over a period of years, the organization has especially proved its value and necessity to the university, having, since its inception, loaned over $23,000 to those scholars having trouble in keeping up the financial end of their college education.

Mr. Macdonald also stated that through the S.A.C. 1,485 jobs were obtained last year.

"As a result of these services gifts come in from people who have already been helped, to help other needy people," he said.

WOMEN'S PART STRESSED BY NOON-HOUR LECTURER

The advice that women should take a larger part in life was stressed by Mrs. J. D. H. Hutchinson, who spoke on "The Personal and Economic Equality of Men and Women" in the Women's Union yesterday.

The personal equality of men and women is of great importance in the lives of students, Mrs. Hutchinson said, and friendship is not only a joy, but a necessity and should consist of knowing and being known. The idea that marriage is the goal of every woman's life influences both men's and women's reactions," she concluded.

The lecture was the third in a series of noon-hour talks to women sponsored by the Student Christian Movement.

PLANS FOR TEA DANCE MADE BY U.C. EXECUTIVE

While all U.C. is getting ready for the Arts Ball tomorrow night, the first year executive is busy preparing for the college's first tea dance, to be held next Thursday afternoon in the Women's Union.

Pronouncing a good time for it, Maurice Aykroyd, first year president, pointed out that the party is in no way intended to compete with formal evening dances. Designed to give members of the first year and their friends an opportunity to gather together, it will be one of the most inexpensive affairs on the campus.

"If the present interest keeps up," he said, "it may be possible to hold more of these in the future."

Popular Student Succumbs To Heart Attack

William A. Macdonnell, 22, of 75 Alexandra Blvd., died suddenly yesterday afternoon at one o'clock in Teedy Hall, St. Michael's College. He had just attended a lecture when he was stricken with the heart attack.

Bill Macdonnell, as he was popularly known in many in the university, was noted for his cheerfulness. He was born in Coniston and attended Coniston Conistation School. He took his upper school at St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, and was in second year Arts and a member of Newman Club.

He is survived by his parents, who have been in Florida for the winter, and two sisters, Margaret, a graduate nurse, and Mary, supervisor in St. Michael's Hospital.

Mr. Macdonnell will be buried from his home at Blessed Sacrament Church Monday morning.

Early next week in the college church all the students of St. Michael's College will attend a requiem high Mass for the repose of his soul.

HOUSE TO DEBATE GOVERNMENT TOPIC

U.C. Parliament to Weigh Resolution that Provincial Government in Canada should be Abolished

The resolution in the U.C. Parliament this afternoon at 4 will be: "Resolved that in the opinion of this house, provincial government in Canada should be abolished". The Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. I. Sussman will lead the debate, opposed by the Hon. R. Barnes, leader of the opposition.

"There is little doubt that Canada is tremendously over-governed," declared Mr. Sussman. "The number of administrative units in Canada has increased at least five-fold in the last thirty years and each addition adds to the over-government; the tremendous expense involved; the increased taxation resulting; the constant duplication of governmental services—in short—to the already sizeable amount of public waste already plaguing our nation. The only practical solution is the abolition of the nine provincial governments and the substitution of a legislation union for Confederation."

Mr. Barnes, opposition leader, maintained that "Confederation was an (Continued on Page 4)

ASSEMBLY PLANS DANCE PARTY TO PROVIDE BOND

As a climax to Scholarship Week, the Toronto Student Assembly is holding a Scholarship Dance in the Women's Union Saturday night at 8 o'clock, at which George Carty will supply the music.

The event is one of a number of activities of the Canadian Student Assembly to popularize the campaign and bring before students of Toronto University the importance of the national scholarship issue.

George Carty, who has won fame as vice-president of the swing club, will bring his own six-piece orchestra. He promises "a delightful mixture of sweet and swing—everything from the slow waltz tune Merilene Rose to the fast fox-trot Bugle Call Rag".

ENGINEERS WAIT AND WAIT

Yesterday afternoon the graduating class in Chemical Engineering posed for a photograph on the steps of the Mining Building and nothing happened. They started posing at 2.30 in the afternoon and well within half an hour, the picture had been taken and they were on their way to study petroleum, steel, soy beans, or whatever it is that graduating chemical engineers study.

"It's a positive disgrace," said one of the graduating class who insisted on anonymity. "This is the first time that the third year have not drenched the graduating posers with water and various other missiles."

"Holiday", a Fast-Moving Comedy Concerning the Post War Generation Opens at 8.30 with a Cast Representative of the Campus

Tonight at 8.30 the lights in Hart House Theatre will darken and the curtain will go up on the University Drama Committee's production of Holiday, a fast-moving comedy concerning the post-war generation.

With a cast including students representing a majority of the colleges of the university, the play is scheduled to run for the following two evenings, under the direction of Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre. Julia Selan, rich man's daughter, is played by Ann Marshall of Victoria College, who has recently returned from a two-year stay in England where she played in repertory, which is synonymous with our stock company circuits. Before leaving for the Old Country, where among other roles, she played Judy in the well-known Shining Hour. Miss Marshall took her first year at Victoria College, during which time she took part in eleven plays.

MANITOBA STUDENT SUPPORTS CAMPAIGN

Leslie Rowland Backs National Scholarship Campaign when Interviewed Over C.B.C. Yesterday

"National scholarships are as great a need for Canada as for the student," said Leslie Rowland, law student at the University of Manitoba, in a discussion over the C.B.C. yesterday afternoon. He was interviewed by Miss Beth Lockerbie, regular interviewer, on the question of the national scholarship campaign which is being carried on at present in Canadian universities.

Mr. Rowland pointed out the great need for additional state scholarships to assist boys and girls who are financially unable to pursue higher education. "Planned education and national development go hand in hand today," he said. "In England 41 per cent of the university students receive financial aid."

There must be a federal government committee set up to make a detailed investigation into the matter, said the (Continued on Page 4)

"The fourth year is gravely disappointed in the third year men," said another, who also kept his name a secret. "We have been discussing the action of the third year men in this regard and are afraid that they are just a bunch of sissies. S.P.S. is getting soft." He sighed.

In previous years, the graduating class has never been able to take a picture after less than two hours' posing. The reason is that the third year chemical engineers, who are working on the third floor of the mining building, use many methods to make the seniors uncomfortable. (Continued on Page 4)

"Idleness is Disloyalty"

In President Cody's message to the undergraduates found in the Student's Handbook, there are three short paragraphs of advice which every student would do well to consider. The first of these deals with the value of consistent work. To quote: "Work from the very beginning of the term. Steady work makes final panic unnecessary. Your studies are your main business here. Idleness is disloyalty."

There are several dangers of a University education in respect to the use of time. There are those who take their studies so seriously that they put a very disproportionate value on time, will not relax, and hate to waste time to speak to their friends. Usually they would find that they would be more inspired to write their essays and study for their courses, if they took time off for a little recreational or social relaxation.

On the other hand, a University is primarily a place to study. A student is in danger of finding that there are so many interesting things to do, and go to, so many clubs to join, and interesting persons with which to discuss the world's problems, that he will never get down to the actual serious business of doing the required work of his course. Failure on examinations certainly does not mean that a year at college has been wasted entirely, but passing examinations is taken by many to be the best criterion of success as a student.

The all-round student who can excel in sports, go to all the parties, enter into a great many of the campus activities, and join a host of clubs, and then secure high marks on examinations is to be envied. But such students are not numerous, and the average undergraduate will find that the idea of temperance in regard to the use of time is worth following.

It is best to organize one's hours in such a way that it will be possible to carry on a very well-balanced life. But even a time-table should not be too rigid, because the person in University who develops a habit of never having time for anything, other than those things for which he has allotted his hours, is just about as popular as the citizen who works on such strict financial budget that he never carries loose change in his pocket.—A.C.F.

A Poet's Theology

Theology as well as literature has been richly endowed by the contributions of Francis Thompson. For nowhere in English poetry is there to be found a greater theology than in his "The Hound of Heaven". According to George Henry Lewes, "the history of philosophy is the history of man's quest for God." But the subject of Thompson's greatest poem is the ceaseless quest of God for man, the Divine quest which is the great theme of the Bible. In this masterpiece, which was the product of his own experience, the poet interprets God, as following man across the trackless wastes of the universe, ever seeking to reveal himself and make himself known.

The life and work of this great but pathetic figure of history is an eternal testimony to the greatness of the love of God, which cannot be found alone through man's search, but which He seeks to reveal to man. Destined at first for the medical profession, Thompson was unable to apply himself to any constructive work. When employed in a book-store he proved to be useless because he spent all his time reading books. He came to London and sank to the lowest of the low, to be despised among the despised. He became addicted to the dope habit, slept in doorways and on the Thames embankment, and was only able to live by the few pennies he gathered by opening cab doors, holding horses' heads, and selling matches and boot-laces.

Mr. Wilfrid Meynell, to whom the world owes much for helping, with the aid of his wife, to reclaim the derelict poet, describes his first interview with him in his office when editor of "Merry England". "The door opened and a strange hand was thrust in. The door closed but Thompson had not entered. Again it opened; again it shut. At the third attempt a waif of a man came in. No such figure had been looked for, more ragged and unkempt than the average beggar, with no shirt beneath his coat, and bare feet in broken shoes."

But beneath this exterior, Meynell knew that a being existed who knew what it was to be pursued by the Love of God, and he was able to make that love known to him, and through him his great poetry to the world. Through the darkness and the starvation of the London streets he had fled the Love of God. He says:

"I fled Him, down the nights and down the days;
I fled Him, down the arches of the years;
I fled Him down the labyrinthine ways,
Of my own mind; and in the mist of tears
I hid from him.

He could find no lawless place in all the Universe, where he was not pursued by the Love of God and held by His will. He could always bear the patter of "those feet that followed, followed after".

His interpretation of God's search for man has been the inspiration of many. It helps man to understand how God has sought through the ages, to make Himself known through prophet, teacher, law-giver and finally The Christ.

"IN NO STRANGE LAND" he saw the world as invisible, yet scorable, intangible, yet touchable, unknowable yet comprehensible, and he saw:

"The traffic of Jacob's ladder, Pitched between Heaven and Charing Cross."

"And lo, Christ walking on the water,
Not of Genesareth, but Thames."

He saw a God, not only a transcendental Being, but a Love that followed man down into the slums and the gutters, into the deepest depths to which man could go, always seeking to save him from himself.—A.C.F.

EDITORIAL NOTE—

Unfortunately the occasional campus dramatic or musical production is not reviewed in our A. M. and D. column. This is not because of any discrimination, but happens only when the production is not drawn to our attention. If tickets are sent to us, in time, a review will be done. We are grateful to all the clubs and societies for the complimentary tickets which are sent to us, and regret any misunderstandings which any societies may have had. Our critics cannot be asked to do a show unless we have tickets for them.

St. Michael's Players

"The First Legion", presented by St. Michael's College Players in Hart House Theatre on Monday and Tuesday nights lived up to the standard set by former plays given by this group.

The players were well chosen to fill their respective characters, and gave the audience a first class presentation. Thomas McDermott in the role of Rev. Mark Ahern, S.J., was by far the outstanding actor in the play. He was ably supported by Robert McKay as Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael Carey. John MacKinnon as Rev. Robert Stuart, S.J., and George Delhomme as Dr. Peter Morell played their roles well and their clear-cut diction was a pleasure to hear.

The first act of the play was poor, but the following two acts measured well up to perfection. On the whole the talking should have been a little louder, but the acting was good.

Despite the fact that "The First Legion" is a (Continued on Page 4)

"When I was One and Twenty"
(with apologies to A. E. Housman)
When I was one and twenty
I heard a wise man say:
"Take many tomes of notes in class
Take 'em the livelong day.
Take 'em and store 'em safely:
With care, if not with glee."
But I was one and twenty—
No use to talk to me.

When I was two and twenty
I heard a wise man say:
"Learn all the notes you took in class
Though fruitless seem the way.
Learn 'em and dish 'em up again
Or you will not get through."
And I am two and twenty—
And Oh! 'Tis True, 'Tis True.

"Boy! Am I Blue!"
She will not hearken to my pleas
(She looks at me as if I'd fleas)
She will not dance nor dine with me,
She will not shag nor shine with me.
I can't persuade nor yet cajole
Into one glass of coca-cola.
She cuts me cold she cuts me dead—
Or up, like bits of Thor's bread.
(No! This is not advertisement,
And by no means perturbation)
She's seen Hart House, and prefers Lew's
With other less beseeching bows.
Damnem!—You'll not mistake a gruff
Oath spoken in a foolish huff.
I can't convince her that I'm serious.
She demands "Oh! Let me be!"
Like I will! (Oh, pardon me!)
'Tis clear that all I'll get from her,
Wrapped in her cloak of clinging fer,
Is not consent to be my wife:
But just—the best jeers of her life!

YOUNG ADVENTURER MAKES SLEIGH TRIP

Spends Three Years Travelling Distance in Alaska Covered by Lindbergh in Nine Hours

Dave Irwin, youngest member of the Explorers Club of New York, made front page news by making a sled journey from Nome, Alaska, to Churchill on Hudson Bay. He described to the Eaton Auditorium audience Tuesday the ambitions he had had to find the lost log of the Franklin expedition.

Mr. Irwin circled the globe before he was 17 and finally reached Alaska, only to be disappointed. He found telephone poles and highways. However, he soon changed his opinion of this Arctic land. Outfitted with six dogs, a gun and a sleigh, he started on his lonely journey across Alaska. For six months he saw no one but his dogs.

His dogs began to die one by one. "This was the toughest part of the whole trip," said Mr. Irwin. His dogs were his pets and he could trust them anywhere. He was finally left with one dog and he was compelled to shoot him.

Finally he saw two human tracks in the snow, the first sign of a human in 6 months. These tracks led to Fort William. He lived with first one tribe and then another until he reached Churchill where he was greeted royally. A basket full of mail awaited him.

The very ground that it took Dave Irwin 3 years to cover, Charles Lindbergh covered in 9 hours. He saw lakes and countries that no man before him had ever seen. He has written a book of his adventures called "Alone Across the Top of the World".

VICTORIA DRAMATISTS PRESENT PLAY FRIDAY

Victoria College Dramatic Society is presenting the humorous play, A Paternity Case, in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College, Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The production, under the auspices of the National Scholarships Committee, will be open free of charge to the student public.

The cast, under direction of Betty Gray, includes Bill Jolliffe and Mary Carter, who are well known for their parts in major Victoria productions, and Joyce Booth, considered a promising newcomer. Playing the role of Beverly, Bill is in the habit of bringing home potted plants, cacti and generally useless things as presents for his wife, Mary Carter. But things don't get complicated until he arrives with a baby. Joyce is there to add a triangular interest.

Howard Naphthal, third year sociology student, who is in charge of production, promises "one of the most farcical plays produced by the society in recent years".

PEARL TEH-WEI LIU TO SPEAK ON FAR EAST

"A couple of pennies will provide a meal for a Chinese refugee, but what's the use of sending money for relief to China when you send nickel to Japan by bullet," says Miss Pearl Teh-wei Liu, who is speaking in the Women's Union at noon on Monday, on the Far Eastern situation.

The twenty-six year old daughter of Colonel Liu of the Tenth Army, she is the delegate of the Chinese National Christian Federation to the Second World Youth Congress held at Vassar last summer. A graduate of Yenching University, Peking, she underwent work with refugees and wounded soldiers as the Japanese approached Wuchang, and was placed in charge of the Nien-yu Tao dressing station for serious casualties, and also of St. Hilda's camp.

KNOX TRIMS WYCLIFFE IN ROUSING HOCKEY TILT

In a rousing game of typical inter-faculty hockey Knox came through to win their match yesterday 3 to 1. Knox has lost no games, tying 2 and winning 2.

Redford of Knox scored the first goal in 8 minutes of the first period and Styles the second. Wycliffe were pressing hard but failed to make their plays click. Mac McKegney of Wycliffe, on a beautiful pass from Joe Cardy, scored the Anglicans' only goal in 10 minutes of the second period. Buck Rogers, striving hard several times, failed to bang one in for Wycliffe. Redford scored the Presbyterians' third goal about half way through the second period to make the final score 3-1.

Wycliffe: Coleman, Heffer, McKegney, Cardy, Louttit, Rogers, Smith, Sigston, Newton-Smith.
Knox: Near, Henderson, Calder, Morley, Alden, Vance, Renshaw, Malison, MacDonald, Redford, Weir, and Styles.

MEDICAL NINE DEFEATS VICTORIA COLLEGE TEAM

Sr. Meds basketball last night handed the Sr. Vic nine a 9-3 trouncing in Hart House gym in their inter-faculty basketball fixture. The Medicos scored in each of the four innings and were truly deserving of their victory.

Leading the assault for the winners was Cowan, who besides pitching an effective game, garnered three lustrous bingles. The Scarlet and Gold went into the lead in the first inning when they scored all three of their runs. But in the second canto the doctors added two more runs to the duo they collected in the first, and from there in they were never headed.

For the Meds Cowan and Frazer each had three hits, while McClelland and Aymer tried hard for Vic with two bingles each.

THE BIG GAME

Down the backstretch in the International Intercollegiate Hockey League race and the call at the half-mile ground finds Queen's University at the head end of the parade with McGill and Varsity, joint favourites back in December to lift the collegiate crown, breathing down the necks of the pacesetter Tricolour outfit. The others in the chase, University of Montreal, Princeton, Dartmouth, Yale and Harvard are already far in the rear.

McGill, the defending champions, appear in a favourable spot at the present stage of the scramble. The Red Raiders are coasting along smoothly in second spot. The Farquharson-coached sextet did all right while participating in a dual schedule: now that their playoff worries are over in the senior group they can concentrate on the I.I.H.L. and supporters of the Redmen are confident that their team will win by the proverbial city block. But time will tell and the Montreal collection will have a tough time on their hands defeating Varsity when the two teams cross sticks in Montreal on Saturday. If McGill get past this encounter safely Queen's will be the only stumbling block on their championship trail and it is a safe bet that Hugh Farquharson fears the local squad more than he does Queen's, despite the latter's present exalted position.

From a Varsity viewpoint the McGill match is likewise of considerable significance. The Blueshirts are in the unfortunate position of having one defeat already chalked up against them and the struggle assumes the old do-or-die proportions. A loss against McGill Saturday would put the Baileymen definitely up against it. However, the team looked in great shape against Yale last week and will have no alibis if they return from the metropolis without four points, assuming, of course, that they polish off the weak sister University of Montreal team Friday evening.

FACTS AND FIGURES

If the index of effectiveness is a high scoring output, the Blue Blades qualify for the top spot in any man's league. In nineteen games to date the Baileymen have dumped 105 pucks behind rival netmen, as against 45 goals by opposing snipers.

Fourteen of these nineteen engagements found the Blues on the right side of the ledger. They stalemated in two games and the only tarnished spots on their dossier were losses to Goodyears, Queen's and McGill. The Tiremen, leading threat for the Allan Cup, tripped them up 6-2, and the rival college outfits from Kingston and Montreal wrote 2-1 victories into the records against them.

ON LOCATION

Pifcock is employed as an engineer in the Lake Shore Gold mines and is fourth string centre on the Lake Shore Blue Devils senior hockey team. . . . the Blue Devils are touted as the team to beat for the Allan Cup, with Goodyears rated next in line. . . . Beefy McMillan, sturdy body-crasher of the Varsity juniors, has forsaken the puck pastime temporarily, and his place will be taken by Ed Smith, who was with the seniors for some time. . . . Western Mustangs received another body blow two days ago when University of Detroit Titans wiped them off the court by a 43-28 score. . . . MEDS TAKE FIRST LOSS AT HANDS OF DENTISTS IN BASKETBALL FIXTURE Dentistry B basketball team handed Meds IV their first inter-faculty loss of the season yesterday afternoon when they trounced them 25-11 in a wide-open game at Hart House.

The Molarmen took the lead from the start and led by McGill and Hambley piled up an 18-6 advantage in the first half.

In the second frame the Meds began checking their opponents closer, but were unable to make their shots count. The winners were held to three field goals and a free throw, while the best the Doctors could do was three hoops. Levitt was best for the losers with three field goals while Hambley and McGill were high men for the Dentists with 10 and 7 respectively.

Dentistry B: Hunt (25), McColl (7), Hambley (10), Chapple (2), Moore, Clee (2), Scott, MacDonald, Sussman, Smyth (2).

Meds IV: Levitt (6), Lawrent (1), Marchant, Clarke, Bohnen, Fineman, Schulman, Friedman (2), McLare (2).

ST. MIKE'S HOCKEYISTS TRIM TRINITY MEN 3-2

Trinity I puckmen earned a fifty per cent share in the leadership of group two by virtue of a 3-2 victory over St. Mike's at the Arena yesterday afternoon. Both Sr. School and Trinity I have now won two and tied one for a total of five points.

Sustained action was the keynote of yesterday's game as the red and black assumed a two-goal lead in the first period and the double blue proceeded to tie it up in the second, only to have the victors punch in the winning counter with minutes to go. Feature of the struggle was the stellar net-minding son.

SPORT SPLASHES

TRINITY I, SR. S.P.S. 0

Trinity, despite the valiant efforts of Veal, who led a surprisingly inadequate team, considering it was a School team, defeated S.P.S. by one goal scored by Rowan in last night's polo game.

JR. MEDS 3, O.C.E. 1

Led by Baldwin and Turner, Jr. Meds ran three goals up against O.C.E. in the first half. In the next period O.C.E. rallied and managed to tally once, missing other opportunities by a hair's breadth. The final score was 3-1 for Jr. Meds.

The swimming and water polo executive have decided that from now on any team not having at least six men ready to enter the water at the set time, will automatically default the game.

display put on by George Silverster for St. Mike's and Bill Caruthers for the winners. Goal-getters for Trinity were "Fuzzy" Foulds in collaboration with bespectacled Jack Boeckh, Mills on a solo break and Joe Harris on Mills' rebound. The two light-twinklers for St. Mike's were Jerry Hogan, who picked a corner after a neat bit of combining with Neil McLan, and Gendron who scored when Frankie Sills walked in on Caruthers after a risk-taking rush and laid on a perfect pass.

By Mary Conlin

If you studied the badminton draw yesterday you must have noticed the more representative aspect of the tournament this year. Meds and Nurses have entered their best material as have the Arts colleges, which naturally dominate the field. The favourites, Hildegarde Goodfellow from Vic, Mary Becker, St. Hilda's, Gladys Eccleston, U.C., Dorothy Jensen from St. Mike's, are playing today and it is only reasonable to hope we shall see some treacherous unknowns making the headlines.

There may have been a slip-up other years, but at any rate if you never had to present a medical eligibility slip before remember you cannot play today until this little regulation is cleared. We hear that Joan Griffiths had to decide between badminton or hockey, and has made up her mind to stick to hockey. While St. Hilda's may feel her loss to badminton, the hockey team must be relieved at her decision. Joan is probably the best co-ed pucker on the campus.

We read in the papers that women golfers are driven to bridge all winter while biding their leisure time. This may apply to some few but there are numerous incorrigibles who haven't yet found a substitute for the little white ball. A little ping-pong injection might prove helpful. At least there is a remote similarity between a golf ball and a ping-pong ball.

This is absolutely the last time we shall mention it, but tonight at 5 U.C. and St. Mike's are hoping to play the hockey game of the year (adv.). If they don't—but they will. Hope . . . hope . . .

OVER THE NET

Varsity's intermediate volleyball squad continued to maintain its hold on first place in the city series, although the team suffered a severe setback last Saturday afternoon at West End "Y", winning only two of its four contests. As a result Varsity sextet dropped into a three-cornered tie for first place with Central "Y" and the Y.M.H.A.

Minus the services of the flashy 6' 4" spike, Bruce Mackenzie, the Toronto team was decidedly "off" in all its games and was fortunate in salvaging two wins from the wreckage. Despite the appearance of Vern Charlesworth, brilliant spiker, on the squad, the Blue team was forced to put a great counter-attack to the West End "Y" 16-14, after trailing 14-11. In their second encounter of the afternoon, however, Varsity threw away an 8-1 lead before a determined Y.M.H.A. onslaught to lose 8-15.

The weak Toronto Bible College team was an easy touch in the third Toronto game of the afternoon and the Varsity second team had little difficulty winning 15-7. Murray putting away the final point on Rose's set-up. In the crucial game of the afternoon for the Toronto sextet, since a win would give them undisputed possession of first place, the Blues faded on end to lose 15-8 after holding the Central team even for two-thirds of the encounter. In the meantime the Y.M.H.A. team won all its four games, while Central took three of four to draw into first place ties with Varsity, each team having won six games of eight played to date.

PROF. DOW DESCRIBES THE MEANING OF PRAYER

"The Meaning of Prayer" was approached yesterday by Professor John Dow, who addressed the S.C.M. noon-hour study group in the second of a new series of religious talks.

Professor Dow maintained that we cannot live within the limits of a tangible world. "We cannot shut out the infinite," he said. "To let in this infinite," Professor Dow prescribed that we get in the spirit of prayer and, by so doing, we are able to put ourselves "in tune with the invisible world."

at the Biennial Meeting of the Federation in Winnipeg last winter, it has been decided by the Federation to abandon, at least temporarily, this type of debating. It is true that a visiting team travelled across Canada this winter and passed through most Canadian universities. However, it must be pointed out that the engagement was entered into well in advance and that the decision to meet this team had been made long before the meeting at Winnipeg in the winter of 1937.

In view of the wishes of the members of the Federation, expressed at the last Biennial Meeting it was decided to revive the old form of radio debating. The former Radio Broadcasting Commission sponsored a number of radio debates and offered a cup to the winning team, in a series of trans-Canada debates. The Federation is going to revive this type of debating in a modified form next winter, and it is hoped that the former handsome trophy will again be put up for competition.

Besides sponsoring these Canadian intercollegiate debates, the Federation plans an interesting series of international debates along the line of those sponsored by the Columbia Broadcasting System in the United States, and already plans are under way for a series of Canadian-American debates on matters of topical international interest.

Mr. Rowland, in answer to Miss Lockyer's question, stated that the scheme must be supported from the national treasury, for if the provincial governments were to be placed in charge, "we would experience the same maladministration that has characterized other projects." Last year there were 534 matriculation scholarships given in Canada, and of these 288 were awarded in "one province", leaving 236 for the remaining eight. In this way, it was pointed out, the west is deprived of men and women who might contribute to her political, social and economic development.

The libel action which is being brought by the president and vice-president of the Swing Club stems from an article in the "We Write As We Please" column in The Varsity, issue of January 23. The article, signed by "Joe Collier", calls swing "a pernicious influence" and asserts that the president and vice-president of the Swing Club might do better than disseminate it on the campus.

Sadie Hawkins' Week

Sadie Hawkins is not yet dead. Since the celebrated week in October when the Varsity gals tested the speed and dodging ability of the Toronto boys, the mania for Sadie Hawkins celebrations has swept the continent. Schools as widely scattered as the School of Mines at El Paso, Texas, McGill at Montreal and the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon have tried the celebrated Dogpatch Derby.

And now in mid-winter the fever has struck at the snow-covered campus of Wisconsin State U. A Sadie Hawkins dance was held to which no girls were admitted sans escort. The girls cooperated even to the extent of wearing Daisy Mae's abbreviated costumes. Needless to say the boys did not complain of the frigid temperature.

The Sadie week held at Varsity will be recalled as a colossal success. One of the biggest parties was that sponsored by the Silver Slipper when The Varsity staff was admitted free and any girl was allowed to bring her escort for half price.

The Victoria girls were accused of not co-operating, so they promptly invited Burwash to the Embassy. Rather than see the girls struck the manager let the party in gratis.

TODAY IS THE DAY. . . . Preparations for the Moot Court case of the Swing Club vs. The Varsity are completed and the trial will begin at seven o'clock this evening. . . . Among the defendants in the case will be such famous personages as the Editor-in-chief, the Managing Editor, and the Night Editor of that particular issue. The public will be admitted and the trial should be a good one. . . . Down at the U. of Texas, Austin, some young budding lawyers cooked up a court case of their own. . . . They abducted a beautiful co-ed from a fraternity house in order to have a real basis for legal action. . . . The lawyers will initiate proceedings later in the week at a moot trial to convict the abductor. . . . Now a court case concerning swing is pretty dull stuff, but a case concerning the abduction of beautiful co-eds—well, they've got something there. . . .

THERE IS ONE THING that we can always depend on to see. . . . Every year, the big movie moguls go on the hunt for a new Tarzan. . . . Practically every college athlete who Lou Gehrig of the Yankees tried last year without success, Buster Crabbe turned out a few unimportant efforts, and Johnny Weissmuller has been the most successful ap-man to date. . . . However, a new Tarzan has been found. He is Lathe Morris of the U. of North Carolina. It happened this way. . . . It seems that a movie scout saw him at the Duke-Southern Cal. game and our friend was beating his chest and yelling his lungs out. . . . The scout was so impressed that he gave Morris a contract to play another Tarzan role. . . .

To those who have threaded the tortuous highways of Lower Canada, and rubbed shoulders with Canadians in town, tavern, camp or on the trails, the present exhibit will recall the charm and beauty, and to those less fortunate, who have not had the opportunity of visiting the oldest part of our Dominion an occasion is offered of absorbing Quebec atmosphere in a most enjoyable form.

STUDENTS INQUIRE

Tuesday afternoon when the first pair of students ventured forth "in fear and trembling" but nevertheless determined on filling in the inventories they had received and so aiding in compiling statistics.

In the row of ten consecutive houses in one street which they visited, the nationalities they encountered were Canadian, French-Canadian, Russian, Polish, Lithuanian and Ukrainian. In the houses tenanted by Poles there were, averagely speaking, about four families in six rooms, and one kitchen to accommodate these. Although there were electric lights and sufficient plumbing arrangements in all the houses, in most cases there was no central heating, or cellars with cement floors. All the warmth comes from small stoves in the halls, and the only cellars are mere holes leading down from trap doors.

Asking where they kept their food, since no refrigeration was apparent, they either looked blank, or replied, sometimes smilingly, always quite matter-of-factly, "We are poor. We have no food to keep."

But in spite of the crooked foundations, great need for repairs, and exorbitant rentals, the students found the majority of these citizens fairly satisfied and not complaining to any great extent, although one woman, more intelligent than the rest, didn't see why the government couldn't help her to repair her home, which was beautifully clean and neat, when her husband had been out of work for five years.

ings of which our dominion capital is so justly proud. The well proportioned dignity and consummate fitness of the new home of this journal's morning contemporary is also fittingly recognized. Some of the photographs, in themselves satisfying compositions, fail in displaying the "Architectural merit" of their subjects, while others which confine themselves to architecture must fail to be classed as works of art because they either display no attempt at composition, or were taken from very unfortunate angles.

The work of the Finnish architect, Alvar Aalto, shows modern trends with freedom and vigour, and yet restraint. The models, charts and housing development pictures, show how the architectural profession is meeting its new problems in novel and effective ways, which can be understood and appreciated even by the layman.

ENGINEERS WAIT

The favourite method for many years has been to attach a rubber hose to the tap and let it hang out of the window over the heads of the posters. As soon as the latter have adjusted their smiles and their positions, the custom is to let the full force of the taps spray them with heavenly dew. This was pointed out as the reason why chemical engineers never smile in their graduating-class group picture.

Many other means are used towards the same end. If the weather permits, snowballs are hurled by the third year men upon the heads of their elders. Anything else that is handy usually descends in the same direction.

But yesterday the graduating class in chemical engineering posed for their group picture, and nothing happened. The graduating class is very, very disappointed.

Tricoloured Basketeers To Play The Blues To-night Swing Club Inc. in Libe Suit Blues Strive to Maintain Law Professors Stress Merits of Case "Conducted With Dignity"

Case Proved of Extreme Value to the Students of the Law Course, Says Dr. W. P. Kennedy

Damages to the extent of one thousand dollars and costs were awarded to the Swing Club Inc. by the Moot Court of the University of Toronto in a libel suit against the editors of The Varsity, tried before a crowded house in the junior common room of University College last night. The decision was reached after a twenty minute deliberation on the part of the jury after a three-hour trial. The damages were one-tenth of that sued for by the plaintiffs.

Members of the law faculty were enthusiastic in the praise for the way the case was conducted, and the extreme value that it would prove to the students in law. "The value of this trial to the students of the law course cannot be over-estimated," said Professor J. Finkelman, who is the supervisor of the Moot Court, and who did a great deal of the work for the arrangement of the trial.

Dr. W. P. Kennedy, head of the Law Faculty, in speaking to The Varsity, praised the work of the student lawyers and remarked on the great dignity with which the case was conducted. "We are grateful to The Varsity for its co-operation, and deeply appreciate the fine attitude of the editors and the staff. The Varsity, despite the decision, is apparently in very capable hands," he said.

Chief Justice Perry presided, with the student law firm of Shifman, Goodman, Lennox and Vannini pleading for the defense, with Vannini as senior counsel. Reg Kayler was senior member of the firm for the plaintiffs, composed of Kayler, Hilton, Yaremko and Dubin. The jury was empaneled from the U. of T. alums, first as the Telegram saw the show and again as it appeared to those who were unable to find seats, was the second feature. A "girls' contest" of the C.O.T. enlisted and were equipped with weird-looking gas-masks in the next scene. Finally, a number of Valentines in verse were presented to various prominent members of the men's Lit., one of whom was admired for the "colour of his socks" and another begged to stay away from Joan for just one night.

FARCE IS KEY-NOTE AT JOINT MEETING Humorous Side of U.C. Social Affairs Played Up by Women at Meeting

"It's your own chance, boys," cried the coach just before the game in which Queen's and Varsity battled it out for last place—and his crowd of popcorn lovers went in to do or die. This stirring scene was among those of "Time Marches On", a skit presented by the W.U.A. at its joint meeting with the U.C. men's Lit yesterday evening.

The U. of T. alums, first as the Telegram saw the show and again as it appeared to those who were unable to find seats, was the second feature. A "girls' contest" of the C.O.T. enlisted and were equipped with weird-looking gas-masks in the next scene. Traffic Stopped By Swing In U.C. Rotunda

The U.C. returns, one of the most-travelled social crossroads of the campus, took an even more social aspect yesterday, and experienced a heavy traffic congestion, all because of one small portable phonograph. For instead of entering the rotunda, pausing briefly to survey the scene, and then moving on as usual, the converging streams of students entered, listened and remained, attracted by the swaying strains of recordings by Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw and other orchestras.

Evidently their faith in the old adage "Such sweet compulsion doth music lie," the executive of the U.C. Lit. sought to one-up prospective ticket purchasers for tonight's Arts Ball. While sturdy officials of the Lit. kept the phonograph wound up and in running order, pretty members of the W.U.A. executive delivered sales talks designed to sell the few remaining tickets available.

The loved musical was presented during the intervals between lectures, and students who were present declared that it should be made a daily feature. "It would help to revive one after a dull lecture and give that necessary impetus to get one to the next class," said one ed, listening with true jitterbug appreciation to the swing arrangement of "Home on the Range".

No actual dancing was noticed, but Tommy Dorsey's "Marie," which seemed to be the favourite recording, threatened to bring jitterbugs into action.

Varsity Enters Second Half of Intercollegiate Basketball Schedule Undefeated to Date

With three victories and no losses in intercollegiate competition to date, Varsity's senior basketball team start on the second lap of their six-game schedule tonight when they take the floor at Hart House in a regular game against Queen's University's Golden Gaels.

It will be a return engagement for these two teams as Toronto previously defeated the Gaels at Kingston by the score of 54-50. The visitors have in the interim lost another match to McGill University's Redmen, who lost to Warren Stevens' boys in blue by 15 points in the opening game of the season at Montreal.

Tricoloured Squad Realize that They Will Have to be on Top Form to Defeat Toronto Basketeers

By Mac Hileman
Kingston, Feb. 8: Queen's senior basketball team faces its stiffest test this week-end when it takes to the road, playing Varsity in Toronto on Friday night and Western in London on Saturday.

The Golden Gaels are firmly entrenched in the cellar due to their unexpected defeat at the hands of McGill here last Saturday. The Tricoloured was definitely below form and did not display the brand of ball of the preceding week when Varsity was held 54 to 50. Hopes are being held out that the Gaels will regain this, their top form, when they play in Toronto this Friday.

The basketball situation at Queen's has improved vastly over last year but it looks as though the Tricoloured will not have a serious contender until next season. All but one of the players will be returning next fall so with added experience, the Gaels will do better then.

Captain Joe Hobbs, stellar guard, will lead the Gaels on this trip. Bill Drysdale, a Kingston boy, and Jim Courtwright, British Empire Games champion, will fill in at the guard spots also. On the forward line Queen's has two senior football players, "Fuzz" Jack and Bob Davis, both of Ottawa. Vic Knowles, the other forward, is a final year man who is playing his first season with the Golden Gaels, the reserve Coach Edwards has Murray Zuckerman of Brooklyn, Ben Newman and Bob Jones.

First Nighters Appreciate Performance of "Holiday"

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT UPHELD BY PARLIAMENT

By a vote of 20 to 17 the U.C. Parliament last night decided the resolution "Resolved that in the opinion of this House, provincial government in Canada should be abolished".

The Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. I. Sussman, supported the measure with the statement that "We are the best governed and the worst governed people under the sun. Canadians are the best governed people, being so well provided with the superfluity of government; the worst governed because of the waste of money in paying so many."

He also proved that Canada was disrupted by nine selfish provinces, that private provincial members have nothing to do but draw salaries.

His opinions were refuted by the Honourable Leader of the Opposition, who foresaw many difficulties in the abolition of provincial governments, particularly with the people of Quebec, who would not accept similar education and civil law.

This Play Might Compete in Ontario Regional Festival to be Held in Hart House at Later Date

As Ned Seton raised his glass in a toast to the memory of grandfather Seton and the curtain went down on the first performance of Holiday, the University Drama Committee's major in the cellar of its league makes them as dangerous, even more dangerous, than when they are on the top. The Queen's team is captained by Hobbs, who plays at guard with Jim Courtwright, the British Empire Games champion. Fuzz Jack and Bob Davis, two roach and ready football players, are playing on the wings, and should make things interesting for the Toronto boys, especially as they may have to do without the Moose, Rogin, Toronto's scoring threat, has been absent from the last two practices, and it is reported that he is suffering from a touch of bronchitis. However, we can depend on Captain McGregor and Scrubby Jackson to keep the gang going in the Moose's absence.

In the swimming feature the undefeated Penn State team is the opposition for the Blue water boys. Penn State have already defeated U. of

Hart House Recital

The Friday recital at 5 p.m. today in the music room of Hart House will be given by Harvey Seigel, violinist, and Lilian Levy at the piano. Harvey Seigel is ten years old, was born in Toronto, started playing the violin when he was five years old and has won many competitions in Ontario. He is a pupil of Mr. Maurice Solway. Two days ago at the Royal York Hotel he played for Enesco, who predicted a great future for him. The program will be as follows:

VICTORIA PRESENTS COMEDY TODAY

Bill Jolliffe and Mary Carter Well-Known Victoria Players Featured in Play

"All biologists bawled!" "Darwin disgraced!" "Mendel's genetic theory thrown overboard by amazing discovery within the sanctity of Victoria College!"

These were some of the comments heard on the campus yesterday following announcement in Varsity Bulletin Board that one of the male actors in the play A Paternity Case would produce his own baby for the production.

This strange phenomenon of fatherhood will be viewed from a charge by a large number of student spectators when the farcical play is produced in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College, at 5 p.m. today by members of the Victoria College Dramatic Society, under auspices of the National Scholarship Committee.

Speculation as to the nature of the event began after appearance of the following Bulletin Board announcement in Wednesday's Varsity: "A Paternity Case. Rehearsal of this farcical play production in Alumni Hall at 2. Bill Jolliffe will supply the baby. Joyce Booth please attend."

The taking part in the play are Bill Jolliffe and Mary Carter, who are well known for their parts in major Victoria productions, and Joyce Booth, considered a promising newcomer.

Elimination Faces Varsity In McGill Hockey Fixture

Blues Have Two Engagements To Fill with University of Montreal Tonight and McGill on Saturday

The Varsity hockey sextet invades Montreal this week-end to do battle with the University of Montreal and McGill ice teams in two games that will just about decide their chances for an intercollegiate championship.

Friday night they take on the Montrealers in what should be a warm-up for Saturday's torrid struggle with McGill. The Frenchmen have already meted with the Blues this season at Toronto ice and received a 10-3 beating. Varsity should easily win this game on form, but anything can happen in ice hockey, and it usually does.

But it is Saturday's tussle with the Redmen that will make Varsity's championship hopes glimmer anew or send them dashing to the ground. As co-favorites at the beginning of the season to wind up in first place, these two squads should produce the best play of the season.

Unbeaten so far this season in league competition, McGill will be striving to keep its record intact. On the other hand, Bailey's Boys are sure to go all out after a win. A loss this Saturday will just about kill their chances for a championship, as they were upset in Kingston by Queen's in their only loss of the current campaign.

These two squads have met once before for this season in a pre-season exhibition game at Rye, N.Y., in which the Redmen were victorious by a 2-1 count after a very close battle.

McGill Are On Edge for Their Crucial Game against Bailey's Boys, Having Practised Hard All Week

By Gerald J. Smith
Associate Sports Editor
McGill Daily
Coach Ace Bailey's predictions will receive their acid test in Montreal this Saturday night. At the beginning of the season the Blue mentor delved into the future and prophesied that Varsity would defeat the intercollegiate hockey title-holders, McGill. The dashing Red Raiders are confident that they can show up his psychic powers by challenging their fifth straight college victory.

Expecting the strongest threat which his sextet has yet met in its undefeated march in defence of its title, Coach Haggie Fagelson is not letting his backmen rest on their laurels, but has been drilling them all week in order to be at peak condition for Varsity's invasion. Last week the Redmen had a special session in scoring technique and shooting ability at the expense of the University of Montreal's valiant but ineffective hockeyists. When the smoke cleared, the Redmen had a record of fiery shots had faded away the Redmen were credited with a 13-4 victory.

McGill's triple threat defence combination of Cammy Dickinson, Tim Dunn and Andy Anton of football fame, are giving gook Ash Emerson the kind of protection that makes a net-guarder a happy one. This trio are equally fast on their feet, are stickhandling and shooting. The calibre

DIRECTORATE TO HOLD SPORT EVENING

Tonight's athletic show and dance makes it the fourth of the current year. The Athletic Directorate have planned another of its complete and enjoyable evenings featuring two basketball games and a swimming meet, plus, of course, the usual dancing from ten to twelve. There's a double feature attraction with the basketball team meeting Queen's for the second time this year and the swimming team meeting the varsity with the Penn State boys. Both these attractions are worthy of single billing.

The Varsity Blues, who are now sitting on top of the senior basketball league, will be joined by the Tricoloured squad, who added more than a few wrinkles to Stevens' furrowed brow. A game that was supposed to be a soft touch in Kingston ended in a 54-50 decision, which is close enough for any coach. The following week a supposedly weaker team, McGill, invaded Kingston and when the scoring had ended the Golden Gaels found that they had dropped another. However, it has always been admitted that Queen's in the cellar of its league makes them as dangerous, even more dangerous, than when they are on the top. The Queen's team is captained by Hobbs, who plays at guard with Jim Courtwright, the British Empire Games champion. Fuzz Jack and Bob Davis, two roach and ready football players, are playing on the wings, and should make things interesting for the Toronto boys, especially as they may have to do without the Moose, Rogin, Toronto's scoring threat, has been absent from the last two practices, and it is reported that he is suffering from a touch of bronchitis. However, we can depend on Captain McGregor and Scrubby Jackson to keep the gang going in the Moose's absence.

In the swimming feature the undefeated Penn State team is the opposition for the Blue water boys. Penn State have already defeated U. of Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, Westchester Teachers College, and Temple University the season. The team is exceptionally strong in the sprints, relays and dives. Kilpatrick of Penn in the sprints and McLaughlin in the diving are the pick of the winners.

The opening basketball game will feature the McMaster intermediates, who will play the Varsity seconds. Varsity opened the season last week, meeting Western, and for the first half of the game appeared as if a loss for the Blues was to be the result. The team got reorganized in the second half and managed to take quite a decisive win. However, they might have to do without Flaherty in the coming contests as he seems to be ready for senior company and it is quite probable that he will be wearing a senior uniform on Saturday night. Capt. Grege and Minchane are the scoring threats of this outfit and should be able to get enough points in tonight's game to swamp the McMaster outfit.

HIC, HIC!

THAT'S THE STORY AND . . .

There is a strong possibility that some of the C. & W. men were sent to bed last night without their supper. The reason will be found in the fact that the budding executives were being snuffed suspiciously by their friends, due to a strong aroma of spirits which they carried with them wherever they went. Our B. Comm. students have been kicking the going around. It's all in the line of duty, and to allay any rumours we wish to present the sober facts. Yesterday afternoon the second year Commerce and Finance course went on a tour of inspection of a local distillery, and the fumes permeated their clothing. Yes, we said FUMES!

Now They Can Laugh

All is not lost, and the world is again safe for democracy. Hitler has decided that within limits Nazis may have a sense of humour. The humour is of course subject to the divine guidance of the Super-mensch. No toothless democratic grin or hollow proletarian leer for him. Humour, like the choice of breakfast food, has become a government commodity.

It was not without cause that Der Fuehrer took the fun and frolic of his contented millions under the parental wing. It appears that certain cafe entertainers, notably one Werner Finck, were not only making light of Nazi doctrines, but were deliberately and successfully caricaturing top rank men. Comedian Finck, whose political sophistication has landed him in jails and concentration camps, was last week expelled from the Reich's Culture Chamber as a "desecrator of things that are holy." Hitler suggested that it might improve the entertainers' sense of humour if he worked on German fortifications for a while. To correct any wrong impressions which might be created, Propaganda Minister Goebbels instituted a joke contest in his newspaper Der Angriff. All true Germans were invited to submit any kind of "genuine humour"—verses, jokes, and funny experiences. And the prize—$40.

One is inclined to ask if Der Fuehrer has supplied his loving flock with the proper material for funny experiences during the last few years, especially since he and his supreme comedians are exempt. There is an additional difficulty hidden in the fact that a sense of humour is so individual. One is liable to produce a very democratic grin when given a uniform and a salute instead of jam on one's bread. But the new German mind seems to be capable of practically anything. It is to be hoped Herr Goebbels will publish the prize winning jokes.—B.K.

Shut That Window

Almost every class has its fresh or stale air maniac who insists upon taking janitorial duties to heart and attempts to regulate the temperature of the lecture rooms to his own peculiar like. It may be only by shutting off all available ventilation, or opening the windows in such a way that a keen draught blows across the neck of someone just out of bed with a cold, but there is usually some way for an anti-social to make himself a nuisance in a class-room.

Skipping lectures may be a deplorable and foolish habit but in the case of the individual who finds it necessary to have a room filled with dank stuffy tobacco air, or have whirlwinds blowing over the page's of one's notes to remind him of the wide-open spaces of the great outdoors, skipping lectures might be a service to mankind. The girl who can't stand a room below eighty degrees, might help along the boycotters and wear woollens instead of Japanese silks. And the boy who hails from the north country and tries to bring it with him, might shed a few of his surplus sweaters in between lectures and allow the caretakers to do their caretaking by themselves.

Good manners is one of the fundamental necessities for social harmony, and it is suggestive of basic weakness when one person acts boorish enough to try and inflict his whims upon a whole class.

Medical Puzzle

Reprinted from The Oklahoma Daily

The American Medical Association, once the bitter enemy of socialized medicine, has developed a more friendly attitude toward some phases of the move because of the pressure of public opinion.

Socialized medicine has not worked well in England and other European countries. For the most part it has resulted in a drop in the quality of medical practice. It has not developed health utopias which were prophesied by some of the more enthusiastic American supporters.

Conditions and not theories have brought on the need of some form of socialized medicine. Economic conditions have increased the number of persons who need medical attention but are unable to pay for it. Some doctors treat so many of these patients that they hardly have time left for their paying practice.

This burden should be taken off the shoulders of the private doctors and socialized medicine in its best phases should be substituted.

Inferior medical care has resulted in the countries where socialized medicine is carried on to an extent.

Doctors since they are paid a steady salary are no longer working in a competitive field and are inclined to become careless in the quality of work. They do not keep up to date on modern developments and new means of diagnosis.

It is obvious to any careful observer that this form of medical service in the United States would quickly become polluted with politics, like many other branches of public service. Politics in the treatment of illness would be worse than a seven-year plague.

An ever-increasing number of the medical profession are anxious to establish some form of medicine to take care of indigent persons and at the same time retain the best features of private practice.

Is the American public sufficiently interested in this vital problem to start acting instead of talking?

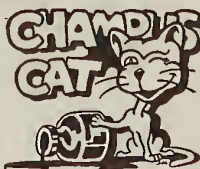

"Holiday"

For most of the faults of its production Holiday the University Drama Committee cannot be held responsible; these are the usual imperfections and inadequacies common to all campus drama in its present stage development, and are content to report their presence before discussing more important things.

Holiday, as done by the Committee under the direction of Willard Thomson, is an achievement of some distinction. Obviously it has received a great deal of care, and as a result any aspect of it stands up well under critical inspection. The casting, while not perfect in every case, is at least credible; most of the acting is good, some only fair, but none of it bad; the sets and lighting are well above usual amateur standards for indoor scenes. The set for Act II, which drew applause on its own account, is attractive and very clever. The designer, Edna Starr Thompson, is obviously indebted to Walt Disney.

Our award for the best player goes to Hugh Henderson as Ned Seton; true, all he has to do is be drunk in a quiet sort of way, but it's frightening to think what might have happened if he hadn't

ON ABBREVIATED SPEECH

Some women are silly. Some of the language some women use is even sillier. They abbreviate their speech. Maybe they want to save the wear and tear on their diaphragms but anyway they use a lot of half-words. For instance, instead of saying:

What is the difference?

They say:

What's the diff?

Or instead of:

Don't be silly

They say:

Don't be sil.

All this may be very amusing but what will happen if this craze for economical language spreads and infects our written word. Try to imagine Wordsworth writing...

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shiffman

WATCHING OUR "P'S" AND "Q'S" . . .

Now that we have found out that a newspaper has no more right than a private individual with regard to the law of libel we now find it necessary to keep out of anything which might be offensive to an individual. We are not going to express our opinions nor refer to people's characters or their actions. We will keep to ourselves in a sort of humble existence like a hermit and not publicize any clubs or organizations because if we criticize it in another of our issues we will be deliberately making vicious attacks for sensational headlines. So in furtherance of this policy we begin the new era. . . .

NO DINE BUT DANCE

Tonight the Athletic Directorate has planned for you and your gal another inexpensive but satisfying evening taking the form of a double basketball game, featuring the league leaders, the Boys in Blue, and the Tricoloured Battlers, and the McMaster Intermediates and the Babies in Blue (no offence meant, you know). The Queen's team sort of gave the boys a going over, using everything but a left hook to prevent the Varsity squad from scoring. Added to this sort of rough ride they made this game the toughest of the Blues' current wins. With the rumour running around the school that Moose Rogin, the heart throb (nothing malicious here and if there is we plead fair comment), of the circuit, was down with a cold and a bad cold at that, we imagined that the game would be closer than ever, but seeing the Moose, the dear, not to be confused with deer, walking around the school with his usual vacant look we felt that victory was in our clutches. The intermediates, who have been making a habit of winning their games, would give us a real let down if they were to drop one, will probably make it a twin victory for the wearers of the blue.

PENN STATE SUPREMACY

The only trouble we see for the night will come in the swimming meet when the strongest strokers in years to represent the U. of Toronto, meet their severest test in the persons of the Penn State team, who up to the present meeting have been successful in all their previous contests. Up to date they have a most enviable record and we don't expect their record to be tarnished by the Blues. But such is athletic contests, with the element of chance entering into it and the stranger results accruing (like when we were eliminated from the billiard tournament when we were already trying to figure out what we were going to do with the prize). The best place to be tonight will be right beside the pool (referring to swimming) for a closeup of these two squads of superlative, foam-making swimmers. Add to these attractions the whirling to swing music, purely from the aesthetic view, of course, for two solid hours to the tunes of Jimmy Dorsey, Chick Webb, Duke Ellington, Berigan and Goodman and you have an evening that can't be duplicated even at Osgoode Annex, otherwise known as the Casino.

CHAMPIONSHIP OR ELIMINATION?

The big sport event of the week and which the Montreal dailies have depicted as the battle of the century will be the coming McGill-Varsity hockey encounter which takes place in Montreal. In spite of the fact that Queen's has the leadership of the league at present, the only people who are seriously considering a Queen's hockey championship are Queen's. All eyes are turned on the game in Montreal when the undefeated McGill team take on the once-conquered Varsity team.

Varsity has to win to stay in the league. The unexpected loss to Queen's changed the entire complexion of the Blues' chances and forces them into the position of win or get out. Their record to date has been fairly good but with the misfortune of having on and off days. When they're on they're unbeatable—they could even beat the Boston Bruins, but when they're off they can't beat the St. Mike's girls' team. So for the sake of Ace, Stevens and your dejected (we lost the libel case in case you're interested) reporter we hope that the Blues have an on day like they haven't had since Aitchison was a pup.

won the game, but for the benefit of the St. Mike's players we won't divulge the score!

The intermediates have done it again. The apple cart is once more upset with their surprise win over the intercollegiate basketball team last night. The intercollegiate, who play a faster brand of ball, were stopped completely by the steady slow game that the intermediates adopted. It was an "on" night for Mary Bennett, intermediate forward, with 15 points to her credit. Bobbie MacDonald, intercollegiate star, amassed no fewer than 18 points out of a total of 21!

INTRAMURAL SPORT

BASEBALL—

By virtue of a seven run spurge on the part of the O.C.E. baseball team, the Teachers were able to slug out a 21-15 win over the St. Mike's baseball team in the upper gym of Hart House yesterday afternoon.

Last night in the big gym at Hart House Wychlife baseball team came from behind to defeat St. Mike's B team by a 5-4 margin. The Double Blue team had run up an early lead by scoring three runs in the first inning and adding another tally in the third.

HOCKEY—

U.C. I assumed undisputed leadership of group one in the interfaculty hockey wars by virtue of a single point garnered yesterday afternoon at the Arena in a tie game with their closest rivals, Jr. St. P's. It was a nip and tuck struggle with the Artsmen forging two goals ahead, only to have the battling Engineers bang in a brace of counters in the second period to leave the final score 2-2.

Ski Results

The results of the ladies' slalom race held at Rosedale Golf Club, Feb. 8 are as follows:

1. Joan Griffith, 25.1 secs.
2. Patsy McLaren, 30.4 secs.
3. Dorothy Ellis, 33.5 secs.
4. Marie L. Botts, 34.0 secs.
5. Peggy McLaren, 34.4 secs.
6. Hazel Brown, 39.4 secs.

THE ROYAL YORK TORONTO

By Win Flanagan

The Interfaculty badminton tourney got off to a smooth start yesterday with no startling upsets to feature the day's play. The favourites, Mary Becker, Tils Annesley, Hildegarde Goodfellow, swept through the preliminary play, with Betty Jane Gardiner, Vic. Marg. Glover, U.C. Montgomery, Melis, Flanagan, St. Mike's (oh, unhappy day!) being among the first to fall by the wayside.

After winning a long-drawn-out match with Jean Stirling, Vic. Janie Church, U.C. star, fell before the strong arm of Tils Annesley, in what was one of the feature games of the day and the only 4th round match played. Nurses, as well as Meds, deserve special mention for turning out on a day that their school work is rather heavy. The general level of play with both teams is very high, considering their badminton facilities and numbers.

The semi-finals will be played next Tuesday afternoon. The team will be definitely chosen next week and a list of those who may challenge in for positions published.

LIBEL CASE WON BY SWING CLUB INC.

Chief witness for the plaintiffs was George Carty, who described the aims and purposes of the club, and read its constitution, which was revealed to have been drawn up nearly four months after the club's formation—and on a Sunday. Questioned as to why he drew up the constitution on Feb. 5th and dated it Nov. 8th, Carty said: "I did so upon the advice of my solicitors."

Opening the case for the defense, Bernie Shiffman, defense counsel, declared that the alleged libelous article was in the public interest, and an honest expression of opinion. A member of the swing club appearing as witness for the defendants, alleged that swing released him against his will, and produced an effect comparable to that of drugs. The sharp cross-examining by Eddie Goodman, and the summing up and address to the jury by both Van Vannin and Reg Kayler were considered highlights of the case.

There is a number that Joe College has tendered his resignation and offered to pay the damages. This has not been substantiated.

VARSLY FAVOURED TO WIN

On their showing against Western last week, Varsity should emerge victorious tonight. As a matter of fact, Toronto will probably be unbeaten in all their home games. The zone defence they use works exceptionally well on the Hart House courts and so far they have played near-perfect ball. If they can get off to an early lead like they did against Western last week, Stevens can expect to make it four straight.

Bill Rogin, who has been ill all week, will start at centre for Toronto.
McGregor and Aitchison will play guard and Lavrunov and Singer will team up on the forward line. Mahoney, as usual, will see lots of action, as will no doubt Tom Bannigan. Cahill is out of town and will be replaced by Frank Minahan. Jim Shute, who has been suffering from a leg injury, will have his place taken by Flaherty of the intermediate team.

The set revealed as the curtains parted for the second act, which was designed and painted by Edna Starr Thomson, was roundly applauded by the audience and commented on by firstnighters who came backstage after the performance. This scene, laid in a play-

Interesting Facts that Cover
Everything and Anything, Unearthed by Special Writer

By Arthur J. Benson

New York, February 7.—MOST AMAZING of the many wonders to be encountered in this metropolis is the new weekly broadcast of the City Council meeting . . . offered to the public in its entirety "as a gesture of confidence", it bars the very workings of the municipal legislative body . . .
one frequently sneers at "American politics", but it is hard to imagine Toronto's council thus parading its inner workings . . . sometimes inspiring, sometimes shoddy, it is nevertheless the objectification of the will of the people
... as the announcer for WNYC, the city's own broadcasting station, is fond of saying, "New York City, where seven million people live together in democracy".

WHEN IT SNOWS here, things begin to happen . . . from out of nowhere appears an army of workmen, thousands upon thousands . . . snowplows and brushes, darning back and forth like bees . . . trucks with endless belts hurriedly cut into huge piles of snow and cart it away . . . then comes the great brigade . . . great snakes of water wash away ice and slush amid sprays which shake the laurels of Versailles and wave to the pedestrian or driver who unwittingly gets in the way . . .
what is more, every little side street and lane gets the same beauty treatment . . . and so the pedestrian or driver falls the only evidence of winter is a nip in the air.

THE TRUTH will out . . . Columbia is not as big as we, and most people, thought it was . . . that figure of 35,000 includes extended students, and much else that isn't fair . . . actually, compared to Varsity, there are 3,000 undergraduates and 12,000 grads and professors . . . which makes the lion of the King's Crown and Roaring Lion only twice as big as that of Vetel Arvo
Aveo and the dear departed Beaver Aveo, which should make Toronto's undergraduate medical service blush more than ever.

of this latter attribute is well displayed in the score sheets.

Capitain Russ McConnell will be out to erase any doubt about his disputed leadership in the individual scoring records. According to the records of the Canadian Press, Russ is credited with 18 points, which gives him a margin of one point over Mel Williamson of Queen's. However, in a recent I.H.L. statistic release the McGill captain is placed in second position with only 16 points.

SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE HOLD INFORMAL DANCE

Students interested in the work of the National Scholarship Committee are taking time away from their campaign
Saturday night to hold an informal Scholarship Dance at the Women's Union. They will swing from 8.30 p.m.
until midnight.

George Carty, vice-president of the Swing Club, and his six-piece orchestra will supply the music. His orchestra, which began its professional career last year at Gallaher, has had recent engagements at the Toronto Normal Athletic At-Home, and the Wheeler Inn Orangeville. It has also broadcast over station CFCB, North Bay.

understood the part so well. Anne Armour as Linda Seton might be the least restrained, but is otherwise very satisfying in her interpretation of a difficult character. Creditable work is done also by Stewart Parker (Johnny Cose), Ann Marshall (Julia Seton), Frances Halpeny (Laura Cose), Leslie Weingarten as Nick Potter does exceptionally well in a role which we cannot feel is best suited for him; Hal Axler as the elderly Edward Seton has the most difficult task and does it admirably. All these ladies and gentlemen are very decorative, and some of them will be even better, they can lose a certain stiffness, or evident colourlessness of every movement. The supporting parts are no less to be commended.

Kerstin Thorborg

Let us be purely constructive and objective. Let us look at the concert that Kerstin Thorborg gave in Eaton Auditorium last night purely on its own merits. Let us forget about Kaskas and Castagna and the other contraltos who aren't considered as good but are.
Let us even forget that contraltos are other things are relative.

Kerstin Thorborg has reached her present high position in the artistic world by virtue of the fact that she is a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and has been highly-touted as such. Her voice is competent, pleasant, even flexible, but certainly not great. And her personality is not such as to make everything else fade into the background. In short, she was fair.

There is the matter of range and register. Kerstin Thorborg's range is definitely limited. In three very sweet and soft and low Brahms numbers she was impressive, but when she tried to move a little higher, as she did in Hugo Wolf's Morgenstimmung, the results were far from satisfying. That was unfortunate too, for the Morgenstimmung is an excellent piece of music
— typical Hugo Wolf.

When singing the English songs, Mme. Thorborg tried her best to be convincing, and succeeded only in being conventional. And, although the songs were Thy Sweet Voice from Samson and Delia is admittedly hackneyed, we have a sentimental attachment to it and resent the artist's hazardous treatment.

One group was interesting — the Norwegian group. Were it not for Thorborg and Flagstad, we should never know this rich field of music and it was gratifying to find that a Norwegian artist handled at least her own country's songs very capably.

The program was not well chosen.

SECOND HALF SLOW

By Mike Greenstein
Sparked by the sharpshooting of Bill Rogin and Jack Lavarney as well as the flashy passing of "Scrubby" Aitchison and Chick Mahoney, Warren Stevens' Varsity cagers sped to their fourth straight intercollegiate basketball triumph of the season Friday night when they gained a easy 57-29 victory over Queen's University at Hart House.

Lavarney and the dependable Rogin scored twenty-nine points for Varsity, while Aitchison and Mahoney kept feeding their team-mates with set-up plays under the hoops which enabled the big Blue team to keep ahead of their rivals from Kingston and brought Varsity's total scoring record in the four scheduled games played to date to

Trinity Dons Present Annual Play Wednesday, February 15

The Dons of Trinity College have announced that the annual play which they present under the auspices of the Trinity Dramatic Society will be presented as usual this year. The play chosen is The Travellers by Booth Tarkington, which demands, among other things, green grease-paint.

The play, which is being presented on Wednesday of this week in Hart House Theatre, is directed by Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Hicks and features a cast headed by Lyndon Smith. This year, for the first time, all students of the university will be admitted to the play.

Former Dean of Graduate Studies Passes Away

Prof. J. Playfair McMurrich, professor emeritus of anatomy, retired since 1930, died yesterday at his home on Foxbar Road in his 80th year.

Born and educated in Toronto, Prof. McMurrich was graduated from Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto. He received the degree of LL.D. from John Hopkins University in 1888, from Michigan University in 1912 and the University of Cincinnati in 1923.

In 1882 he joined the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College as professor of biology. He held this post for two years and subsequently became associated in a similar capacity with Johns Hopkins University, Harvard College, Clark University, University of Cincinnati and the University of Michigan. He returned to the University of Toronto as a professor of anatomy in 1907 and held this post until retiring.

He was in a large measure responsible for the founding of the School of Graduate Studies, of which he was the first dean from 1922 to 1930. In 1923 he represented Canada at the Pacific congress in Sydney, Australia.

He is survived by one son, J. R. McMurrich, Ganoque, and a daughter, Miss Kathleen I. McMurrich, Toronto.

UNIVERSITY POLICE INVESTIGATE BLAZE

Second Similar Fire within Week Arouses Suspicion of Incendiarism Following Waste-Basket Blaze in Hart House Wash-room

Suspicion of incendiarism were aroused in Hart House late last week when the second fire in two days broke out in the washroom in the west part of the basement of Hart House shortly after eight o'clock on Saturday night.

Because both fires were discovered in similar circumstances, and because they felt that the fires could not be explained by coincidence, Hart House officials called in the University of Toronto police, who took charge of the case.

The first fire was found in the waste paper basket early Thursday evening. It caused several dollars' damage to the walls and plaster before it was dis-

Glee Club Rehearsal

There will be a full rehearsal of the Glee Club at 5 p.m. today in the music room of Hart House. All members are urged to be present.

Dentantics Show Features Plays and Skits

Novelty plays and humorous skits will be among the attractions of the annual "Dentantics" show, to be presented by the Dental College on St. Valentine's night at Hart House Theatre.

Two of the plays to be presented are "So is your Old Antique" and "Collection will be Made". Music for the evening will be supplied by a band composed entirely of Dental students.

Ticket sales to date have far exceeded last year's, and according to Ted Fyffe, convener of "Dentantics", this show promises to be the best yet.

Both Senior Arts Colleges Held Annual Formals Friday

ARTS BALL

Two hundred and fifty people trooped into the Great Hall in Hart House on Friday night to take in a rejuvenated University College Arts Ball. Compared to the one last year, the Ball last week spoke of a lot of hard work on the part of the committee and indicated that the yearly form of the senior college will soon recapture its position as one of the most important social events of the year.

According to Phil Benson, Social Director of the U.C. Literary Society, the financial report of last Friday's function will be superior to that of the year in 1938.

Chief attraction, besides Mel Hamill who provided the music, was Jimmy McKay who caricatured any person who cared to stand still for a minute.

Staff Meeting

Important meeting of all members of the staff of The Varsity will be held today at 6.30. Staff members are requested to consult the bulletin boards in the men's and women's offices for place.

HON. McLEOD ROGERS TO ADDRESS DEBATE

Hon. McLeod Rogers, Federal Minister of Labour, will appear as guest speaker in the next Hart House debate to take place on Wednesday, Feb. 22.

"That in the opinion of this House an expansion of federal powers over social services by amendment of the British North America Act will advance the cause of Canadian unity", is the subject chosen for the coming debate, which it is expected will be the last before the election to office. Those who are intending to run for office on the Debate Committee are reminded that an office seeker must speak on the floor of the House three times.

Penn State Swimmers Take Meet From Blues

Ged Clawson Sets New Intercollegiate Mark for 200 Yard Breast-Stroke as Penn Mermen Win Fourth Straight Meet

Last Friday night Penn State College swimming team invaded Hart House and by a 51-24 count made Toronto their fourth consecutive victory. Carnegie "Tech" and Temple University had fallen easy victims to the hard working Penn men, and although Toronto offered more resistance than the others, nevertheless Penn State took 7 out of 9 first places. Clarkson sprung a surprise, and turning in his nearest performance to date, took his State rival by nearly 10 points in the diving. Toronto's speedy Clawson took the only other Varsity first place. Ged established a new senior intercollegiate mark for the 200 breast stroke, 2 mins. 36.5

Last Minute Rush Brings Varsity Close to Win as Two Goals Scored within One Minute During Last Period

THOUSANDS SEE GAME

By Ed Goodman

Montreal, P.Q., Feb. 11.—McGill beat Varsity 5-3 tonight in a game that is practically indescribable. Over four thousand fans saw the Toronto team behind four to one with only three and a half minutes to play, rally desperately behind Dick Craig, who scored two quick goals. But the Varsity bid for victory fell short when Howie Walker of McGill broke loose and scored a last minute tally.

One cannot say that McGill were lucky to win but Varsity did not deserve to lose. The Toronto team had the Redmen completely disorganized for the major portion of the game, but their brilliant attacks just failed to net goals, while McGill made the most of their scoring chances.

Two factors brought about Toronto's downfall, the poorest exhibition of refereeing I have ever seen and the Blue team's failure to make the most of their numerous scoring chances. The former reason is a story in itself. The latter is a tale of really breathtaking hockey.

There was little to choose between the two teams in the first period. McGill opened the scoring when Timmy Dunn broke loose from the Toronto gangling attack while Anton was in the penalty box. But Tommy Calton evened it up thirty-five seconds later with Morrison and Craig assisting. Johnny

Hart House Elections To Take Place

On Wednesday, March 8

Wednesday, 8th March, is the date of the annual elections for all the committees of Hart House. Nominations open at 9 a.m. on Friday, 24th February and close at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, 1st March. Withdrawals will be permitted only until 6 p.m. on Thursday, 2nd March.

The Squash Racquets Committee will this year for the first time be elected at the same time as the other committees, dates of nominations being the same.

Varsity Wrestlers Lose Another Meet

Cliff Chilcott's rolling rasslers underwent their third straight defeat of the season Saturday when they lost an exhibition series at St. Lawrence U. The Toronto boys won only one of their eight bouts.

Mustard at 125 pounds was the only Varsity boy to emerge with a victory to his credit. It was his fourth victory of the season. Patsy Mulligan showed plenty of fight, but weakened to drop the match to Orth of St. Lawrence U. in 6 minutes and 43 seconds. Dobson at 135 and Wachsmuth at midweight also waged hard but losing battles.

The fencers were more successful, with Bill Garcia, Bob Wilson and Bill Horsey downing Western swordsmen in their meet on Friday.

BLUE SECONDS SET TO DEFEAT McMASTER

Jimmy McPherson's intermediate Varsity pucksters seek their first win of the current intercollegiate campaign this afternoon when they engage McMaster Maroons on the latter's home ice. The local outfit dropped a whisker decision to Ontario Agricultural College in their opening game last Tuesday and will be all out to stay in the scramble for the intermediate title.

Among the outstanding pucksters that McMaster has produced are Ken McAdam and Sylvanus Apps. The former played against Varsity intermediates last year and is now wearing the uniform of Syracuse Stars. Last season McMaster was the weak sister of the loop, but they are considerably strengthened this year. The race has tightened up all around, with Guelph defeating Varsity and Western, last year's top teams.

A REVIEW OF WORLD EVENTS

Pope to be Buried Tuesday

The first funeral service for Pope Pius XI was held yesterday in Great St. Peter's as 200,000 people passed the body in the Chapel of the Sacrament. Vatican City authorities announced the Pope would be buried Tuesday night instead of Wednesday as had been expected earlier.

Fire Damage Reaches $70,000

Fire swept through Ganoque, Dashwood and St. George over the weekend causing damages amounting to $70,000. The Dashwood fire-fighting equipment which was the pride of the village, failed to work properly and the village trustees have ordered an immediate investigation.

Cabinet Resignations Rumored

Rented Formal Suits Returned With Memoranda On The Cuff

"We have fitted them from the ages of four to sixty-four, and then some, but I don't mean University of Toronto undergraduates. We've seen them start as freshmen, continue through three and four years, and sometimes more, of university, and then graduate. We have accommodated men nearly seven feet high. And also we have been asked for a size fourteen shoe, at which point we had to draw the line and call it halt." So says Mr. Syd Silver, owner and operator of a Yonge Street dress-suit emporium, and his assistant Press Burton, who is in charge of the dress-suit department.

"This past week has set an all-time high in the way of records with us, considering the Victoria College At-Home, the St. Hilda's At-Home, the Arts Ball and several fraternity dances all on the same week-end," they said. Questioned on the details of the business, both men had many interesting answers. They refused to make any statement as to whether men of any particular faculty were any harder on the clothes than others. "It's about an even break any way you look at it." Sometimes the men call up the day the suits are to be returned and inform us that they don't feel quite like returning the clothes that particular day because they don't feel any too well. Usually, however, the suits are returned right on time.

"They are brought back in various conditions, never anything serious, however. It is customary to find lip-stick marks on collars and ties, especially in cases of rentals to engineers." Re-

Requiescat in Pace

When Pius XI died last week, there was brought to a close one of the most glorious pontificates of the Catholic Church. For just short of seventeen years, the two hundred and sixtieth successor of St. Peter had ruled his hundreds of millions of adherents with the dignity and wisdom befitting Christ's Vicar on earth. Though he himself preferred to be known as the "Pope of the Missions", because of his activities, he was also called the "Pope of Peace", and "Pope of the Encyclicals". During his tenure of office he successfully concluded the Lateran Pact whereby he was granted sovereignty over Vatican City, 109 acres in extent.

The death of Pius XI was hastened by the sorrows which he underwent in his last years. The persecutions of his children in Mexico, Spain, Germany and Russia, in his own words, "went straight to our heart". The propagation of totalitarian and racial theories, divorce and false ideas on education repeatedly incurred his spoken and written condemnation.

This campus was not unknown to His Holiness for, just more than a week ago, at the fiftieth anniversary of the Canadian College in Rome, Pius requested Cardinal Villeneuve to "watch over the Institute of Mediaeval Studies at St. Michael's College for me". The world has lost a worthy ruler and a holy man. Requiescat in pace.—J.H.

Hart House String Quartet

There are few members of Hart House who do not take a personal interest in the career of the Hart House String Quartet. This group, younger than Hart House, but an integral part of it, has earned its position in the world's music, and Hart House feels justly proud.

Yet it is a long time since the students of this university have had a real opportunity to hear exactly what this organization can do. The quartet's concerts have been open to a limited few, because of the necessarily high price of admission. There have been concerts in Hart House itself, but, frankly, they have not been enough.

We therefore welcome the move of the Massey Foundation in inaugurating a series of Monday "Pops" to be given by the quartet commencing tonight. More than ever, the quartet will be a part of the life of the university. The ridiculously low admission price of twenty-five cents will make no difference to the students who are anxious to hear good music, and, above all, good music by the Hart House Quartet.

The McGill Daily has been editorially envious of Varsity's connection with this musical organization, the greatest of its type in Canada, and hailed by many European critics as one of the finest in the world. We are fully appreciative of our good fortune in this regard.—R.F.

Dramatics in The University

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor

Dear Sir:

A few days ago there appeared a very commendable editorial outlining the "political" situation existing in university dramatics. To those who, during the past three or four years, have honestly tried to co-ordinate the various provincial groups—and the individual college societies have sometimes been provincial in the deprecatory sense of the word—it is heartbreaking to see the matter no less settled than it was when the originators of the idea, supported by the U.C. Players' Guild, first undertook the thankless task of unification.

We must disagree, however, with the solution suggested in the editorial in question. The establishment of a faculty of dramatic art would not do what is necessary. Unify, it would—but its presence would strike a deathblow at the many undergraduates who, in addition to their academics, feel the need to work and experiment in the field of dramatics. The modern university is unfortunately only too much the home of purely professional training in various fields, and is thereby often failing in what should be its aim—so to develop the mind that it can rationally cope with any problem, rather than stultify it with specialized knowledge in the hopes of vouchsafing a "living".

A dramatic faculty, with the specialized training given to those registered in it—now obtainable, for persons who want to make the theatre their life's work, at any number of professional schools—would mean the stage, as an extra-curricular activity would cease to be. Students organized to study, and to get credit for their study, would undoubtedly rise far above those in other faculties who can only afford to spend part of their time on the subject. With all its defects, extra-curricular dramatics does serve as an interesting and broadening outlet for the undergraduates; professionalism will succeed in developing a chosen few, and driving away the large group of willing but busy students who regard the theatre with love, and not avarice.

The University Drama Committee is on the right path. Its great problem is to overcome the small-town selfishness of certain of the individual petty groups. At the end of last year, the Committee counted itself the possessor of some hard-fought gains in this regard. Great changes in personnel—that discontinuity which is the bane of university life, where every few years sees almost complete rebirth—have meant that old ground must be recaptured. All we can suggest is that the Committee keep in their fighting. Nearly all interested members of the staff are in sympathy with it, and so are most of the older undergraduates of Varsity's dramatic world. Sooner or later, provincialism must fall before the obvious superiorities of the Committee system. Let us not ruin the whole aim of extra-curricular dramatics by clamouring for the insidious professionalism of a faculty of dramatic art.

Respectfully,

Arthur J. Benson.

Poldi Mildner

All the best characteristics—which is to say, the truly great characteristics—of Poldi Mildner's piano playing were set forth in the first number of her program at Eaton Auditorium on Saturday night. Freshness, vigor, clarity, and, above all, a powerful sense of form—these, rather than perfection of detail, are the qualities in her playing which excite the listener's enthusiasm; and these qualities could not have been more admirably displayed than in her commanding performance of that opening work, the Brahms Variations and Fugue on a theme of Handel. "Dull" and "tedious" would be the applicable words, if any but a master pianist attempted this difficult composition. Played by Miss Mildner, it gave an effect of tremendous breadth and strong, coherent movement which could scarcely fail to grip the hearer.

Concerning Miss Mildner's choice of program,

RADIO EDITOR KILLS WIREGARTERS IN BLOODY DUEL

Strikes Back at Umlauf for Sabotaging the Radio Program of Friday's Issue—Assistant Assists

CAT IS DISCONTINUED

The millions of undergraduates who read the radio program every day in The Varsity were astonished to find a somewhat bizarre selection of programs in the paper last Friday.

No more surprised was the Radio Editor, who had left the program in the hands of the Assistant Radio Editor, in whom he had an implicit trust. Letters had already started to pour in from members of the faculty and various religious organizations before a full account of what had happened could be obtained.

It seems that Wiregarters, with the aid of the Sports Editor, Nathaniel (Barebones) Shiffman, had overpowered the assistant at the press and bound and gagged him only after he had put up a brave struggle. With the assistant out of the way they proceeded to put in a program of their own which, it has been discovered, was a code message to all the Stalinists on the campus exhorting them to rise and overthrow the Caput and the Board of Governors. Fortunately for the Caput, etc., the linotype operator, who is a Trotsky man, noticed the message, and altered it to read: "...all sympathizers with the present regime in Russia are warned to leave the country immediately on pain of death or forfeiture of their insinuations to the Varsity party".

By noon on Friday, several members of Trinity College were noticed to be absent.

By one o'clock the irate Radio Editor had crossed swords with Wiregarters and left his corpse on the back campus. The upshot of it all is that the Champus Cat has been discontinued, and its place will be taken by an "Advice to the Lovelorn" column which will be conducted by an up and coming man, J. Campbell Mack who has just returned from Madagascar where he has been covering recent political events.

outside of this initial selection, the less said the better. An unimportant Chopin group suggests no comment; the Liszt Sonata in B Minor, on the other hand, invites verbosity answering to the sound and fury of the work itself. It is true that this musical monstrosity gave the pianist a chance for another tour de force, for another miracle of producing form out of chaos. One hesitates to say that she was unequal to the task. For one thing, her effort to give unity to this Sonata was genuinely impressive. What is more important is that in the case of the Brahms, the chaos was only apparent, and she was able to reveal the true scope of the work; whereas the anarchy and emptiness of the Liszt are real, and one doubts if Orpheus himself could transmute it into something worth while. It is a matter for the deepest regret that the postponement of the concert involved a change of program. The originally scheduled "Waldstein" Sonata of Beethoven would have provided a perfect vehicle for the exhibition of Miss Mildner's talent. In substituting the Liszt, she guaranteed the wastage of phenomenal ability.

Why, by the way, does Miss Mildner tend to avoid any but romantic music? Would she actually be unable to play anything else, or does she merely prefer not to? Great as is her romantic playing, it offers no very certain answer to this question.

artist at the Hart House Sunday Evening Concert last night. Opening her recital with a Chopin group, she at once invited commendation for her playing. Her Chopin performance was entirely unmarred by the sentimental exaggerations which so often find their way into the work of even competent pianists. After witnessing the strength and solidity and fastidiousness with which she played this group—and especially the fine "Revolutionary" Etude—one could look ahead with the utmost confidence to the interpretations which were to follow.

In the Schumann Symphonic Etudes Miss Brown clearly displayed what is perhaps her greatest merit—fine dynamic control, and the effective management of tonal masses. This work, which is darker in colour and of heavier texture than most of Schumann's compositions, Miss Brown handled with profound understanding. Thanks are due her for the charming group of children's pieces by Pinto. And almost at the end of the program came what might be reckoned as Miss Brown's choicest playing—her beautifully woven performance of the simple but lovely Rachmaninoff Prelude in G Major.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shifman

YOU'RE RIGHT! . . .

Comments have been pouring in from all parts of the campus (liar!) all stressing the same point. It seems that the sports staff on The Varsity has been concentrating entirely on the major Canadian sports—like hockey, basketball and lately swimming. If we have over-emphasized these games we wish to apologize and we promise (and you will see in this column that we mean it), to bring out the more or less unknown and individualistic sports of the Canadian winter. Since the paper is full of reports of the major sports events we will take no more time and introduce today's two sports.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET OR SEEING THE MOVIES . . .

"Seeing the Movies" is one of Canada's less known sports but certainly has a large following. It is usually played on Friday and Saturday, like the hockey or basketball games, but it clearly beats either of the two sports for exercise and fresh air. The beauty of this sport is that any two people can play it (any combination girl-girl-girl and boy-boy and boy) and there is no investment for equipment or a sports outfit. You merely call a girl or boy about Wednesday and make a date for the early show on Friday or Saturday. That's all the preparation necessary. Then comes the exercise. . . .

It's easy to get to the show by street car . . . no parking worries and all that and to with a good show at the Uptown we take our two active participants as they get off the street car at the Uptown. A hundred thousand other people have thought of the same thing so that there's a line-up to the corner and the next show isn't for one and a half hours. Here's where the exercise comes in. The Imperial is suggested as an alternative even though they did so want to see the current attraction at the Uptown. So off they shuffle down the busy Yonge Street, dodging in and out of the milling crowd (Ed. note: Many a half-back has been developed on Yonge St.). By the time the Imperial is reached the line-up has already started so as a last resort they sprint down to Loew's (All this time they are getting good "Canadian winter" fresh air.) With sinking heart they approach Loew's, who have already decided not to sell any more tickets as they have sold all available standing room for the last show. Now deciding that waiting in line mightn't be so bad they decide they'd like to see the Imperial. This time, determination furrowing their brows, they march silently back to the Imperial. Here just as they are about to get their tickets the box office girl discreetly announces that the feature has already started. Well, it's no dice for our "seeing the Movies" enthusiasts.

You know the rest of the game . . . they go back to the Uptown which has also started . . . they get back on a street car . . . exhausted by nerves steady again, having gotten a real workout and the entire evening costing a quarter for street car tickets. An amazing and cheap sport for any Varsity student . . . Send in 10c and this article and we will send you the rules!

YOU COULDN'T BE CUTTER . . .

Another of these little known sports is Sleigh Riding or "Cutter Cruising". This sport requires a little more financial outlay. First it's necessary to take up skiing, that popular sport. After two weeks, in which you break your skis and your poles, you are ready for "Cutter Cruising", as you still have your ski clothes left. Then you and your party hire a sleigh with horses and everything and for the rest of the week you have to hope that the little snow that is left doesn't vanish. But you shouldn't worry, it would be better if the snow did vanish.

The night of the sleigh ride (and boy what a sleigh ride) is usually a bitterly cold, wind-swept night, and everyone shivering by the time you get close to the sleigh. If there's a crowd you're so uncomfortable, jabbed around until it becomes unbearable and you get out and run beside the sleigh. If the sleigh isn't crowded it's so cold that you still have to get out and run to keep warm. So you're just as far ahead if you just decide to go out for a ten-mile run in the country in ski clothes on some sub-zero night. The night is usually dark so you can't see the beautiful scenery, it's so cold that nobody feels like singing, and the slightest suggestion of turning back is met with a hearty, "Yes!" The only benefit we can see in the "Cutter Cruising" is the fact that you certainly enjoy a little warm spot or a trip to Florida after it's all over. . . .

And so we leave the Canadian sports, and you can have them.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORTS REVIEW

The highlights of the week-end's intercollegiate sports panorama were McGill's defeat of our hockey squad and the easy triumph of the Blue team over University of Montreal, Penn State's victory over the Varsity swimmers, and the twin wins of the Blue and White basketballers over McMaster and Queen's.

On Saturday night the Red Raiders of McGill administered a 5-3 defeat to Ace Bailey's pucksters. Reports from Montreal tell the story of a real struggle on Varsity's part to pull out a win. Craig, who scored twice, led the attack, but McGill withstood the onslaught of Varsity shots. The Toronto squad was outlucked on many of its scoring chances. "Bing" Casswell, Varsity goalie, was injured in the game but was able to continue playing. On Friday evening Bailey's boys gave a slasting team from University of Montreal a 9-2 drubbing.

Meeting little opposition from the Queen's quietest, Warren Stevens led his senior basketball team to a 57-29 victory over the Limestone City boys. The Tricolour representatives failed to show enough class to make it an exciting game. Rogin and Lavernway accounted for half of the Blue and White tallies.

"Mac" McCutcheon's intermediate champion basketball team trounced McMaster in the other game at Hart House on Friday. Leading 13-8 as the second half began, Toronto went on a scoring

While the amount of talent in co-ed skiing circles is an inspiration to the Ski Club, the plot begins to thicken now that the time has come to choose a final team. Four members for the intercollegiate meet must be selected by the ski committee and the task of picking the likeliest prospects has turned into a big headache. As we predicted, Punch Galtie, U.C., and Joan Griffith, St. Hilda's, are definite and logical selections. So that disposes of the number one and two positions. Then fighting it out cheerfully for the other two places were, Dorothy Ellis, U.C.; Mary Lou Bott of Vic; and Peggy McLaren, Patsy McLaren, Hazel Brown, and Jane Warwick, all of U.C. In order to aid their final decision the committee arranged for another slalom event at the Rosedale Golf Club. Prior to this, however, Patsy McLaren and Mary Lou Bott had discovered that even if they made the ski team they would be unable to make the trip, since they are scheduled to go to London the same week-end for the basketball meet. Both girls withdrew from further slalom competition so that Saturday's field was much smaller. By winning the Rosedale event, Peggy McLaren annexed third place on the team, while Dorothy Ellis and Hazel Brown were so evenly matched that they are tied for the fourth place on the team. Now you can understand what the ski committee is worried about.

Everyone is interested in the outcome of the quarter-finals of the badminton meet which will be played tomorrow. Speaking very generally it's a case of Youth versus Age. Speaking very generally, the "aged" competitors, so-called because of their superior badminton experience, are Mary Becker, St. Hilda's IV and Hildegarde Goodfellow, Vic III. Both these stars, members of last year's intercollegiate team, will be defending their titles and reputations tomorrow against the cream of the fresher crop: Betty Kirby, St. Mike's I, who will be matched against the Victoria champion, and Betty Wright, newcomer at St. Hilda's, is to play one of her own college seniors, Mary Becker. The only match completed in the quarter-finals is the "Tibs" Annesley-Janie Church fixture, which was won by the former, another St. Hilda's product. Kay Bryans, the only U.C. girl left in the meet, is matched against Jean Ross, Vic IV, on tomorrow's card. The tourney has advanced smoothly thus far, and for your information the tournament list has been posted in Miss Parkes' office, in case you might want to challenge in. Challenge matches are to be played before the intercollegiate team is chosen. So if you're intent on upsetting one of the finalists signify your intentions here—but you wouldn't, would you?

DELUGE OF TEA-SHOTS PROVING TEA'S POPULARITY

The final prize-winning Tea-shot of the year, J. J. Brown of 112 Charles St. W., shows every ambitious "plunger" how to take the swat out of "swatting" with a refreshing cup of tea.

From the great number of Tea-Shots submitted since the Contest began in October, Tea has certainly proven itself the most popular beverage on the campus. You've seen winning Tea-Shots of students enjoying tea everywhere—in the Great Hall, the Camera Club, at the organ, in the bath, in a cafe, backstage—proving that any time, anywhere TEA REVIVES YOU!

From the ten weekly winners three Tea-shots will be chosen for the grand prizes of $25, $10 and $5. Watch for announcement of these awards.

two hundred and three points. It was a rather slow tussle which saw Toronto take the lead from the opening whistle and the only time the crowd really got excited was when the brilliant Varsity quintet broke away for fast-passing attacks on the Queen's hoops. A highlight of the game occurred in the first half when Bill Rogin grabbed a rebound off his own backboard and attempted to toss it down the floor to Lavarway and Aitchison who were alone under the Queen's basket. The heave was a high one and instead of falling into the waiting hands of his team-mates the ball swished through the visitors' hoop for two points. So quickly did this event happen that the score-keepers didn't even notice whether the ball had passed through the basket and had to stop the play for confirmation from the officials.

Although Shute and Minehan for Toronto and Captain Joe Hoba of Queen's were ejected for personal fouls, play was clean. The only casualty of the game occurred when Vic Knowles of Queen's suffered a nasty cut over his eye in a collision with Bill Flaherty of Toronto early in the second half. The big Blue centre, brought up by Stevens from the intermediate team, had just received a pass from one of his mates and when he swung around his forehead came in contact with the Queen's forward and cut the skin over the eye. It was purely accidental and the Tricolour star received immediate medical attention. Flaherty, incidentally, played a good game for a rookie, and batted in two field goals.

Minehan, playing his first senior game after his recent illness, turned in a good game, as did Captain Walt McGregor and Perc Singer.

For Queen's, Davis and Drysdale were outstanding with the former scoring two sensational tips. Newman, with five points, along with Jones and Hoba, also turned in excellent efforts. "Fuzz"

Ross got two penalties within fifteen seconds of each other, the second being entirely undeserved.

In the second period the Toronto team started off life in a house on fire and Montreal were completely disorganized. Varsity had twelve shots on the goal to McGill's two in the first ten minutes, but failed to score. Then Andy Anton of McGill, shooting from just inside the blue line through a maze of Toronto players, scored at twelve-thirty. Bing Caswell never had a chance to see the shot. Three minutes later the referees again flagged Johnny Ross to the cooler for merely looking at McConnell and Perowne scored on a beautiful play. Copp was penalized for charging but although two men short, Varsity held the fort.

Toronto started the third stanza with a determined offensive. Bing Caswell was hurt in a melee in front of his goal but continued to play. Ronnie Perowne just about finished Varsity's chances when he took McConnell's pass to make it 4-1.

Perowne charged Ross but came out second best in the fight that followed. Both were given penalties. Finally, Varsity's scoring sorites bore fruit when Dick Craig scored at sixteen twenty-one from Morison. A minute later he got another from Tommy Callon and it looked as though Toronto might tie it up until Walker broke loose and scored.

Friday night's game against University of Montreal was a miserable affair. As a bunch of hockey players the Frenchmen are good wood-choppers, doing nothing but hack, chop and hook the Blue team. Their tactics were not able to stop Varsity from piling up an easy nine to two victory. Art Boddington got three goals and Bill Morrison two. Other Toronto tallies were scored by Stevenson, Craig, L'Heureux and Ross. Migneault and Lariviere scored for Montreal. Varsity notched three counters in each period. The Frenchmen didn't score until the last session.

Toronto: Goal, Caswell; defense, MacLachlan, L'Heureux; centre, Morison; wings, Craig, Callon; subs, Maynard, Stephenson, Boddington, Ross and Copp.

McGill: Goal, Emerson; defense, Dickison, Dunn; centre, McConnell; wings, Perowne, McDonald; subs, Anton, Walker, Owen, Kennedy and Doheny.

Referees: Bell and Heffernan.

Accidents Take Five Lives

Ila Boles, 18, and Francis, 10, were killed instantly when a car which was driven by their mother was struck by a train on Victoria road near Guelph. Another train took the life of a New Toronto man, while two more perished as a result of a bit-and-run driver and a bicycle accident.

Jack, the Golden Gals' "bad man", did not make the trip and was replaced by Fillmore, who bagged four points.

Varsity started in scoring fast and over nine minutes of play led 19-8. Queen's came back to toss in five points but were unable to cope with the superior Blue team and the score at half-time stood 28-15 in favour of the home team.

In contrast with the speedy passing of both teams in the first frame, play slowed down a bit at the beginning of the second half and Varsity increased their lead to 36-21. Queen's rallied briefly after a minute time-out and their passing became steadier. However, they never really threatened the winners and the final score was Varsity fifty-seven to Queen's twenty-nine.

Intermediate Basketmen Trounce McMaster 33-14

Flaherty and Humeniuk Score Two-Thirds of Varsity's Points as Blues Pile up Nine-teen-Point Lead

Varsity's intermediate basketball team did the expected Friday night when they defeated McMaster 33-14 at Hart House in the first game of the big bargain bill. As the score indicates it was Varsity's game all the way.

Strong performances were contributed by Flaherty and Humeniuk of the Blues who scored two-thirds of their team's points, as well as by Vandenberg of McMaster, who was responsible for half of the Hamiltonians' points.

McMaster went into the lead in the first half when Vandenberg scored on a foul shot and Simkins added a field goal. Then Mac McCutcheon shot out the reserves and Humeniuk and Matthews each scored a field goal to give the locals a lead which they never relinquished. The half time score was 13-8.

The second half was all Varsity's. Flaherty opened the scoring with two quick baskets which were followed by a successful foul shot by Humeniuk. At this stage of the game Flynn was automatically disqualified for the rest of the game by his fourth personal foul. This did not stop the Varsity attack and they kept right on going, to wind up leading by nineteen points, more than doubling their opponents' total.

Along with Humeniuk and Flaherty, Gregg also turned in a stellar performance for the locals, scoring 3 baskets. For McMaster, Vandenberg tried

Women's Press Club To Hold Meeting Tomorrow Afternoon

The Women's Press Club will hold its opening meeting for this term in the Women's Union on Tuesday, February 14th, at 4.30 p.m. This will be a work meeting at which original contributions, prose or verse, will be discussed. All women interested in journalism are invited.

Some students have been under the impression that the Women's Press Club is limited to women in University College. The Press Club is open to all women students on the campus. There is no membership fee; the only charge being a small sum if you wish tea, which is served before the meeting. A further misunderstanding has arisen over the time at which the meetings are held. They are called for 4.30, but the meeting proper does not usually begin until 5 p.m., so as to enable those students who have late lectures to hear the speaker.

LOCKHART SAYS QUESTIONNAIRE NOT YET FINAL

University Opinion Possibly not Represented, Says S.C.M. Secretary

That the results shown by the answers so far received to the questionnaire on religion recently printed in The Varsity may not prove to be clearly representative of university opinion was the opinion expressed yesterday by Rev. Dr. W. C. Lockhart, General Secretary of the Student Christian Movement, sponsor of the survey.

"It is impossible to say for a day or two just what the results will be," said Rev. Lockhart. "There still remains a good deal of clerical work to be done in recording and compiling the answers."

Although there seemed to be campus-wide interest in the project, Dr. Lockhart stated that some colleges have not yet answered. "Whether the section of the undergraduate body which has answered the questionnaire is that section which feels strongly for or against the subject, I don't know. I doubt if the number of students answering will be much over ten per cent of the student body and whether that is representative is a matter dependent upon where the answers come from."

Hockey Star Injured; Eliminated For Season

Bill Morison Breaks His Wrist in Practice; Accident is Second Injury of the Year

Varsity's championship stock dropped to the lowest point of the current season last night when it was announced from Toronto General Hospital that Bill Morison, brilliant centre, had broken his wrist in practice. Morison the team's high scorer, will be out for the remainder of the season.

This is Bill the "Rooker's" second injury of the year, a dislocated shoulder kept him from making the trip to California earlier in the year. Generally conceded to be the outstanding performer of the Blue squad, and probably the best hockey player in the I.H.L., Morison has been mentioned as a pro prospect and his loss will be an irreparable damage to the chances of Ace Bailey's team.

The injury occurred yesterday when Bill tripped and fell in practice, causing a simple fracture of the radius just above the right wrist. It was not expected that he would have to stay in the hospital overnight.

LATEST DANCE STEP TO APPEAR AT STOMP

"The Imperial Swing" Originated in Honour of Royal Visit—to Have Premiere at Sophomore Stomp

"The Imperial Swing", a dance step originated in honour of the royal visit and predicted to be the coming dance sensation in Canada and the United States, will have its "world premiere" presentation at the U.C. Sophomore Stomp. This announcement was made yesterday by members of the second year executive who are busy with preparations for the dance to be held in the Women's Union on Saturday, February 26.

The new dance is the creation of Hilda Rigby Rankin of St. Catharines, a pupil of the Evelyn Hubbard School of the Dance in New York, and leader of the group which brought supper clubs to Canada. These supper clubs, which proved so popular in the States, are now operating in Niagara Falls, St. Catharines and Hamilton. They combine a Saturday evening supper dance for people of all ages along with competent instruction in the latest steps given by Mrs. Rankin and her eight young assistants, most of whom have studied in New York.

"We feel that this novel feature should be very popular with Varsity undergraduates," said A. J. Harris, men's president. "Although the step looks almost professional when danced correctly, it is very easy to pick up."

FRIDAY DATE SET FOR SCHOOL NITE

Five Bands, a Canoe Artist, Buffalo Swimmers and Dolphinettes to Perform

One of the most outstanding of all time, School Nite is to be held this Friday. There will be 5 orchestras for dancing. Bob Shuttleworth will play in the big gym, an old-time band will take the boys back to 1890 with the rhythm of a barn dance. Disporting themselves in the tank will be a canoe artist, the Buffalo swimming team and the Dolphinettes.

There will be three showings of the review, the event of the evening, at 7.45, 8.50 and 9.55 p.m. Tickets are good only for the show for which they are issued. The largest and most elaborate set ever constructed for Hart House stage, the Goose River Mine, has been built by the engineers. A 17-piece orchestra composed entirely of Schoolmen, will play for the show.

A chorus of beautiful maidens will dance in their own inimitable style and will welcome any photographers, no pictures barred.

The supply of tickets is limited, for everyone who pays to see the show will have a seat. Undergraduate tickets are $1.50, graduate $2.50.

S.P.S. GRADUATES DEEMED LUCKIEST POSITION FINDER

Very little information is available concerning the whereabouts and activities of the grads of 1938. Only about 25 per cent have been located and their records show that for the most part they are pursuing scholastic activities of some sort. Of the male grads of U.C. some 30 of those tracked down were found to be studying law at Osgoode Hall. Several are engaged in post-graduate studies here and in England—at Oxford, Cambridge and London. One is actually reported as having a job in the business world, in the Bank of Canada.

Vic, on the other hand, has produced only 8 law students. However, it boasts of an "Educating Officer in the Royal Air Force" in Kent, England. Other Vics are continuing their studies at Paris, France, and at Cambridge, England. We find a Vic grad of 1938 in the Hudson's Bay Company, another secretary of Hart House, two more in commercial chemistry. The staff of U. of T. has taken on four.

S.P.S. shows evidence of relatively the largest number of men holding down jobs in the cold cruel world. About ten are employed in chemical companies of various lands. An equal number are blessed with jobs in the realm of electrical engineering. Some half dozen are pursuing exciting mining careers up north and seven grace the staff of the University of Toronto. A learned S.P.S. gentleman has even attained the distinction of being made a member of the National Research Council. And then there's the S.P.S. grad who has now decided to embark on a law career.

NORWOOD TO SPEAK AT LIBRARY EVENING

Skating, Reading, and Parties will Keep Students Busy—Until Next Exams

This Thursday evening the second and final Library Evening of the year in the library of Hart House, will be held. Professor Gilbert Norwood, the guest speaker, will give a talk on the subject "My Leisure Reading."

Professor Norwood is well known to undergraduates of the university in more than one capacity. He is a professor of Greek at University College and an authority on Greek drama; he

ROSS LECTURES ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Robert Stanley Ross, C.S.B., of New York City, delivered a lecture on "Christian Science: Its Unlimited Possibilities" in University College last night. Mr. Ross is a member of the Board of Lecturers of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

He emphasized the fact that there is no mystery about Christian Science healing. It is something which can be understood by anyone. In answering the question which is often asked regarding the compatibility of Christian Science with the teaching of Jesus, Mr. Ross stated: "The truth taught by Jesus is demonstrable. It is as capable of healing today as it was then. He did not use drugs, surgery nor diet, nor other material means, and yet his

Chinese Student Urges Canada Boycott Japan

"China will Fight to the End," Says Miss Pearl Liu, Speaking at Women's Union

"The China-Japanese war will last just as long as western countries continue to support Japan," stated Miss Pearl Liu emphatically, yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. "China will continue to fight to the end."

Canadians do not consider the danger to which their own country is exposed when they provide 90 per cent of the nickel used in Japan. "If Japan should subject China, what would prevent her from attacking the lands across the Pacific?" Ninety-five per cent of the silk used in United States is Japanese and the profit Japan realizes on one pair of silk stockings will buy four bullets.

In 1934 the government realized that

MINISTER TO SPEAK TO MEDICAL MEN

"Applied Christianity" will be the subject of Rev. Ray McCleary, minister of Woodgren United Church, Toronto, who will speak in Hart House tonight to medical men.

His work in a downtown church has brought him up against the distressing problems of present society for his associations. He has been mainly with the poor and dispossessed. Hence he is well qualified to discuss the question of whether Christianity is practical.

The group will meet for supper in the Great Hall at 6 o'clock and from 7-8 in the music room, Hart House.

Campus Life Peaceful But Some Wild Life Lingers Say Police

A policeman's lot is not a happy one according to Gilbert and Sullivan. But they weren't taking into account the police force of the University of Toronto. However, wild life is not entirely extinct as reminiscences of the police force revealed.

There was the time a few years ago when articles too brief to mention were hoisted to the breeze instead of the customary Union Jack. A steepjack was engaged, but not before the arbs got a shock.

Some enterprising students once tried to play soldier. They saved some guns on the campus from their moorings, filled them with powder and prepared

Students in China Carry On in Spite of Japanese Bombardment of Universities

"Chinese and Canadian universities were very much alike before the war," said Miss Pearl Liu, a graduate in English from Yenching University in 1935, in an interview with The Varsity last night.

"There were about ninety universities in China in 1935, all but one co-educational and teaching the same curriculum as American colleges. Since that time many have been destroyed, some have moved into the interior and a few have united, two or three joining to economize on equipment. Some students are carrying on their work living in holes dug in the side of a hill where they are hidden from Japanese bombing planes.

"Many students feel that they can't go on with their studies while their country is in such distress. They are taking part in the great movement for mass education. They try to educate the people by means of plays and stories. One of the favourite means is the 'cross-street play' which is used to teach pupils the cause of the war"

SWING CLUB TO HOLD TEA DANCE MEETING

George Carty's Orchestra and Surprise Girl Vocalist to Furnish Part of Music

The next meeting of the Varsity Swing Club, to be held next Thursday from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m. in Diana Sweets, will take the form of a tea dance. George Carty's band will furnish the musical background.

Ron. Saylor, swing pianist, and Billy McClintock, vocalist with Horace Lapp's orchestra, will be featured. It is expected. In addition to this there will be a surprise girl vocalist whose name will be divulged later.

The executive have high hopes of presenting as the highlight of the program, Count Basie, who is appearing with his band Thursday night at the Palais Royale.

BICKERSTETH'S ILLNESS REPORTED NOT SERIOUS

The Varsity wishes to inform the members of Hart House that the Warden's present illness is not serious. Last year we can remember being deprived of Mr. Bickersteth's services, his wit and his bright personality for several months. His present ailment is not a heart condition. We can expect him back in our midst within a few days.

Attempts to have interesting wearing apparel, via sky rockets, over an aerial from the Electrical Building to U.C., illustrated again the originality of the student mind. The enterprise was postponed indefinitely on account of the proverbial arm of the law collecting all apparatus when the perpetrators were absent for a moment.

Summer duties consist of guarding the university, supervising picnickers, and clearing the grounds after dark. In the process "spooners" are not expected, according to one P.C.

"Will You Be My Valentine" Is a Phrase Forgotten By Eds

Men about the campus seem to have lost their faculty of memory when it comes to realizing today is February 14. Nearly every ed encountered yesterday had to be reminded that Valentine's Day has actually arrived.

No doubt this oversight on the men's part is due to the absence of a special notice in that precious little Students' Handbook.

But by no means have co-eds forgotten that this is the day when good old St. Valentine should float in with a bouquet of roses or a box of sweets. Isabel Martin, II Vic, likes to receive chocolates on February 14. "I prefer hard centres and like the candy to be in a red heart-shaped box tied with pale blue ribbon," she mused.

Elsie Jay, III Arts, said, "Well, these days we must be thankful for even small mercies, when questioned on what the would like to receive on February 14."

"I'll take candy—with the name signed," laughed another co-ed, Lorna Dadds, II Arts.

Come on eds—don't let the girls down today. It's up to you to give the girls a break!

Modern Religious Forces

Religious leaders of vision see the world in its present revolutionary state suffering the birth-pangs of a new world society. While a process of dis-civilizing is in progress on every continent, man everywhere is seeking new standards, on which to base a new society without losing the best of the old cultures.

The Eastern world wants modern science, and western commerce. It is no longer satisfied with the traditional oriental religions. Buddhism, which some one has said is the ideal religion for the educated world-citizen, especially is no longer satisfying to the 'modern' optimistic Easterner. The cultures with which Confucianism, Buddhism, Hinduism, and Mohammedanism are so closely related, are breaking down, and as they break down, the religions themselves are beginning to disappear as active forces in the lives of the people.

In a new world society there must be one central unifying idea, by which standards may be set, and on the basis of which problems and differences may be solved. The failure of the League of Nations, the world economic conference, and world commerce has shown that a political or materialistic basis is not enough. The one sufficient force will be a great captivating religious idea.

Throughout the world, especially in the East and in the newly awakened Africa, the younger thinking generation is willing to be captivated by some great ideal. Christians throughout the world believe that true religion alone can call the world back from materialism. They believe that the only possible answer to the problems of the world is that given by Christ himself, that the lives of men and women must be changed absolutely by a grasp of the true meaning of the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man. Before such a faith all racial prejudices would disappear, the world's goods would be apportioned to meet the needs of the people, and man would not exploit man for selfish ends.

According to Basil Matthews "the real competitors of Christianity are not the old religions, but nationalism rising to mystical heights in fascism and communism with its ideals of universal salvation."

Nationalism or totalitarianism is considered by many to be the greatest opponent of Christianity in the world of today. Its absolute is not the good of mankind but of the national state, and as has been seen in Germany, the good of only a group within the state. A national ethic, with no duties to other peoples indicates that some nations are getting back to tribal deities. In the Shintoism of Japan we see the power of a national religion, which makes the divine right of State seem as fantastic to the rest of the world as the Stuart idea of the divine right of man, forming a disintegrated society, nationalism kings. And yet with a disintegrated, introspective supplies a need. It answers man's questions, and tells him what to think and what to do.

Both totalitarianism and communism as seen in the world today are religions. They have their absolutes, and they make the absolute demand that the individual subject himself to a particular way of life, with the ideal of accomplishing a glorious end.

Many people who raise the Red bogey are confusing issues, and cry communist at every individual who has a social consciousness, and realizes that there is need for social reform. In communism (with a small 'c') we find many of the ideals in which Christianity believes. Its essential truths of democracy, and fair distribution of wealth are embraced by Christianity, and many of the early missions founded by Catholic missionaries, such as that which existed in Paraguay, were founded on a communistic basis.

But Communism, as it has become a force in the world today, is incompatible with Christianity, as is maintained in Jacques Maritain's "True Humanism". Although the Marxist philosophy has not denied spiritual values in the world, it denies supernatural values, and a God distinct from nature. In these tenets it is atheistic. The Communist believes that he can bring in peace with force, and in his naivete he does not realize that there has to be a reaction to force. For that matter professing Christians throughout the ages have made the same mistake. According to Aldous Huxley means are not justified by ends sought, but the Communist is willing to use all manner of means to fulfill his ideals.

We realize that as our cultures and our civilizations change Christianity is being challenged as never before. Neither Totalitarianism nor Communism can solve the world's problems. And a false Christianity is just as futile. Conscious of the dualism in the world, we are in need of something to unify and integrate society. The standards of Jesus Christ are sufficient, but they will have to be accepted as an absolute, and not as a superficial cloak, if Christianity is to rise triumphantly from the chaos of an outdated civilization, and be the unifying, dynamic all-embracing idea of a new world society.—A.C.F.

Don't Dump Here

It is time the civic authorities found a better place to dump the snow and muck from Toronto streets than the middle of Queen's Park. This area, which could and should be beautiful, was made into a barnyard last fall, and is now meeting further disgrace as an ash heap. Trucks are arriving daily, and have already discharged their contents in such a way as to block two main paths—the one from Victoria Library to Hart House and the other from St. Michael's College to the Newman Club. It is not only a mess; it is also inconvenient for those who have to cross the park between lectures.

The attention of those responsible should be drawn to this condition before the park gets wholly littered. Toronto can't long live up to the claim of a certain controller that it is "the premier city of Canada", if it continues to make a dump out of the back-yard of the Parliament Buildings and largest university in the British Empire.

Certainly there is no need for any more fertilizer to be dumped there. There are more ravines around the city where it could be put without creating an eye-sore in our most central park. And even if the few extra dollars for transportation charges are not forthcoming, there is still lots of room in the park without blocking the footpaths.—C. McL.

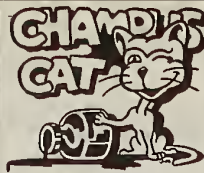

ART MUSIC

Hart House Quartet

It appears that chamber-music is just too much for the students of this university. Yesterday afternoon the Hart House String Quartet gave the first of its series of "Monday Pops", and was greeted by an audience that taxed to capacity fully a quarter of the available accommodation in Hart House Theatre.

Is it atrophied cultural development, or merely indifference? The string quartet is the most exalted form of the art of music, but that doesn't mean that it is necessarily incomprehensible to "the masses"—

ANGEL GABRIEL DEMANDS RETURN OF IRELAND

Panic Seizes Irish Populace when Celestial Visitor Demands the Lost Colony (Northern Ireland Duty Free)

Dublin: Terror reigned throughout all Ireland as the news sped through the land that a strange visitor had arrived from Heaven with an even stranger demand. Late yesterday afternoon the stranger had flown into the window of the Irish House of Assembly much to the amazement of the members. Alighting before the Speaker, he placed his only bit of baggage, a trumpet, on the table and folded his wings. Then drawing forth some parchment the awe-inspiring visitor began to read.

"I am the Angel Gabriel." A gasp ran through the house punctuated by cries of "Praise de Lawd!"

The angel read on. "Representing the United Angels, I am here to demand the return of our lost colony, Ireland." Another gasp ran through the house.

"We base our demand," continued Gabriel, "on the context of that old song which goes

'Oh a little bit of heaven
Fell from out the sky one day.'
And should you refuse to return it our wrath will descend on your heads!"

With these few words the Angel seized his trumpet and flew out through the window, leaving the Assembly in an uproar.

A similar announcement was made to the Belfast Government and to six suspicious characters in the London Underground.

As the word flashed through the world, statesmen of all the nations gave their opinions, notably Hitler, who said that he had been expecting this for a long time.

VARSLTY FENCERS SCORE TRIPLE WIN

During the past week-end the Varsity fencing team have been covering themselves with glory as the result of their triple triumph over Western University, Wayne University and Lawrence Tech. Such performances are a good indication of the strength of the Blue and White squad as the result of the Intercollegiate Assault At-Arms approaches.

Charlie Walters' flashy foil men travelled to London on Friday to cross swords with Western. The Toronto representatives easily won this meet, taking seven out of nine bouts in the foil class. Captain Garcia and Wilson garnered three points each and Horsey added the seventh.

On Saturday the Varsity squad invaded Michigan to take an easy 12-5 victory from Wayne University. Garcia with three wins and no losses led the foil bouts. Wilson and Garcia won two encounters each to emerge undefeated in the epee group. Horsey and Garcia each won and lost a bout in the sabre class.

The only real opposition encountered by the Blue and White on their travels was supplied by Lawrence Tech. Here the Toronto men were extended to their utmost to eke out a 9-8 win. The most thrilling bout of the whole trip was witnessed in this meet, when a real movie finish decided the issue, with the clever but unassuming Garcia in the role of hero. Tension grew as both teams battled it out in the foil, epee and sabre divisions. The captains of both universities crossed swords with the score at 8-all. This ninth bout seemed to be Garcia's by a wide margin, since he was leading at one time by 4 to 1 hits out of a necessary five hits to take the bout and meet. Then the Lawrence captain scored three hits against the Varsity hero, tying the whole meet at 8-8 in bouts and 4-4 in hits. As soon as the two combatants faced each other for the final parries and thrusts, Garcia's weapon flashed against his opponent's arm. The Lawrence captain immediately doffed his glove and extended his hand to congratulate Varsity's victor.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Ed Goodman

WHERE HAVE WE HEARD THIS BEFORE?

If any of you who happen to let your eyes fall on this column are betting folks, I have a few remarks to address in your direction. Go out and pawn your watch, your cuff links, and your frat pin, take the money and bet it on Varsity to defeat McGill in next Saturday afternoon's hockey game.

After Varsity's recent 5-3 setback from McGill, the odds will probably favour the Redmen, but Toronto have more than a fair chance of evening up affairs. The account of last Saturday's game laid Varsity's defeat down to either hard luck or lack of ability around the goal mouth and to poor refereeing. Inasmuch as the former factor has already been discussed I will confine myself to the refereeing. For the past few years Bell and Hefferman, the gentlemen in question, have been refereeing the Varsity-McGill dash in Montreal and doing an excellent job, but their work in the last game was way below par. Their fault was not that of being biased against the Toronto team, but of giving unwarranted penalties at some times, and being lenient at others. And unfortunately it was Toronto who were affected the most.

Johnny Ross, Varsity's big right winger, was the player who received most of the attention, drawing down five penalties. And Johnny did not deserve 5 penalties. He was sent on by his coach to check Russ McConnell and he did so in masterly fashion, but the bell-ringers just couldn't see eye to eye with him and although on two occasions he was merely protecting himself from McGill players charging with sticks aimed at his face, and once he was pulled to the ice by McConnell, it was Ross who ended up in the penalty box alone.

All in all it was rather aggravating but McGill deserved their win and on Saturday we will see just whether or not the refereeing had any effect on the outcome.

MAYBE I AM CRAZY

What did anger us no end, however, was the report of the game in the Montreal Gazette by Fred Thompson. Mr. Thompson tells about Varsity's defensive tactics, and how McGill were carrying the play to Varsity, which makes me wonder whether or not the reporter saw the same game I did. For the contest and practically had two shots on goal to every McGill shot.

Tim Dunn, hardhitting Montreal defenseman, received a compound fracture of the left wrist and will be lost to the Redmen for the rest of the season. This will weaken McGill a great deal for he was their best defensive performer, although Andy Anton's elbows were pretty fair also. It is to be hoped that McGill will be weak enough to lose to Queen's when they play in Kingston, which is very likely. For the powerful McGill squad of last year lost in Queen's own backyard and if the Tricolour pull a repeat performance Varsity will be tied with McGill for first place upon beating them (talk is cheap).

ON COLLEGE NEWSPAPER REPORTERS

When a sports reporter covers a game in which his own alma mater is participating it is very difficult to be unprejudiced. But on Saturday night I made every attempt to lean backwards and look at the game as though I had no sentimental interest in it and I still think that Varsity deserved at least a tie. All of which means that next Saturday's game will be a pip.

P.S.—News of Morison's injury just came in but we still think Varsity will win.

FOR GOLFERS

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week there will be some golf talks shown in Hart House on the finer points of the game. The pictures are highly instructive and anyone who desires to go is welcome to go and see them at 5 o'clock in the east common room.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORTS REVIEW

With the intercollegiate leagues in basketball and hockey fast coming to their conclusion, and playoff time just around the corner, Varsity entrants in these leagues are right up in the thick of the fight. In the senior hockey league the big blow to Varsity's title hopes was their loss to Queen's two weeks ago, but if Queen's defeat McGill this Friday night, next Saturday afternoon will be Varsity's big test. As matters stand, McGill have 10 points, made up of 5 wins and no losses. Tied in points but with 2 more games played, are Queen's and Toronto, with 5 wins and 2 losses each.

The basketball outlook is even better. Out on top with 4 wins and no losses, the Blue basketballers have had easy sailing to date, and one of their wins is over Western, last year's champions and pre-season favourites. Western and McGill are tied in second place with one victory and one loss each. Queen's have yet to enter the win column.

In the Intermediate Basketball League Mac McCutcheon's boys seem to be having their own way again, with wins over McMaster and O.A.C. O.A.C. are second with one win and one loss, and McMaster and Western bringing up the rear.

So with a few games yet to go, Varsity are away out in front in their efforts to win the basketball titles, and have more than an outside chance of copping off the hockey titles.

out, and only clever work by Fred Martin in the home team's cage kept the score down.

The Maroons stormed the Varsity citadel in the final frame but Wood drove two counters behind Martin to put the game on ice. The second goal was a very neat effort, with Wood breaking away fast and outwitting two McMaster defenders. McMaster rallied briefly five seconds later to score through Burt, but the game ended with the score Varsity 4, McMaster 2.

By Mary Conlin

Local badminton history will be made this afternoon when the quarter-finals of the Varsity meet are concluded. The intercollegiate meet in Montreal seems even more attractive now that it is only a few weeks off, and the players fully realize it's today or never. Although Betty Wright, St. Hilda's freshe, has displayed beautiful style throughout the meet, it is doubtful if she is sufficiently tournament-wise to stave off the attack of veteran Mary Becker today. Betty Kirby, rangy young St. Mike's player who turned in some fine tennis last fall, also lacks the versatile style which is part of Blonde Hildegarde Goodfellow's success.

Playing a seven gal team consisting of 1 substitute, St. Mike's let Vic's Beth Moore tally for 2 goals last night before buckling down in the last period to hold them to 3-1. Both teams were handicapped by the bumpy surface termed ice, but struggled around having a wonderful time. Vic's flashy uniforms and sportsmanship greatly impressed their eastern-campus neighbours.

Jr. Vic jumped into an early lead when Laidlaw scored on a beautiful pass. How added another with Burt-Gerrans noticing a counter for U.C. to make the half time score 2-1 for Jr. Vic.

The second half saw two fighting teams struggling to take the game. Clawson tied it up for U.C. and then both squads turned on the heat. Play was fast and furious, moving up and down the pool. Finally a foul against a Vic player gave Clawson a penalty throw and despite a near-save by the goal keeper, the ball went in and the game ended Jr. Vic 2, Jr. U.C. 3.

VIC BASEBALLERS WHITWASH MEDS

The lowly Jr. Vic baseball nine took it upon themselves to whitewash the group leading Jr. Meds yesterday afternoon in the big gym by a score of 5-0. It marked the first win of the season for the scarlet and gold representatives. The game was a tight affair until the third inning when Vic showed over four of their five counters. Hitting the old pill with a vengeance were Ian McLeod, Jack Kimber and Glen Eagle, for the winners, while for the losers (Continued on Page 4)

VARSLTY DEFEATS M'MASTER ON ICE

Stock of the Varsity intermediate soared last night as the result of their sparkling 4-2 win over McMaster on the latter's home ice. Hero of the clean-cut decision was George Wood, who collected four scoring points while figuring in every Varsity goal. Wood fired home two third-period goals and drew assists on two other counters.

Open hockey prevailed throughout with McMaster's disjointed ganging attacks paying the way for breakaways by Varsity. The Bluebirds had a distinct edge in territorial play throughout, and only clever work by Fred Martin in the home team's cage kept the score down.

The Maroons stormed the Varsity citadel in the final frame but Wood drove two counters behind Martin to put the game on ice. The second goal was a very neat effort, with Wood breaking away fast and outwitting two McMaster defenders. McMaster rallied briefly five seconds later to score through Burt, but the game ended with the score Varsity 4, McMaster 2.

McMaster: Goal, F. Martin; defence, Boyd, Leal; centre, R. Martin; wings, Weendor, R. Burt; subs, Wellington, Henderson, Wilson, Duncan, A. Burt.

VIC CHALKS UP WIN OVER SAINTS

Led by flashy Beth Moore, centre, period, Vic co-eds chalked up a 3-1 win over St. Mike's last night.

In the second period the Moore

Grant, who netted for the Saints.

Play was rugged and fast in the last period, but no additional goals scored.

He hid himself to the Royal York be glad. In the midst of the proceedings, some playful college fellows happened along—Varsity or McGill men, he does not know. When he began to remember he remembered he had forgotten to get back that malacca.

The stick was a rather valuable one,
and more particularly so because he had had it almost thirty years, and during that time had used it continuously.

It isn't that this McGill rooster thinks the stick was taken deliberately: on the contrary, everything was done in a playful mood and he simply forgot to get it back before he left.

For some time he was not sure whether to look for the stick at home in Montreal, or to try Toronto, and so a few weeks ago when he was back in town, he mentioned the incident to a friend, and the result—the ad.

form of a jazz issue (remember?). . . .

They turned out the issue under the title of the Daily Princetonian, and the paper contains interesting stories on the private lives of the faculty (with issues that the various American college papers turn out are nothing but the staffs of the different rags cutting loose once a year, and enjoying themselves at the expense of the faculty and the various institutions of the university. . . . Of course, the reporters are inclined to wax a bit ribald, but then we were young once too. . . . Down here at Varsity, we still have fond memories of our former jazz issues.

. . . A few years back the paper came out with the huge headline on the front put forward exactly one month and that they would begin in early March. . . .

There was confusion and despair in the rank of the student body until they huge white slave racket. . . . And only the effect that the Varsity editor had very amusing and we cannot begin to these emotional outbursts and thus the jazz issue is no more. . . . Take me

VIC PUCKSTERS HAND YANKEE CLUB DEFEAT

Clinton, N.Y., Feb. 11.—The Victoria College hockey team from the University of Toronto handed the Clinton hockey club a 3-2 defeat.

The scoring opened in the first 30 seconds of the second period when Sieberry, on an assist from Holman, sent the puck past Clinton's goalie.

Griffin tied the score, and Sieberry again netted one for the Canadians. In the final period Scoones, Clinton defence man, tied the score in the first three minutes of play, but Pollard, on a long shot from near centre ice, fired in the deciding Canadian goal.

certainly not when the masses in question happen to be members of a distinguished university. The Hart House Quartet is a highly-accomplished organization which plays so infrequently in its place of origin as it is that there is surely little need for so many people to do their little bit to avoid hearing it.

We have discussed the merits of the Quartet on several previous occasions in this column, and it is perhaps enough to say that yesterday it was in its best form. The concert opened with a familiar Quartet in D major by Mozart, and included also music by Borodin and McEwen—classical German, romantic Russian and modern

Scottish, all tastefully arranged to make a one-hour program. The McEwen pieces, which were, in a way, most worthy of comment, were Flowers of the Forest, Red Murdoch and, as encore, Dieu Loech—all apparently based on Scottish folk-themes, or exceptionally good facsimiles thereof, and all very skillfully written. Mr. Hambourg's cello solos in the first and third were superb.

There are to be five more of these "Monday Pops", and while it is not our business to advertise them, we would like to remind their potential audiences that chamber-music is not an ordeal; it can be pleasantly relaxing, or it can be thrilling, but it is seldom tedious.

Hollywood Theatre

Last Saturday morning the Hollywood Theatre presented La Chanson d'Use with Jan Kiepura at the Metropolitan Opera in the leading role.

The main theme of the plot was a usual one—an exchange of identity.
And, as is so often the case, one of the participants in the exchange was a well-known singer, which of course led to all sorts of embarrassing situations for the other. The plot unfolded at a lively tempo interspersed with songs by Kiepura and also bits of quite amusing comedy which were accompanied by facial expressions such as only the French can master.

For sheer exuberance Kiepura's singing could not have been bettered, but due to faulty reproduction of the sound effects it was impossible to enjoy it fully; the vocalization reached an intensity which was somewhat overwhelming. However, it was that kind of happy singing which instils into the listener some of that same spirit and for this we can forgive many technical imperfections.

We always feel sorry for those unfortunate musicians whose works are used as background for moving pictures.
And yet it would seem to be a necessary evil, for what would a movie be without music to enhance the changes of mood? However, in this movie, as in many, the background was a little more than a background, and intruded rather too much on one's consciousness.

FUNDS STILL REQUIRED

That a feminine equivalent of Hart House, not merely an athletic building, is their most crying need, was the opinion of Varsity co-eds questioned yesterday.

Money-raising devices were varied. "Go after the grads", was a frequent suggestion. Others mentioned parties or private endowments. Peggy Evey of Victoria declared that the various college societies should raise funds by holding concerts and plays, such as the U.C. Folies, for an additional benefit night. One sweet young thing favoured a tag day.

According to Mr. R. M. Dawson, associate professor of Pol. Econ.: "I don't consider that Mr. McCullough has any great message to the Canadian people." Mr. MacPherson of the same department states that "his merit is that it leaves entirely open the question of who is to lead whom to which."

Raymond Massey Advocates

PLAYS "ABE LINCOLN"

By Arthur J. Benson
(Special to The Varsity)

New York, Feb. 11.—"Actual apprenticeship in the theatre still remains the vital factor for anyone contemplating a career on the professional stage," vigorously declared Toronto-born Raymond Massey, when interviewed tonight before the curtain rang up on another successful presentation of Robert Sherwood's Abe Lincoln in Illinois.

While applying make-up with elegant ease (his features bear a startling resemblance to those of the great emancipator), he repeatedly emphasized the point that the amateur stage and the dramatic school, enjoyable and instructive though they might be, do not even begin to approach in effectiveness the tutelage of the professional theatre, and ultimately have little bearing on success.

"It is impossible to generalize about the theatre or about acting," he continued, "so much depends on circumstances and cases. Take the relation between actor and director. Their relative importance may vary from production to production, but any reference to the director as a master of mere puppets is sheer nonsense." This from a man who is equally famous in both capacities.

Although much water has flown under the bridge since John Drew advised him to start his professional career in London, Mr. Massey handed on the (Continued on Page 4)

Noted Scholar and Lecturer to Discuss Power of Christianity

Dr. Sclater, one of Canada's most prominent preachers, will speak at noon today at Hart House in the S.C.M. series. His subject is "Christianity and Inner Power" and he will discuss the power the individual secures from the Christian life. His subject is one concerned primarily with religion and the more personal aspects of life.

No man more than Dr. Sclater, who retains constant associations with undergraduates both in Canada and the United States, is more qualified to deal with the intellectual problems surrounding religious faith. He is a man with an outstanding scholastic record in England and Scotland and for years was the popular minister of the great university church in Edinburgh.

Dr. Sclater will speak in the music room, Hart House, from 1.30-2 p.m.

The "Hitler Hop" will be a feature of the Victoria 4T1 Dictator Party to be held Saturday at 8.15.

Reports which have leaked past the censors indicate that "Cardy and his Colonels of Corn will be the playboys." The King of Corn asks that "people come as Fascist they can on Saturday night."

Among the numbers featured will be the Stalin Stomp, the Roosevelt Rag and the Chamberlain Chase. The highlight of the evening is expected to be the Mussolini Minuet, which will share honours with the original Hitler Hop.

The surprise of the evening will come with the speech of Richard Murphy, the original "Dick Tator." It is hoped that the orchestra will be a "Study in Brown Shirts." Refreshments will be served.

The president wishes to make it clear that crashers will be stopped by two guards armed with bayonets, but the latter can be bribed by fifty cents of filthy lucre.

HONOUR LEADER WHOSE EFFORTS WON REFORM

International Alpha Phi Commemorate Life of Suffragette

Sorority girls of 1939 are paying a tribute to Frances E. Willard, nineteenth century women's leader who, among other things, fought 75 years ago for a single standard, bobbed hair, co-education, outdoor life and dress reform. Several commemorative events are being planned by local chapters of the International Alpha Phi fraternity of which Miss Willard became a member in 1875 at Syracuse University.

Miss Willard was known first as an educator. After her graduation from North-Western Female College at Evanston, she taught at several schools in Illinois cities and finally became the president of the Evanston College for Ladies, the first of her sex to hold such a position. There she inaugurated by half a century the honour system of self-government.

This nineteenth century leader anticipated the twentieth century in many respects. As an Evanston student in 1859 she introduced a startling innovation by bobbing her red hair, and in other respects she led fellow students in protesting the strict college rules of those days. She demanded equal educational opportunities for women, seeing education as the door through which women could achieve equality with men in economic, political and religious life.

DR. MUELLER SPEAKS AT WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB

"The only thing the creative artist need be concerned about is beauty," Dr. Victoria Mueller told the Women's Press Club yesterday afternoon at its first meeting for this year. It was her opinion that such a concern would lead one inevitably in the direction of simplicity and sincerity, which are the rules of beauty and of art.

Too many artists today, she felt, were obscure and complex because they lacked this sincerity and were not writing from inner compulsion. True art is more than either a perfected technique which, without inspiration is dead, or an inner urge for self-expression which without discipline is formless. Harmony and unity are essential to beauty, which Dr. Mueller defined as "that which upon perception gives pleasure."

"The Varsity" Broadcast

The weekly broadcast, The Varsity Speaks, will be heard over CKCL tonight at 8.15.

Whitney Damsels Welcome Offerings of Shy Romeos

Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life. Whitney Hall girls are still trying to figure out where all those expressive valentines came from, to say nothing of the chocolates and flowers which were delivered to the Hall in plentiful numbers yesterday.

It seems that the girls have their suspicions about the anonymous senders but there is no way of being certain. Some ingenious people even thought of disguising their writing—a fact which certainly doesn't help to untangle the mysteries.

St. Valentine has been kind to the male visitors of MuJoek House. Who could the anonymous philanthropist be who donated the house with a year's subscription to Esquire?

The co-eds claim that classifying men according to their taste in Valentine cards is a cinch. There are consensually who send cards bedecked with lace and ribbons and unfolding faintly of lavender. These poor unfortunate are on the road to becoming good husbands.

Some believe in cards with messages short and to the point, and designed to give the girl an idea of how she rates. Such men will undoubtedly find themselves living alone and lying it. Then there are the poor but honest men whose cards are obviously from the five-and-ten—but it's the thought that counts, boys.

Red Raiders to Invade Varsity Rink Saturday

Barney Rapp

... his orchestra will play while the Druggists trip the light fantastic at the coming Pharmacy Graduation Ball.

RAPP PRESCRIBED AS SPRING TONIC

Materia Medica A and Materia Medica B will be forgotten at the coming annual Pharmacy Ball, which according to latest reports will be an evening of prizes and surprises. The Prescription Kids of 3T9 have chosen Eaton Auditorium as the place and Friday, February twenty-fourth as the date for the gala affair.

The baton-wielder will be Maestro Barney Rapp, leader of the New Englanders, an American radio-name-band. This is the first time, according to well-informed circles, that the Druggists have imported minstrels from a foreign land to help them trip the light fantastic.

And there will be favours for the ladies. Every gal attending will be presented with a bottle of Lenherie Tused. And the prizes. According to the dance officials there will be between twenty and thirty draw and dance prizes ranging from ladies' and gentlemen's toilet sets to a Shaffer pen and pencil set.

And food. Supper will be served at eleven-thirty.

A limited ticket sale has been announced which will be handled by the College of Pharmacy and Eaton Auditorium box-office.

Cupid finds a way

Many a faint heart fluttered yesterday as the campus witnessed its briskest Valentine business in years. Girls' residences all reported general delight in this year's harvest of scented whatnots.

Sharing the excitement of the day with the girls were the campus florists and candy shops, who were besieged with amorous students.

Late last night students were to be seen scurrying into Frost's Florists, Arcade's and Laura Secord's, to spend their hard-earned shekels in a belated attempt to thaw the heart of some cute young thing.

The girls of Whitney Hall and St. Hilda's fared better this year than ever before, but Annesley maidens were disillusioned about the whole thing. They gave themselves a party to drown their sorrows.

Evidence of the romantic spirit which permeated the atmosphere was uncovered in a survey of Hart House waste-paper baskets, which housed scraps of paper with unfinished ditties, apparently abandoned by would-be lovers.

Epic Battle Slated as McGill Meet Local Pucksters

SEEK GROUP LEADERSHIP

The scene is set for a natural at Varsity Arena on Saturday afternoon, when the Red Raiders of old McGill skate out to do battle with Varsity's battered but hopeful hockey squad. Without getting out the old crystal ball and going into a trance the followers of hockey on the campus predict a struggle of titanic proportions. This game will not see the Blue and White pucksters trying to hold up their end of the fight against insurmountable opposition, rather it will feature the battle on two fine teams for supremacy in the intercollegiate league. Although both teams are handicapped through injuries, they are by no means weak. The injuries have been dealt out to both sides, with the speedy Toronto centre, Bill Morrison, suffering from a broken wrist and McGill's defenseman, Tim Dunn, also nursing a compound fracture of his wrist.

Although Bill Morrison was a star performer for Bailey's men whose loss will be felt deeply, his team-mates are determined to work harder than ever to keep the team's strength at par. Bill L'Heureux and Macdonald are as able as ever to bowl over charging forwards and Craig, Callon, Copp, and company are far from ready to hang up their skates for the season. Thor Stephenson, who moved up from the juniors for the tilt in Montreal, expects to be hitting his stride by Saturday.

The defeat by Queen's two weeks ago and McGill's victory over the Blue and White were bitter pills to swallow. These setbacks have put Varsity in the position of having to defeat McGill on (Continued on Page 4)

STUDENT SPEAKERS CONCLUDE TODAY

A student forum on "Men, Women and God" will conclude the Women's Noon-Hour Series on Personality and Social Relationships, today at 1.30 in the Women's Union. The group will meet in the front living room, and the speakers will be Marie Struthers, of the Faculty of Biology and Medicine, Agnes Klink, Sociology, Victoria College, and Katharine Bryce, Sociology, University College.

The trio plan to deal with the problems of men and women relationships from the point of view of students—their relationships as classmates, as co-workers in professional fields, as friends—and with the conflicts of loyalties confronting religious people in this important sphere of living.

MUSICALE FEATURES NOTED ARTISTS

Three Toronto vocalists will be the guest artists at the second University College Musicale to be held on Sunday next, February 19th, at nine o'clock in the Women's Union. This vocal ensemble, composed of Hugh Martindale, baritone, Sydney Paul, tenor, and Merle Stewart, contralto, will present songs for every taste, ranging from Neapolitan ballads to operatic arias.

Mr. Martindale has recently returned from Europe, where he pursued his musical studies, appeared in many successful engagements, and was featured in British films. Miss Stewart started her career as a pianist, but on the advice of Madame de Treville, turned to singing, and has since won considerable success in that field, especially in (Continued on Page 4)

A Challenge to Democracy

In the midst of crying "down with the Fascists", protagonists of democracy might do well to benefit from the salient features of the totalitarianism's ideology.

There is something about a national movement, whatever the forces are behind it, which appeals to human nature. Man has a need to worship, to believe in something outside himself; and when that something is also the source of his daily bread, and promises to make him part of a glorious renaissance, he easily falls in with the spirit of the times. Fascism and Communism both exploit this fundamental capacity of human nature in their search for social solidarity. Both are all-embracing creeds, attempting to co-ordinate all forms of communal life and voluntary association within the state. Both offer the citizens a Cause, and a chance for self-realization, in return for the surrender of their personal liberty. Liberty in a democracy, they say, is merely the liberty to starve. The Fascist citizen is given an end outside himself. If he is deprived of butter, he has a uniform and an enthusiasm. Even if his Cause is a delusion, it is satisfying a certain need. It has roused him from a state of apathy, and given him a purpose in life.

Whatever may be our opinion of Fascist tactics in general, we must admit that they have fired their people with a new ardour. Their methods have been abrupt, to say the least; but they have achieved results which could never be a result of compulsion alone. They have produced a national self-consciousness which is good for the nation itself, however upsetting for the rest of the world.

With a national movement comes the need for national literature. Hitler and Mussolini have been farming it out with an eye on quantity and effectiveness rather than quality. Japan, faced with the necessity of fostering a national spirit and at the same time conducting a costly and long-drawn war, is making a specialty of war-time poetry. This is calculated to keep the citizens at home in the right frame of mind, and also bolster up the morale of the troops between intervals of pillaging Chinese towns. No Japanese newspaper is complete without its sprinkling of lyrical verse. No battle or deed is unworthy of lyrical recording. Government encouragement comes in the form of an annual Imperial Poetry Contest. This competition is open to any Japanese subject and requires a poem of thirty-one syllables on a given topic. This year's topic was "The Morning Sun Shines on the Island", and more than forty thousand contributions were received, doubling last year's entries. When one considers the number of people in Japan who cannot read and write, let alone compose verse, this is an excellent response. When one considers that the Japanese citizen has every right to be war-weary and disgusted, it is even more remarkable to note that only once was the word "peace" used. The nation is apparently behind the government.

There is, of course, another side to the national attitude. Best seller in Japan today is "Wheat and Soldiers", a realistic anti-war novel telling of hunger and homesickness. The nation is not a solid unit. But it has a certain life and purpose; so has Germany, and so has Italy. That is what is lacking in the rather exhausted democratic nations. True, totalitarian states are paying a heavy price for their solidarity. But in the face of their extremes and outrages we cannot help but admit they have in a sense achieved their purpose. The democratic ideal of individual liberty will always be more attractive. But the state, according to a view as old as the Greeks, has a function to perform. The Platonic idea of the state as a functional organic whole has its modern counterpart in Fascism.—B. K.

Medical Elections

To the Editor.

Dear Sir:

This coming Friday, Feb. 17, the annual elections of the Medical Society are to be held. In the past these elections have been more on the basis of a popularity contest with the established brand of medical humour. Consequently, they have not been as seriously considered as they might have been by the medical student body.

This past term the medical society has held one open meeting at which Dr. Ryerson spoke on 'Health and Medical Education'. We wonder why the society has not made such meetings more frequent.

Therefore, in the elections of this week we suggest (as do many of our friends) that the candidates running as representatives of the various years and those running for the executive of the society, state to the electorate their platform regarding the work of the Medical Society for next year. Will they support the idea of having regular, open meetings, well publicized, and addressed by prominent people on various subjects of interest to medical students? Will they support the idea of holding open meetings of the Medical Society to discuss society policy (as is done at McGill)? Will they support and help the work of the C.A.M.S.I. and see that its work regarding internes, student health, tuberculosis, etc., be continued and extended?

Finally, this year the vice-presidents of the various years will also be C.A.M.S.I. representatives. Undoubtedly these representatives will be interested in C.A.M.S.I. work and should say so in their campaigns. The medical student body would do well to consider these points and ask the candidates their position regarding these questions. They should also consider more carefully than previously the elections of the vice-presidents, who will be C.A.M.S.I. representatives.

We look forward to the success of the Medical Society and the C.A.M.S.I. at Toronto for the coming year.

Yours,

F. W. Hanley, III B. & M.
 J. Page Harshman, IV B. & M.

ARCADE MUSIC

Toronto Symphony

Orchestras sometimes sound awful in rehearsal but the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in the un-broadcast part of last night's Nine o'clock did not even seem to come up to rehearsal standards. Perhaps it is good advertising for the T.S.O. to make such an exhibition of itself, or perhaps Sir Edward and his players need half an hour of stimulation from an appreciative audience before they are warned up enough to go on the air, but oh, the poor audience.

The full yet delicate handling of the pianissimo passages of Schubert's unfinished symphony made one hope that the obligati of the two broadcast arias would not completely drown out Adolph Wanzel's voice, as happened in the prologue from Pagliacci, but alas. Mayhap the technicians of the C.B.C. were able to pick up the voice on their solo microphone and mix a more pleasant rendering for the radio listeners but the conductor might remember that the audience in Massey Hall does not have the advantage of any such aids.

Fortunately Saint-Saens' Danse Macabre was chosen as the encore which atoned in part at least for the barrenness of the opening numbers.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I should like to commend most highly your editorial of February 2nd on Hart House Library. It is surprising how many members of Hart House fail to take advantage of the benefits of such a popular collection of books.

One cannot stress too highly the importance of keeping the collection popular. As you point out, there is a Suggestion Box provided for readers; many members do not seem to realize that it is designed to be used. This is the easiest means the Library Committee has of succeeding in their task of selecting the books that will be most popular.

Hart House buys one in about every hundred books published each year; the difficulty is to decide what that one will be. Whether it will be biography, history, religion, philosophy or murder mystery depends on the will of the undergraduates. If the Committee gets dull volumes that will never be read, it is only because it cannot divine through any supernatural means what readers would choose if they were buying.

CAGE VICTORY FOR SCHOOLMEN

In the upper gym at Hart House yesterday the S.P.S. fourth team coasted to victory over Wycliffe B team in the interfaculty basketball league. The game was not uninteresting despite the one-sided score 32 to 5.

The Wycliffe team is composed almost entirely of men who have not played before. They put up a good fight against a very capable team and held the Engineers to 11 points in the first half. Wycliffe scored their whole five points in the first stage of the game and then remained scoreless during the second period.

S.P.S. played a very fine zone defense which was more than their bewildered opponents could handle. During the first half Wycliffe played their men up under the basket but in the final period they lagged out around centre and threw their passes away from (Continued on Page 4)

Back: Bailey 29.5, Casson, Publow.

KNOX SENIORS TRIM WYCLIFFE

Taylor and Stiles Lead Scoring Spree for Knox

In a last-minute rally the Knox A basketballers kept their record of four straight wins intact by edging out Wycliffe A 27-21 last night in the upper gym. Trailing throughout most of the game, the Knox team suddenly came to life in the dying moments of the last half to sink 3 baskets and snatch victory from defeat.

Jim Hooton spearheaded a rugged Wycliffe attack in the first frame from his guard position and at the half-way mark his team was leading 14-9. Gradually the Knoxmen got organized and Taylor and Weir led the quintet in a desperate rally. Said Mr. Taylor amassed ten points, as did Stiles, to head the scoring parade for the winners, while Tom Barnett was best for Wycliffe with five field goals.

Wycliffe A: Fry, Cardy, Murray, Hooton, Barnett, Abbott, Lipton and Sutherland.

Knox A: Stiles, Vincent, Weir, Booth, Barr, Taylor, Richardson.

SENIOR HOOPSTERS PLAY HERE SAT.

Senior standing:	intercollegiate	basketball
Toronto	4	4
Western	2	1
Queen's	4	0

Undefeated in four league games to date, Varsity's hard-working senior cagers are free from any officially scheduled engagements this week-end but clash with Assumption College in an exhibition game at Hart House.

The Windsor team is coached by Joe Connolly, former football and basketball star at Varsity and have on their line-up Tom Hastings, who was with Stevens' championship senior squad two years ago, Assumption is also the alma mater of Rogin and Aitichison, who have been doing such stellar work on the Blue team this year.

Two senior intercollegiate games are scheduled for the week-end with Western playing at Queen's on Friday and at McGill the following night. The London boys should take both matches but may be upset by the sharpshooting Redmen, who downed Queen's two weeks ago.

Mac McCutcheon's championship intermediates go to Guelph on Friday to meet O.A.C. and should take their fourth straight victory.

GERT EVANS STAR OF SWIM MEET

Gertrude Evans, second year student at University College, annexed individual honours at the U.C. swimming meet held last night in U.T.S. pool.

Piling up 20 and a half points by virtue of three firsts, one second and one third, the sophomore champ was easily the outstanding performer in the meet. Marian Harvey, third year student, took leading positions in the back and breast strokes to take thirteen points as the runner-up. In addition to winning these two events, Marian took second position for free style, which was won by Gert Evans. Elizabeth Secombe, first year student, took the diving honours while first for style was awarded to M. Cameron, another fresher. Results:

Total points: Gertrude Evans 20-1-2, Marian Harvey 13, Elizabeth Secombe 11.

Plunge: Evans 48.6, Clement 45.5, Christie 44.0.

Free Style: Evans, Harvey, Horne.

Breast Stroke: Harvey, Secombe, Evans.

Ornamental: Evans, Gallie, Cameron.

Style: Cameron, Secombe, Gallie.

Back: Harvey, Evans-Horne, tied.

Diving: Secombe, Evans, Clement.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bruce Smith

STATISTICS AND STUFF . . .

Smittypuss and I were rumbling down to the children's playground for some twang music yesterday afternoon in one of our dainty red and yellow cars with the dainty red and yellow trailers, when Smittypuss (whose real name is Smithicudypuss) got a real brainwave for an S.O.S. Just like that. After picking up the lady who faints when he gave her his seat, he asked me what faculty has the most representatives on the three big senior teams in the university—rugby, basketball and hockey? And after picking up Smitty who faints when the lady thanked him, I told him the data would be in today's S.O.S. So here it is.

RUGBY . . .

Of the twenty-man rugby roster exactly seven are from S.P.S. My heroes. Some four more come from U.C. and Vic is right behind with three scarlet and gold stalwarts. Of the remaining six, two each come from Trinity and Meds, and O.C.E. and Dents have one-man delegations. There are definitely no members from Loretto, so there.

BASKETBALL . . .

This is a cinch, for of the nine hoopsmen no less than five come from St. Mike's. Yea, double blue. And as the other universities know to their sorrow, two members in good standing are O.C.E. studs. Add to these seven a U.C. enrollee and one embryonic dentist and you have nine nifty basketballers.

HOCKEY . . .

For its games with the American colleges the boys of Bailey from Bracebridge are fifteen strong. And I mean strong. Trinity and S.P.S. head the list with four men apiece; U.C., Vic and O.C.E. have sent forth two men each to the puck wars, while Dents Copp (1) one place.

Before going over to the adding-machine to find the grand totals, it is interesting to note how one faculty seems to dominate each team. The engineers are evidently rugby enthusiasts, the St. Mike's men are basketball bouncers, Trinity seems to specialize in hockey, the Knox males are soccer stars, and so on ad infinitum.

The results are now at hand, and don't forget to send one to your member of parliament and one to the Globe and Mail office. Thank you. It seems that of the 44 senior athletes, the little red schoolhouse provides 11 or one quarter. Hats off. Runners-up is none other than U.C. and winning the bag of popcorn for third place is Trinity. Vic, O.C.E., and St. Mike's must be mentioned as sharing fourth rung—so is everybody happy?

SKIING . . .

This next paragraph is known as "Taking a Look at the Skiers" or "Skiing Skiing". Good reason, too. In fact, the Varsity ski coach, Celius Skavaas, has been adding honours of late to his already imposing list. Last week-end at the provincial championships held at Peterboro, skier Skavaas won the combined jumping and cross-country title. For the former event alone he got 271.5 points with three jumps of 125, 120, and 111 feet. Which is no mean feat.

JIU JITSU . . .

Getting down to brass attacks, none are better than the flips and flops that are a part of the gentle art of jiu jitsu. This little known sport has much increased in popularity this year in the university as evidenced by the record membership in gentle Art Menzies' j.j. club. This Saturday night the more experienced members are putting on a demonstration between halves of the basketball game. An elimination tournament in preparation for this debut was held last Saturday and the boys are really ready to throw. In case the women's sports editor reads this, pass on the good news that the very latest in oriental haberdashery will be on display for the Athletic Night's women customers, who may perchance fail to appreciate the confections in the competitions. Which reminds me that Charlie Zwygand and his gymnastic team deserve many a compliment for their display at half-time of the Queen's game.

LASTLY BUT NOT LEASTLY . . .

All of which adds up to the fact that this week-end is the time for all you fans to gather round the throne of King Sport. The reason being that it is the red-letter week-end of the term, and in case you doubt it, count these events my friend, count these events . . . the biggest hockey game of the schedule McGill at Toronto, and an intermediate game at Western . . . three classy basketball clashes—Assumption playing the seniors and O.A.C. playing the intercollegiate girls' team here, and the intermediates at Guelph . . . a swimming meet in the Toronto tank with Syracuse . . . wrestling and fencing against University of Buffalo in the local gyms, etc., etc. So on your mark, get set, but don't get out of town.

AROUND THE TRACK

It was a red-letter day in the realm of track yesterday as records were broken in the half mile relay and the two mile run on the Hart House oval.

Hee Phillips was more than impressed by the displays of the lean-legged runners. For example, Al Forrest turned out without any training to beat a packed field in the two mile event. His time of 9:36 was the fastest run around here in years, and established him as one of the best distance runners at Varsity at present. Hogg, S.P.S., was second, and Martin, Meds, third.

The Victoria six-man team of H. Brown, W. Brown, Frederick, Stinson, Bob Miller and Cass, tore around the track in the record time of 1:44.3. Trinity was second, Knox third and Meds fourth. Brett of Dents made the near-record height of 5' 6" in the high jump. W. Brown, Vic, was second at 8' 5", and Easson tied with Parkinson, both S.P.S., for third at 8' 4".

The coach wants all those intending to run at Hamilton on March 18 to sign the list on the track immediately. Intensive training in each event will begin after next week's track meet.

Sites thought suitable for the building were the property next to St. Hilda's, the one behind Trinity, and the lot behind Vic on Charles St. It was suggested that Dr. Gordon's office be moved if the locality on Devonshire Place were not large enough. Certain revolutionaries about the university disposed of the library or Convocation Hall disposed of to make more room near the campus.

"The girls do not want the place devoted strictly to athletics; music room, library and common rooms are also considered necessary. They considered the building would be a unifying factor on the campus and would make acquaintance with women of other colleges easier."

"An exact copy of Hart House with a Memorial Tower at the end" was one jocular remark. Most co-eds, however, thought that what is needed is a building with the main features of Hart House, but not necessarily as elaborate.

same advice. The American emphasis on the commercial aspects of the theatre, and the prevalence of get-rich-quick productions financed by a shortening, account for the short life of many New York plays, the frequent failures. Notwithstanding, a work of real merit seldom fails. The modern theatre's greatest cancer is "phonyism".

When questioned regarding the theoretical controversy as to whether a role should be lived or consciously controlled, he looked up suddenly from his mirror to snort, "Acting without control simply isn't acting." And his tone and flashing dark eyes seemed to express the undoubted impatience he has with those who theorize about a thing so intrinsically living as the theatre.

Saturday to stay in the running at all, and even this depends on the possibility that Queen's will also knock off the Red Raiders.

The chances are not remote that Toronto and the Tricolour might perform this feat. Queen's are not afraid of the Red team's visit, having already played some flashy hockey in previous games on their own ice. Toronto also will have home-town support in their endeavour to beat McGill. Should the Kingston squad and Toronto win their engagements, Toronto and McGill will meet on neutral ice, with carefully chosen officials.

But Varsity have to win Saturday, and a goodly mob of students will be in the stands to see them do it. What is more, THE BAND WILL BE THERE.

SCHOOL NITE is here again Friday, which means that Hart House will be in a state of uproar once again. . . . There will be no less than five orchestras blaring out music for dancing. . . . The Buffalo swimming team, the Dolphinettes and a canoe artist will be found in the tank. . . . Just how the canoe artist fits into the picture we do not understand, but why worry? . . . Maybe he'll be found in the bottom of the tank. . . . The show which is the main attraction of the evening will be presented three times to take care of the crowd. . . . We have information that a chorus of beautiful maidens will dance, and everyone who has been to previous School Nights will vouch for the fact that these girls are truly the most charming on the campus. . . . All in all, the entire evening looks like a humdinger. . . . (If this doesn't get me a pass, nothing will.)

Shortly after the start of play, McKee of the garnet and blue shoved the puck past Jarvis in the U.C. net, and from this point Dents were always in front until Lou Somers tied the score for U.C.

DEFEAT RIVAL KNOX MEN

The Pharmacy baseball nine avenged a former defeat at the hands of Knox by trouncing the latter team 7-2 in the big gym yesterday evening. The defeat practically eliminated the Knoxmen from any post-season playoffs.

SPEAKING OF SWING

By Les Vipond

COUNT BASIE

The University of Michigan had a wov of a party at Ann Arbor last Friday night when 1309 couples attended their annual Junior Hop presented by the class of 1940. Two name bands were featured, one of the "corn" variety—Henry Busse, and one that swung on down in great style—Count Basie. The Count's efforts were greeted with the usual lusty cheers that have marked his appearance everywhere in his recent tour of one nighters which continues up in Canada this week. Friday night he appears at Queen's, but on Thursday night Toronto fans have their chance to hear the most popular coloured band in the business, when the Count and his men appear at the Palais Royale.

For the past year Basie has had great influence on the development of popular swing. Musicians, both coloured and white, have bought his records and crowded around his bandstand to study his streamlined arrangements and the remarkable style of the improvisations used by his "ride" men. Lester Young in particular, on tenor sax, has had a great influence on saxophonists all over the continent. His style is unusual and daring, he works the most unusual phrases with a coarse and almost mechanical tone into complete and flexible riffs. His take-offs in Swinging the Blues and Sent for You Yesterday, are examples of this. The Count, leading the band from the piano, is always the centre of attraction. We have claimed before in this column that he is the supreme orchestral pianist in modern jazz. His solid rhythm background combined with his startling right hand improvisation provides a lift such as no other orchestra has.

The Count set the swing world on its ears last spring when he played at the Famous Door in New York. It was there that he presented his band in the final form toward which he had been working for some months. Since he left New York his style has changed somewhat. He has made the orchestra larger and sacrificed some of the tension and rigidity for a more flexible and loose composition. This was very noticeable last Friday at Ann Arbor; it seems to give a little more scope to some of the soloists, but the amazing dynamics that emanated from the Famous Door were sacrificed.

It is interesting to note that Artie Shaw's band is working in exactly the opposite direction. Shaw's recording of The Blues corresponds more with the present Basie, and the white band's Softly as in a Morning Sunrise is more like the Basie of last spring. Another significant fact is that Toronto's George Auld, now with Artie Shaw, one of America's leading tenor men, simply idolizes Les Young and watches his work very closely whenever he gets the chance to attend a Basie appearance.

Basie's teachers include such men as Fats Waller and Willie Smith, but in some ways he has transcended both of them, not, we repeat, as a soloist, but as a member of his orchestra.

Incidentally the Count is not puffed up about his own importance. He does not think of himself as a ranking pianist (although we remember once he was booked as "the man who can strike more notes in a given time than any other pianist"), nor does he consider his hand to be top. He says Duke Ellington is so far above all other bands that they shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath.

Speaking of superlatives we notice that the Hotel New Yorker is billing Jimmy Dorsey as "The world's greatest saxophonist", which reminds us of the time back in the 20's when a certain band touring New England announced its young sax player fresh out of high school as "Rudy Vallee, the world's greatest saxophonist!"

MAT MEN COMPETE IN PRELIMINARIES

Last night in the "fights" wing of Hart House boxing and wrestling fans were treated to the gruesome preliminaries of the senior assault.

The slam and slug men staged four tilts, only one of which went the limit. "Socking" Swick of S.P.S. and Wilkins of Knox pounded toe to toe for three vicious rounds. The hard punching Schoolman bore in during the final frame to cop a close decision.

At 145 lbs. the wildcat Bill Ramore of S.P.S. stopped Hutt of Trinity when the latter got too close to that leather-bound windmill. In the lightweight scrap Intercollegiate Champion Stew (Matinee-Idol) Parker won by a TKO over Armstrong of U.C. in the second round. Parker's roundhouse right swung with such telling effect that Referee Mel Giolama was forced to save the challenger from further punishment.

SCATLATER DISCUSSES SPIRITUAL EXISTENCE

Christianity and Inner Power is Subject of S.C.M. Address

DEALS WITH INDIVIDUALITY

As a prelude to the Lenten season, Dr. J. R. Scatlater addressed the S.C.M. noon-hour group yesterday on the subject "Christianity and Inner Power." In defining life Dr. Scatlater firmly believes that the fundamental basis of our existence is spiritual. "Life is a spiritual thing with a spiritual meaning. When the veil between the apparent and the eternal is broken then can we witness the beauty of their spiritual life."

Dr. Scatlater dealt thoroughly with the interrelationship of the individual with individuality of God. "In God personalities are unified. He is a community of personalities." God's presence affects our spiritual life in that he is endlessly transmitting to us experiences that are of benefit to our character. In supplementing this belief Dr. Scatlater said, "God is of use to you as an individual because he fashions the community in which you live."

Rev. Dr. Scatlater gives everyone the credit of being an individual. With this in mind he said, "There are as many Christians as individuals because each individual has a separate personality." In conclusion he said that eventually we will all become one in the individuality of God.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE TO HOLO TEA DANCE

This afternoon the Women's Union is to be the scene of the first U.C. tea dance.

Members of the first year executive, which is sponsoring the party, point out that such an affair is something new in the life of the college and will give U.C. students an opportunity to meet with all the spirit of a class party.

According to Janet Tupper, W.U.A. first year president, the afternoon party seems to be arousing a great deal of interest around the campus. "We are not selling any tickets beforehand," she said, "but all indications point to a big turnout."

W. H. Dennison Speaks on Progress of Municipal Socialist Movement

NEW MEMBERS ENROLLED

The C.C.F. Club of the University of Toronto voted to affiliate itself with the C.C.F. party proper at an organization meeting yesterday. A temporary executive was formed, and the club heard W. H. Dennison of the Board of Education give an address on the progress of the socialist movement in the municipal arena.

Mr. Dennison described the purpose of the C.C.F., which was to "establish a social order in Canada designed to eliminate the profit system." This, he said, was to start by transferring the ownership of large corporations from individuals to the government. He gave a brief sketch of the rise of the C.C.F. in the west, and its spread to eastern Canada, where it has made "rapid strides" in the last few years.

The trustee confined most of his talk to the civic field in which he believed the C.C.F. should get control before it stepped into the federal and provincial fields.

"There is provision in the C.C.F. manifesto," he said, "for a city like Toronto to embark on distribution of its own milk." He illustrated his point by referring to the situation in the city.

NEW MALE VOCALIST TO SERENADE CATS AT SWING SESSION

The Swing Club tea dance is slated for 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. this afternoon in Diana Sweet's restaurant. In addition to Ron Sorley, who will play the piano, there will be a surprise vocalist, Doug Hurley. George Carty's band will provide the music for dancing.

At the time of going to press, the Swing Club executive is not in a position to make any definite promises regarding the appearance of Count Basie. Although the management of the Palais Royal is perfectly agreeable to his appearing at the meeting, no definite commitment can be made until the Club himself is contacted.

TO-NIGHT'S THE NIGHT!

By Duke Manti

It was the night before the Varsity staff party, and according to the morality squad, it promises to be a hum-dinger. A cordon of police will be thrown around the Cawthra Mansions tea-rooms as soon as the last guest has entered, thus ensuring that the disturbance will be confined to a relatively small area.

Elaborately uniformed Nubians from S.P.S. will be on hand to wave fans and frisk guests for ironware. In attendance too, will be a hand-picked squadron of Gurkhas (and their Kris). The floor show will be provided by eight dancing Dacots and a few Thuggee. In fact, an Oriental atmosphere will prevail despite the efforts of the air-conditioning system.

The anniversary of Wiregarters' renunciation of the robes will be celebrated the same evening in a separate room—No. 118. There will be favours for the ladies, including a giant Panda named Eric.

Although it took the management two days to remove all the panes of glass from the windows, they feel it will have been worth the trouble. At the stroke of twelve a murder will be com-

DENTANTICS SHOW FEATURES COMEDY

Performance Considered Success Both Socially and Financially

Dentantics, the Dental "Deffydil Nite", was a success both socially and financially, according to Ted Fyffe, IV Dents, and may be run for two nights next year.

The opening part of the show, held Tuesday night, consisted of a ten-piece band on the stage, giving it a night club atmosphere. There were three acts to this, a magician, a Cossack dance, all in costume, and a vocalist. Ted Fyffe was the band leader. This night club idea was the hit of the show, said Fyffe. Third, fourth and fifth years put on a skit each. The fifth year skit was a take-off on the professors. Following these there was a one-act play with Miss Ann Phillips and Tom Cragg playing the leads.

The show closed with a twenty-minute comedy starring Miss Kay Bartlett, Miss Elois MacPherson, and Herb Mason. Although there are four girls in Dentantics, the three girls' parts in the play were taken by dental nurses. Dr. F. T. Pierson directed the two plays.

mitted with a view to livening up the party.

The Toronto Transportation Commission are going to put the old cars back on St. Clair for Thursday night as a gesture, "not of defiance nor of deference but of defence, I might add," said Eric, the giant Panda.

Several famous orchestras will play for the members of the Varsity staff tonight, providing an outlet can be found to plug in the Warbler.

Rumours that the Varsity staff parties are scenes of mayhem and . . . ahem, are to be ignored. A minister will be in attendance to see that everything is on the ground floor.

Novel refreshments will be served. Exotic bread-fruits and yam will make the boards groan. Ginger ale and lemonade will flow freely, and as a special attraction, Madame Elvatsky will be hard to read tea-cups.

Dancing will go on until the couples collapse on the floor of the Cawthra Mansions tea-room. Balloons will be exploded at intervals to break the deadly silences, and to bring back the News Editor to consciousness.

Seventy-Four Per Cent Declare Religion a Determining Factor in Life

INCONSISTENCIES SHOWN

An indication of the comparative orthodoxy of the undergraduates of the University of Toronto was made yesterday, when the results of the religious questionnaire were released exclusively to The Varsity. Eight hundred and sixty-two students responded; this is approximately fifteen per cent of the enrollment in the colleges where the survey was made.

The S.C.M. committee expressed enthusiasm for the response made, feeling that fifteen per cent was very high for a questionnaire as large and involved. Fear advanced from many quarters some time ago, that the matter would be treated by the students in a facetious way, were apparently unfounded, as there was no evidence either of carelessness or an attempt to answer the questions humorously.

Seventy-two per cent professed a religious faith, nineteen professed agnosticism, and five per cent atheism. Seventy-four per cent declared that religion was a determining factor in their lives. The same percentage also believed in prayer, and fifty per cent described it as communion with God. Seventy-five per cent are members of churches, and on the whole eighty-seven

'LET IN REFUGEES' U.C. SOLONS ARGUE

Immigration Policy of Canada to be Discussed in U.C. Parliament

"MAY RESULT IN BOOM"

Canada's immigration policy will be discussed this afternoon at 4 p.m. when the U.C. Parliament assembles to debate the resolution: "Resolved that Canada should open its doors to the European refugees."

The Rt. Hon. I. Sussman, government leader, was of the opinion that Canada could easily absorb a significant number of refugees without disturbing the economic situation of the nation greatly. "At the same time," he declared, "certain advantages might result from such emigration in the economic sphere if these refugees could be settled on the land with the aid of money donated by the International Refugee Commission. It might even result in some minor boom in Canada. The moral, humanitarian and social aspects of the situation are too well understood to be commented upon at length."

The Hon. R. Barnes, leader of the opposition stated that "It was ridiculous to suggest that the economic situation of Canada could be bettered by a sudden influx of population in view of the present unemployment problem already in existence. Obviously, neither more commercial or agricultural elements were required at the present time. The movement of population from rural to urban areas had already given the cities surpluses of labour and the international commodity markets were of such a nature that greater production of agricultural products for export would be redundant."

GUILD TO PRESENT MODERN 'MACBETH'

University College Dramatic Group to Perform Tragedy in Modern Dress

IN HART HOUSE THEATRE

Women in modern house-gowns, Lady Macduff wearing a lovely evening dress, Macbeth himself in a smoking jacket, mixing whiskey and soda; these, and many other startling modern touches will greet those who attend the U.C. Players' Guild production of "Macbeth" in Hart House Theatre on Saturday.

"The idea of the modern dress production of Shakespeare," said Mavor Moore, a member of the Guild, "is to demonstrate that it matters little what costume his plays are presented in. The point is to make people see that Shakespeare is exciting, interesting and full of powerful melodrama. The audience feels less removed from the action when it is done in modern dress."

In the play the men, since the action is predominantly military, will wear modern army uniforms. The banquet scene will be crowded with women dressed in the latest creations, and no doubt there will even be upstart courtiers. The characters will smoke cigarettes and pipes, and modern drinks will be served.

The numerous murders will be carried out in real gangsterland style, except for the Chicago accent, for the actual wording of the play has not been changed. The murderers, wearing

MOUNT SINAI LODGE ESTABLISHES FUND

Monetary Assistance for Students Given as Observance of Anniversary

VALUE IS $2,000

Observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of its foundation, Mount Sinai Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 522, G.R.C., last night established a fund of $2,000 to be used to give assistance to such worthy students as may need it at the University of Toronto.

R.W. Bro. Louis Singer handed a cheque for the sum of money that is to constitute the "Mount Sinai Jubilee Fund" to M.W. Bro. W. J. Dunlop, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, in the presence of a large gathering of members of the lodge, Grand Lodge officers and guests in Freemasons' Hall, College Street.

Accepting the gift, M.W. Bro. Dunlop expressed regret that illness had prevented Bro. Dr. J. H. Cody, president of the University of Toronto, being present. The Grand Master said an addition to the funds for helping needy students was needed and appreciated. The action of Mount Sinai Lodge, he suggested, might be a torch to light the way for others to follow.

The Questionnaire

Although only fifteen per cent of the undergraduates of the University took the trouble to fill out the recent S.C.M. questionnaire, the results are significant of much in university religious life. In the first place for a questionnaire of this type and size this is a very good response. Doubtless there were many others who made an honest attempt to answer the questions, but found that the yes and no method was not adequate to express their religious ideas.

It can be taken for granted also that those who did trouble themselves to turn in these forms, are those who felt most strongly either negatively or positively on the matters discussed. The great value of the questionnaire doesn't lie so much in the actual statistics themselves, but in the frank discussion of these problems which was stimulated on this campus.

But the most significant feature of all is the apparent inconsistencies in the thinking of many undergraduates. In question four, for example, some seven per cent described Jesus as a legendary figure. At least there is sufficient evidence to deny this, and to prove that at least he was a historical figure, although the most orthodox would not deny that there was a certain amount of legend attached to his history.

Many others professed to have religious faith, but denied that this determined their action in regard to race relationships or other topics closely related to everyday practical living. Some described God as the Supreme Good, but denied that He was Intelligence. This was no doubt the most difficult question to answer, and very few would find that they could outline their idea of God in these terms, but that was a difficulty of such a questionnaire which could not be easily escaped.

Other points of interest are seen when professed agnostics agree that churches or organizations of a similar nature are essential for the community and not for the individual. Another interesting feature is seen in the faith placed upon prayer by the majority of those who responded. This survey, although it has experienced many difficulties, has already filled a very definite function in awakening so much discussion, and should present to students some of the difficulties of their own positions. Its value as statistics from those engaged in religious educational work may not be great, but its value for undergraduates who are going through a difficult period of their education and thinking may be estimated highly.—A.C.F.

Grading Professors

From the Montana Kaimin

The Christian Science Monitor recently printed an editorial based on the fact that students in certain Eastern colleges were conducting polls to determine the ratings of faculty members. Monitor's comment was that it was quite reasonable to assume university professors might be graded, as are students, by marks of A through F.

Possessing a Ph.D. or an M.A. degree and a professorship doesn't necessarily mean the instructor is a good teacher, the Monitor suggested. Such things as preparation of material, knowledge of material, handling of subject matter, class delivery, personality, good sportsmanship, student understanding, aid to the individual student and participation in student activities were suggested as qualities upon which to grade the professor.

Is it too much to expect that a professor put forth the same effort to teach as the good student does to learn? We think not. And yet, there are some few professors who are not interested enough in the subject they teach to prepare and deliver the material well enough to arouse even the slightest suspicion of interest in the student.

Although we do not recommend going as far as some universities did in conducting polls and giving actual grades to the professor as an instructor, we do believe there is food for thought in the idea. We suggest the professor takes an occasional inventory and see if he himself, in his teaching, is doing what he would expect of his students as students. Perhaps he might give himself an imaginary rating such as he might receive if one professor, superior and supreme, gave an examination to all faculty members and upon this basis accordingly dealt out grades of A, B, C, D, and F.

One thought strikes us? Would some professors flunk?

The Durham Centenary

One hundred years ago this month Lord Durham tabled before the British House of Commons his Report on the Affairs in British North America. As a political landmark, this document ranks with other constitutional gains heralding the advance of democracy in the Second British Empire.

The chief significance of the Report lies in the fact that it was the first attempt to reconcile the doctrine of local autonomy in internal affairs with that of Imperial sovereignty. In this curious paradox are found the basic principles of British territorial administration from colonial to recent times.

Many of Durham's recommendations—like Royal Commission reports of today—were never directly implemented by legislation. But the "father of liberal imperialism" did more than anyone else to formulate the arguments for new progressive policies, including that of self-government in the colonies. The importance of the Report can be better grasped when one realizes that it brought doom to the reactionary forces which, if left unchecked, would have driven Canada out of the Empire decades ago.

The recommendations of the Report led to the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841, the introduction of responsible government, the introduction of a system of municipal government, and the growth of Canadian national feeling. It foresaw the time when a wider confederation of the British provinces would be consummated, paving the way for the rise of a new nation. Durham himself profoundly affected the course of history through his belief that the development of Canadian nationhood, rather than the former "divide and rule" policy of the Imperial government, was the best means of preserving the British tie.

To commemorate the centenary, and throw further light on this famous historical landmark, the University is sponsoring a series of four lectures on "The Durham Report". The lecture at five o'clock today will deal with the Nova Scotia scene, and should provide some interesting sidelights. The lecturer is an authority in his field, Professor D. C. Harvey of the Public Archives of Nova Scotia.

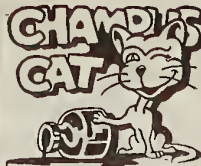

The popularity of the series has necessitated transfer of the meetings to the large West Hall of University College, but there is still room for more students.—C.M.C.

Apart from an unfortunate modernizing tendency, the sparkling program presented by Miss Margaret Parsons at Eaton Auditorium last night was entirely enjoyable.

In the opening selections of the program, the pianist displayed the clear-cut changes of mood, the deft touch and the acute direction of emphasis so

The first of these selections was the sprightly Berce by Richard Jones, followed by two others of Purcell, the Toccata of Paradisi and Beethoven's Sonata in E flat. In all these the pianist showed a verve and vitality which prevented them from being but a cold rendering of technical perfection; but we deplore the sameness of them which gave the impression of a lack of depth which we cannot help but feel, was due to choice of program rather than to slight pianism.

The more serious Choral Melody of Bach was a refreshing change. It was played convincingly but with a slight preponderance of overtones. In the succeeding Bach we discovered unexpected power accompanied by fine Mendelssohn's of rapid-edged tones.

Senior Assault Taken By School Athletes

Engineers Capture Valuable Points in Both Mitt and Mat Divisions

S.P.S. accumulated additional points to lengthen their lead in the Reed Trophy race when they captured the senior interfaculty assault held last night at Hart House.

Trinity and S.P.S. garnered points in the boxing division. In the 125-lb. class Swick of S.P.S. registered a sensational upset by outpointing Hood, also of School. In the only other bout of the evening Stew Parker of Trinity capitalized on superior ring technique to decision Bob McAdam, another Trinity boxer. McAdam boxed in all the way and carried the fight to Parker but the latter held off McAdam with a long left jab. McAdam burned himself out in the early stages of the fight and Parker piled up enough points in the last two rounds to win easily.

Three Schoolmen were victorious in the mitt and mat division. Dobson defeated Patrick of U.C. in the 135-lb. bracket, while Buchanan was awarded the victory over McKenzie of Meds in the 145-lb. scale when McKenzie strained a cartilage in his knee just 25 seconds after the bout started. The other victory for the Engineers was recorded by Eason of S.P.S. who defeated Thompson of Vic in straight falls in the 165-lb. division.

Other victors on the card were Muligan of St. Mike's, who edged out Cohen of U.C., wrestling at 118. Coleman defeated Eason of Forestry at 125 to earn points for Wycliffe. Stirling of S.P.S. entered the final by besting Haines, but succumbed to Amos of Vic in the 155-lb. finale.

Garcia provided best of the fofers on display, amassing a total of 7 points to earn the captaincy of the senior fencing squad. Wilson took second place with 6 points, while Tucker and Emerson tied for third spot with three apiece.

Tucker is ineligible for intercollegiate play and as a result Emerson earned the third spot on the senior squad.

Horsey, who ranked fifth, will captain the intermediate squad, while Reynolds and McIntosh gained second and third places, respectively, on the second team.

VICTORIA HOOPMEN DEFEAT ENGINEERS

Sr. Vic Squad Play Effective Game to Keep League Leadership

The Sr. Vic basketball squad proved its supremacy in the interfaculty league last night when it defeated Sr. S.P.S. 37 to 16 in the upper gym at Hart House. Vic had the edge all the way but the spirited defence put up by the Engineers made the game very interesting.

S.P.S. started the scoring with four points by Murray but after this little opener School remained scoreless while Vic ran up 20 points. The Vic eagers were really hot and potted basket after basket before the Schoolmen could get themselves together. The Engineers tried the grapevine for a while but it was not very effective as Vic drove them back into their own territory. By half time the score rested at 20 to 8.

The second period was a replica of the first with Vic streaking much farther out in the lead. The Vic team has valuable assets in the tall Brown brothers and Ted Jarvis. Joe Dales is also a very smooth ball handler and a dangerous threat.

Murray, Ballagh and Dawson played very well for School and between them got 14 of the 16 points.

Vic: W. Brown (12), H. Brown (4), Dales (8), Van Wyck (1), Jarvis (4), McPherson (5), Phillips (2), Sheldrick (1), Prince.

S.P.S.: Murray (6), Kirby (2), Dawson (4), Ballagh (4), Ronson, Thompson, Fisher, Johnson, Rule.

FORMER BLUE PUCKMAN HEADS SCORING LISTS

Lloyd (Much) McIlquham, former Varsity hockey stalwart, leads all scorers in the T.H.L. Major Commercial Series, it was revealed yesterday. McIlquham was considered the best player on last year's Varsity senior team.

When it's round-up time in Texas has nothing on the facts and findings that come to light when it's round-up time in interfaculty competition. With less than a month to go ere the hockey, baseball and basketball schedules will be completed, a summary of the present standings reveals much of significance.

In the three sports mentioned, only the leading team in each group enters the playoffs, except in hockey where in groups one and two the first two teams gain the right to proceed to the money games. With approximately half of the season's schedules finished, only a few teams have built up unsurmountable leads, so that the remaining encounters are of vital importance and in some cases the standings may change overnight.

Numerically speaking, basketball is the major campus sport, there being 29 teams divided into 7 groups in the intramural wars. Sr. Vic seems to be a toe-hold on first place honours in the major league with three straight convincing victories. In group two Jr. Meds is the only quintet on the outside looking in, having had three defeats chalked up against it while Jr. U.C., Jr. Vic and Jr. S.P.S. have three wins each. Likewise in group three there is a three-way tie between St. Mike's, A. Dents A and O.C.E. Despite stubborn opposition from Wycliffe A in group four, Knox A has been successful in registering three victories and should cap first place. A flashy Meds III quintet has moved down all opposition so far in group five and will probably end up on top, although S.P.S. III are but one game in the van. In group six St. Mike's B are undefeated and barring a major catastrophe will probably remain so, and in the five-team seventh league Dents B and Meds IV are engaging in a little battle all of their own for first position.

As for baseball Sr. Meds, Dents A and Dents B in groups one, three and five respectively seem slated for playoff berths, thanks to the co-operation of the other teams in their groups who have gone about the jolly business of scalping one another. An old-fashioned dogfight is being waged by Jr. Meds and Jr. S.P.S. who have three wins each to their credit in group two, while Forestry is the sole team in group four that has only a mathematical chance of coming out at the head of the heap.

In the three-team group six, S.P.S. IV has yet to taste defeat, U.C. III has a win and a loss, and Aer. Nav. has two losses.

A number of the games complicate the hockey set-up. For example in the senior group four, there have been four stalemates so far and each team, including Vic I, which won the Jennings Cup last year, has yet to mark up a game on the right side of the ledger this year, has a possible chance of finishing first or second. U.C. I is first in the tie, having tied over Dents, whom they have tied twice. In group two, St. Mike's and Jr. Meds have taken a back seat to Sr. S.P.S. and Trinity I. The scarlet and gold seconds are faring well in group three with two wins and a tie, and Sr. Meds are right on their heels with two wins and a loss. Only six games have been played in group four, of which Knox and Pharmacy have won two and tied one each, but the druggists have a game in hand. In the five-team fifth group, S.P.S. III has definitely established itself as the sextet to beat with four wins and a tie for nine points, to five for its nearest foe, Emmanuel. However, O.C.E. has played only two games and is in a position to throw a bombshell into the standings with three or four victories. As in baseball, the Aer. Nav. representatives have yet to win a game, although it is not for want of trying.

Speaking OF SPORT

MARCH OF TIME No. 1

Preliminary skirmishes in the Big Eight junior playdowns get under way this week with St. Mike's Majors and Oshawa Generals spotted as the favourites to go on in the quest for the Memorial Cup. So it's the Majors versus the Generals and there should be some lively brawling before the cease fire sounds and quiet reigns around the Gardens.

There appear to be no stand-out performers on the junior ice lanes, unless we consider Billy (The Kid) Taylor, smooth-gaited forward of the Motor City squad. Taylor led the Big Eight scorers this year by so wide a margin it wasn't even funny. Perhaps he deserves the build-up he is getting as a candidate for Conny Smythe's 1939-40 Leaflets.

It must be six or seven years ago now that senior hockey enjoyed its halcyon days of substantial profits at the gate, and we rode into the bright new Maple Leaf Gardens on our Knothole Club passes to see Torontos and Hamilton Tigers square off. And they had some pretty hot feuding in those days. In between periods, we remember, a little blond-haired fellow wearing a Maple Leaf sweater and a dark-haired guy clad in a Marlboro jacket chased pucks around the large surface. They weren't very expert with the puck, then, and sometimes they fell down, which was always good for a laugh.

They don't laugh now at the little blond-haired fellow, because he's grown up to be Billy Taylor, the guy we eulogized a few paragraphs back. His comrade in those intermission practices was Chuck Hamilton, Alderman Hamilton's son.

This Taylor, incidentally, is a brilliant exponent of the outmoded art of stickhandling, a sort of Last of the Mohicans in this branch of puck warfare. In the old days of natural ice the player who couldn't stickhandle wasn't considered worth his salt.

Today the tendency is toward mechanization and streamlining. Individual brilliance is sacrificed in favour of team play. Shoot the puck into the corner, screams the coach, and skate like blazes after it. The rustic who leaves his home town nowadays bursting to set the world afire with his stickhandling is very quickly disillusioned when he hooks up with an organized team. It's pass the puck—or else.

Similarly in baseball. The lively ball and the stress placed on extra base clouting have driven such plays as the squeeze and the hit-and-run practically out of baseball.

Time marches on and civilization is alleged to improve but there are times when we shed a tear for the bygone days of strategy and camouflage.

LET'S GO PLACES

What promises to be the greatest talking picture since the "The Birth of a Nation" will be filmed this afternoon at ten minutes after one in the Music Room, Hart House. Director in Charge of Propaganda, Mac McCutcheon, assures us that the film is positively the last word. The movie was originally slated for five o'clock but was moved ahead to the lunch hour for the convenience of the students.

The picture, which was filmed last summer, deals with the technique of golfing and should be of interest to expert and tyro alike. Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., familiarly known as Bobby, appears in some of the shots and does the vocal work. There will be no admission charge.

Motion pictures are still your best entertainment.

WYCLIFFE GAINS TIE IN MUSHBALL TUSSLE

Coming from behind with a great burst of power in the third inning when they scored six runs, Wycliffe's baseball team tied Dents B team 7-7 at Hart House yesterday.

Until the disastrous third, Hurwitz of Dents had held Wycliffe helpless with his fine pitching. Then they broke loose after one man had been retired and brought in their six runs to tie the score. Both teams added a run in the final frame to complete the count.

Dents scored one run in the first inning through Wood. In the second they added five more to go into an almost overwhelming lead. Then Wycliffe started to roll and sent eleven men to the plate before they were finally stopped.

Dents B: Cameron, Wood, Hurwitz, Chapelle, Coleman, Di Roberto, Karkwien, Smythe, MacDonald.

Wycliffe: Louth, Abbott, Green, Robinson, McKeegney, Murray, Nidle, Heffer.

TRINITY PUCKCHASERS TAKE VICTORY OVER U.C.

Trinity II staggered to an impressive 1-0 victory over U.C. yesterday afternoon at Varsity Arena.

The game was featured by the best example seen this year of how shiny should be played. Both teams were poor, especially around the nets.

Moore of U.C. and Baxter of Trinity were not as bad as the rest.

U.C. II: Smith, Foulds, Moore, Mc-

DENTISTS PULL WIN OVER WYCLIFFE SQUAD

Dents B basketballers enjoyed a Roman holiday at the expense of Wycliffe B yesterday evening in the upper gym, achieving a 40-7 victory. The Dentists led 23-1 at half-time and just breezed the rest.

Handily turned in a sensational effort for the winners, potting a total of twelve field goals, McCall was next in line with five baskets, while Clee and Sussman each accounted for a single score. McDonald completed the rout with a successful foul shot.

Patterson was top scorer for the Wycliffians with four points. Prichard swished the twine once and McDonald scored a foul try to make up the losses total of 7.

Wycliffe B: Simpson, Coleman, Wilkin, Prichard (2), Patterson (4), McDonald (1), Parke-Taylor, Shaw.

Dents B: Hamby (24), Hurst, McDonald (2), Moore, Sussman (2), Clee (2), McCall (10).

Eltheran, Nichol, Johnson, Tisdale, Cohen, Cude, Willinsky.

Trinity II: Hussey, Parker, Fraser, Baxter, B. Hutchinson, F. Hutchinson, Morley, Kilgour, Campbell, Grand.

By Marg Conlin

Remember when we told you about the new tunics in which the senior eagers were all set to steal the limelight in London next week? Well, since then complications have developed and a few changes have been made. The intermediates, whose need was the greatest, instead of getting the seniors' hand-me-downs, will debut Friday night in finery borrowed from St. Hilda's. And the seniors will be wearing their original uniforms and not the latest in spring styles, as was planned. All because it takes more time than was anticipated to outfit Varsity co-eds in English-made basketball imports. Moral: Do your Christmas shopping early.

Victoria pucksters played brilliant hockey Tuesday night to outwit Meds by three goals. To hold Meds scoreless is no small achievement and the Scarlet and Gold are quite thrilled. Two consecutive wins in as many nights must be encouraging for with the coach and the team. The amalgamation of the Vic A and B teams was a wise move, the one team now combining the best hockey material at the college.

Even though the finalists in the badminton tourney will be decided after today, the fun is really just beginning. Anxious to vindicate themselves, defeated candidates who lost out in long matches are considering challenge matches. For those who really think they have a chance our advice is for you to hustle over to Room 82, U.C., and sign the challenge list. The tennis team was switched around last fall after some challengers proved their worth, and the same success is likely in the badminton meet. Don't hesitate if you are thinking along these lines. Fault heart never won trip to Western.

SPORT SPLASHES

ST. MIKE'S 2, WYCLIFFE 1

With only ten seconds to go St. Mike's tallied their winning goal, beating the well-nigh invincible Murphy for the second time in a game that saw more shots stopped than any other scheduled water polo game to date. St. Mike's played very sloppy water polo whilst the theologs turned in their best effort this year, nearly upsetting the two-cocky league leading double blue team. St. Mike's scored the first goal but Wycliffe came right back and tied the score and then held grimly on. For nine minutes St. Mike's exerted every effort and finally with only 10 seconds to go they made the final score St. Mike's 2, Wycliffe 1.

SR. S.P.S. 1, SR. MEDS 1

Playing a man short Sr. School held a reputedly strong team of embryo medics to a draw in last night's second water polo game. When Meds were penalized twice for deliberate fouls in the early stages of the game, Senior School, after battling for the entire first half, finally succeeded in notching the opening corner in the opening minute of the second half.

Meds then, with a man advantage, after being held off for three minutes, finally notched the tying corner. With a couple of minutes left Partridge and Veal aided by the aroused fighting School spirit, held the doctors off and the game ended in a tie. Veal, Partridge and the School reminder, were outstanding for the Engineers, while on the other hand the whole Meds team played a pretty sloppy game.

SR. MEDS 7, SR. U.C. 0

Despite the valiant efforts of a fighting but inexperienced U.C. team, Meds ran up a 7-goal total against the Artmen in last night's final polo encounter.

ASSUMPTION SQUAD READY TO MEET BLUE HOOPSTERS

Windsor Aggregation Now Coached by Joe Connelly, Former Varsity Star

William (Moose) Rogin is in for a very large evening this coming Saturday when Joe Connelly leads his Assumption College cagers into action against Varsity. According to a publicity release from Assumption, Rogin will be shadowed by Tom Hastings, former Varsity luminary, who held Bob Callahan of the University of Detroit Titans off the score sheet in a recent Assumption game. Callahan is rated as a sure-fire All-American prospect.

Old friendships will be revived during the contest, for both Hastings and Connelly have worn Varsity colours under the tutelage of Warren Stevens, Varsity mentor. Hastings started at centre for Varsity during the 1936-1937 season, while Connelly was one half the famous Connelly-Marks duo, which performed brilliantly both on the gridiron and on the basketball floor.

The Windsor hoopsters should provide plenty of contention for the Blue-shirts. Don Auten, high-scoring guard, is considered the best man on the Assumption roster and is touted the best man to show in Windsor for years.
Dick Santay, Auten's rearguard partner, is a classy ballplayer and is particularly useful for his qualities of team leadership. The two forward posts are filled by George Yahn, a Rochester product, and Pat Cullen of Pontiac, Michigan.

In seventeen games to date the Wind-sorites have won but six contests in seventeen engagements. However, they have been competing against top-ranking American squads and have shown great improvement in recent tussles.

Proof of the intrinsic class of the Bordertown basketballers, can be traced in the fact that they defeated Western and the Windsor Alumni team. Western is the team Varsity have to beat for the intercollegiate crown, and the relative showing of Western and Varsity against Assumption will be a good basis for comparison.

The Stevens will be in great shape for the tune-up contest. Moose Rogin is fully recovered from the slight touch of bronchitis he suffered last week and is raring to go against his old college.
Aitchison, Larnawan, Singer, Maboney and McGregor have all shown up well in recent practices. Walt Mc-Gregor, elongated captain, is worthy of particular mention. McGregor has received little attention in league games despite the steady, consistent brand of basketball he has been displaying. Like Aitchison, McGregor serves to steady the troops when the going is tough.

Joy Reigns! Formals Improving

College formals are becoming successful in more ways than one as financial reports of three large college functions show definite improvements on preceding years.

J. A. Seed, chairman of Conversazione committee, said that this year's social event was very successful financially.
A portion of the expenses of the dance is paid from a fund of the Literary Society of Trinity College.

Phil Benson, social director of the U.C. Literary Society, reports that the financial outcome of this year's Arts Ball will be superior to that of the one in 1938.

Olive Mulhall of Victoria College reports that this year's At-Home was no financial loss. In other years the expenses for this dance were subsidized by money from the Victoria College Union, but this year because of a careful budget plan worked out before the dance the proceeds from the dance alone paid expenses.

The second half of the program opened with two Chopin selections; the Trois Esquisses and the Fantaisie in F Minor. In the former we were again charmed by that deft, sure touch; in the latter we discovered a depth of interpretation not hitherto revealed, a sensitivity and a remarkable sense of rhythm.

The program ended with three light sketches and Liszt's Hungarian Rha-pody No. 13. The first was an impressionistic thing of quiet loveliness and bell-like tone. The second was the quaint Musical Snuff-box played with all the piquancy which it demanded. In The Whistling Errand Boy Miss Parsons entered entirely into the spirit of the thing, another striking characteristic of her playing. The last number of the program, the Hungarian Rha-pody, was truly the best thing presented. In this we caught glimpses of musical possibilities for which many of the preceding selections gave no scope.
Viewing the program as a whole we feel that here we have not merely a reproduction of successive sounds but music of feeling and character.

Trinity Don's Play

It was a rollicking good time that the Hart House Theatre audience experienced yesterday afternoon. For when you take as your elements Booth Tarkington, the Trinity dons, and a University of Toronto audience, "put them all down in a pipkin or crucible, set them to simmer, and take off the scum", as W. S. Gilbert would, a rollicking good time is the result.

Since treats the likes of the Don's play are few and far between, in these parts, a reviewer must watch himself lest he enslave too strongly, for the Trinity dons' productions of The Travellers was an oasis in a desert where mirages are all too frequently beheld.

Professor R. K. Hicks, plus a bowler hat, plus a moustache, plus an Italian accent, produced a first-rate characterization of La Sera, a Sicilian guide.
W. Lyndon-Smith retained his own high standard of acting in his rendition of Mr. Roberts, a Chicago business man.
Mrs. R. K. Hicks, as Mrs. Roberts, contributed generously to the creation of a Hicks tradition in university drama circles.

Mrs. Kingston as Miss Siddell was delightfully amusing. W. J. Gilling, C. Simpson, F. Walter, R. S. Robinson and Miss Elsie Chisholme, all acted in a fashion worthy of congrat-ulation.

How often history has shown that its true heroes are behind the scenes.
How often these great men remain unsung, and though the stars of yesterday's performance remained unseen, their artistic renditions of noises behind

ern revolvers.

Another interesting feature is that modern music has been specially composed for the production by Donald Ryerson of the Toronto Conservatory, and will be played on an electric organ.
This is the first time in local circles that a play has been accompanied by electric organ music.

Producer of the play is Dora Mavor
Moore, who recently directed the Village Players in a similar modern dress experiment which proved most successful. She formerly was connected with the University Extension Department and presented Shakespearean productions in Toronto high schools.

ST. MICHAEL'S QUINTET VANQUISH KNOX SQUAD

A polished St. Mike's B quintet, preserved their unblemished record last night in the upper gym at the expense of Knox B. The Irish basketballers had too much speed and finesse for the willing Knox team and breezed through to an easy 29-9 victory.

Jerry Anarella and Tam Coleman monopolized the scoring points, accounting for twenty-one points between them.
Coleman shaded his team-mate by a single point with five field goals and a foul shot. Moran potted two baskets, while Macedonio and Bonneau each contributed a field goal.

Hugh Lloyd and Forbes Thomson, with four points and three points respectively, toiled hard in a vain cause.
The Presbyterians turned in a willing display but lacked punch around the basket.

Knox B: Lloyd, Mallion, Cresser, McKee, Thomson, McMillan, McLeod, Vance, Wilkin.

St. Mike's B: Anarella, Morgan,
Coleman, Bonneau, Bryant, Wilpers, Macedonio, Khean, Dwyer, Malcy.

The scenes were most certainly heard.
C. A. Ashley, Esq., and R. E. F.
Smith, Esq., displayed a keen sense of backstage technique yesterday. And to their able assistants, H. E. Richardson and A. Gibson, an expression of appreciation should be made.

The members of the drama societies on this campus would do well to attend to the words of these dons both in intra- and extra-curricular activities.

Golf!

In order to make it possible for more students to attend the showing, the golf movies which were slated to be pre-shown at ten minutes to one. The film, which deals with the technique of golf-sidered to be the latest and the best one of its type.

Bobby Jones, possibly the greatest golfer the game has ever known, took part in the production of the talkie and does the vocal work on it. The pictures are such that both the expert and the novice may derive benefit from them.

The film lasts approximately forty minutes and will be shown in the music room, Hart House. Admission is free to all male members.

CORONET QUEEN TO WIN ORCHIDS FROM WINCHELL

Somewhere in Toronto, perhaps right in this university, is a young woman for whom a rare thrill is in store Saturday night—orchids by wire from Walter Winchell.

It all started when the Coronet Club decided to select a "Queen of the Coronet Club" at their "Dance to Save a Child" on Feb. 18 in the Royal York Hotel. So they contacted the New York columnist, whose column appears in The Toronto Star Weekly, and requested his famous orchids for their queen-to-be. Back came word from New York that the orchids would arrive at the Royal York hotel on time.

Actual statistics are not yet available for each college, but most of the results were determined from the answers rethe strongest "orthodoxy", and the replies from St. Michael's College were also considered to be "orthodox".

On the whole S.P.S. and Medicine showed a greater tendency to liberal thinking, but the science faculties were not as radical as was pre-supposed by many. Responses from these quarters evidenced a profound consciousness of the ethical values of religion, the com-

McGILL MEETS VARSITY IN CRUCIAL TEST

A REVIEW OF WORLD EVENTS

Windsor Case Progresses

Toronto: Investigation into the slaying of James Windsor, Toronto book-maker, received fresh impetus yesterday following the receipt of a threatening letter by the family. In addition two convicted gangsters were held for questioning by police.

Asylum Fire Rages

Quebec: 150 firemen fought to quell the fire which still raged in the St. Michael the Archangel Lunatic Asylum here to prevent further spread of the flames. Preparations were being rushed to remove the 3,000 occupants of the large institution to safety.

Dunning Warns Commons

Ottawa: While acknowledging that Canada's foreign indebtedness had been reduced considerably in the past five years, Hon. Charles A. Dunning sounded a warning to the House of Commons against profligate spending.

Arab Proposal Quashed

London: The Arab proposal of an independent state was refused by England, and an alternative suggestion put forward. The British suggestion was a legislative body to govern the state.

Engineers Plan Slapstick, Farce For School Night

Tonight the Engineers present "The greatest show on earth." This is straight from the Engineers themselves so you can believe it.

The show starts out with some slapstick comedy, a riotous Olsen and Johnson show. The orchestra comes in here somewhere and what an orchestra. Schoolmen are notorious for their musical ability.

Next comes a burlesque show complete with strip tease and barker. Next the feature part of the show "Dragmen's Courage", portraying all the thrilling details of the thrilling rescue beneath the surface of the famous Goose River Mine.

Those going to the show are warned that their tickets are good only for the show for which they are issued and they should be there 15 minutes before the curtain rises so that they may be seated before the show starts.

Band Leader Basie Pays Tribute To Swing-Conscious "College Kids"

By Irving Liss

In an interview on the bandstand at the Palais Royale last night, Count Basie, the sensational coloured swing band leader, said that "College kids go crazy over the band everywhere we play. They sure seem to know swing when they hear it."

Basie disclosed that his real name is Bill, and the title "Count" was bestowed on him by a radio station in Kansas City, where he first organized his own orchestra. He has been fronting for his own band for about three and a half years, and before then played for Benny Moten.

This is his first professional appearance in Canada, and after an engagement at Queen's the band is returning to the United States. Bert Niosi's is the only Canadian band he has heard. "It's a mighty fine band" was his tribute. Basie was interested in learning about Lou Louis' swing men, about whom he has heard a great deal since arriving in Toronto.

Although some authorities think otherwise, Count Basie said that arrangements are necessary to a large swing band. "You've got to have arrangements for a band as big as this, but I like to play without them myself." Good vocalists are very important also, he said. Besides two singers, the band includes fifteen men, many of whom have been together since their early days in Kansas City.

The orchestra's long engagement last year at the Famous Door, New York night club, and the frequent broadcasts it made, both contributed to its current success, Basie said. He expected to return to the same night club in about two months.

The Count sits at the piano all through the band's performance, occasionally coming around to the front to give the down-beat at the beginning of a number. Many of his own solos were in what he called the "walking bass" style, with the string-bass following his left-hand rhythm and the guitar player helping him with the melody which he carried with his right hand.

Stars of Yesteryear Accompany Windsor Team

Assumption's Joe Connelly and Tom Hastings Burned Up Court Under Mentor Stevens Few Years Back

EXHIBITION CONTEST

Varsity's basketball five will enjoy a respite from league competition tomorrow night when they play host to the Assumption College basketballers from Windsor. This game will be the feature attraction on another typical Barham and Bailey show held in Hart House weekly.

Coach of the Windsorites is Joe Connelly, former Varsity luminary in rugby and basketball, and coach of Varsity's junior championship basketball squad two years ago. Connelly attended Assumption last year and was promoted to the coaching position this year. Another ex-Blue basketballer is Tom Hastings, who served under Warren Stevens at the centre position during the 1935-1937 campaign.

"Moose" Rogin and "Scrubby" Aitchison, current campaigners with the Blues, are both products of Assumption and very fair ones at that. Rogin will be trying to ring the bell consistently against his former Alma Mater but may find a rather hard time doing so, since he will be checked by the aforementioned Tom Hastings, who is very efficient at keeping his opposing check off the score sheet.

Throughout the last decade Assumption has been noted for fine basketball squads and several of their players

SWING CLUB HEARS GEORGE CARTY'S MUSIC

Sweet and hot music by the orchestra of George Carty provided the entertainment for the meeting of the Swing Club yesterday afternoon at the Diana Lucretia Restaurant.

Highlight of the gathering was the rendition of The Stars Tell Me that We're Through, theme song of the Swing Club, which was written by Ted Gray, a Varsity student. Duke Ellington's Lullaby Rhythm and Scatlin' at the Kit Cat were other numbers played. The piano playing of Ron Sorley was a feature of the afternoon.

HARVEY DECLARES DURHAM'S INFLUENCE LESS THAN PRESUMED

Lecturer Reports Agitation for Self-Government in Nova Scotia Preceded Lord Durham's Appointment

HOWE LED MOVEMENT

That Lord Durham may appear to have had more influence on the evolution of self-government in Nova Scotia than an examination of facts reveals was the essence of Professor D. C. Harvey's talk last night in the second of a series of four lectures commemorating "The Durham Report".

In discussing "Nova Scotia and the Durham Mission", Professor Harvey pointed out that the Reformers of Nova Scotia under the leadership of Joseph Howe had been agitating for self-government before Lord Durham was appointed Imperial Commissioner. In fact Nova Scotia would probably have received self-government a decade earlier if the rebellion in the Canadas had not interfered. When Lord Durham's Report was issued, the Tory party in Nova Scotia, through the medium of "The Times", attacked both the Report and Lord Durham himself on the ground that his policy of union was disloyal and would lead to separation from the Mother Country. Halliburton, a strong Tory, even attacked the sanity of the commissioner.

MEMBERS NEGLECT SUGGESTION BOX

On the inside of the cover of every book in the Hart House library are the words "This book is the common property of all members of Hart House." Yet only one book in eight is bought as the result of a member saying by means of the Suggestion Box what he wants to have placed in the library.

"This is a rather strange situation," commented Bob Phillips, Curator of the library. "This collection presumably consists of the books members most like to read in their leisure moments. Instead of readers competing to have the books they like best accepted, each year only 15 or 20 of the 4,500 members of Hart House bother to make any suggestions."

Of those fifteen, most are from the Arts colleges, particularly U.C. Only one or two graduates a year hand in recommendations; when they do, they express a preference for more serious

ATHLETIC OPEN-HOUSE

Buffalo, Syracuse, Guelph, Windsor and Toronto will lock horns this Saturday evening in a gala sports card to be held at Hart House. Following the different exhibitions in the athletic realm will be dancing till twelve o'clock.

Buffalo brings their fencing and wrestling teams to battle against Varsity's representatives in this field. The Blue grapplers are out to avenge the terrific thrashing which they received at the hands of their American rivals. In the fencing meet held at Buffalo, the Varsity team lost by one bout and with the additional practice they have had since then they are confident of winning this time. Garcia, Tucker, Emerson and the rest are in the best of shape and are anxious for a win. From Syracuse comes one of the finest swimming teams in the U.S. These boys should offer more than mere opposition to Varsity's speedy natators.

The Varsity female basketball squad will dish up a preliminary to the big game when they take on a well trained girls' team from Guelph. These girls will probably be on hand for the dancing afterwards.

The main event of the evening will be the basketball tussle between Assumption College from Windsor and Varsity's hoop sextet, who thus far have won all their scheduled starts.

During the intermission between the girls' basketball game and the Varsity-Assumption match, there will be a jiu-jitsu exhibition.

Wrist Injury to Bill Morison Fails to Lower Morale of Blue Team on Eve of Important Contest

TAYLOR MAY FILL GAP

University of Toronto's senior hockey team step on the ice tomorrow afternoon to attempt to repel the most dangerous invasion of the current season, the onslaught of McGill's Redmen. It has been seven years since Varsity has defeated McGill but the Blue squad are confident that they have at last reached the turn in the trail.

Whether or not a Toronto victory will have any effect on the tide race depends upon Queen's. Tonight the Tricolour play McGill in Kingston and if the Redmen win they capture the title, but if Queen's triumph and Varsity also register a victory, the race will be all tied up.

Varsity's chances of victory which, after their brilliant showing in Montreal, were very bright, dimmed considerably last Monday, for Bill Morison, their flashy centre, broke his wrist and is lost for the season. Either Tony Cassels or Johnny Taylor will replace the Rookie.

But in spite of this catastrophe Ace Bailey is confident his charges will vindicate his faith in them and not only beat McGill but soundly trounce them.

Revamped Blue Intermediates Visit London Saturday in Quest of Second Straight Score

Fresh from a victory over McMaster Maroons, Jimmy McPherson's Varsity intermediates are out to make it two straight at the expense of the Western Mustangs this Saturday in London. Hard hit by the resignations of Pentland, McMillan and Boxer, and the graduation of Thor Stephenson to the seniors, last year's champions have rounded out a new squad and after a surprise setback at the hands of the Guelph Aggies, seem to have hit their stride last Tuesday in Hamilton.

SYRACUSE SWIMMERS MEET BLUE TEAM

At 8 o'clock on Saturday night the University of Toronto senior intercollegiate swimming team will compete against the last American squad of natators this year when they meet the powerful Castle team from Syracuse University. Syracuse will again have a well balanced team of splashes, strong in every department, especially the diving and the distance events.

Clarkson, Varsity's ace board performer, who last week surprised himself against Penn State, has been diligently practicing all week and should give Jack Stover a run for his money. Stover last year came 6th in the National Championship Meet held at Harvard and thus Syracuse are counting on him for an outstanding performance. Captain Art Neff of Syracuse is the only one expected to give Stover any competition, but Clarkson will possibly spring a surprise.

Hart Henderson is the best Castle sprinter but with Nels Earl, Varsity captain, back in the line-up after last

To Hold Conference in Emmanuel College in Interest of the World Christian Community

LENGTHY PROGRAM

A conference will be held on Saturday of this week in Emmanuel College to answer the plea issued by the United Church, in the interest of the World Christian Community, for twenty-four male and twenty female missionaries. The young churches in foreign lands are being helplessly crippled by the dearth of volunteers and if democracy is to refute the challenge of the "isms", it must be "founded upon a rock", has been the opinion expressed.

A service led by the Reverend J. Endicott will open the conference. Information groups and a panel discussion led by the Reverend K. Beaton will be followed by moving pictures in technical colour and a speech by Dr. Rajah B. Manikam of the Madras State. Many missionaries will be in attendance to participate in discussion.

A direct appeal for volunteers, and a dedicatory service led by Dr. Lockhart will close the conference. Everyone is invited to attend.

SPANISH WAR VETERAN WILL ADDRESS "LEFT BOOK" CLUB

Sergeant Raymond Henderson, a recently returned member of the MacKenzie-Papineau battalion of the International Brigade, which fought for Loyalist Spain, will address the Left Book Club Sunday evening at 8.30 p.m. at 26 Division St., on his experiences in Spain.

Time Staggers On

The gods, to whom time means nothing, must cast pitying smiles at clock-conscious humanity. Not only do we jump and run every time a clock chimes the hour, not only do we count each minute and schedule our lives so that not a second will be wasted, but we are continually bewailing the consumption of this commodity, in spite of the fact that it is always everywhere! Our poets will not stop reminding us that the span of life is short, that time flies on golden wings, that we must gather rosebuds while we may. Time troubles the philosophers even more; they have done everything from deny its existence to postulate it as the central factor in existence.

This stress on time is one of the deepest causes of man's unhappiness. Because he cannot stem its flow, he comes to place superlative value on the things time has taken from him. The tendency to idealize the past is the "kind of wick or snuff" which exists within the flame of present enjoyment and haunts the banquet like a resentful ghost. No sooner does the youth reach maturity than he sighs for his lost boyhood. Coloured by the ever-increasing span of years, it becomes an idyllic period of care-free play. In reality, as a man he is probably leading a much fuller life, and experiencing a more conscious happiness. If he regrets the loss of the imaginative faculty, he should remember that that is his own fault, and not a result of the passing of time.

The fallacy of idealizing the past is found not only in individual persons, but in the collective atmosphere of whole nations. The Greeks of the Golden Age advanced far beyond their predecessors yet they looked back on the Trojan War as the great accomplishment of their race, and educated their children on the exploits of epic heroes. In the light of modern research the Homeric combat is seen to have been a petty quarrel between jealous robber barons. In the days when Horatio stood at the bridge Rome was a tiny city-state, threatened on all sides by powerful neighbours, yet from the golden heights of Empire Romans worshipped him as a typical figure of their greatest period. With the passing of knight-errantry, the age of chivalry was surrounded by a rosy glow, and attributed with picturesque qualities it never possessed. When the rural population of England became absorbed into the industrial towns, writers began to refer to the god-like grower of wheat as the backbone of the nation. Grievances in the factory obscured the memory of the struggle for existence on the land. We ourselves are told that something fine and noble was lost with the Great War. Our children will doubtless feel they lack something which we had and so it goes on.

Strangely enough, not only are we unable to overcome this desire to idealize the past, we do not wish to overcome it. It is the very substance of poetry, the stuff that dreams are made on. It is an avenue of escape, in a world where escapism becomes increasingly necessary. But it is a fallacy. Time sweeps away the old, but at the same time it ushers in the new. The present is nothing but the effect of the past and the cause of the future. Our regrets for what is gone are quite useless. It is the present that is important.—B.K.

Join Up Or Else - -

When people see that all is not perfect in their little world, they either roll over and go back to sleep or they feel an itch to do something. It does not take a young reformer long to learn that he can do nothing of much consequence on his own. Sooner or later, if he does not go back to sleep at once, he will either organize a group or join one that is already established.

There are so many things to be improved and so many eager partisans for particular reforms, that it is refreshing to find a nation-wide organization taking form with plans to improve everything by embracing all age-groups and right-thinking interest-groups in a great big democratic league. It makes everything so much more comfortably simple—for all right-thinking people.

This utopian league is just perfect. It is going to make Canada free for Canadians, and no true patriot could object to that. Everything is going to be democratic in spite of Moscow—or Rome or Berlin or Washington for that matter—so there. And just let anybody suggest anything different and we'll show them, by the Tower of London!

Canada is waking up to realities, we are told. No more shiftless indifference. From now on we are going to be duty-conscious, and high time too! Just as a start we will abolish undemocratic teaching in our schools, and unpatriotic teaching too. We'll show the traitors and the Red saboteurs. They can't go on teaching our gullible little Britishers their atheistic, anarchistic, fiendish, marxist lies. Canada is our country and is part of the Empire, and the Empire is the biggest empire that ever carried the white man's burden to its logical conclusion. And we'll preserve every sacred shred of it if it kills us and if we have to kill everybody this side of Leninograd. So help us. And join the league, my dear young friends, or the democrats will get you if you don't watch out.—P.M.

WHAT PRICE SURVEY?

From The Yale News

In what purports to be "the first statistical proof of how the nation as a whole values a college education", Fortune's February Survey of Public Opinion reveals that almost half of the nation's families believe that a college man has the best chance for "success".

"Investment-value" alone is the basis of the poll. The values and purposes of higher learning are reduced to terms of the dollar. America's families, it seems, consider the four years of undergraduate life to be a capital investment whose worth can be evaluated in terms of financial return alone. The universities of the nation are great processing factories, the success of their efforts being measured in terms of the economic potentiality of the finished product.

If these are the standards, the institutions of higher learning throughout the nation have erred considerably, and might better drop the intangibles of education and concentrate on the practice of a trade or business school.

We can hardly agree with Fortune that such a poll gives America's answer to the arresting question of "What Price College?" . . . However important it may be, the economic factor does not exclude the consideration of cultural and non-material factors. . . . If any conclusion can be drawn from the statistics as a whole it is that they prove nothing as to the success or failure of the American educational system.

"The human race has come to its present high position by means of the most relentless competition, strife and struggle."—George Barton Cutten.

"I was not offered the Order of Merit because the government knew I had already conferred it on myself."—Mr. Bernard Shaw.

The incidence of cancer appears to be on the increase, and whether this is real or just apparent public education regarding it would go far toward reducing the part it plays in mortality statistics.

FEDERSHIP LEAGUE

On and on the powerful Federship League rushes as telegrams and carrier pigeon messages are brought into the offices of the Map and Pail. Thousands of young girls have applied for positions on the stenographic staff at our usual salary. Others more fortunate have already been accepted and are coming next to nothing. Even our employees are aroused and are clamouring for higher wages.

THE WIREGARTERS DISASTER

... the above is a photograph of the Wiregarters disaster. The S.S. Neurotic (left) and the S.S. Epileptic (right) collided head-on at the junction of the Alabaska and Mackenzie Rivers, with the result that both assumed the strange positions as shown above. The significant thing is that Captain De Wolfe Wiregarters of the Neurotic and Captain Anastasius Wiregarters of the Epileptic were both employed by the Canadian Passionate Railways.

The Varsity OF SPORT

By Bernie Shiffman

AN ERROR IS CORRECTED

Confucius once said something that went like this "He who runs, usually trips". My Old Man (not Confucius), expressed the same thought when he used to whisper in our ear as he fondled us on his knees, "Be sure, before you leap". Now we know that you're not interested in what my old man used to whisper in my ear but it is merely an introduction to a difficult explanation. It seems that we criticized the downtown papers rather harshly the other week when we claimed that university sport was being ignored by the downtown press. We were and are still amazed by the revelation of this statement in cold statistics when the sports editor of one of the downtown dailies did a little investigating and showed that taking space for the two downtown dailies gave twenty-six inches of print to an intercollegiate week-end while we in The Varsity gave only fifteen on the same day. This was startling but nevertheless true.

We, in our uncontrollable desire to see Varsity teams splashed all over the sports page, neglected to examine the facts clearly. We also forgot to take into consideration the difference in circulation and thus the difference in highly publicized stories. The public of the "Pro-Con" Toronto would rather read about the Bruins and Leafs hockey, the pro wrestlers of London, "the lingering octogenarian" and "Jumping Joseph" Savoldi, the mass of playground and amateur sport, than the so-called exclusive university sport. So we got peeved and shot a lot of hot type, for which we now are sorry, and which we will have to eat. (This is a sports staff practice—all mistakes have to be eaten.)

The downtown papers lately have given us the best coverage they possibly could under the circumstances and so with a prayer for a continuance of the good work we humbly apologize.

FENCY THAT

In fencing, one of the cleanest and most gentleman-like games, they use four referees and an umpire, a total of five supervisors to watch two men, while in football there are three referees and twenty-four players. (That's what the matter with this government, over-supervision, my friends!) A what's the matter with the referees because they weren't playing cricket (silly, that last statement, but it's the truth), found it necessary to put chalk on the tips of their foils so that there could be no mistake on the U. of T. fencing team left a hole on the table on Wednesday night entitled "memories of a mis-spent youth" (Oh, Mr. Jennings!)... The University of Toronto team, captained by Garcia, last week-end made a successful trip against Western, Wayne University and Lawrence Tech, defeating every one of the teams. Although it appeared in the paper before, we find it necessary to repeat the story of the Lawrence Tech. triumph. Both teams had faked each other all over the lot and going into the final bout the score stood eight up. Captain Garcia had his work cut out for him as his opponent was Michigan State champion. The bout started and Garcia scrapped in four points (we're not sure of our French) while his opponent got one. Garcia needed one point to finish the match. The Lawrence captain, however, was determined to win and got the next three points, making the score 8-8 in bouts and 4-4 in points on the bout. Then as the steel clashed again for the final thrust the Lawrence captain was felled on the arm. He immediately dropped his glove and congratulated his opponent, Garcia.

FOOLING WITH FIGURES

We could proceed and now describe the star-studded athletic week-end that the Directorate has pulled out of the bag for your enjoyment. We could paint it as enticing as the chocolate icing on a beautiful hunk of chocolate cake. We could go into ecstasies about the fencing, the wrestling, the jiu-jitsu, basketball, hockey and swimming but nobody would think an eye-wid. It would be noted and soon forgotten. But if we show you how you can save $15.50 by attending these contests we're sure that it will seep into the placid (Scotch to you) blood and will be remembered.

We took a look at the New York Mirror's sport page the other day and we saw listed the events that were taking place that day. Heading the list was a basketball game between N.Y.U. and Brooklyn College—average admission $1. Next on the list was boxing featuring Toronto's Baby Face Davis and Crawford—average admission $1.25. The Madison Square Gardens had a dog show for their feature—admission $1. A snare tournament at 202 East 44th St. was next—$1, followed by a hockey game in Brooklyn Ice Palace between St. Nick's and Yale. A squash tournament and wrestling matches (average price $1.25) completed the list. Thus counting taxi fare and admissions in order to see all these events it would cost $15.75.

Now for the small sum of two bits and your registration card the Athletic Directorate has arranged as good a card, if not better, for local sport fans. Starting the afternoon off right the McGill Redmen, tops of the hockey league, return to take up where they left off last Saturday. The Torontonians, who are unfortunately without Morison, would give anything to beat them and it will surprise us if they don't. This game promises to be the best hockey game played in the Ice House in many a moon. A packed house is expected to root home the Royal Blues so come early and avoid the crush.

The evening at Hart House is one of the Billy Rose sort of affairs. Actually it needs a revolving stage but under the capable management of the Directorate things have been so planned that there isn't a dull moment. For the first time this year there's to be a jiu-jitsu contest (this takes the place of the dog show of the American card). Very few people know what it's about so it should be educational at least.

The basketball team meets one real opposition as they meet the Assumption College, coached by Joe Connolly, who have defeated Western this season. Hastings, who played with Varsity three years ago, is with this club and it should be a pleasant reunion. The U. of T. fencing team, led by Capt. Garcia, are going to take on the Buffalo "Folks" and it wouldn't be a waste of time to pop in on these boys and see them at work. The "splashers" are going to be it in the pool and Syracuse, St. Vincent alma mater, is going to be the opposition. Add to this conglomeration a little dancing, all your friends, an opportunity to enjoy yourself and compare it with the other card which costs $15.75.

Didn't we tell you it's a real bargain... and so help me we're losing money on it... giving it away so cheap!

The Sportswoman

By Win Flanagan

The finalists of the interfaculty badminton tourney were determined yesterday, the players being Mary Becker, St. Hilda's, and "Tibs" Annesley, St. Hilda's, so it will be a school affair after all. Mary took "Proxy" Bryans, U.C., in quite a handy manner 11-0, 11-6, and "Tibs" Annesley gained the other final berth by reason of Hildegarde Goodfellow's default. The Vic star was forced to default through illness and when she is recovered will be able to challenge in Betty Kirby has already challenged Hildegarde and the matches will come off next week. The finals will be played Saturday at 11.15 at the Carlton Club. Incidentally the intercollegiate tourney will be at McGill and not London, as was hitherto stated.

Now that the seem of championships is in the air, our thoughts tend towards the trophies that accompany these championships. Did you know that the Engineering Society donated the first women's hockey trophy for intercollegiate competition in 1922, which is known as the Beatty Ramsay Cup? It is a very large, sterling silver cup and for the last four years has been reposing in the Hart House trophy case due to the fact that intercollegiate hockey has been abandoned since then. In 1923 the McGill Students' Council, following the lead of S.P.S., donated that trophy for intercollegiate basketball which has become known as the Bronze Baby. This trophy is supposed to be a picture of a young girl, the game of athletic femininity, but it experienced a little trouble at the fund-raiser where it was being cast. The original mould was broken and the result is something of a monstrosity. But the very queerness of her shape has endeared the Bronze Baby to every intercollegiate player. This trophy is like the old barber pole, for which scullers row their heads off and which is a symbol of the intercollegiate rowing trophy. The other sports, tennis, swimming, badminton, being dependent on individual brilliance to a great extent, are competed for about a tangible trophy. This year when McMaster offered a badminton trophy, it was refused because the Directorate felt that it would be well not to alter the situation. As to the holders of these trophies, Toronto has a firm hold on the basketball and swimming trophies, but Western and Queen's are showing competition in these respective sports. The first badminton trophy was won last year by McMaster. Well, now you know.

Ruth Gordon, star goalie for U.C., is nowadays sporting a nice shiner, which she obtained in a recent hockey fray with St. Hilda's. Joan Griffiths, the guilty one, lifted a puck that caught Ruth just over the eye, but did not cut it, luckily. Ruth thought that she had saved a goal at the expense of an eye but much to her dismay the puck dribbled off her shoulder and into the net. Tain't fair!

SECONDS SEEK FIRST PLACE BERTH

Smith and Scott on defense, and George Wood, who starred against Maroons, the Blues are fast rounding into form and would like nothing better than a win over the Mustangs on the latter's home ice. Western, who were Varsity's most serious opposition last year, have not fared so well to date and will endeavour to break into the win column for the first time this year.

A win for the Blues will put them in a first place tie with the Guelph Aggies, and once out in front, the Blues will be hard to displace.

SYRACUSE SWIMMERS

MEET BLUE TEAM

week's absence, teamed with the yet untried Love, Murphy and Menzies, a surprise packet, the Varsity splashes for a well-balanced aggregation.

In the distance events Doug Green, adding a week's conditioning to his already good form, should be able to turn on the pressure to an even greater extent than in last week's meet against Penn State. Whiteside, Syracuse's star who has yet to meet defeat in either the 220 or the 440, is probably due for a great surprise. Clawson, and Girvan, U. of T. breast stroke aces, will undoubtedly place first and second as usual. Clawson, who broke 2 min.
36 sec. last week, may break last week's record again. At least he certainly won't do less than 2:37, and Staples, back-stroker, who has been placing consistently all year, should garner some valuable points. The spectators, at any rate, will be provided with many thrills.

SAY DANCE COMBINES DIGNITY AND SWING

Is it difficult to learn? Will it be a "jitterbug"? Will the chap who dances "slide-slide-choo" be able to pick it up? Is it sedate or a "breakerdowner"? Will you have to carry a diagram around in your hand? Do you stay with your partner or break away?
These are samples of the questions circulating the campus in regard to "The Imperial Swing", the new dance step to be introduced at the U.C. Sophomore Stomp on February 25.

"Definitely easy to master" was the emphatic statement made by members of the committee who saw the dance demonstrated by its creator, Hilda Rigby Rankin of St. Catharines. "By combining dignity with swing we feel it should have an appeal for all types of dancers. It can be classed as neither one extreme nor the other, yet there is something of each in it as its name so appropriately suggests."

could have done such a complete job
of adapting Bernard Shaw for the screen:
only a producer taught in the French

so intelligently: only an actor who acts wards (Leslie Howard) could have played the role of Pygmalion.

And besides introducing Shaw to the

CASUAL READING

Professor Norwood Admits Tendency Toward Detective Yarn and Humorous Story at Library Night

Professor Gilbert Norwood gave an informal talk on "My Leisure Reading" in Hart House library last night. This was the last of the series to be given this term.

Prof. Norwood stated that his leisure reading was casual and sporadic and directed along one line, namely humorous and detective stories. From this he proceeded to discuss stories of many modern novelists.

P. G. Wodehouse and Ben Travis headed the list of humorous English writers. Mr. Wodehouse was mentioned especially, as his books contained the essence of humour combined with sympathy for his characters.

Among writers of "thriller stories", he believed Ethel L. White to be the most outstanding. Her best book is "The Wheel Spins" from which the moving picture, "The Lady Vanishes", was produced.

Concerning detective stories, Prof.
Norwood considered Agatha Christie to be the best, as she has perfected an ingenious method of preventing the reader from guessing who the murderer is until the end. One of her finest stories is "Orient Express".

When questioned about American detective stories, Prof. Norwood stated that they were greatly inferior to the English ones, in that there was no real thought in their construction and were far too noisy.

At the conclusion of the talk refreshments were served.

literature. Choice is pretty well divided between recently published works and older ones by their favourite authors. Although the Suggestion Box is the logical place for ideas about the operation of the library, nothing in this respect has ever been handed in. When a member fills in a slip, with author, title, publisher, price and short description, he has three chances out of four of seeing the book on the shelves within one or two weeks. In fact the library committee is much more generous to recommendations put in the Suggestion Box than to those given by its own members. Many additions cannot be considered because all the information required is not given.

Making selection difficult, is the discriminating tastes of the men of the campus. Most of the Ten-Best lists would be spurned by these connoisseurs. They revel in Wodehouse, Douglas, Lewis and Farnol. According to a recent survey, the average reader likes 47 per cent fiction, 4 per cent biography, 31 per cent general non-fiction, 18 per cent new books of all kinds.

"This serves as a rough guide for the Library Committee," the Curator explained, "but what works in each class will be bought is something to be decided by all the readers themselves. It is because we try to buy the books that members really want to read, that we ask them to use the Suggestion Box extensively."

Blues Lose Out Red Raiders 3-2 in Puck Classic

Basketball Girls Win Twice Against Mac Hall

Senior and Intermediate Teams
Whitewash Enemies Over Week-End

SCORES ARE 25-8 AND 27-7

Varsity co-eds continued their winning ways over the week-end when both the intercollegiate squads, senior and intermediate, defeated the two Mac Hall cage teams. Saturday night in Toronto, the seniors took a 25-8 decision from Mac Hall seniors. On the previous night the Mac intermediates suffered a 27-7 defeat at the hands of the Toronto Inties in Guelph.

Saturday night's tussle was a faster game than the Friday event in Guelph. The Varsity seniors, strengthened by an efficient defense, held the lead throughout the entire game. Ann Dunn, rangy Mac forward, despite a brilliant effort, only succeeded once in the first half, in her attempts to pierce the Varsity zone. Piling up fifteen points in the first half, nine of which were credited to Captain Bobby McDonald, the Toronto cagers gained a good margin to stave off the third quarter Guelph rally. Blonde Mary McPherson, Mac forward, was the pick of the visiting line, but failed to outwit an alert Varsity guard line.

In the last half both teams adopted a more cautious tempo, and play lagged as the quarters were lengthened. The latter move was decided upon for the benefit of the spectators, but both teams were pretty well fagged out by this time. Bea Longley's seniors outlasted the Mac girls in every department of the game. However, it was the lack of effective guarding on the visitors' squad and the brilliance of the local defenses which gave Varsity the decision.

Intermediate Game

Superior passing play and shooting gave the Varsity intermediate women's basketball team a 27-7 victory over the Mac Hall quintette at Guelph last Friday night.

A REVIEW OF WORLD EVENTS

Troops Called Up

Rome: It was reported in London that Mussolini had called up 150,000 spring. Intensive Italian preparations on the frontiers of French Tunisia and Somaliland were countered by French movements.

Storm Hits City

Toronto: Southern Ontario was hard hit by sleet storms last night, interrupting power service, and making driving perilous. Street-car service in the west end was tied up for some time and Rosedale was as darkened in the year's first thunderstorm.

Revolution Attempted

Lima, Peru: Perri's Minister of the Interior was killed yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government of the important South American Republic.

DRUGS GIVE WAY TO DANCE

Gifts, gifts and more gifts will be the order of the day when the Pharmacy kids forsake their mortars and pestles to swing and sway to the strains of Barney Rapp. The occasion, of course, is the annual Pharmacy Graduation Ball, to be held this Friday evening in the Eaton Auditorium.

Gifts? Each of them will become the proud possessor of "Lantheric Tweed". Favours will be distributed at every pretence—spot dances, eliminations, drawings for the graduates who have come farthest for the annual get-together.

The executive feels the greatest gift the drugists is getting Barney Rapp. The noted Cincinnati band leader is

S.C.M. ARRANGES INTERNATIONAL TEA

Rev. Philip Beattie Addresses Group Representing Many Countries

China, Venezuela, Panama, India, Trinidad and Africa were among the countries represented at the international tea given by the World Community Committee of the S.C.M. yesterday afternoon.

The Rev. Philip Beattie, who took part in the Madras Conference, gave his impressions of S.C.M. work abroad. He laid particular stress on its activities in China, where accommodation and relief have to be found for thousands of students. Their university buildings and libraries have been destroyed; they are obliged to work in attics, cellars, and garages, and live in the most crowded quarters, with no room for recreation, said Mr. Beattie. Members of the faculty have suffered salary cuts so that in some cases they receive as little as nine dollars a month.

India, Mr. Beattie continued, has also an enthusiastic S.C.M., although only about five per cent of the university students there are Christians.

Mr. Beattie commented on the fact that few of those he met in India knew much about Canada, except as the home of the Quintuplets, in whom they are much interested.

LARRY O'CONNOR EQUALS RECORD

Larry O'Connor, Varsity graduate, scored high honours in the athletic world Saturday night when he finished the 60-yard hurdle race in 7.2 seconds, world indoor record time. The feat was accomplished at the track and field meet of the New York Athletic Club in Madison Square Gardens.

O'Connor handed Roy Staley, Southern California star, his first defeat of the season. The former Varsity man ran a beautiful race. At the first hurdle he was a yard behind but the loss was cut in half by the middle of the race. Increasing his long-striding pace he drew level at the last hurdle and flashed home in the sprint to win by a foot.

QUARTET WILL PLAY SELECTIONS OF BRAHMS

The music of Brahms will be a feature of the regular Monday concert in Hart House Theatre tonight by the Hart House String Quartet.

Brahms and his music are synonymous, is the opinion of music lovers the world over, and to listen to his music is to know him, they contend.

The quartet is to open the program at the "Monday Pop" concert, which is the second in its series. Haydn's favourite composition, the variations on the Austria lullaby, and a light scherzo by Frank Bridge will complete the program.

well-known to radio fans for his program on the air; his music men have played, too, at the famous Detroit Motor Show.

Between 350 and 400 couples are expected at the dance, sponsored by the graduating year of Pharmacy. Besides the aspiring drugists, many graduates as well as students of other faculties will couch up to hear the great Rapp. According to executive-member Don Harner, decorations will be unseasonably—glittered "379" over the orchestra, perhaps a giant mortar and pestle for atmosphere. What will be sensational is Barney Rapp—and the girls.

Undergraduate Art

The annual exhibition of work by undergraduates opens in the art gallery of Hart House this morning. There are twenty-three exhibitors and the display of work is of great variety and interest. Mr. C. F. Confort, one of the best known artists in Toronto, several of whose pictures hang on the walls of Hart House, will be present in the gallery from 1.30 p.m. to 2 p.m. today when he will give his opinion about the pictures hanging on the walls.

TCHOU FORECASTS JAPANESE MOVES

Former Private Secretary of General Chiang Kai-Shek to Speak Tonight

IN MASSEY HALL

By Russell Gordon
"We must convert our sympathy for China into action, or we will find ourselves confronted with the Japanese war machine on this side of the Pacific," Colonel M. Thomas Tchou told The Varsity last night.

Colonel Tchou, graduate of the University of Glasgow in mechanical and civil engineering as well as naval architecture, former director of the labour department of the Chinese government, and private secretary to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, is in Toronto to speak in Massey Hall tonight under the auspices of the Friends of China Society, which is represented on the campus by the Far Eastern Students Relief Committee.

"If you keep on supplying Japan with essential war materials you will soon put an end to future trade with Japan," he claimed. "When her conquests in China are complete she will no longer need your raw materials. She will have a nickel, she will control her own supplies. Commerce that aids Japan now is suicidal."

"The conquest of Hainan shows that the Japanese militarists have no intention of backing down. They are proud of their claim to be the first fascist nation in point of history, although in the past they have masqueraded it under the cloak of democracy, and they are also in point of total."

GATHERING HEARS MISSIONARY TEAM

A message of Christian fellowship and friendship was brought by three members of the tenets from the Conference on Sunday afternoon in Convocation Hall.

Dr. Rajah B. Wanikam of India, turbulent leader of the visiting group, the Doshida University in Japan, said he was impressed with the cosmopolitan atmosphere of Toronto. "Academic freedom and fellowship were invaluable to the 'light' people," he believed.

Miss Minnie Siga, black princess of the Bantu tribe on Africa's southern coast, said her message was from the "lost" of Canada. "I said Mrs. Siga is a Bantu school teacher, the only woman delegate from Africa at the Madras conference."

DEBATERS INVADGE VICTORIA TONIGHT FROM BORDER CITY

To Discuss Question of Great Britain-United States Alliance

Two visiting debaters from Detroit come to Victoria tonight to take the affirmative side of the debate, "Resolved that Great Britain and the United States form an alliance."

Much curiosity is aroused as to what could make Americans desire such an alliance. Distant frontiers being fashionable, however, there seems no reason why the United States should not have its frontier on the Rhine or the Volga, supporters of the motion think.

Messrs. Hand and Cole will speak for Detroit, while Art Menzies and Karl Buckthout will uphold the negative for Victoria. Mr. Hand claims that "it is clear a stand must be taken against the dictators somewhere and it is advisable that the stand, when taken, be made by the United States."

Art Menzies declared that "alliance to Great Britain would only mean a glorious opportunity for the United States to hop into a war whenever Britain feels her special interests abroad are seriously endangered, but if Americans want to fight for British capital, I would not want to spoil their fun."

DAFFYDILL NIGHT COMPLETE SELL-OUT

Daffydill Night, the annual presentation of the Medical Society, will go to stage Wednesday night with a complete sell-out of tickets for all three nights of its duration.

A "Lucky" extravaganza by Messrs. West and Last promises to be one of the stellar attractions, says the committee. Never a dull moment is the brag of the future doctors, and with this in mind sixth year is presenting a skit entitled "Medical Monstrosities" or "Picked Professors".

For the imperialist, fifth year presents "The Royal Visit" or "Love in a Nut Shell" starring the Provost Professor Duo. Fourth year depicts how the endocrinologist shapes our ends. Third year presents the modern version of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" or the "Popular College Widow". What second year is putting on is "Hard to Figure Out". First year shows behind the scenes during the blessed event at Callendar, calling it "Love is Where You Find It".

A copy of Epitaph is given to every patron as a memento of the occasion, and is bigger and better this time under the editorship of Mr. Schiffer.

Report has it that a number of Schoolmen have bought tickets as well as a few from Pass Arts. The veil of secrecy surrounding the whole affair could not be penetrated beyond the above facts.

HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB TO APPEAR AT CONCERT

The Hart House Glee Club, under the direction of Dr. Charles Peckler, with Mr. George Lambert, baritone, will be the artists at the concert on Sunday night at 9 p.m. in the Great Hall.

Representatives of the various colleges and faculties are requested to call at the Warden's office between 12.30 and 1.30 p.m. today for their allotments of tickets.

Every member is urged if he finds he cannot use his ticket to return it to the Hall Porter's desk if at all possible before 1 p.m. on Thursday, 23rd February.

2,500 Fans Cheer Team on to Eighteenth Victory of Season

MAYNARD OPENS SCORING

After sixty minutes of explosive, pulsating action, Varsity puckmen evaded accounts with their arch rivals, McGill Red Raiders, in their Saturday matinee clash at Varsity Arena to snap a McGill jinx that has held sway over Varsity for the last seven years.

A near capacity crowd of 2,500 fans reached a frenzied crescendo of approval late in the third period as the Blue Shirts fired home the odd goal in five to achieve a glorious, hard-earned 3-2 victory over the Redmen in a game that lacked only the prestige of a championship match to make it a puck classic. Coach Farquharson crewed up the third of this additional lustre by nosing out Queen's 4-3 Friday evening to all but clinch the international intercollegiate crown.

The victory, fashioned in clean-cut style, was a fitting climax to a successful season that has seen the Blues tri-umph in eighteen out of twenty-one games to date. It was a tribute to the coaching of Ace Bailey and to the game hand of players wearing the colours of the Blue and White. It also served to (Continued on Page 4)

VARSITY MERMEN DEFEAT SYRACUSE

With the senior intercollegiate swimming meet only six days away, Varsity's senior mermen hit their best stride Saturday night and defeated the powerful Syracuse University team 44-21. Coach McCarty's team showed definite form as every swimmer turned in his best time this season. With Murphy back in harness, winning the short sprints, Earl and Clawson showing their opponents a clean pair of heels, Staples down to 1.10 for the back stroke, and all the rest of the team in the best of shape, undoubtedly Varsity will win the intercollegiate meet quite handily. No opposition is expected from McGill who can't hope to compare with Syracuse sculler team in the dark horse, but even the Baptists can't do much more than to take points away from the Redmen.

Last Saturday Jack Stover, noted U.S. diver, and Dick Whiteside were outstanding for Syracuse, with Whiteside the star of the meet, winning the 100 yd. and placing in the 100 free. In the 440, the most thrilling race of the evening, Whiteside took an early lead but had to fight hard to keep Varsity's Desig Green in second place and then only managed to win by a body length. The time for second place, approximately 5.41, is the fastest any Varsity swimmer has turned in this year and should easily bring a first in Montreal later this week.

They called it a three-ring circus affair Saturday night, but as far as the co-eds are concerned this kind of an evening has no connection with a circus at all. It is much better. The wrestling matches may have been very interesting, but they were too gory for most of the girls, who were much more engaged in the basketball game. The fencers were almost as fascinating as the basketball players, at any rate the looked more attractive, with their white suits, and their faces all covered up.

Despite their determination to try and appreciate what the mat artists were doing very few Betty Co-eds were impressed by the subtleties of the jiu-jitsu experts. However, the preliminary bowing and scraping would prompt even a Betty Post to murmur "how picturesque". Someone said that the swimming meet was being held down in the pool-room of all places, but after getting a front-row seat in the big gym, the cage game was the thing. Any co-ed could see that the shooting was pretty sloppy especially in the first half. But coach her stars that the girls' rules forbid dribbling the ball all over the floor. The selfish way men play it's more like a one-man team, especially when they can run the whole length of the floor with the ball and no one to stop them except the other team. The last half, with Assumption threatening to clinch the ball game, was all that a thrill-loving gal could ask for. The dying moments were delightfully bait-taking; some few were even sorry to see the game end. Since dancing is where co-eds shine you could not blame them for darning it the best work-out of the night. Especially when all those divinely muscular athletes insisted on cutting in. Makes a girl feel popular, these athletic ninjas. Betty Co-ed is all for them.

Single Unemployed

Government officials are not to be envied very much when they have to face the problem of single unemployed men. At every election, candidates for public office throw out their platitudes about the great problem of unemployment, and promise to do something about it. The party in power has frequently started a gigantic works program, and taxpayers get a little tired seeing dozens of men along the highways leaning on their shovels under a shady tree, realizing that another election stunt has been organized at the expense of the people.

Dilly-dallying about with hostels, and shoving the burden of the support of these men upon the churches and charitable organizations is not enough. Whether the governments are going to institute works programs, or start some sort of camp system as was suggested by the Canadian Corps doesn't make as much difference as the speed in which it is done. The mass of single unemployed men is steadily growing. Most of those over thirty years of age are definitely demoralized. They have got to have something done to them to pull them together, make them employable, and give them a little ambition other than the getting of three meals, and a place to sleep.

Next spring, and during the busy season on the farm, the farmers won't be able to get help. The same was the case last summer, and while here in Toronto, Moss Park, Allen Gardens and a half a dozen other hangouts were full of unemployed single men, farmers within ten miles of the city were short-handed. Of course there is the old plea that it isn't right to have these men work for the wages that they can get at farm labour. But a farm-hand working at current wages for the year, will be as well off financially at the end of his twelve months as the farmer himself. And while farm conditions are such as they are at the present time this will be true.

There are men being housed in the Coliseum at the present time who have scarcely moved out of the building since it was opened, and the only reason that they have not moved is that they are too lazy to stir themselves. It is aggravating and provocative of fascist sympathies when industrious citizens find that these men will refuse to shovel a walk, or clean windows, and when they are hired to do such work will only do it in a half a way. Every year there are being added to their ranks hundreds of boys and young men, who soon learn the philosophy that the state owes them a living.

Any scheme of disciplining this body receives the condemnation of the socially minded, who cry fascist. And yet with the exception of a percentage of mental misfits, we contend that in the majority of cases there is little excuse for any able-bodied single man being unable to secure enough work to supply himself with food and clothing even today. They may not want to do farm work. They may not want to go north and work in the camps. They may not want from European countries do. In fact they may not want to do anything but live on the churches, or work in an office. But they would be better off working at something they don't like doing, than being absolutely unproductive, and becoming demoralized.

The attitude of the single unemployed is indicative of the loss in morale of Canadian people during the last generation. Our standards have become revolutionized with the shift from rural to urban centres, and we are no longer capable of showing that rugged spirit which the early settlers showed, or which is being exhibited by the European settlers here today. The pioneers have been disciplined by conditions. Every industrious citizen has to be disciplined, and make sacrifices. The single unemployed will also have to be disciplined and soon.—A.C.F.

"The Monkey Law"

So the State Legislature of Tennessee has refused to repeal the notorious "Monkey Law". Once again a governing body in a supposedly civilized and enlightened country has seen fit to suppress the teachings of the doctrine of evolution in schools and universities.

Back in 1925 the issue was precipitated by the famous Scopes trial, when a teacher was hailed into court on the charge of teaching his pupils that they were descended from monkeys. The fact that there is much more to the theory of evolution than the statement to which the solons of the hills took exception seems to have been forgotten. However, the trial proceeded, and defense counsel Clarence Darrow upheld his case so well that he convinced everyone of the folly of suppressing the teachings of Darwin except those who tried the case. For a long time the affair became a national joke, but the bill still remained in force.

Then, at long last, Representative J. E. Deford last week introduced a motion to abandon the bill. His argument that men of science should have the right to present their case to students was good enough to defeat the bill in practically any legislature. But not in Tennessee. Up jumped Representative J. W. George and declared, "I don't want my children to be taught something I do not believe." The motion was defeated.

What an attitude, Mr. George. Much of the world's progress has been made by children who did not allow themselves to be bound by the ideas of their fathers. Where would our airplanes, radios, and improvements in many other fields be if their inventors had not doubted the ideas of their fathers?

It is not so much the fact that evolution is attacked that Tennessee is held in ridicule today. It is the suppression of ideas of any kind that brings down popular condemnation upon the Tennessee State Legislature.

Sinclair Lewis, in his novel Arrowsmith, had men like Mr. George in mind when he wrote of a college where "there was no danger of the students being taught evolutionary biology there. They did not teach biology at all."

Mr. George and his fellow-crusaders may have received a good, liberal education, but we doubt it. It is apparent that one cannot get one in Tennessee. —L.G.M.

Dear Punch-drunk:

Twenty-six years ago a young fellow came to the University of Toronto from Minico Reformatory. His name was Unlauf Wiregaters. Enrolling in Pass Arts he remained there until last year when he got an agoriat and became a sophomore. With him he brought a wealth of athletic experience. Back at the reformatory he was noted for his cross country running.

Anyway, Punch-drunk, this fellow Wiregaters is really going places this year. His base-stealing has really been terrific. He actually stopped one game, when he stole not only the bases but the bat and ball, the opposing pitcher and three spectators' hats.

Wiregaters' ambition is to graduate from Pass Arts and to open a fish-and-chip shop but until that happens he intends working away in interfaculty sports and making what little money he can by stealing overcoats from Hart House and selling them on York Street.

Wiregaters has a distinct aversion to gymnastics. He positively cannot bear to look at the gymnastic equipment. He says that the parallel bars remind him of something unpleasant. I wonder what he means!

Unlauf's girl friend appears to be a sickly farm girl, Wiregaters told me not to mention bulls or she'd take a powder.

Missionaries Speak

The four members of the Madras Team are visiting the university again today, it has been announced.

Dr. Yuasa, Japan, is lunching with members of the staff in Hart House, while Mrs. Manikam is lunching with women members of the staff in the Women's Union. Miss Soga, the African speaker, is addressing a meeting of women in Wymolwood from 1.30-2 and Dr. Rajah Manikam is speaking to the men in Hart House at the same time.

Madeline Oreray—who can't be more than seventeen—rested the main burden of the story. She could do more than look lovely. She could act. The story was a not uncommon one of love and lost love and if we look at the bare bones the plot means very little. But the picture is greater than the plot. Life is breathed into the characters. The incidents are real and terrifically important. However, the embellishments are not overdone. Never do we get far away from fundamentals. Here there was a picture of another life but still real enough to seem very close.

Louis Jouvet gave an outstanding performance. He is an actor who has arrived the hard way, from vaudeville and one-night stands to one of the leaders of the Comedie-Francaise. This is our first view of him in films and we hope we will see more of him. Both director and author believed they had something important to say—and through the medium of an admirable cast they have said it. —Ted Meek

Sir: One would think that no exhortation or admonishment would have to be employed in order to motivate people to accept a treat. One would think that a treat on a silver platter would itself attract without embellishments. One would think that the mere comment of the Monday Pop Concerts conducted by the Hart House String Quartet would induce people to attend them. But when one views a mere handful of students in the audience at a Monday Pop, one feels sure that such a sparse attendance is affected only by the fact that the Hart House String Quartet is not very familiar to the men and women at Varsity, having absented itself from Toronto so much in the past few years. In other words, one can only explain away the poor attendance at the last Pop by owing that a Hart House Quartet Concert is an attractive treat, but the students through no one's fault do not recognize it as such. And although the treat on a silver platter is made for the students through the kindness of the Honourable and Mrs. Vincent Massey and the Quartet members themselves, the students do not know that it is a treat.

One cannot stand by and see such a rare attraction wasted. It is then in an endeavour to advise the men and women of the university that the Monday Pops are our enjoyment that I put my hands to my mouth and call: "Come and get it."

INTERMEDIATE MEN GAIN FOURTH WIN

Guelph, Feb. 17: The Varsity intermediate basketballers chalked up their fourth straight victory here tonight when they resisted a strong last period attack on the part of O.A.C. to emerge with a close 33-29 triumph. It was a relatively clean game, with few fouls meted out to either side.

The Aggies went into the lead shortly after play opened when Warlow was successful on a foul shot, which was followed by four quick baskets by Beers, Matthews, Avery and Gregg, to give Varsity a 9-1 lead. The McGeehonites dominated the play for the rest of the half with the score at half time 22-12 in their favour.

The second half showed an about-face in which the Farmers adopted a very close-checking type of play to bottle up the Blues and prevent them from reeling off their fast-moving scoring plays. But Varsity managed to withstand O.A.C.'s furious attack and came out on the top of a 33-29 score.

Hart House Theatre students can hear the best music produced by one of the most outstanding quartets in the world. At two bits a throw that's a give-away. Come and spend a most entertaining hour with our own Hart House String Quartet.

Sincerely,
S. Michael Geibler.

BUFFALO INVADERS ROUT VARSITY MEN

Complete Sweep by Americans in Fencing Duels Fought by Bob Wilson

Buffalo's invading wrestling and fencing corps made short work of the Varsity teams in Hart House last Saturday evening. In their last encounter at Buffalo, the American fencers defeated their cross-border rivals by one bout, but this time, on Canadian soil, they completely outplayed their opponents.

Had it not been for Bob Wilson, at the foil for Toronto, the Buffalonians might have made a complete sweep. Wilson won all his bouts with the foil and coupled with the skill of his mates in this field, gave Toronto a five to four lead in this section of the fencing.

Toronto's American neighbours came back with a rush when they won all their bouts with the epee, four in all. They took the lead at the end of the foil and epee, 8-5.

With the sabre, the Buffalo team almost proved invincible, and only the brilliant skill of Horsey of Toronto with this weapon kept Buffalo from winning all the bouts in this field. The Toronto team lost by three bouts to one in the handling of the sabre.

The final score ended with the Buffalo fencing team winning 12 bouts to Toronto's 5. It was the second time this year that the American team was victorious over Varsity's representatives which certifies their superiority in the sport of fencing.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shifman

WE DIDN'T WIN A CHAMPIONSHIP... BUT...

After a period of two school generations the "Riding Redmen", terrors of the Intercollegiate International Hockey League, have finally been outscored by the hard-luck Blues. A loss at the hands of the Tricolours earlier in the season nullified a sweet Varsity victory as McGill were undisputed champions, with the Blues a close second, no matter what happened in the Saturday contest. But what a game... what excitement... what's the difference?

Walking into the Arena we saw a new face this Saturday afternoon... it was one we thought was missing for a long time and we're sure glad it made its appearance. It was the face of a time-clock so regulated that you know to the second, the time remaining in the period. In fact the final minutes of the game were made twice as exciting by having to keep one eye on the clock and the other on the game... an orchid to whoever is responsible for it.

DOUBLE HEADER... NOT ADVERTISED

Just in case you thought there was one game being played at the arena we hasten to correct this false impression. True, the game on the ice between the Redmen and the Blues was the important game, but "Puck, puck, who's got the puck!" was equally important as all the spectators and Ross Workman had a swell time playing this game. The first time the puck went up in the stands the good-natured crowd returned it. But when they continued to shoot the puck at the crowd instead of the goal they became obstinate and refused to give back the puck. Would you give back the puck just so that they could shoot at you? Well, neither did they, and from all appearances if this practice keeps up we predict a rise in the athletic fee—you know, losing basketballs, pucks, footballs and things is quite expensive.

HE SHOOTS AND HE...

For the Redmen, Perowne scored both goals, with "Check-Up" McConnell getting both assists. The first goal was a beaut with Caswell forced to come out of his net and Perowne slammed home the score. His second was one that just caught an upper corner and snuck in behind the surprised goal-tender to the astonishment of Perowne and Caswell. Varsity got a lucky goal when Maynard's shot hit the "Sphinx" Anton and caromed off his stick into the goal. Thus, according to the score books Anton should be credited with the Varsity goal, assisted by Jock Maynard, the "fighting" little hockey player we've seen this year. L'Heureux and Maynard combined on the second Varsity goal, passing up and back until the goal-tender got dizzy watching the puck, and it was a simple matter for the L'Heureux, who was hitting hard and often on the defence, to slap it in before Emerson could holler "Bromo-Seltzer". The winning goal was a peach... Craig, who was robbed of a rebound, skated in fast, passed to McLachlan in front of the net, who shot. The rebound came out to Craig, who dipped in the puck from a difficult angle, putting the Blues ahead 3-2.

"WHAT ZA Madder WID OL' McGill!"

As for the game itself it had everything that a hockey game needs for colour... a packed house, a band, enthusiastic crowd and intense rivalry on the part of the teams. The local bad man, a veritable Eddie Shore, Andy Anton, couldn't take a stroke without a lusty cry of derision (meaning Boo!), from the crowd. He just had to stand there and the Varsity crowd resented it. (In fact all he did was stand there.) The duel of the day, however, was the Johnny Ross-McConnell feud that started in the Ross was sent out there to check McConnell. It was obvious that McConnell, and he did, using everything but a hammerlock on the flashy McConnell. The poor pro prospect had a rough time of it and lost his temper more than once during the trying period.

Saturday afternoon was an example of what we mean when we say "pro" sport has nothing on college games. It is true that their abilities wouldn't stack up to a pro team, but this deficiency is made up in spirit, drive and perhaps the youthfulness of the players. The two teams played fine hockey in snatches and poor shinny as frequently. Both showed defensive and attacking strength and while the Redmen had the finish and polish the Blues had the determination and will to defeat the Redmen. So to McGill who have now captured their second major sports championship this year, we wish to offer our sincere congratulations and hope that it never happens again. McGill certainly deserved both these championships on the merits of their teams.

Varsity Hoopsters Score Victory in Close Game

List of Canadian Successes Intact as Assumption Loses

By Marg Conlin

In their first and last out-of-town encounter for this year, the Varsity intermeds chalked up a decisive win over Mac Hall intermeds at Guelph on Friday. Captain Molly Moore, Vic star, held off the Mac forwards, as companions Annabelle Macklin, Eric Armstrong and company piled up a twenty-seven point win. Mary Birks with four points, was the most promising of the Guelph contingent, but the Varsity guards were too good for their slower opposition. The Toronto visitors, unaccustomed as they were to public travelling, were a bit tired upon their belated arrival. After the game, however, a few brave ones enjoyed a plunge in the swimming pool provided for same, and after supper, etc., began to enjoy things. About the trip up with the "other" Varsity intermediate team, we did not hear anything other than what one usually hears of such trips. And anyway this is not a gossip column.

As a preliminary to the Varsity-Assumption game Saturday night and in order to return Mac Hall hospitality, Varsity senior coned cagers took on the senior Mac girls. The local stars won the final verdict with a seventeen point lead which is fairly substantial, isn't it? Lack of effective guarding in the Mac zone gave Varsity a distinct advantage. Captain Bobby McDonald accounted for twelve of the home team's twenty-five points. Both squads were flattered no end by the running-fire commentary of the man at the public address system. We didn't hear any complaints, but his observations, especially when free shots were awarded that, "Miss So-and-so will now ATTEMPT to score" were direct challenges. The crowd seemed interested, amused, but mighty tolerant, especially when said announcer, explaining one of the innumerable technicalities, remarked that in girls' basketball "only one bounce is allowed". Loud laughter.

This seems to have degenerated into an all-basketball feature. Well, just to clinch it here is some more basketball news. Tomorrow night at 6:15 the seniors, who are all keyed up for the Bronze Baby Meet in London, this coming weekend, will play the intermeds at O.C.E. to decide which is the better team. If you remember the Inties defeated the seniors in a close scrap game recently, so the seniors are out for vengeance. Grrrrr, fight.

Warren Stevens' Varsity cagers came close to having their string of Canadian victories broken Saturday night when they just managed to eke out a 40-39 win over Joe Connolly's Windsor Assumption basketball five in an exhibition game at Hart House.

Down sixteen points at the end of the first half, the Windsor lads put on a dime novel finish that almost upset the Toronto apocryph. With nine minutes of play left the score stood at thirty-one to and then on the lead alternated no less than four times until Captain Wally McGregor tossed in the victory-giving field goal.

As usual it was Bill Rogin who led the Varsity boys in scoring. Playing without his Windsor side-kick "Scrubby" Aitchison, who was unable to dress for the game, the "Moose" threw in thirteen points against his former Alma Mater and sparked the blue team play for almost a full thirty minutes. Lavarway was second in scoring with eight points while Red Gail and Chick McInerney turned in pay-off performances that turned the tide in those furious last minutes of play. Perc Singer played his usually depreciable game and it was the straight shooting of Wally McGregor that accounted for the last two baskets which pulled the game out of the fire and gave Varsity their one-point margin.

For Assumption, Norm Fries was outstanding with fourteen points, and was capably assisted in his team's drive on the Toronto basket by George Yahn and Don Auten, who together accounted for fifteen markers.

It was a regular reunion night for both teams. Connolly is a former Varsity football and basketball star; Hastings, captain of the boys in purple, played under Stevens two years ago, and Aid Hannon is a former St. Mike's student and ex-member of Mac McCutcheon's 1937 intermediate squad.

INVADING GRAPPLERS OVERPOWER VARSITY

University of Buffalo grapplers fashioned a narrow 16-12 victory over U. of T. wrestlers in the meet held Saturday evening in the upper gym, Hart House. The meet, which was split at four falls each, was decided in the last bout of the evening when Steek gained one fall over Stev Phoenix of Toronto in the heavy division after Phoenix had enjoyed a slight margin in the early exchanges.

JINX BROKEN

justify in part the claim of Varsity supporters that the defeat in Montreal was due to faulty officiating.

The game picked up the tempo that was sustained throughout early in the first period when Walker was waved to the sidelines. Craig missed a chance on a rink-length rush and Doherty of McGill wound up in the corner after a breakaway. McLachlan, Beldingston and Dickson did penance and Caswell had some anxious moments while McGill had the man advantage.

Jack Maynard opened the scoring at the fourteen-minute mark in somewhat tainted fashion. The reserve centre left drive from the blue line and the puck did a crazy bounce off Andy Anton to evade Ash Emerson in the McGill nets. The Raiders got that one back a minute later when Ronnie Perowne netted a neat pass from McConnell, and the period ended with the score all knotted up, 1-1.

The Blue Shirts jumped back into the lead midway of the second period by virtue of the prettiest goal of the game. Andy Anton set up the count when he broke from his own blue line and allowed Bill L'Heureux to book the puck away from him. L'Heureux fled down the ice with Jack Maynard and banged over a pass as the flying pair rounded the McGill defence. Maynard drew Emerson out of the nets and at the last possible moment flipped over a pass to L'Heureux, who made no mistake on the play. Perowne knotted the count at 18.17 of the second period on a shot from twenty feet out that caught Caswell napping.

Dick Craig pumped home the all-important counter just after the start of the last period. Traffic slowed after this counter until Walker drummed up some business on a three-ally thrust with McConnell and Perowne. Walker wound up unmolesed right in front of Caswell, but was unable to control the puck. The Raiders applied heavy pressure right to the end but were unable to pierce Varsity's leechlike cordon.

On the play Varsity clearly earned their slender margin, despite Maynard's gift marker. They checked McGill to a standstill in the last period when the chips were down and enjoyed a distinct territorial edge in the play, particularly when the McGill line of Kennedy, Doherty and McDonald came on the ice. Bill L'Heureux for his effective checking and fast-breaking sorties, and Bob Copp for his hard round work earned major plaudits for Toronto, with Ross, Craig and Caswell close behind.

In defeat McGill fought the game right and were far from disgraced. Their first-string line of Walker, Perowne and McConnell were dangerous threats at all times, while Dickson and Anton formed a formidable defence.

minute of play with a basket by Annabell Macklin, and at no time were they seriously pressed in holding it.

Varsity started off minus their coach, Erma Laing, who was entangled in a few snowdrifts and didn't arrive until half-time. Molly Moore, Varsity guard, took over coaching duties in her place.

The Mac Hall girls gave a fine exhibition of team work but they slowed up the game by penalties caused by minor infractions of the rules. In shooting they were at a distinct disadvantage, for with one exception, every Varsity girl was at least a head taller than her opponent.

For the same reason, the seats of huge valves for water power developments are being made of "Monel" too. In eight valves like the one illustrated above, over 63 tons of "Monel" were used for seats, screws and bolts. Exhaustive tests proved this alloy vastly superior to other metals.

The sale of Canadian Nickel helps to speed Canadian prosperity. Thousands of Canadian workmen are engaged in the mining, smelting and refining plants. COMFORT JUDGES STUDENT EXHIBIT

"They are all uniformly excellent," said Charles Comfort, reviewing the undergraduate drawings and water colours which are on exhibition in Hart House Art Gallery. "Every case is most worthy and shows a high accomplishment in the art of handling water colours."

Mr. Comfort pointed out the difference between the precise paintings done by students of architecture and the more personal work of the art students. In the former, he said, personality was submerged and there was a strong emphasis of craftsmanship.

He singled out especially two heads by B. Milnes. "They have a tremendous vitality," he said, and showed how the subject was exaggerated and the theme brought out by the above-life scale.

Detroit Team Wins Intercollegiate Debate

"That Great Britain and U.S. Form an Alliance" is Debate Topic. U. of Detroit Upholds Affirmative against Vic Debating Parliament.

VOTE IS 14 TO 11

A team of visiting debaters representing the University of Detroit defeated a team of the Victoria College Debating Parliament last night while supporting the motion "That Great Britain and the United States form an Alliance". The Americans, favouring the British-American tie, were upheld by a vote of 14 to 11.

Affirmative speakers were Claude Cole and Michael Hand, both of Detroit, while on the negative side were Arthur Menzies, IV Vic, and Karl Buckthaupt, IV Vic.

Mutual protection was seen by Mr. Cole as the main grounds for an alliance. Each nation would be obliged to come to the assistance of the other. Standing alone, the democracies are too weak to deal with the dictator nations. Co-operation therefore becomes necessary, he said.

Mr. Cole expressed the belief that had Britain and the United States been united in policy heretofore, "Chamberlain would have been able to carry his terms with regard to Czechoslovakia."

Mr. Menzies argued that a formal alliance between England and America would give dictators an added excuse for aggression.

MISS SOGA TREATS VITAL RACE ISSUES

Briton versus Boer a Pressing Problem, Declares Madras Team Member in Noon-Hour Lecture at Wymilwood

Miss Soga of the Madras Team spoke in Wymilwood yesterday on the problems which face the Union of South Africa. She said that the racial discrimination between black and white and between the two white races was a disgrace.

Today her people are enduring conditions which, comparatively speaking, are as bad as those which existed before the Negro was raised from slavery in 1838. One-tenth of the land is owned by Negroes; 3 white people represent 7,000,000 Negroes, while 150 members represent 2,000,000 whites; the government will not build them schools. Then they suffer personal indignities. They would not think of entering an hotel or a railway coach in which a white man sat. Miss Soga was amazed when a Canadian policeman smiled and

Manikam Says Munich Agreement Disappointed Indian People who Had Hoped a War would Pave Way to Freedom

"The majority of Hindus in India were hostile to the Munich agreement," Dr. Rajah Manikam told The Varsity today. "Most of my people had hoped for a general European war which would have presented to India an easy exit from Britain's rule."

Dr. Manikam went on to say that India would not support Great Britain in the world conflict, if it were not for her autocratic princes. "When India gave her noble support to Britain in the last war," he said, "she was disillusioned. As an armistice we were to be promised responsible government, but even today, 1939, we have not received such a reward. In 1919 India received nothing." Dr. Manikam holds no great love for India's autocratic rulers. These rulers are loyal to Britain because it pays them to be loyal. They are despots whom England selfishly supports.

In addressing the theological students, Rajah Manikam praised the work of

EX-PRIME MINISTER WILL BEGIN SERIES

Earl Baldwin of Bewdley will deliver three addresses at the University of Toronto on April 20, 21 and 22, it was announced today.

An earlier announcement disclosed Lord Baldwin's acceptance of the invitation to inaugurate the Sir Robert Falconer Lectureship, but neither date nor subject had been decided.

University officials are as yet ignorant of the titles of the addresses, but it is assumed that the one-time Prime Minister of the United Kingdom will discuss some aspect of foreign or international affairs.

The lectureship was established by Sir Robert's friends in honour of his 25 years' service as president of the university.

AYOLOTTE WILL DELIVER MARFLEET LECTURES "VISION OF RHODES" TOPIC

President F. Aydelotte of Swarthmore College will deliver the 1939 Marfleet Lectures on the subject "The Vision of Cecil Rhodes," at Convocation Hall on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday commencing March 1st. All members of the university and the general public are invited to attend free of charge.

The Pearson Kirkman Marfleet Lectureship was established by the late Mrs. Lydia A. Marfleet, of Prophetstown, Illinois, in memory of her husband, and under the terms of the deed of gift the lectures deal with some phase or phases of the national movements of each country or both countries.

VARIED CONCERT PRESENTED TO AID STRICKEN CHINESE

Pearl Liu and Col. Tchou Speak at Rice Bowl Concert in Massey Hall Amid Oriental Setting, to Aid Chinese War Relief

LETTER AUCTIONED

Fantastic dragon and sword dances provided colourful atmosphere at the Chinese Rice Bowl concert in Massey Hall last night, when Miss Pearl Liu and Col. Tchou spoke in aid of Chinese war relief.

"Love can never be true unless it is expressed in practical positive action," said Miss Pearl Liu, formerly in charge of a refugee camp in China. "The only way to secure peace is to prepare for peace," declared Colonel Tchou. China had the germ of the peace movement many years before the other nations. China's national policy was to glorify peace.

"China would pay any price for the preservation of honour and freedom. We, the people of China, do not hate the Japanese and have no desire to drop bombs on Japan, but China in resisting wants to make the Japanese people realize their mistake."

Finger Strikes! Never Knox!

The Finger struck again last night. This morning when one of the inmates of the Collegiate Gothic edifice on St. George Street returned to his solitary cell he discovered that during his absence all his treasured volumes had disappeared and in their place remained only a blank sheet.

The missive informed him that The Finger had spoken, but alas, not being deaf, he had not learned the manual sign language, though some of his colleagues aver that he fulfills the other qualifications for learning the deaf and dumb language.

When interviewed by The Varsity, the victim was not certain what course he should pursue to recover his treasured tomes, but he will probably search very carefully around the toms of the Covenanters, which are reported to be a unique trysting place.

In attempting to interview the First Finger, the enquiring reporter almost lost his thumb, and it was believed to be in a manner much akin to the ancient rack, although some would consider it a none too modern racket. And so the noise subsided and we wait until The Finger knocks again.

MEODICOS ANTICIPATE GALA OAFYDOL NITE

Tomorrow night, Hart House Theatre will once more be taken over by the medical students for the opening of Dafyddil. The show will be presented for three consecutive nights.

For the benefit of freshmen, gentlemen and scholars, this is the one time of the year when the focal physicians take their eyes from their books, shed their stethoscopes, doff their dignity and let their minds gravitate to public place. For three evenings, all their pristine purity will be forsaken in a phantasmagoria of biological whimsy.

In keeping with its great and honourable tradition, this dramatic highlight will consist of a play by each year of the course (six—count 'em) interspersed by interact skits. Rumours are rife as those taking part smile knowingly but insurmountably over endeavor and patient. They will say only that there will be satire, wit and humour for all.

KYLIE AWARD GOES TO ST. MICHAEL'S

Harold Lemay to Enter Oxford University after Graduating This Year from English and History Course

Harold Lemay, IV St. Michael's, who has been elected for the Kylie Award for 1939-40, intends to enter Oxford University next fall. He will graduate this year in the English and History course.

Mr. Lemay graduated from Ligar Collegiate in Ottawa in 1933. While there he participated in track meets and played basketball. After his graduation from Ligar Collegiate, he attended Ottawa Normal School for a year and received his first class teacher's certificate.

The next year he taught at St. Patrick's College at Oxford and the following year he entered Varsity. He is a member of the History Club and has been teaching in St. Michael's College School.

Harold Lemay will enter the undergraduate school at Oxford and specialize in Medieval History. Following his return from England, he hopes to enter the Institute of Medieval Studies at St. Michael's College.

The Kylie Award was established by the friends of the late Edward J. Kylie, M.A., of the department of history as a memorial to him. The income from this fund is used for the purpose of enabling an Arts student to pursue his studies in Great Britain for one or two years.

ELECTIONS END LITERARY SEASON

Tonight will see the final meeting for the year of the U.C. Lit. The college organization will wind up its term with nominations for next year's Lit. executive, nomination and election of the candidate for the Maurice Cody prize, and the final debate for the Robicette trophy.

The executive expects a great deal of interest in the elections. At least three candidates are expected for each office. The reason they expect more interest than ever is "the extraordinary energetic freshman class".

Weather Raises Question . . . Whether to Attend Lectures?

Tardy students were in the majority around Varsity yesterday, according to all reports, especially at nine o'clock lectures. Attempts to sneak in without being heard proved futile as the "squish, squish" from slush soaked shoes gave their owners away.

One or two professors who were questioned, admitted that unpunctuality was worse than usual but seemed to think that in view of the general condition of the roads it was not as bad as it might have been. One instructor, who wished his name kept secret, admitted, a bit shamefacedly, that he was late himself.

Several students, when questioned, said that they just gave up the attempt to get to nine o'clock classes when they found themselves still only about half way to school at ten after nine. One

Cast of All-University Dramatic Production Invited to Take Part in Dominion Drama Festival—First Time in History of U. of T.

PERFORMANCE IN MARCH

Late yesterday afternoon it was revealed that the cast of Holiday, the all-university dramatic production, have been invited to take part in the Dominion Drama Festival. The cast is composed of many faculties on the campus.

This is the first time in the history of the University of Toronto that it will be represented in the Festival.

According to Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre and the director of the play, Holiday will be presented before the Festival Adjudicator as a matinee performance on Saturday, March the eighteenth, at Hart House Theatre.

The invitation, of course, is for the university players to compete in the Central Ontario Regional Festival, the winners of which will be invited to compete in the Dominion Finals to be held in London, Ontario, in late March or early May.

STUDENTS PREFER MARITAL CAREER

Survey Indicates that College Training will Help Solve Both Marital and Economic Problems of Life

(Reprinted from McGill Daily)

According to a survey held at the Pennsylvania College for Women, 96 per cent of the students there desired to marry after graduation—under ideal conditions. Few wished to have no children; 64 per cent declared themselves in favour of two or three; and a considerable number wouldn't be happy with less than six.

Three out of four took professional training in case the "ideal conditions" for marriage just somehow failed to materialize. Only 60 per cent voted for a career; that is, for making one profession their life's work. Forty per cent would like to combine career and marriage.

The conductors of the survey, the departments of sociology, eugenics, and eugenics, conclude that college training does not make women critical of marriage and unwilling to have children.

Student Opinion Favours Plan For Distinctive Canadian Flag

Advancing reasons varying from the fact that Canada has its own navy, to the increased national unity that might possibly result, most of the students interviewed yesterday were of the opinion that Canada should have its own distinctive flag.

The majority believed that such a move would necessitate no break with Britain. A. C. Cody, Medicine III, said, "I think a Canadian national flag would be a unifying factor and would certainly not separate us from the Motherland." Elizabeth Dean, Household Science III, also believed in a new Canadian flag, but thought that a small Union Jack should be retained in the corner.

The second group had nothing to say on the subject—had never thought about the matter and, as one of them said—"No sensible opinion can be expressed in two minutes flat."

The case for the opposition was stated by E. J. Apps, S.P.S. III, who was perfectly satisfied with the status quo. He could see no good reason for substituting another flag and offered the objection that, with this innovation, one more Empire flag would be cut.

Back-to-the-Land

Occasionally some master-mind comes along and offers a quack cure for all the national difficulties, having in the forefront a back-to-the-land scheme as the very obvious solution for the over-crowding of city slums, and low standards of living. Of course, the idea is that the good-for-nothing and the drifter, be shifted out to the country, where he will be able to secure a living by getting up in time to see the sun rise.

The basic truth in such schemes, of course, is that it is possible for a family to be almost self-supporting on a very small acreage of land. But a family which is absolutely unfamiliar with the principles of agriculture, and also has lost all sense of independence and ambition, will be unable to survive on the best of land without government assistance.

The tremendous migration from rural to urban communities during the past few years is indicative of agricultural conditions in this country. With this shift has also been a change in values, as we now think in terms of the department store, rather than the soil from which our essentials for living come. Many of the men on relief rolls in our industrial centres are out of work today because their jobs were taken from them by more industrious labourers who have deserted the farm for the city.

Were the economic conditions of the farm improved sufficiently, many of these would be willing to return to the farm again, and were there any opportunity to make a good living, without capital to start from, there are many relief receivers throughout Canada who would be willing to settle down in agricultural pursuits, either by taking up crown lands, or by returning to some of the deserted farms of our older areas.

With a better farm income there would be a better sale for manufactured products of the wheels of industry. With a better income the farmer would be able to repair his fences, and his buildings which have been neglected for the past generation.

It is a sad reflection on farm conditions today, when farm youths who have graduated from some agricultural college are considered failures if they return to the farm again, and considered relatively successful if they can obtain some job as a salesman for a fertilizer or feed company.

It is also a blot on our economic system when we can travel for a hundred miles of Ontario highway without seeing a new farm house or barn . . . unless it is one which has been built by some wealthy city financial magnate who has a farm for a hobby. But why build new buildings when you can purchase an equipped farm for the price of putting up the buildings today?

To secure world markets for farm produce is one of the problems of the statesmen, and selfish ideas of "Canada First" and narrow ideas of Imperialism are inadequate.

But even then, unless there is some solution which will allow Canadians to feed some of the Asiatics and Europeans who are living on a sub-low standard of living, we will have to find some outlets for our agricultural produce besides peoples' stomachs.

Canadian homes can stand plenty of improvement. There is enough produce going to waste that if it were directed into the proper channels we could paint a lot of barns, put rugs on a great number of floors, supply the kids of Toronto with at least half as much milk as they need, and give everybody bacon and eggs for breakfast.—A.C.F.

The Guest of the Hart House Debate

In England, the debating societies of the two old seats of learning, Oxford and Cambridge, are often visited by the prime minister of the day, or some other figure prominent in the life of the country. Anyone who has read the essays of Beverley Nichols will recall how vividly he portrays the visit of Horatio Bottomley, the greatest orator in the British House of Commons for a decade or so before the war, when he came up to Oxford to debate at the Union.

The visit of noted statesmen to the debating unions of the older universities has been more characteristic in England than in Canada. However, we are not without our precedents in this respect in our own university. About five years ago the university had as its guest the then prime minister of Canada, the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the present prime minister, as well as Hon. Ernest Lapointe have all spoken on the floor in Hart House.

The university will welcome on Wednesday night the Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labour in the King administration. Mr. Rogers, himself, is a scholar of no mean repute, having gone to Oxford, and served as professor of political science at Queen's University. He was for a number of years a principal private secretary to the prime minister.

The Hon. Mr. Rogers is regarded by many as the logical successor to the present chieftain, and is known to stand in very high favour with Mr. King. The university wishes him well, and will keenly anticipate his part in the debate.—G.V.S.

Being Honoured

The University Drama Committee and the cast of Holiday are to be congratulated on their invitation to take part in the Dominion Drama Festival.

It was somewhat disappointing that the university did not stand behind the Committee the way it should have when their production was staged recently in Hart House Theatre. This committee was organized three years ago, and has been doing some very noteworthy work for University Dramatics since that time. However, this year, when a really splendid play was produced, the audiences were not what could have been expected. The fact that it was during a week crammed full of other activities explains in part the fact that the houses were not full.

Such seems to be the unfortunate lot of many societies which have not the individual loyalty of some separate college to lend them support.

This is the first time in history that the University of Toronto has been accorded such an honour as an invitation to take part in this great Festival. It is a peculiarly happy circumstance that this year's cast will have an opportunity to compete with the best drama societies, and we hope that it will augur well for the future success of the University Drama Committee, and dramatics on this campus.—A.C.F.

Hart House Quartet

The second "Monday Pop" Concert by the Hart House String Quartet was played to a larger audience than last week, although the performance merited an even greater attendance.

The program of delightful absolute music opened with the Brahms Quartet in A Minor. The complete tonal effect of the quartet seemed slightly marred at the outset by a dominating harsh quality from the first violin. But by the time the third movement came along there was a much more pleasing assembly of blended instruments. This movement of alternating

WIREGARTERS SETS OUT FOR CHINA MISS SOGA TREATS

Aged Columnist to Begin Life Anew in the Far East as News Editor of Shantung Herald

Toronto: Pelted by rotten eggs, and amidst the sounds of hoots and catcalls, Umlauf Wiregarters, formerly an obscure columnist here, left Toronto forever yesterday to take up his new duties as News Editor of the Shantung Herald.

"I admit," he said in departure, "that I can't write. But as you all know there is another newspaper man in China today who can't write either."

Questioned about his future career, Umlauf intimated that he stands for "Banzai and democracy" as his policy on the Herald. "The people of China," he said, "need LEADERSHIP. So I am going to start a . . ." At this point he whispered the rest, fearful of Communist spies, who, as all readers of morning papers know, are enemies of democracy.

Wiregarters has enjoyed a meteoric career here. Starting his journalistic life as assistant press sweeper-outter, he rapidly rose to be publisher of a string of throw-ins. From here he rose to be Catuitor of The Faculty. And now he intends to carry his wealth of experience to the far east. (Tokyo papers please copy.)

His last words, as he was led away were muttered brokenly: "It is a fine thing, and ought to be kept better track of in these current days of woe and misunderstanding."

(Note: At a late hour last night, Wiregarters promised to send the human side of the news from China for the benefit of our readers. Watch for his dispatches. Banzai.)

Surprising as it may seem the feature picture at the Shea's this week is more important than the stage show.

The Great Man Votes is a re-SHEA's markedly good picture. GOOD! Especially so since it is not only a "quickie" by a "very quickie". The film stars John Barrymore, who does a very clever job as the whiskey-sodden, Shakespeare-quoting "Great Man". Assisting M. Barrymore is young Peter Holden fresh from his Broadway triumph in On Borrowed Time, and Virginia Weider.

The comedian in the stage show this week doesn't mention Hamilton but makes up for it by bringing Oshawa into the conversation. Top billing goes to a girl band, The Coquettes. Oddly enough every person to walk on the stage does a tap-dance. Remarkable isn't it. The mistress of ceremonies defies you to find a faster girl drummer than Viola Smith. Chamberlain pleads for peace.—L.W.

The race for interfaculty indoor-track laurels is on the home stretch with the pace-setting Victoria team away out in front by 26 1/2 points. Trinity holds down second place, with Meds only four points behind. The hundred yard dash and mile relay, slated for today's card, are guaranteed to show the best competition of the current season. Delaney of Trinity and Harris of Meds, who tied for third place in the fifty yards, will battle it out for points in the century, while their relay teams will be out to beat Victoria in the last event of the year. On paper, Trinity, the defending champ, in this event, should take Meds, but will have to go all out to thwart this year's smart Vic quartet.

With only this afternoon's two events needed to conclude a very successful year, the points on a 5-21 basis give Victoria 41, Trinity 14 1/2, Meds 10 1/2, S.P.S. 8, Dents 5, Emmanuel 5, St. Mike's 3, U.C. 2, and Knox 1. Individual honours go to the fast-stepping Harold Brown of Vic with 16 points. Following him are Delaney, Trinity, 11 1/2, Martin, Meds, 10, Wallace Brown, Vic, 8, Frederick, Vic, 6, Hogg, S.P.S., 6, an eleven others between 5 and 1.

This year's edition of the University of Toronto indoor-track teams has equalled or bettered many records, and shows strong evidence of being well able to hold the fort against either the Achilles Club or West End Y with whom meets are being arranged.

VOLLEYBALL GAME IS LOSS FOR BLUES

Varsity's intermediate volleyball squad dropped to second place in the city series when they broke even in four starts at Central Y on Saturday afternoon last. With eight victories in twelve games in the three round-robin series played to date, the Blue and White are one full game behind the Central team, which took 3 out of 4 on Saturday.

Despite the absence of Cash and Wise, key set-up men, the Toronto team was good enough to edge out Y.M.H.A. 15-13 in the first encounter of the afternoon. The spiking of Mackenzie and Murray featured the Varsity victory, the latter putting away the final 3 points. Without a rest the Toronto team came back to defeat West End Y 15-8.

SCHOOLMEN STOP VIC BASKETEERS

Jr. S.P.S. climbed into first place in group two of the basketball loop by edging out Jr. Vic 26-17 in the upper gym yesterday. The School team looked best, sinking twice as many of their shots as Vic. They were on top 16-2 at the end of the first half, sparked by Findlayson and Allen. Jr. Vic came back strong after the rest period, and led by Stampe and Hoffman threatened to tie the score. The win puts Jr. S.P.S. one point up on Jr. U.C., but the latter team has one game in hand. Jr. S.P.S.: Barrett, Wallace, Findlayson (10), Reynolds (4), Bell (2), Allen (10).

Jr. Vic: Todd (2), Landell (4), Cumming, Johnston (1), Mutton, Stampe (6), Hoffman (4), Young.

Speaking OF SPORT

WHATSA MATTER WITH OLD MCGILL

The Intercollegiate Assault At-Arms takes place, here in Toronto, next Friday and Saturday evening. The meet was originally scheduled for Montreal but on the request of McGill's authorities, Varsity will take the meet this year and next year it will take place in McGill's new gymnasium. For at long last the Redmen are building a gymnasium of their own. Up till now the McGill students have had practically no indoor sport accommodations, except the gym at Montreal High, which is no prize package.

In fact the Varsity basketball team of last year can vividly remember playing on the Montreal High gym in a game that had Warren Stevens wondering whether or not he should have shed his men in running shoes. For the weather was very similar to that of last Sunday and a leaky roof resulted in large puddles forming all over the playing floor. Every minute or two attendants would run out with a mop to wipe the floor and then play would resume.

Coming back to the matter in hand, McGill's new athletic accommodations, it seems slightly vague just what form they will take. Some say it is going to be a field house with a gym and drill room (for future European crises), others that instead of a drill room they are going to have a swimming pool (that's the naval influence being felt). But whether the army or the navy prove victorious, next year's assault at-arms will be in McGill's new gymnasium, that is if the students smoke enough of a certain brand of cigarettes, of which one cent a package goes to the building fund.

THE MIGHTY GYMNASIUMS

On the same Saturday evening on the upper gymnasium, another intercollegiate championship will be decided. Varsity's brilliant gymnastic team, who have been titleholders for seven consecutive years, will defend their title against McGill's team, and possibly Queen's if the Tricolour decide that they can field a team that will be of high enough calibre. Our Montreal correspondent informs us that Charlie Zwygar's men will face stiff competition from the Redmen who claim to have an agile cap exponent who will confound the spectators with his skill. But if the skilful exhibition shown at School Nite is any indication, by Macdonald et al., they should retain their position as the University of Toronto's most constant intercollegiate athletic champions. So if your gal doesn't like the blood and gore of the assault, she certainly will enjoy the gymnasts.

A PRAYER

At exactly 4:29 a.m. tomorrow all U. of T. students will be expected to pray for the return of the age of miracles. More specifically, we hope that either Harvard or Dartmouth will defeat McGill, and allow Varsity to have another snack at the hockey title. Harvard have practically no chance whatsoever, but Dartmouth is a possibility, although certainly no probability. For the Green Shirts have the strongest of the American squads, and extended Queen's in their game with them, losing by only one goal.

It has always been a source of surprise to me that a college that is so interested in winter sports and so proficient as the Hanoverians are, do not have a better hockey team. Dartmouth always win the international intercollegiate ski meet, have excellent speed skaters, put on a beautiful winter carnival (you should see their queen), and now when all we do is ask them to win one hockey game, they probably will refuse. What a lack of consideration!

OUR SYMPATHY

Word comes from Huntsville that Ross Grinnell, president of the Foresters Club, member of the S.A.C. and an outstanding athlete in intramural circles, is in a hospital after suffering an internal haemorrhage. We hope that the popular lacrosse and hockey player has a speedy recovery.

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

The continued success of Dartmouth in Quadrangular League play and McGill's first defeat of the season, thus postponing the title-clinching in the International Division, marked the competition in the International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League last week as the final third of the campaign was reached. Dartmouth rolled swiftly along, beating Harvard 2-1 and Princeton 4-1, the latter for the second time in a week, and practically sewed up the Quad crown. The Green can make mathematically sure of that by beating Yale this week-end. It now has won four straight and only Harvard, with one victory, one tie and one defeat in three games, has a chance to head off the defending Indians.

McGill, needing one more victory to assure itself no worse than a tie for the crown it has won the last two years, stumbled when it met Toronto, losing 3-2, for its first setback in seven league games. The Redmen laid down back one of their closest pursuers, Queen's University, the night before Toronto's victory was all the more notable because it was scored without the aid of Bill Morison, its high scorer, who was on the sidelines. The triumph was the sixth in eight starts for the Blue and put it very much in the running for the 3-1 championship.

The only other game of the league week produced the first tie of the season, Yale and Harvard battling to a 2-2 overtime deadlock at New Haven. While McGill was meeting its initial defeat, its captain, Russ McConnell, retained his top position in the race for individual scoring honours. Adding 3 points in his two games, McConnell brought his total to 21 in seven, leading Mel Williamson of Queen's by 2. Williamson has 19 in eight games. Morison's idleness dropped him into a third-place tie with McGill's Ronald Perow, each with 17 points. Dartmouth's Don Foster is top scorer of the American teams. He has 13 points and is in a triple tie for seventh place.

The league's schedule this week is the busiest of the season, with six games listed, three in the Quadrangular league. Activity begins tonight when Harvard starts a Canadian trip with Montreal and ends it tomorrow with McGill. The Canbats also play Princeton at Tigertown on Saturday. Yale and Princeton meet tomorrow and Saturday's schedule also includes Queen's at Toronto and Dartmouth at Yale.

Peggy Bailey and her Swimming Club associates couldn't have picked a more appropriate day than yesterday to announce the coming interfaculty meet. During our noon-hour plunge across the campus we encountered several likely prospects diving into the Queen's Park pool. They probably knew they wouldn't have another such opportunity for unrestricted practice, not until tonight anyway when Hart House facilities are being made available for local naids from nine until ten o'clock. Monday's backwash definitely reminded the Varsity dolphins that the season for aquatic achievement has arrived. March the eighth, a Wednesday evening, has been selected for the meet at Hart House with preliminary events being run (or swum) off on Tuesday and earlier nights.

On the following day our badminton team will be slashing their all down at McGill for dear old Alma Mater. At present the team comprises Mary Becker, St. Hilda's IV; Tibs Amesley, St. Hilda's II; "Proxy" Bryans, U.C. II, and Hildegard Goodfellow, Victoria III. The finals in which Mary Becker defeated Tibs Amesley in three close games made history Saturday.

"Proxy" Bryans has been challenged by Betty Kirby, St. Mike's I, a lively freshe lacking only tournament experience after a fine showing in the interfaculty meet. This match will be played off during the week, as will the special match between challenger Janie Church and Hildegard Goodfellow. Both these encounters will be humdingers, with a trip to Montreal at stake, the four contestants will be doing their smoothest to keep in the running. Mary Becker is the uncrowned Varsity Badminton Queen now, having cleaned up all and every class of opposition in the meet. She is the No. 1 player on our intercollegiate team, and a strong contender for intercollegiate honours.

That little matter of a grudge fight between the Varsity senior and Varsity intermediate cagers occurs tonight at O.C.E. gym at six-fifteen. The "fight" angle is our idea—you know what co-ed games are like.

JR. U.C. 2, WYCLIFFE 1

Despite the fact that Wycliffe played with a team one man short, the goal tending of Murphy combined with that heaven sent theological characteristic of the will to fight kept U.C. down to a one-goal lead. Macdonald scored Wycliffe's lone tally, while Turchin and Burt-Gerrans were the point-getters for Jr. U.C.

VARIED CONCERT TO AID CHINESE

Col. Tehou emphasized that the democracies of the world including Canada, should stop supplying Japan with materials for armaments, because "Without China Japan cannot conquer the world. I am glad to tell you that China has the courage to go on and fight the aggressor and I want to assure you that no matter how much it costs us, China is determined to go on until the victory is won, not only for China but for the world."

One of the highlights of the evening was the auctioning of a personal letter from Madame Chiang Kai-shek, to swell the relief funds.

or disapprove of their yearning for "ideal conditions", and we await with impatience the result of further surveys among the alumnae, which may shed more light upon this qualification. We are wondering if many of those who hold out for True Romance will have to fall back on that professional training which most are hoping will be only a temporary necessity.

It is possible, however, that the young ladies believe their college training will enable them to take a judicious selection from the mass of raw material which will probably present itself to them. Taken in this sense, the "ideal conditions" appear much more attainable. If this interpretation is correct, the survey seems to indicate that college training is already helping to solve the second of the two great problems of life; the marital as well as the economic.

hither and yon

With Frank Shuster

LET US DOFF our chapeaus to a student with a really fine sense of humour. . . . We have heard of many screwball answers to screwball questions in examinations, but this is a new angle. . . . A freshman at the University of Alabama came upon a tough question that he couldn't answer. . . . Was he undaunted? . . . Well, not exactly for here is what he wrote. . . . "I don't know the answer to this one, but I do know a good joke that I can write in its place." . . . And he proceeded to write the joke—150 words no less. . . . And this is the way he ended. . . . "I think this ought to be worth some credit, don't you? God bless you if you do, and God bless me if you don't!"

THE MANITOBA is definitely pessimistic. . . . For in one of their feature columns they carried these definitions. . . . They claim that a university is a factory which turns out products for which there is no market. . . . Its chief use is to demonstrate the benevolence of the Governors. . . . Governors are the individuals who want to get rid of money they have made in legal pursuits. . . . And this is what they think about undergraduates. . . . They regard these as persons who want degrees in order to get jobs. . . . Students are persons who get jobs in order to get degrees. . . . And graduates are persons who conceal the fact that they have degrees in order to get jobs. . . . TOO TRUE, TOO TRUE!

FINAL EXAMINATIONS are usually very sad affairs, but at Northwestern State Teacher's College they had a final which was enjoyed by all. . . . It was the final examination of the dancing class and they spent their time tripping around to the music of a real live orchestra. . . . Now if we had had examinations like that, I might in time develop into a first-rate student. . . .

NOTES OFF THE ELBOW. . . . Waiters and bus boys in Temple University's grill and cafeteria celebrate once a year by holding a Gravy Ball. . . . Only 32 per cent of the U. of Mississippi freshmen and sophomore co-eds received a grade of "A" in posture examinations. . . . The first and only lecture on cancer in the world has been established at the University of Chicago. . . . We like this musical criticism that appeared in a Detroit paper (A.M. & D. editor please note). . . . "An amateur string quartet played Brahms here last evening. Brahms lost."

for building more armaments, and for drawing the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis into a "tighter triangle". He attacked the proposal as an attempt to maintain the status quo at a time when redistribution of colonies and raw materials provided what he believed was a firmer basis for world peace.

An isolation policy would be "fatal" to both Britain and the United States if either was attacked, Mr. Hand declared. He considered an alliance for power essential to the interests of both countries. Such an alliance would enable the "have not" countries to get the raw materials they need without warring for them, he believed.

Mr. Buckthought retaliated by criticizing the alliance proposal as establishing a connection between the United States and the British Government, instead of with the British people. This government is allowing fascism to gain headway in Europe at the expense of democracy, he charged.

rhythms shows Brahms as a master of variations who explored new possibilities of rhythmic patterns with admirable success.

The variations from Haydn's "Emperor Quartet in C Major" are deeply reverent. The smoothly finished part-playing which the quartet exhibited here was given warm applause. A simple melodic theme introduced by the second violin was in turn taken up with equal skill by all the instruments till the dignified strains climaxed in unison.

The final number was the Scherzo from the Quartet in E Minor by the living English composer, conductor and viola player, Frank Bridge. This happy movement with some pleasingly discordant effects was exceptionally well rendered and left us wishing for more of this satisfying chamber music.

Friday Afternoon Recital

An enthusiastic audience was present at last week's recital to hear Marguerite Homuth Craigie, soprano, accompanied by Mary Shore at the piano. Her program, delightfully rendered, was made up mainly of French, English and Spanish folk songs. A feature of her recital was some unusual and unfamiliar music by the composer Ravel which came as a pleasant surprise to the audience. These songs are written around ancient Greek folk dances. Quel Galant was an abrupt number in which the use of discord in the accompaniment was completely disarming.

Miss Craigie excelled in her rendition of the familiar songs of Arnold Bax. Lullaby, as a contrast to some of the shorter humorous songs, showed the soprano was also capable of great emotional strength.

The Spanish composer, Obradors, was well represented. Four songs in the traditional lyrical style were sung with subtle shading and a fine sense of values. Al Anor was particularly delightful.

conference at Madras. She would not have been able to go on from there to this continent had it not been for Dr. Taylor, an American.

It is quite possible that if the government of South Africa believes that she has been getting too much American sympathy for the lot of her people, she may not be allowed to return to her country.

Course in Public Health Engineering Announced

Purpose is to Equip Students for a New Profession in Present Day Society

OPEN ONLY TO GRADUATES

With a view to equipping graduates for a new and expanding profession in present day society, the University of Toronto has introduced a special post-graduate course in public health engineering, it was announced yesterday. The course, which is open only to graduates in civil engineering of approved universities, has been arranged by the Faculty of Applied Science with the co-operation of the School of Hygiene and the Department of Biology.

The object of the course is to prepare civil engineering graduates to take positions in the sanitary engineering divisions of departments of public works, either municipal, provincial or federal. It is also expected that the men will be qualified for appointments made by public health authorities, industries engaged in the supplying or manufacturing of food products will provide further openings for well-trained men in this field.

The announcement of the new course was made by W. J. Dunlop, director of publicity and of the department of university extension. "Public health engineering," (Continued on Page 4)

DISCUSS DEMOCRACY AS POSSIBLE STUDY

Minister of Education Praises Plan for Teaching Children the Governmental System

The possibility of a "course in democracy to give children a fundamental knowledge of the system of government under which we live," was discussed with members of the Political Science Department here Friday. The course was approved by Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education.

"Maturity of outlook is necessary to understand the spirit of a government, and therefore it would be very difficult to teach children more than they now learn in civics," said Professor R. M. (Continued on Page 4)

OPINION DIVIDED ABOUT EDITORIAL

Student opinion on the editorial in Monday's issue of The Varsity, titled "Single Unemployed," is evenly divided, survey yesterday showed. Most students were either in complete accord with the writer's views, or disagreed entirely. Quite a few, however, prefer to debate the matter, as they felt there is no clear-cut solution, and for that reason judgment should not be jumped at too hastily.

LORD TWEEDSMUIR BECOMES HONORARY PRES. N. F. C. U. S.

This Gesture Found Indicative of Interest Governor-General Takes in Students

DEBATES PLANNEO

C.U.P., Feb. 21: Governor-General Tweedsmuir has consented to become Honorary President of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. It was announced yesterday by John H. McDonald, president of the organization. In a statement to the press, McDonald said that this gesture was indicative of Lord Tweedsmuir's interest in Canadian university students and the work that they are carrying on.

The Federation, besides sponsoring intercollegiate debates, are now planning a series of international debates along the line of those sponsored by the C.B.S. in the United States.

MORE AGNOSTICS AT TOKIO COLLEGE

By Russell Gordon

"The fact that yours is a Christian country perhaps explains the difference in results," said Dr. Hachiro Yuasa, when interrogated yesterday in regard to a questionnaire on religion answered by almost 3400 students at the Tokio University a few years ago.

Dr. Yuasa was, until recently, president of Doshisha University, the largest Christian college in Japan. He is here as a member of the post-Madras Team, reporting on the Ecumenical Council held in India, which he attended at Christmas-tide.

Whereas, to the questionnaire on religion recently circulated on this campus by the Student Christian Movement, (Continued on Page 4)

ELECTION DATE AT HART HOUSE SET FOR MAR. 8

Candidates Must Obtain at Least a Majority of Three Hundred to be Elected

NOMINATIONS OPEN

The Hart House elections for 1939 will take place on Wednesday, March 8th, according to Mr. J. B. Bickerteth, Warden of Hart House. "In the old days," he said, "elections were far more complicated, but they are now very simple, following a fixed set of rules."

Nominations will open for committees for the House, library, music, art, debates, squash racquets, camera and Glee Club at 9 a.m., Friday, February 24th, and will close Wednesday, March 1st at 6 p.m.

The candidates are elected according to the "300 Vote Rule" which requires that a candidate must have at least 300 votes to be elected, except in the case of the debates committee, which sets the minimum at 200. The other important rule states that no member of Hart House may stand for more than one committee even though it be a special one.

VARSITY QUINTET TO MEET WESTERN

Varsity's high-stepping senior cagers are in for a warm reception this Saturday when they invade Western for the most important basketball game of the season. A win will give Warren Stevens' leads the title they lost to the Londoners last year while Western can force a tie for first place by upsetting the unbeaten Toronto quintet.

Although they are at present leading the league in points scored, Varsity's flawless record is as much the result of an airtight defence as it is of a sharp-shooting attack. It is a tribute to the coaching ability of Warren Stevens that at a time when the trend in basketball is towards a man-for-man system of guarding, the Toronto mentor has organized a powerful zone defence which has proven impregnable and has forced all the opponents of the Blue and White to rely on long shots from outside the 15 ft. line. If the Varsity defence can work as well on the larger London court as it has at Hart House, Varsity (Continued on Page 4)

Nominations to offices in the University College Literary and Athletic Society were made at a meeting held last night. Students were also nominated for the Maurice Cody award. Opposing the motion "That advertising is of benefit to modern civilization", I Sussman and Bill Wood won the Robinette Trophy.

Nominations were as follows: Maurice Cody Award: Ken Stewart, George Stoddart, Al Rose, Mitchell Dent, Harry Tattersall. Year Executives—4th year, Vern Singer, Doug Morton, Ernie Smith; 3rd year, John Kirby, Robert Campbell, Bill Barnes, Ken McNaught, and Tommy Jarvis; 2nd year, Cliff Backhall, John Clarry, Jeth Park Taylor, Ron Moore.

Change in Schedule

Due to changes in program schedules, the program The Varsity Speaks, will be heard Thursday night over CKCL at 8:15, and will continue each week on that night at that hour.

Hon. Norman Rogers, P.C., will be Honorable Visitor and will Speak at the Debate

SUBJECT OF INTEREST

Tonight at 8 p.m. the subject "Resolved that in the opinion of this house an expansion of federal powers over social services by amendment of the British North America Act will advance the cause of Canadian unity," will be debated in Hart House.

Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, P.C., Minister of Labour, will be present as Honorable Visitor and will speak at the debate.

G. W. W. Stoddart, U.C., will move the motion, while R. G. Allen, Trinity, will oppose it. Other speakers are J. E. Hodgetts, Victoria IV, A. Rose, U.C. The speaker of the House will be J. A. Sead.

All participants in this debate are experienced speakers. This fact, coupled with the choice of a subject which is of interest to every wide-awake Canadian today, points to an excellent debate, according to the committee. In view of the fact that the provincial-dominion relationship is the problem which the Rowell Commission is trying to solve, the status of the dominion with regard to unemployment, housing, youth and health services is most important.

Anyone wishing to qualify for the 1939-40 Hart House debates committee is reminded that this will be the last debate of the year. It is necessary to speak at least twice from the floor of the house to qualify for this committee. Those who wish to speak are asked to put their names in at the Warden's office. They will be given to the speaker before the debate.

'IMPERIAL SWING' TO BE INTRODUCED

If present indications mean anything University College is going to be put on the map as "the place The Imperial Swing" came from. For although the new dance is as yet untried, its fame has already spread beyond the bounds of the university and seems destined to be the next big dance sensation. And this sensation will definitely be an all-Canadian affair. No American "Big Apple," English "Lambeth Walk" or French Palais Guide, but a strictly original Canadian "Imperial Swing," specially created in honour of the Royal Visit by Hilda Ripby Rankin of St. Catharines. And what is more, University College will have the distinction of being its "foster parent" when the dance is presented next Saturday evening at the Sophomore Stomp.

"The dance has dignity, as it should, in honour of the King and Queen," said Mrs. Rankin, who will introduce the dance personally, "and yet you can do it in jitting fashion, too. It's up to the individual, so it should please all."

FASCISM AT VICTORIA?

By Lois Jorgensen

Is it possible that Fascism is rearing its ugly head at Victoria? Perhaps the Dictator party of Saturday evening was too much of a good thing; at any rate, Wymwood, the women's centre of the "Communist College," seems to be in the hands of female dictators.

A notice informed the girls that they could no longer sit in cozy groups and eat sandwiches of their own making and scatter crumbs of home-made cake indiscriminately around Wymwood tables—these were to be used by students buying their lunches only! However, some tables were to be set aside for the use of the former students. Yesterday as one group of four girls were enjoying their repast they were separated because two had brought their lunch from home and their companions were eating a Wymwood concoction.

Some would like to know if they will be required to sit in one place for their soup purchased on the premises, then move for the homemade sandwiches and return to their original places for ice cream. This will doubtless be known as a "progressive dinner."

Subscription Rates

Occasionally someone complains against the custom of forcing students to pay for their undergraduate newspaper. They believe that it should be subscribed to by those who want it, and no one should have to pay anything for its upkeep. Any person who has been heard to utter such suggestions, is usually found labouring under the illusion that at least a dollar fee is charged each student by the Students' Administrative Council for the support of the paper.

The false idea probably arises from the fact that this is the rate of the subscription charged all those who receive the paper, who do not pay S.A.C. fees. It is unfortunate that even some of the undergraduates themselves have the erroneous idea that they pay a subscription for the paper.

Each student pays a regular fee to the Council. The Varsity is one of the activities of the Council and is supported in part by this fee. If during the course of the year the paper were to run at a profit, this would be turned over to the coffers of the S.A.C. If the students were to be charged a dollar subscription, there would be several thousand dollars revenue accrue from the paper annually. And if every student's society paid for its bulletin boards and notices on an advertising rate, the paper could be run at a profit. But the paper is distributed free to all undergraduates, and its pages are at the service of the students, subject to the discretion of the editors, for publicity for any worthy undertakings or activities.

Although it has not actually been reckoned how much the paper cost the students per person last year, it is somewhere in the neighbourhood of a quarter of a dollar. It varies from twenty to thirty cents a year per person, after all advertising revenue is in, and all expenses paid to publish one hundred issues of The Varsity for approximately eight thousand students.

Anyone who is a member of a recognized college society will admit that it is worth that for publicity alone. Those who are interested in knowing what is going on on the campus, would be willing to pay that much for its use as a bulletin board. Those who have attended other Canadian universities realize that in many of them a straight subscription of two dollars per student is paid in the regular fees for the support of their paper. With the exception of McGill, which has a daily, these papers are weeklies or bi-weeklies.

There is no course in journalism at the University of Toronto, and yet we have many undergraduates who hope to make journalism their life-work. Not many would admit that work on a student paper takes the place of such a course, but there are some who believe that it does. Disregarding that point, at least The Varsity has many graduates who are now making a name for themselves in some type of work where their experience here has proven valuable. In the advertising world, and in newspaper editing, especially, is this true.

Besides this, by means of working on The Varsity staff a dozen or so students are enabled to earn money which assists in paying for their educational expenses. In this way it takes the place of many scholarships and bursaries. Through their contacts on the paper some are able to get a certain amount of work on other newspapers, both during the college year, and in the vacation season.

A high circulation, and a good advertising clientele is what makes possible the services of The Varsity at such a low cost. And even with its faults, it is believed that not even the athletic fee gives better money's worth than your twenty-five cent paper.

Up For Debate

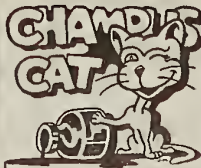

Within recent years no Canadian problem has arisen that has more bearing upon the government of the country than the question of whether the Dominion or provincial governments should properly be responsible for the new field of state social services. Modern industrial development has brought with it a new series of problems of paternalism and government regulation in fields where the framers of our federal system could not possibly have assigned responsibility. Unemployment insurance, health insurance, control of wages and hours and institution of a more adequate employment service have all been proposed as a means of coping with present day conditions; but conflict arises when it comes to assigning these new powers to either of the two governments.

While the trend at present is to consider these problems as matters to be decided by the provinces, many authorities believe they can be effectively handled only on a national scale. What would happen, they ask, to Ontario industry if a minimum wage law was in effect in Ontario but not in Quebec? Another argument for national support of social services is provided by the provinces hardest hit by the economic depression. The prairies, it is pointed out, have not the capital to finance the vast amount of relief work necessary after a succession of bad crop years. Some weight is added to their plea for assistance when one realizes that the West, during good harvest years, was one of the best reasons for Eastern prosperity.

Set against this is the view of the older provinces who feel that they must safeguard their constitutional position by excluding Dominion intrusion into matters that they consider as residual provincial rights. Ontario is loath to become the proverbial milch cow supporting social services for the rest of Canada, while Quebec resents Federal requests for a general readjustment of Dominion-Provincial relations as an "encroachment" upon provincial "autonomy". Comparison has been drawn between the dislike of these two provinces for Dominion control of social services, and the dislike of millionaires for "soak the rich" taxation. Some of the proposed schemes would make Ontario and Quebec provide a larger share of the national budget than they do at present, and are opposed correspondingly.

In view of these complications, considerable divergence of opinion may be expected on the resolution to be debated at Hart House tonight, "that an expansion of federal powers over social services, by amendment of the British North America Act, will advance the cause of Canadian unity". It is praiseworthy that the Debates Committee should include such a significant national topic in its slate for this year. Some clarification of student opinion on this issue is to be expected if it is handled with the seriousness that it deserves.

The Honourable Norman M. Rogers, Federal Minister of Labour, who appears as guest speaker, has made an intense study of this topic both as cabinet minister and former Professor of Political Science at Queen's University. His observations are awaited with great interest.

"What this paper needs is a foreign correspondent" was my first thought on waking up this morning. My second thought was that it was a good idea on account of I had better go to Europe where it will be a little safer for me.

With this in mind I stuck my head out of the window to inhale a little of the morning air, forgetting unfortunately that the window was closed. The noise of the cat stamping about in the hallway was also very disconcerting to my nerves, shattered as they are by too much hard work.

It is a great resolve. I shall set out for Europe immediately, and make a tour of Germany and Russia, writing my impressions and sending them back for the edification of the readers of this column. I shall not hold back the truth, for as you all know, "the truth shall make you free". (The truth about some people would put them behind bars, but that is beside the point.) I shall leave tomorrow, and in an amazingly short space of time I shall send my first despatch from Germany. I will, incidentally, go down in history as the one foreign correspondent who will not write about his trip. (You can't print my trips anyway.)

It is unfortunate that I will have to leave the campus disguised as a Mexican wallaby, because the Bursar, whose motto is: "Every man has his price", and several other assorted individuals are anxious to have dealings with me before my departure.

So farewell and on to Germany. Even if I do get sent to a camp there it will be a fine thing, because it is getting near the time for me to concentrate anyway.

Note: I can so get past Montreal! Algenon.

Sunday Evening Concert

On Sunday evening at 9 o'clock the Hart House Glee Club will present its annual Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall. The club will have as its guest soloist Mr. George Lambert, baritone.

Mr. Lambert, who studied in England and at the College of St. Cecilia in Rome for three years, sang for BBC for a year before coming to Toronto. He is well-known here for his work with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and with Reginald Stewart's Promenade Symphony.

The feature number of the evening will be Songs of the Sea by Charles Villier Stanford, in which Lambert will be the soloist. He will also sing in Fairiest Isle by Purcell.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shifman

THROUGH THE COURTESY OF . . .

The following paragraph is taken from Dan Parker of the Mirror, one of our favourite sport scribes who culled it from the Encyclopaedia of Sports by Frank G. Menke, who got it from several sources that if investigated would probably lead right back to The Varsity. So it is without shame that we repeat some of the choice tid-bits . . . Americans spend $4,000,000,000 annually on sports of which $1,200,000,000 goes for fishing and only $260,000,000 for admission fees and costs of staging spectacular sports. (Poor fish!)

"Field hockey was originally called hocquet (pronounced Ho-d-ay) which is a French not Greek word. (Hokay sport). Golf is a descendant of field hockey—sire of all ball and stick games.

"The Ancient Sumerians invented boxing over 5,000 years ago (which ought to encourage a lot of Oriental History students) which news will be a blow to James Joy Johnston, who has claimed the credit up till now.

"R. F. Smith, a commercial photographer in Montreal, invented the game of ice hockey in that city in Sept. 17, 1879, which he was a student at McGill University (no wonder they win the championship!).

"London's Smithfield Track, built in 1174 was the first race course in history and on opening day 432 Saxons who knew all the angles showed up with infallible systems for beating the races. (Their descendants are now on the dole.)

"Joe Louis' punch travels only 127 miles an hour, which should console John Henry Lewis and Max Schmeling. Dempsey's iron mallet had a speed of 135 miles an hour."

So you sport fans if you have time and can get this book by Menke you're in for good enjoyable reading if you glance through this volume. It's educational too (but you won't get any marks on any exams 'cept P.T.).

THE PASSING SHOW . . .

A telegram was received inviting the Brown twins to participate in the jumping events at the indoor track and field National Championships of the A.A.U. at Madison Square Gardens. Unfortunately they couldn't send the expensive money to send the athletes . . . it is interesting to note that last year's championship was won by a jump of 23' 4" . . . Wallace Brown, who hadn't jumped since the cow broke the record by jumping over the moon, in his jump at the Maple Leaf Gardens met reached 23' 7" last year . . . Bill Fritz, who is burning the coals (it is silly to say cinders) at the track meets in the States blames it all on the coaching received from Hec Phillips of Toronto, former Canadian Olympic jumper (so that's what happens to those guys on the track).

. . . It is with sincere regret that we draw to your attention the mis-use of athletic privileges which come with the registration card. It is only with an honour system that sport privileges can be granted and the lending of your card to any non-student is an unpardonable sin. No few cards were picked up at the hockey game last Saturday afternoon. It's difficult to explain to your girl. Let's not have it happen again. . . The girls' basketball team have a real task to meet on Friday night in London when they meet, in the first round of the Bronze Baby tournament, the Western basketball team, who have managed to win the trophy for three consecutive years. . . Russ McConnell, brilliant McGill hockey player, was chosen the most valuable player to his team in the Quebec Senior Hockey League and was awarded the Ken Stewart trophy. . . The senior Varsity basketball team have more to look forward to than a basketball game on Saturday night when they invade the Mustangs corral, for the defending tilt of the basketball season. They have all been invited to attend a dance by the Women's Athletic Directorate. (Nice eh?) . . . We just received an interesting football story that we must pass along to you. It seems that this past season when Varsity went to McGill for their game they met up with the Western team who were to play in Kingston. The western team instead of proceeding to Kingston got off at Belleville to spend a nice quiet evening. Meanwhile in Kingston they had decided to put up a real show and welcome the Westerners as is fitting the wearers of the Purple. They got out the band and a huge crowd was waiting at the station to greet the Mustangs. When the train pulled in, the band was all drawn up ready to burst forth . . . but nobody came forth. . . there was nobody to welcome. The Varsity lads, always the gentlemen, weren't going to disappoint the enthusiastic Gals, so they dropped out on the platform and with their best "Franklin D. Roosevelt" smiles saluted the crowd . . . and the band played . . . and the crowds cheered . . . and nothing was wasted . . . and everybody was happy. . . By the way, congratulations are due the band who kept things going at the Arena last Saturday . . . we look forward to seeing them out at the Tricolour game . . . We've been hearing a great deal of favourable comment re the sports' timer at the last hockey game. Everybody says it certainly adds excitement when the game is close and a forward breaks away with seconds to play, gets through the defence and hits the post. . . And we also found out that Joe has only one puck left in the Arena and we'll have to use a rubber heel to finish the season if we lose it. (So beware!) . . .

Tonight the band will formally draw its season to a close in a dinner for its members. This organization, which adds the colour and music to our games, is to be congratulated for their splendid showings in this past season. Through rain and snow, the band is always there. Congratulations are also due to the Students' Administrative Council who are responsible for this unit, outfitting them both in costumes and instruments.

By W'n Flanagan

The hockey classic of the year, the finals between U.C. and St. Hilda's, will take place today in Varsity Arena at 12 o'clock. The girls are all on edge, this being the first of two games and they realize that it is quite a privilege to be allowed to play in the Arena. Joan Griffiths, St. Hilda's star, will undoubtedly continue her scoring spree, but U.C. forwards should and will do their best to stop her. Playing hockey in a sheltered domain, the gals may now discard a lot of that excess baggage known as clothes, and we should see some speedy hockey.

While U.C. and St. Hilda's battle for the title, you might like to know the standing of the other teams. Meds came after U.C. Doris Prouse, player par excellence for Meds, is about the nearest hockey player on the campus. Vic came next in line and then St. Mike's. Ah well! just wait till next year.

Plans for the basketball week-end in London look pretty promising. The intercollegiate teams play there Friday night—Varsity play Western on the heavy end of the draw, and Queen's take on McGill. The winners of these two games will fight it out for the title Saturday. There will be a luncheon tendered the players Saturday and a banquet will follow the final game, with dancing to top that. Sounds like an interesting program and here's a little message to speed the Varsity team on its way: Bring back that Bronze Baby!

AROUND THE TRACK

With Bob Somers

The interfaculty indoor-track wound up yesterday with Victoria stars flashing 1-2-3 in the 100 yards and first in the mile relay. The highlight of this year's meets has been the amazing success of Vic's classy runners, who have dominated eight of the twelve events. Harold Brown was first in the century in the track-record time of 10.9 seconds, giving him three firsts and two seconds for 21 points and individual honours. Brother Wally was second in this event and Frederick, 50 yard winner, was third. Trinity didn't lose their first mile relay in three years without a struggle, but Vic's six-foot sprinters were too fast. Meds came third and Wycliffe last. The time of 4.132 was well below the record.

Hec Phillips wants the runners to turn out more times a week, and if possible after supper. He has coached Larry O'Connor and Bill Fritz until they are among the best in their respective fields, and is convinced that there are many runners around the campus who, with more intensive training, can be made into championship material.

Results of this season's events are as follows with the first three men who placed:

50 yards: 1. Frederick (V), 2. H. Brown (V), 3. Delaney (T), Harris (M).

100 yards: 1. H. Brown (V), 2. W. Brown (V), 3. Proderick (V).

220 yards: 1. H. Brown (V), 2. Delaney (T), 3. Proderick (V).

440 yards: 1. H. Brown (V), 2. Delaney (T), 3. Martin (M).

880 yards: 1. Delaney (T), 2. Martin (M), 3. Thompson (S).

1 mile: 1. Martin (M), 2. Hogg (S), 3. Shand (C).

2 mile: 1. Forrest (E), 2. Hogg (S), 3. Martin (M).

Half mile relay: 1. Vic, 2. Trinity, 3. Knox.

1 mile relay: 1. Vic (H. Brown, W. Brown, Shand, Miller), 2. Trinity, 3. Meds.

Low hurdles: 1. Cass (V), 2. Broderick (SM), 3. Miller (V).

High jump: 1. Brett (D), 2. W. Brown (V), 3. Easson (S) and Parkinson (S).

Shot put: 1. W. Brown, 2. H. Brown, 3. Phil Ishister (C).

Complete points: Vic 51, Trinity 17 1-2, Meds 11 1-2, S.P.S. 8, Dents 5, Emmanuel 5, St. Mike's 3, U.C. 2, Knox 1.

SENIOR ASSAULT SET FOR WEEK-END

By Owen Prichard

Big dogs are on the menu in the athletic wing at Hart House on Friday and Saturday when the university plays host in the intercollegiate senior assault. The visitors on the campus will be representing McGill, Queen's and O.A.C. Boxing, wrestling, fencing and gymnastics will be served up for the audiences. The semi-finals in boxing and wrestling are slated for Friday, with the fencers strutting their stuff on Saturday afternoon. Saturday evening the rascals and fisticuffs meet in the assault final, and in the upper gym the intercollegiate gymnastic championship contests will be held.

The personnel of the teams in all cases have undergone some changes; an average of half of last season's contenders are among the star-studded line-ups for the various events. The boxing entries show live title-holders from the 1938 assault, the Blue and White with three champs, while Queen's and McGill share the other two titles to be defended over the week-end. The boxing and wrestling squads of this university are after their third straight intercollegiate championship.

Among the leather-puslers, Cudge Dillon, who was a winner against the tough Coach Guard team in their recent visit, is seeking to renew possession of the 118 lb. fistic crown which he won at Kingston last year. Steve Parker looks like a sure thing at 135, since he has already defeated Silver of Queen's and Livermore of O.A.C., two of the three opponents in his group. Captain Jack Piggett is clearly the class of the 165 lb. division, and is expected to take his bout with ease. De Wolfe has some real opposition since Stanley, the intercollegiate 135 lb. champ, is again with the Red team from Montreal. Another champion comes from Kingston in the person of Macdonald, whose title Currie of Toronto hopes to acquire in the coming bouts at 175 lb. Hood at 125 has gained a berth on the Varsity squad and with Bill Raymore at 145 rounds out a formidable Toronto team.

VARSITY TO DEFEND SWIMMING CROWN

This Saturday the University of Toronto will defend its intercollegiate swimming crown against McGill and McMaster in Montreal for the third successive year. Undoubtedly Varsity will again capture the title, the only question being how many firsts can McGill and McMaster hope to wrest from the Blue natators out of the eight events. Times made by Varsity men this year in competition indicate that the Toronto splashers will take every event unless someone suddenly displays a startling reversal of form. Judging from McGill's line-up the only serious threat they have to offer is Pete Bourne in the free style and back-stroke events. Hamilton's entries are more or less dark horses but at best they will only serve to reduce McGill's total and perhaps beat them as they did last year.

In the breast stroke Toronto's Clawson and Girvan will of course place first and second and will give Varsity an easy first in the medley when coupled with Staples and Earl or possibly Murphy. In the sprints the 25 and 26 second times turned in for the 50 yard sprints and the 56 and 57 second times for the 100 yard events should not only give the U. of T. the sprint events but should also nicely cover the final 200 yard relay. This leaves the diving, the back stroke and the distance events. Clarkson in the diving hasn't dropped below a hundred points this year.

THEATRE OF ACTION OFFERS PREMIERE

"Life and Death" portrays the story of an average American's life. It picks him up at birth, carries him through childhood, the war, through depression, and it depicts his battle for the right
"to live as a decent human being".

It is believed that the rapidity of tempo in this play has never been equalled by any drama heretofore presented in Canada. It is a stylized play written in two parts. Continuity is achieved by an intricate lighting system, commentators, mass chanting and off-stage sound effects. The play has specially composed music, arranged and presented in such a manner that it becomes an integral part of the production—not mere accompaniment.

"Life and Death of an American" is directed by Daniel Mann, who came from New York to join the Theatre of Action, where he recently supervised the production of "It Can't Happen Here".

MORE AGNOSTICS AT TOKIO COLLEGE

ment, 72 per cent of the 900 students replied that they embraced the Christian faith, 3,000 students at the Japanese university claimed to be agnostics, while only 394, about ten per cent of the total number answering, claimed connection with any religious belief.
The four main faiths of Nippon were represented, Shintoism by 8 replies, Confucianism by 6, Christianity by 80, and Buddhism by 300. Here only 26 per cent of the respondents admitted that they were either agnostic or atheistic.

Dr. Yusa averred that in Japan the church was penitent for its sins of commission and omission, and was a suffering church, not only because of its sense of failure to live up to its expectations, but also because it was divided and confused, reflecting the mind of the perplexed Japanese people. He stressed the fact that at Madras both Chinese and Japanese Christian leaders met in a Christian fellowship which transcended the barriers of racial strife, and he claimed that it was the function of the church to Christianize an immoral world, and both the economic order and international relations. "We must band together as Christians to work for the establishment of a new world order based on justice and goodwill."

LAST INNING SPREE GIVES S.P.S. TIE

The junior S.P.S. baseball artists went on a slugging spree in the last inning to tie Jr. U.C. 10-10 in their engagement in the big gym yesterday afternoon. The deadlock showed the Engines into first place a point ahead of Junior Meds in Group Two of the baseball race.

The Artsmen led 10-4 going into the first of the fourth, but the Engineers put up a last-minute rally that tied the score. Robinson, Parks, Geitch, Reynolds, Baker and Munroe crossing the plate in quick succession.

It seems that your favourite undergrad-the highlight of the week was the issu-

COURSE ANNOUNCED IN ENGINEERING

Engineering has had a rapid development in the past few years, and it is becoming more and more a necessary part of modern life," he said. "It shows every promise of becoming a new profession which will offer careers and unlimited possibilities to those men who are thoroughly qualified for this type of work.
It is for this reason that we have introduced the course."

Lectures and practical work will form the bulk of the curriculum but the instruction will be supplemented at times by special demonstrations and field visits. The subjects to be dealt with include sanitation, bacteriology, public health administration, epidemiology, advanced sanitary engineering, physiological hygiene and sanitary chemistry.

DISCUSS DEMOCRACY AS POSSIBLE STUDY

Dawson, Assistant Professor of Political Economy.

Mr. J. H. Aitchison felt that many children leave school with only a very vague understanding of politics and that therefore such a course would be useful, although difficult to teach.

Students' opinions were taken on the advantages of a course in democracy in schools or of a series of lectures on Canadian democratic government for university students.

Barbara Hope, II Occupational Therapy, considered that the present course in civics is adequate. For university students she favoured the study of the government system in its relations with current events.

"Children in high school and grade school have no time for any additional course; besides, they should be allowed to form their own opinions, even on the question of democratic government," said Bob Holmes, IV S.P.S.

Opinion of many when he said, "There is no encouragement for steady employment in the future for these unemployed men, so it is easy to see why they should be discouraged, and suffer loss of morale." While partly agreeing with the editorial, he felt that the entire blame can not be placed on these men themselves.

"The situation is definitely getting worse," was the opinion of a first year Schoolman. "There is more relief than in 1929, while there is much more work available."

Frank Winn, II U.C., thought that the unemployed should do a certain number of days' work each week, instead of being asked to do occasional jobs. In this way, there would not be such a loss of morale among them.

A first year Med expressed complete agreement with the editorial. "That is the way I see them," he said, "but of course they are not all like that."

Novell Lawson, III Vic, expressed the belief of several students that when once these men have been on relief, they have no inclination to work, but prefer to live on the state.

should bring back the Wilson Trophy with ease.

The starting line-up for Toronto is as strong as that of any other five in the college union. In Bill Rogin, Stevens has the most outstanding player in the league. Unlike many stars, Rogin has not had a single off-day this year, his scoring being in the two-figure bracket all along. Percy Singer has also earned a place on the first team as a result of his steady playing and is an accurate dribbler and constant threat around the hoops. Jack Lavarway is the find of the season and still has two years at school. Along with Rogin, Lavarnway has been piling up valuable points at just the right time of the game. Toronto's two guards, Aitchison and McGregor, form the best defence of any team in the league. Mc-Gregor, playing his third and final year with the seniors, is captain of the team and his potency as a rebound-grabber was responsible for Varsity's victory at Queen's and in the game against Assumption. In both of these clashes, Captain Walt tossed in the last victory-giving baskets. No one needs to sing the praises of "Scrubby" Aitchison.
Along with Rogin, he has been playing senior ball for a good many years, and was a member of the Canadian Olympic cage team at Berlin in 1936.

On reserve, Stevens has Chick Mahoney, Red Cahill, Frank Minahan, Bill Flaherty, Tom Bannigan and Jim Shute.
All these boys are St. Mike's students and have been showing up well in the present cage campaign.

National Social Program Endorsed By Debaters

STUDENT VIEWS ARE PRESENTED IN S.C.M. SERIES

Men and Women Students Take Floor at Two S.C.M.
Noon-Hour Talks

Three points of view were presented by Amy Schaffler, Sister Crescentia and Helen McMaster speaking on the subject "What does Christianity mean to me?", yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union.

Amy Schaffler, the first speaker, compared religion and life to two sides of a mirror. If one side is curved, that is, if too much emphasis is put on one aspect, the image is distorted, she said.

Sister Crescentia gave the "broad-minded, educated Catholic viewpoint," as she said. She pointed out that Christ was divine as well as human and that he was sent to bring God's message directly to man.

"Everyone wants life—the full life. Many try to find it in power, prestige or popularity and are disappointed. Christianity means to me whole-hearted commitment to God and complete identification with one's fellow-man," said Helen McMaster.

Men Give Views

Yesterday the S.C.M. noon-hour address featured a student team of three speakers, Bill Fennell of Victoria, Jock McArthur of S.P.S. and H. Herbius of Emmanuel. The speakers discussed the topic "What Religious Means to Me".

Religion to Bill Fennell is the selecting of the "higher from the lower," the higher being Christ.

"Faith in our beliefs; that makes Christianity real," said Jock McArthur who discussed the practical ends of religion.

Finally, the third speaker, H. Herbius, related that after much conflict between choosing the lazy and the responsible way to live, one discovers that life is wrapped up in outside responsibility.

Resolution Endorsed by Rogers Carried by Substantial Margin

The resolution, "That in the opinion of this House an expansion of federal powers over social services by amendment of the British North America Act will advance the cause of Canadian unity," was substantially upheld last night in the final Hart House debate of the year by a vote of 82 to 11.

The Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, P.C., Minister of Labour, was present as Honorary Visitor and spoke in support of the motion. Defining the issue, he said, "Shall we as a country expand the federal powers over social services and thereby promote Canadian unity, or shall we be content to maintain the present situation in which the provinces, having jurisdiction over social services, either decline or are unable to administer it unless supported by subsidies from the federal treasury?"

Originally the provinces were given that jurisdiction, he said, but economic and social changes rendered them unable to assume the burden. Now the services are being carried on by the

FEATURE QUARTET ON BROADCAST

The famed Hart House String Quartet is now being featured in a series of "eight historical concerts" presented coast-to-coast from nine o'clock to nine-thirty on Sunday evenings by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The first of the series was conducted on February 19, and the next will be on the twenty-sixth. Two more will follow in March, and the remaining four in April.

The Hart House String Quartet was founded in 1924 when four musicians played before Honourable Vincent and Mrs. Massey in their home. So greatly did they impress their host and hostess who felt that the work should not end, that the quartet was sponsored.

Two changes in personnel have taken place in the last fifteen years. At present, the members of the quartet are

VISITS AFRICA ARMED WITH KNIFE

Lewis Catton Describes Lions and Pygmies in Auditorium Talk

With only a pen-knife for a weapon Lewis N. Catton of New York City made a trip through the heart of equatorial Africa.

In a lecture at Eaton Auditorium on Tuesday he described his adventures with the aid of coloured movies.

He travelled by aeroplane, by car and finally by foot with 15 pygmies for escort into the Congo. Starting from Rome, Italy, Mr. Catton flew in an Imperial Airways flying boat to Athens, thence to Cairo and 5000 miles up the Nile.

Mr. Catton showed pictures of lions which he took within four feet of the man-eating animals. According to the Explorers' Club of New York City, these are the most intimate pictures of lions ever to have been taken.

Mr. Catton found the pygmies to be the most friendly of African tribes. He describes them as "unspoiled children of nature" who are most carefree and absolutely free from worry of any kind. They have no religion and the missionaries have given them up as a bad job. They are only four feet in height and weigh approximately 75 lbs.

EUROPEAN TOURS ARE ANNOUNCED BY FEDERATION

England and Countries on Continent to be Visited by Students

Two student tours to Europe for this coming summer were announced last night by John H. McDonald, President of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. The N.F.C.U.S. is sponsoring these trips in co-operation with the University Travel Club of Toronto. This is the first step in the inauguration of the Federation's Travel Service, announced a week ago.

England, France, Germany, Holland and Italy are to be visited by the students on these tours. The first is to leave Quebec on the 24th of June, returning on August 10th. The second party will leave Canada on the 8th of July and will join forces with the preceding one at Interlaken, Switzerland. From there they will travel together for the remainder of the trip.

Motor drives and excursions are listed in the itinerary. The plans call for competent guides and conductors to accompany the parties on all occasions. A trip through the Alps by motor to the city of Nice, on the Mediterranean, is part of the route of the first tour. When the two parties combine, they will motor through the Furka and Grimsel Passes in the Swiss Alps and then proceed through Germany to Hol-

Funeral of Well-Known Moderns Student will be Held Saturday

News of the death of Mary Hornell, first year student in Moderns, early Wednesday morning came as a great shock to her many friends in St. Michael's College. Although Mary had undergone an appendectomy on the eleventh of February the operation had been uncomplicated and she was expected back at classes within a month. A brilliant student, the eighteen-year-old girl was the winner of the Fontbonne scholarship, headed her class in the recent term exams, and seemed destined for an outstanding career.

Despite the fact that she matriculated only last June from Mimico High School, Mary had won many friends at St. Joseph's and was a familiar figure on the campus. A member of the University German Club, she also belonged to the French Club at St. Joseph's and gave her enthusiastic support to every college activity. Yesterday one of her former teachers remarked that she was

A jam session and dance combined will feature the next meeting of the Swing Club to be held Friday, March 10th from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Diana Sweet's. This is to be the last meeting of the year.

The executive are endeavouring to make this a grand finale. They have secured, for a return engagement, Bert Niosi, Canada's king of swing, and his quartet, which proved so popular at a previous meeting of the swing club. Louise King, well known songstress, will make a reappearance also by popular request.

Whitney Hall Hard Hit By Influenza Epidemic

One Girl in Hospital and Dozen Incapacitated as Current Outbreak Spreads to Women's Residences on Campus.
Day Students Affected

With over a dozen girls confined to bed with influenza, Whitney Hall appears to be hardest hit by the current epidemic, it was reported last night. One girl is in hospital.

Extra beds and mattresses have had to be moved from the residence to the infirmary to keep up with the influx of patients, residence girls say.

Adding to the misfortune of the sick girls is the fact that the Whitney Hall banquet and dance will be held to-morrow night. The Head Girl of Falconer House is ill, and will probably be unable to attend.

Extra nurses are on duty at both Whitney Hall and Amcley Hall infirmaries. At the latter residence four girls are ill with the flu. Dr. Hillard reported, but the epidemic is lessening there, she said.

Dr. Gordon reports that there are a great number of colds among girls on the campus, and that she has found it necessary to send several home to bed.

REV. GEO. W. MACKAY TO ADDRESS CLASS

"Black Bearded Barbarian's" Son will Tell of Formosa

"Formosa," which derives its name from the Portuguese exclamation of its discoverers, "Ihla Formosa," (beautiful life) is the subject on which the Reverend George William Mackay, M.A., will speak at the open meeting of Dr. Gordon's Bible Class, at 44 Hoskin, at 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

Mackay

Mr. Mackay is the son of the pioneer Presbyterian missionary to North Formosa, Dr. George Leslie Mackay, best known as the Black Bearded Barbarian. A graduate of Clarke College, Worcester, Mass., he returned to the land of his birth, Formosa, and was welcomed back by his boyhood friends.

He was the first principal of the First Boys' Middle (High) School in Tamsui which enrolled about 200 students. He has travelled extensively in the interior of the island.

SKI ENTHUSIASTS SEE MOVIES OF NORWAY

A motion picture showing skiing in the mountains of Norway was presented at the final meeting of the University of Toronto Ski Club yesterday afternoon. Cross-country skiing in the Laurentians was the subject of a second film.

Another week-end at Limberlost for ski enthusiasts was also announced for the near future. An executive meeting of the club will be held soon at which several ski authorities will be present.

Human Skull and Union Jack Add to Spectators' Interest at Debate

A dazed and unhappy rabbit shared honours with the federal minister of labour in last night's Hart House debate. The rabbit, produced from the traditional brass-bound box on the clerk's table, represented a symbolic miracle which the speaker had promised to perform. Other exhibits included a human skull and a silk Union Jack.

Referring to the Prime Minister's slogan "King or chaos," George Stoddart observed, "We've had four years of chaos and now he promises to bring the King." And when an opposition speaker declared that Hon. Norman Rogers had to make the resolution for debate so as to make his position invulnerable, Stoddart remarked that the minister of labour should prove a worthy successor to Mr. King.

Mr. Rogers advocated an expansion of federal power over social services.

Government Action Necessary

In a recent editorial on the single unemployed there was apparently conveyed an impression which was not intended. In criticising the single men, and the loss in morale of most of the older group, we did not wish to criticize them as much as the state of things which now existed, and the causes for this demoralisation. The condition of people on relief is one of the most shameful things in our nation, and yet more relief and more sympathy is not the answer. It seems that during the last short while the single unemployed have got their share of sympathy.

Primarily we wished to point out that the actions and the attitude of many of them are endangering the public sympathies for the more unfortunate classes of people in general.

An idealism which sees a change in the whole economic set-up as a solution for these problems may be the best in the final analysis, but it is not quick enough to deal with such a national problem. Judging from some correspondence received, we have gathered that our critics disagree with us fundamentally in that "these men should not be asked to work for such low wages, as are paid on the farm".

On the whole these single unemployed men have not undergone a period of training, and they cannot expect to command a good-salaried job until they have; in the meantime they should prefer to accept low wages to being on relief, or getting charity. We did not maintain that there were jobs for everyone, but we know that there have been many jobs which many of these men were not anxious to take.

Anything that has been done to date has merely scratched the surface of the problem. And the missions and hostels although doing all that they can to relieve the situation, are by and large going to make the problem greater. More relief and more charity, leads to still more relief and charity. If we don't solve the problem fast, we will soon have a permanent dole system, with the dole-getters making the industrious low wage earners envious of their standard of living, if not of their mental attitude.

So far the camps idea seems to be as logical as any which have been advanced. But the position of these men should not be exploited to train them for cannon-fodder. The program in the United States seems in many ways to be admirable. Wages are paid which makes it possible for out-of-workers to recover their self-respect and lost ambition. Discipline is necessary, of course, but not military discipline. The idea that "they will lose their individuality on being herded into camps", is an adequate excuse for leaving them to drift back and forth across the country, is utter piffle.

For the past few months the single unemployed in Toronto have been getting the limelight. Why cannot the government get to work immediately and set up camps where every last one can find a home, and work and a living wage? Then this problem would be solved, and the younger generation would not become so prone to join the ranks of the wanderers. For there are many boys throughout the country who have been leaving their homes to wander back and forth from Vancouver to Montreal in search of work, who would have been better off remaining where they might at least be self-supporting.

If this one great difficulty were solved, and the solution seems to be relatively simple compared to the involved problem of unemployment in general, we would have more time to direct our energies and our funds to assist the mothers and children who cannot be expected to help themselves. At the present time a great deal of the money donated for charitable purposes is having to be used for these men who have not been granted government assistance.

Most of that money has been donated by sympathetic, and industrious citizens of the middle-class. Despite the needs of single men, as long as there are jobs to be filled, and as long as there are any unemployed single men unwilling to accept work, these citizens are going to object to donating money for their benefit, which might better be spent where the need is greater.

You may talk of the economic and labour implications. You may stress the fact for the need of a complete social and economic revolution. We will not disagree. But in the meantime something has got to be done, and so let us face the facts as they are.

—A.C.F.

Critics of Learning

University professors are a long-suffering lot. Their classes seldom appreciate them till it is too late, and only their most shocking pearls of wisdom are ever cast before the public. Abuse is heaped upon them on the slightest pretext. They are the constant butts of editorial vituperation in our daily newspapers and even in our moderately reflective magazines.

This is lamentable.

When we pause to consider the contributions made by professors and research workers to every aspect of social life—not only in the natural sciences, but in all the social sciences, and in literature and art—it seems downright ungrateful to accuse such men of malice toward their fellows.

But the critics of our professors' bright sayings will hasten to emphasize their claim that they never object to the constructive work of our great men, but only to the subversive innuendoes of "crack-pot intellectuals", probably in the pay of Moscow, who contribute little and spend their time warping the minds of the young. Of such clay, allegedly, is the "smart-Aleck" who suggested a woollen flag that might shrink with the empire.

Such a quizzical bit of skepticism could only disturb an imperialist with a guilty conscience. No one who had the slightest confidence in the Empire would protest against this obviously guileless jibe at the so-called Munich Peace Pact.

The Varsity regrets that the Canadian public is threatened with this kind of carping censure of what was once admired the world over as dry British humour. In Toronto this week Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" is appearing on the screen. When this classic was first produced, the very essence of Englishman's wit consisted in a wondrous capacity to laugh at themselves.

It is difficult to imagine anything more putrescently un-British than the suppression of the spirit of British wit as expressed for all posterity, so long as freedom thrives, in the genial satire of Gilbert's lyrics:

"Stick close to your desks, and never go to sea,
And you all may be rulers of the Queen's navy."
Could anything be more seditiously irreverent—even a Toronto university professor?—P.C.McG.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity,
Sir:

We are writing you in protest against your editorial of Monday, February 20, 1939, entitled the Single Unemployed. It is almost unbelievable that a university newspaper would publish an editorial showing such complete ignorance and lack of understanding. Almost every statement is a generalization. It would be quite possible to show this in detail but a few illustrations may suffice.

All the men who were sleeping in the parks and who subsequently were given shelter in Holy Trinity Parish Hall, signed for farm employment at a wage far below the ordinary agricultural labourer's wage in Ontario, but farm employers were not found for them.

Every man, in order to get into the Coliseum must carry his registration card from the Government Employment Bureau, which indicates that he is prepared to take work when offered. If he fails to do so his card would be taken from him.

The "leaning on the shovel" story is one which has been repeated again and again. Again and again it has been proven on examination that when men have been "leaning on their shovels", it has been due either to physical unfitness of men who have had inadequate food and rest over a long period of time, or to faulty organization of the work or to the lack of any incentive, because of it being a "made" job or a purposeless occupation. For example, when men on relief were first sent out to cut down weeds this summer they worked like Trojans until the ground was cleared. A few weeks later when they were sent to repeat the job the growth was too slight to make a really worthwhile task and they just put in the time, which was all that was expected of them to "earn" their week's relief voucher.

With regard to the suggestion that "every year there are being added to their (the unemployed) ranks hundreds of boys and young men who soon learn the philosophy that the state owes them a living", we would suggest that the fact to be deplored is that to so few of the older and more fortunate citizens have not yet learned the philosophy that the State owes these youths at least the opportunity to earn a living.

That there are lazy men among the single unemployed, we do not deny. There are, no doubt, lazy students too. But the tone of this editorial is such that it condemns the whole group of unemployed. We believe it may increase the resentment of the taxpayer against them and encourage public opinion in pressing for repressive, rather than constructive measures, toward the solution of this serious social-economic problem.

Yours truly,
E. J. Urwick,
Chairman,
"The Welfare Council of Toronto"

Margin of Single Point Gives Win To Blue Cagers

Last Minute Rally by Intermediates Spells Defeat for McMaster

Staging a concerted last-half rally, Varsity intermediate cagers preserved their unblemished record by edging out a narrow 30-29 victory over McMaster Maroons last night in Hamilton.

The Hamilton team threw a large-sized scare into the jaunty Blue Shirts in the early minutes of play, and at the intermission maintained a 17-15 lead through the good work of Vanderburgh and Jackson, McMaster stars. After the rest period the locals came back strong and managed to overcome the McMaster margin to win by the 30-29 count.

Jim Cregg was the shining light in the Varsity triumph with six baskets and two free throws for a total of fourteen points. Jim Winters was next in line for the winners, setting up plays for the fast-breaking forwards in fine style. Vanderburgh and Jackson posted an unexpectedly strong McMaster attack.

Varsity's narrow triumph extended a string of victories dating back to last season. Their lone defeat in the last few years was administered by the same McMaster outfit.

News Men Can Spell

Last night in The Varsity office news staff writers spelled down representatives of the sports staff to a six to five decision. The deciding was MILLENNIUM which floored all the sports staff writers and broke the five-all tie in favour of the news men.

MOTION UPHELD AT HOUSE DEBATE

provinces but with federal grants in aid, involving us in a dual responsibility which is "far from being the most efficient method" and is certain to "become an irritant in dominion and provincial relations."

"After our experience under conditional grants and dual responsibility," said Hon. Mr. Rogers, "it would be a mistake to go back to it while there is yet hope of bringing about a national scheme for national unity, by an extension of the federal powers over social services."

G. W. Stoddart, speaking for the motion, pointed out the variation of social legislation from province to province. We need a national program "to unite the people under one common purpose to develop a Canadian unity," he said.

R. G. Allen in opposition, stressed the danger of "a complacent bureaucracy not representing the interests of the people," and emphasized that a "devolution of powers to preserve democracy" was essential.

"Petty provincialism, the greatest danger to Canadian unity, would be eliminated by an extension of federal powers," said the third speaker, J. E. Hodgetts. Al Rose, for the negative, defined social services as "those activities of government involving the expenditure of money to procure for the weak and aged protection through the medium of government intervention."

Ringside Chatter

By Art How

Feverish activity is the order of the day in the boxing and wrestling rooms as the back boppers and resin eaters prepare for the senior intercollegiate assault on Friday and Saturday.

Mel "The Moaner" Glenna looks for at least four and perhaps five titles from his hard working leather slingers. Jock Piggott, Lou Dillon, Ted De Wolfe, Bill Ramore and Stewart Parker all appear to outclass the opposition. Bill Ramore earned a spot on the team last year but took sick shortly before the assault. Ted De Wolfe as understudy, tore through the opposition, but lost on a foul. Ramore is determined to return the welterweight title to Hart House. His heavy punching and wildcat attack augur well for his chances.

The wrestling division is somewhat war worn but "Chesty" Martin hopes to bring them into fighting trim before Saturday. Bill Schwenger has been nursing an ear which threatens to sprout a cabbage head. Art Scott's duck knee has kept him out of the last few bouts but he is ready for action again. Stew Phoenix, who won the intercollegiate light-heavy last year, will handle the heavyweight division for Varsity. Jack Amos, last year's 155 pound titleholder, should be a cinch to repeat.

The boys from Hart House hope for a title but win, lose or draw the big gym will see boiling blood and bashed, blistered beaks beneath the bright arc lights.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Alan Horvay

ON THE SOCK EXCHANGE

Activity in the boxing, wrestling and fencing rooms is keyed to an unusual tempo these days as the mitt, mat and foil artists get in their last ticks preparatory to the senior intercollegiate assault slated for Friday and Saturday evening at Hart House.

It's pretty well conceded by the devotees of the suicide sports that Varsity stand a royal chance of copying assault honours this year. Chief reliance seems to be placed on the boxing corps, headed by Jock Piggott and Lou Dillon. It's been a long time since the Blue beard beaters have shown the massed strength they have displayed this year, and Moaner Mel Glenna, who is inclined to look on the shady side of things, almost broke into a grin the other day when questioned about Varsity's chances.

Reading from left to right, the Blue battlers appear to be well fortified in the 118 pound division, with Lou "Cudgel" Dillon ready to send opponents to the deck. Stew (My Hero) Parker rates a fair chance in the 135 pound bracket, while Bill Ramore should make it tough for his rivals in the 145 pound scale. Ted De Wolfe, Ramore's stand-in last year, fights at 155 and is expected to earn brackets. The 165-pound group is well looked after by Jock Piggott, who appears to have the title in this class all wrapped up and ready for delivery.

Boxing fans should be in for a great slugfest when Bill Ramore climbs through the ropes tomorrow evening. Ramore packs a devastating punch and is capable of absorbing plenty of punishment. Illness prevented him from participating in the assault last year, but this winter he is ready to go against McGill, Queen's and O.A.C. The wallowing Engineer looks like the best bet on the card.

S.P.S.'s Adam Hood earned the right to represent Varsity in the 125 pound class scale by deciding Sock Swick Tuesday afternoon. Swick upset Hood in the senior intercollegiate assault and a return match was ordered, in which Hood reversed the verdict. Red Currie is the last local representative, slinging leather in the light heavy bracket.

It happened in Hart House—Last fall Jock Piggott took time out to illustrate to Kid Brother Joe the proper method of blocking a left hook. Joe misconstrued his brother's signals and attempted to ward off the fraternal portside flipper with the Piggott proboscis. It didn't work, and Joe wound up with a broken nose.

CAGE COMMENT

To the surprise of no one at all, Bill Rogin is leading the intercollegiate hoop parade in number of points scored. The Moose has accumulated a total of 59 corners, fashioned from 24 field goals and 11 foul shots.

To the surprise of nearly everyone, including this department, Western's Joe Krol is crowding Rogin hard with 56 points. The Windsor schoolboy sensation has sunk 23 baskets and 12 free throws. Knowles of Queen's reports in third spot with 41 points, well back of the pacesetters, to spoil a perfectly good party for the Windsor alumnae. Scrubby Aitchison is fourth with forty.

The scoring records follow:

	G	FG	FS	Pts		G	FG	FS	Pts
Rogin (T)	4	24	11	59	Farmer (W)	4	15	8	38
Krol (W)	4	22	12	56	Kingston (McG)	4	14	3	31
Knowles (Q)	3	17	7	51	Courtwright (Q)	5	11	5	27

CAPSULE CRITICISMS

"Much" McIlquham, Varsity graduate, continues to burn up the ice lanes in the Major Commercial T.H.L. series. . . . Galway of the 1938 Varsity intermediate footballers also performs in this circuit. . . . and we hear that several of this year's senior team have been approached by teams in this league. . . . Nick Palthowski, one of the outstanding snappers in the Intercollegiate Rugby Union, is one of the wrestlers who will make the trip with the Queen's team to perform in the senior assault this week-end. . . . Malachowski, his understudy on the gridiron last year, will also go along. . . . Bill Schwenger has forestalled an incident calibrator far and will represent the Blue grapplers in the 165 pound division. . . . Scott is another contender who will be seen in action on the local squad. . . . McIntyre and McKenrie will be the notable absences.

Close Game Results in Win for Pharmacy by 14-12 Count

Pharmacy A sneaked out a win over St. Mike's A in the upper gym at Hart House yesterday by a score of 14-12.

The game was close throughout and was perhaps thrilling for those interested. Scoring did not begin early and when it did there was very little of it. At half time Pharmacy had scored 8 points and St. Mike's 4. Both teams had a lot at stake for the win by Pharmacy means there is now a four-way tie in the league with each team having won two games and lost two. The intensity of spirit was shown by the shouting and haggling from the side lines.

The second stanza was no better than the first with almost as few points scored.

Pharmacy: Levitt (8), Barker (2), Ryan (2), Segar (2), Wattman, Callaghan, Bederman, McVey.

St. Mike's: Alger (2), Widman (2), Costello (3), Reilly (5), Barry, Lamb and Sweeney.

land and England. While in London the students are to visit the Tower, Westminster Abbey and Whitehall. Day excursions will be made to Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon.

The travel agent of the N.F.C.U.S., Mr. J. R. Johnston, will conduct the longer of the two voyages, it was stated. Mr. Johnston, a graduate of the University of Toronto, has been for the past seven years the federation representative in London, England, and has assisted many students with their plans for travel and study.

At the present time a questionnaire is being circulated amongst the Student Councils of Canada, the president said, and it is hoped that they in turn will obtain ideas on travel from their constituent members. It was pointed out that if the federation executive knew where and when the students wished to travel, and how much they wanted to pay, the extension of their program would be facilitated.

Any inquiries concerning the announced tour should be addressed to Mr. J. R. Johnston, N.F.C.U.S. Travel Office, 57 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

Yesterday's noon-hour hockey classic between St. Hilda's and U.C. up at Varsity Arena lacked the colour of their outdoor struggles. However, both teams were much more comfortable, although they seemed to be skating miles more indoors than on the stadium rink and seemed very remote. One aspect of the noon game which has been missing all along when these two teams played those delightful evening encounters was the enthusiastic gallery. Our wandering reporter estimated that at least 100 spectators were on hand yesterday, and whether there were that many or not they had a wonderful time and sounded like—well, two hundred is a conservative estimate. St. Hilda's have a substantial two point lead, but if the U.C. gals get their dander up today's final Final should be terrific. Same time, same place.

While St. Hilda's stick-handling and skating is superior to the Red and White talent, if U.C. can capitalize faster today on some of their breaks they should prevent Marg Donovan from checking in another shut-out record. While the ice wasn't exactly the answer to a maiden's prayer it was better than what is often served outdoors, and there weren't any complaints.

Today too the badminton results should finally be settled after the Kirby-Bryans match. The outcome of this challenge event will determine the Montreal-tripping team, and it will allow some time for the doubles players to get in their team practice. Of course the basketball seniors are tearing around today while completing arrangements prior to their trip to London. Since this is their only out-of-town trip the players are intent on enjoying every minute while not engaged in capturing the Bronze Baby. The intermediates gave them a scare Tuesday night when they defeated them for the second time, and it may be a good thing.

SAINTS WIN OUT

In the first period, Helen Wilson netted for the Saints on a perfect pass from "Tibs" Amesley, stalwart guard. Repeated attacks by the speedy Blue and Gray line were handled singly by Ruth Gordon in the Collegians' net, who turned in a star solo performance. In the second period, Patty Laupman was slightly injured but remained in the game after a brief rest. U.C., led by "Squish" Graham and Fran Barbour, camped around the St. Hilda's goal, but were unable to outwit Marg Donovan in the nets.

The third period opened with a fast attack from the Saints, and Joan Griffith after a beautiful rush from her own goal, missed the U.C. net by inches. Referee Shipman banished Marg Large for tripping, and the U.C. forwards tried desperately to tally during her leave-of-absence, but the rest of St. Hilda's staved off the attack until the team was again complete. On a fast shot from the boards Patty Laupman at the blue line completely tricked the U.C. goalie to give the Saints their second goal.

A quick check-up disclosed over twenty of the round brass wall outlets, but according to a reliable informant there are nearly fifty of them altogether in the theatre, guest rooms, kitchen, gyms and corridors.

Although the slinky hoses have been mistaken for the most venomous and vicious varieties of snakes by even eminent biologists, they are actually quite harmless and even rather weak, and have to be replaced fairly often. A new one was obtained last year. They are all twenty-five feet long and can be joined end to end to make up any length desired.

With Norman J. Alstedter

THERE COMES A TIME in every Exchange Editors' life when worries about oncoming examinations become too great. . . . Therefore, at that juncture, he folds his tent and steals silently away into the stacks to prepare for the future ordeal. . . . But before going, he places his column in charge of a guest columnist, and the first guest is Norm Alstedter. . . .

—Shuster.

There has been a bitter controversy going on lately between the readers of Life magazine and its editors concerning the human faculties which some animals are alleged to possess. The increased readers have another point for their case in a recent occurrence down at the Medical Building. It seems that a student was about to perform an operation upon a cat and was having some difficulty in getting the anaesthetic to do its work. Finally the cat lay still with closed eyes and the anxious student raised his scalpel and was just about to begin work when the supposedly unconscious animal sprang to its feet and after spitting accurately into the overwhelmed Med's eye, nonchalantly walked away.

We don't want to let this column degenerate into an "Animal Corner" but there is a whimsical story about a professor and a dog which comes out of the Economics Building. An oversize Newfoundland wandered into one of the lecture rooms and as is usual in these cases, the students showed their inherent love of dumb beasts by romping with the animal up and down the aisles. As the professor came into the hall, one of the more ambitious byos hoisted the dog onto one of the seats and sat down beside him. The tolerant professor, ignoring the intruder, began the lecture, but he was soon interrupted by a restless student whose olfactory faculty had been rudely assailed by the shaggy individual. Unfortunately the dog had taken a fancy to the youth and dogged him from seat to seat, all around the room. Growing weary of the performance the professor stepped down and gathering the animal up in his arms, walked out of the room, smiling sheepishly.

I suppose everyone has been struck one time or another, with the horrible fear that the corage might have gone astray before reaching the lady of our choice. It almost felled one of the campus Casanovas when on calling for his girl friend he noticed that the orchids he had sent were not pinned in any of the usual places. The young lady hanging her head shamefully, began her alibi, to the relief of the harassed young man. She had been delighted with the orchids and had immediately put them outside on the window sill and began to prepare for the evening's entertainment. But when she reached for them, after all the war paint had been skillfully applied, lo and behold, the flowers were gone. Unhappily a playful gust of wind had snatched up the token and dashed it to the frozen ground, strewn it far and wide.

ABOUT BOOKS

By Les Vipond

The Year Book of Swing, by Paul Edward Miller.

This little book fresh off the press of the Down Beat Publishing Company contains a wealth of information for serious swing fans as well as some peculiar and useless material. Miller himself is a ranking music critic to whom jazz owes an enormous debt. His erudition and flawless taste in swing matters places him in almost supreme authority in his field; he is highly regarded both by musicians and laymen, especially for his research and judgment on recordings.

Miller reviews recordings for the Down Beat and he has the amazing faculty of picking out what is worthwhile and lasting and discarding what is commercialism and junk. Thus he is reliable and useful in translating the milestones of the ragtime, jazz, swing triumvirate into a consistent whole. He does this in a chapter called A Representative Record Library, giving complete personnel wherever possible. He also lists the principal artists and gives the best examples of their work on discs.

He opens with a Miniature History of Swing, starting with Buddy Bolden, who played in New Orleans about the turn of the century. An example of his phrasing is given with the cryptic note that "the lyrics are unprintable". The outstanding orchestras are followed down through the years to Count Basie and the anticipated formations of Tennyson, Carter, Hampton and Wilson. His last sentence is indicative of the faith he has in the art form. "The era of swing is not yet completed."

Biographies of the leading swingsters are included and it is quite understandable that some people might be interested in knowing that Sidney Bechet and Louis Armstrong were born in New Orleans in 1897 and 1900 respectively. But when he valuates records and tells us that the Coumies Inn Orchestra recording of Yon Rascal Yon is worth $25 or that Chippie Hill's recording of Lonesome (sic) Weary Blues is valued at $13, that is the height of something or other. For if one possessed such items it would be foolish to sell them, and on the other hand anyone would be nuts to pay prices like that for scratchy old records.

A very useful vocabulary of swing is included. It is positively enlightening to know what tea-hounds, peck-horns, and Joe Belows are, almost as useful as knowing that schmooley is nothing but schmalz.

Like all good books it concludes with a Bibliography, which is surprisingly large for such a young art-form. One of the best spots in the books is the introduction written by the "King of Swing" himself—Fletcher Henderson. Fletcher proves himself to be quite a philosopher. "The objections to jazz are too many," he says, "it is too brassy, it is not music, it is cheapness. It is likely . . . that these objections will entirely disappear. Whether or not the current tremendous public interest in jazz will die out and be replaced . . . need not concern either intelligent musicians or honest admirers. It is encouraging to find that among a few persons a genuine understanding of jazz has at last flourished and promises to stimulate a wider interest and appreciation. . . . We have every reason," he goes on, "to believe that jazz today is a far cry from that of the future."

The book is poorly printed on awkward paper. It is full of typographical errors and looks as if it would fall apart in about a month. As an example of the book-makers' art it rates about Z.

of musician conductors dream about. Incidentally, he had an opportunity to play in Toscanini's NBC orchestra, but New York union regulations made it inadvisable to accept the position. Sir Ernest took the last movement with a vigorous reckless abandon, which was most exhilarating.

Dr. Sweboda conducted Smetana's Symphonic Poem Ullava a very fine work. There are some lovely effects in it, but the over-use of cymbals detracts from its beauty in places. The performance was spirited, and yet controlled and neat, unlike the two Slavonic Dances of Dvorak, which were just spirited.

This unfortunately reminds us of the first half of the program. The orchestra was having a very off hour, and played below form. Mozart's Nocturne was bad, the dances were, and Dvorak's overture, Husitska, was passable. The first half was probably under-rehearsed.

Jeanette Caille

Last night a program of piano music was presented at Eaton Auditorium by Jeanette Caille.

The music of Jeanette Caille is particularly characterized by one thing. Unfortunately this one thing is her facile technique. So predominant is it, that it obscures the more important musical qualities of her playing. On perhaps we should say that the more important musical qualities are not outstanding enough to reduce the technical, mechanical elements to their proper subordinate position. Technique is the basis of good music, but cannot in itself constitute such.

The program opened with a Bach Suite. In this the pianist displayed most fully that glib, mechanistic manner of presentation. The lower notes were somewhat heavy; the upper notes did not sing. Attempts to produce splendour resulted only in ponderousness. The only fine touches were occasional delicate staccatos. The Schumann which followed began promisingly with more distinct, warmer, better balanced tones. But it too tended to become submerged in rather toneless technique, with no clear merging of harmony.

The next section of the program was a collection of French compositions. The presentation of these which should have afforded plenty of contrast seemed monotonous. It was somewhat expressionless and the pianist seems to have no character of her own to infuse into her playing. Any delicacy of touch seemed, curiously enough, to be confined to one phase of her pianism—namely the staccato. For the most part there was a definiteness of tone which was almost hardness. This was used to advantage in Medtner's Poland's Morn but was a detriment in Debussy's La fille aux cheveux de lin.

The large group of Chopin compositions which completed the program showed more warmth with flickering staccatos in the Preludes which were as light and airy as they should be. And where the opening selections had been somewhat disjointed, these were close-knit with the changes of mood clearly delineated.

Strangely enough it was one of the encores which impressed us most. Here we discerned more depth and sincerity. And the superfluity produced by that technical predominance was at last removed.

U.C. Players' Guild

An all-women cast featured the U.C. Players' Guild production yesterday afternoon at the Women's Union. Six girls handled Philip Johnson's Spinners of Lusk with considerable gusto, and an amusing performance was the result.

The play is one of character study rather than plot, and the attainment of a 'middle-age' characterization is no mean feat, but the performers, with the aid of costume and make-up succeeded in obtaining the desired results. The entire play concerns itself with spinsterial gossip no more no less. Gladys Watson provided the small audience with most of the chuckles with a very competent bit of acting. However, there were plenty of minor flaws in the production. Perhaps the greatest was the lack of concentration on the part of the performers. They seemed to enjoy the amusing dialogue as much as the audience, and proceedings were held up every now and again while they enjoyed their own witticisms.

Another flaw which is characteristic of most campus offerings is the lack of imagination on the part of the director. In a play of this type where dialogue is all-important and action takes a back seat, something must be done to save the play from being too "talky". An imaginative director may introduce bits of business to overcome this defect, but sadly enough this is very rarely done.

Nevertheless, the performers played strongly enough to hold interest and the Spinners of Lusk may be considered another successful Guild production.

HECTIC WEEK-END CLIMAXES WINTER SPORTS PROGRAMME

Five Tons of Brawn To Battle To-night

Recital

The last Friday recital of the year will take place today at 5 p.m. in the music room of Hart House. The program will be given by Stephen Kondaks, who has made a name for himself as a viola player, and by Margaret Oliver, brilliant young pianist, who last year appeared at a Sunday Evening Concert.

ZWEIG WILL SPEAK FOR TOWN HALL

Noted Biographer in Exile from Germany to Talk on "History"

Stefan Zweig, novelist, playwright, biographer and historian, will speak on "The History of Tomorrow" at Eaton Auditorium on Monday. This talk is in the Toronto Town Hall Series which has already featured Dr. Paul van Zeeland, former Belgian premier and president of the Bank of International Settlement, and will soon present Andre Maurois, contemporary biographer and historian.

Stefan Zweig is well-known in North America for his biographies of Marie Antoinette and Mary, Queen of Scots. Both these biographies were used as bases for Hollywood productions about these figures in history, and the latter was used as the reference for a Broadway play starring Helen Hayes.

VIC WRITER'S GROUP DISCUSS MANUSCRIPTS

Professor E. K. Brown will be the guest critics at a supper meeting of the Victoria Writer's Group this Friday evening. The meeting is a work meeting and any members of the group who find it possible are asked to submit manuscripts for discussion. These may be verse or prose, fiction or non-fiction. The meeting will begin with discussion led by Professor Brown on some aspect of the problems of the modern writer.

The list in the college hall should be signed by noon today if you wish to attend the meeting.

Varsity, McGill, Queen's and O.A.C. Represented in Annual Assault-at-Arms

Almost five tons of mighty men of muscle will be on display tonight when the semi-finals of the senior intercollegiate assault-at-arms gets under way at Hart House. The first bout will start at eight o'clock and students are urged to get their special reduced rate tickets as soon as possible. The finals in all weights will be held on Saturday evening and tickets are good for both nights.

Varsity men will be defending five titles, with Captain Jack Piggott, Stew Parker and Dillon, out to retain their boxing laurels, while Schwenger and Brunet were last year's grappling champs at 165 and 118 pounds respectively. O.A.C. have two title-holders in Gilker and Burgess, who wrestle at 155 and 135 pounds, while McGill and Queen's have lone representatives in the boxing championship division in the persons of Stanley and McDonald.

Toronto have held the B. W. and F. title three times in the last five years. McGill won it in 1935, Queen's held it a year before that and Varsity have come out on top within the last two years.

The Blue and White team have representatives in every division of the mat and draw with the exception of heavyweight boxing. At 118, Cudde Dillon is considered to be a sure thing but will have a tough time getting past Abe Bazerman of McGill in tonight's fixture. The Montreal representative held the bantam laurels two years ago and is one of Bert Light's best bets on the Red team. Parker has already defeated the Tricolour and Aggie representatives once before and should retain his lightweight title with ease. Piggott will probably walk through his bouts at leisure, while Hood, Ramore, De Wolfe and Currie should face a little more competition. In the wrestling division, Schwenger, Brunet, and Phoenix are Toronto's best bets, but Messrs. Mustard, Dobson, Buchan, Amos, and Scott have shown up well in their tests against American colleges and the experience gained should help them go a long way in the week-end clash.

U.C. SOPH STOMP SHOWS NEW DANCE

Tomorrow evening marks not only the local but the world premiere of "The Imperial Swing". For the new dance which is to be introduced at the U.C. Although the dance has an essence of dignity, members of the Stomp committee who had a preview of the dance state that the jitterbugs will be able to adapt it to their style. "It contains something of each extreme," said Al Harris, chairman, "and should please all. Furthermore, it is fairly simple to learn."

Indications are that many students are anxious to learn the new step, said the chairman of the committee. "Ticket sales are going well, and we expect a good many sales at the door tomorrow night." Instruction in the dance step will be given throughout the evening in a separate room.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR CONFERENCE

Scholarships, National Unity, Democracy, Foreign Policy to be Discussed

Plans for the holding of a Regional Conference of the Canadian Student Assembly at Ottawa on March 4 and 5 were announced yesterday. The conference will be attended by representative students from the University of Toronto, Montreal, McGill, Laval, Queen's, and Sir George William's College.

The conference will consist of open meetings, and groups, under direction of prominent national leaders, on topics such as: scholarships and financing of education; national unity, democracy and freedom of speech; co-operatives and youth hosts; curriculum and student social relations; and foreign policy for Canada.

Representatives will be chosen at the conference to interview Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour, on March 6, and present the case for national scholarship. It is hoped that the meeting will add further weight to a similar (Continued on Page 4)

LABOUR MINISTER OUTLINES YOUTH TRAINING PROGRAM

Hon. N. McLeod Rogers, M.P., P.C., Describes Work Camps and Insurance

By Campbell McLean

Plans to extend the Dominion-Provincial youth training projects so as to provide work in forestry camps for hundreds of young Canadians, were outlined by the Honourable Norman McLeod Rogers, M.P., P.C., in an interview with The Varsity while visiting Toronto to speak at the Hart House debate.

"Work camps may serve a very useful function if there is proper organization for training purposes," declared the Minister of Labour, describing development of forestry training and conservation camps under his Youth Training Program.

Organized jointly by the Dominion and provinces, they have been operated successfully in British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec and New Brunswick, he said. This year, Mr. Rogers announced, the government plans to extend the camps and increase work being done in national parks.

In his opinion, the advantages of these camps are twofold. Single unemployed men are given productive employment at prevailing wages, and at the same time receive training to fit them for positions in the lumbering industry.

The Minister predicted that the present scheme would effect considerable improvement in the national parks through clearing of trails, reforestation and removal of slash. Young men given employment will spend part of every day in training under qualified foresters, he added.

Turning to the problem of unemployment insurance as discussed in the House of Commons Monday night, Mr. Rogers would not divulge whether he (Continued on Page 4)

Senior Blue Splashers To Defend Swim Title

Varsity Natators Entrain for Montreal to Meet McGill and McMaster

By San Lipin

Culminating a season of exhibition meets with American colleges, the University of Toronto senior swimming team entrain this afternoon for Montreal where, tomorrow night, they will defend their intercollegiate title for the third successive time against McGill and McMaster.

The Blue team's record to date leaves little doubt as to the outcome of the meet. Varsity have a stranglehold on the cup and only the arrival of swimmers at McGill or McMaster such as Clawson, Girvan, Earl, Murphy, Green, Staples, Clarkson, etc., will serve to lessen Toronto's grip on swimming supremacy. In the breast stroke there will be little competition from the other universities, the question being whether either Clawson or Girvan can again break the 200 yard breast stroke record. In the back stroke Staples' 1.10 for the hundred yards should worry Bourne of Montreal, and Green's 5.40 for the 440 will probably see him lapping his opponents. Clarkson has yet to fall beneath (Continued on Page 4)

The lecture-demonstration is to be given by George W. Wheelwright, of the Land-Wheelwright Laboratories. The movies are said to be the greatest advance in that field in years, and seeing them is compared to looking at actual people in a room through a glass window.

This lecture is the same one that Mr. Wheelwright will deliver before the Royal Canadian Institute tomorrow evening.

Blues Engage Western In Crucial Cage Classic

Sunday, 26th February will be Visitors' Day in Hart House, when members may introduce visitors, including ladies into the House between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m. MEMBERS WILL BE ASKED TO SHOW THEIR MEMBERSHIP CARDS AT THE DOOR. The building will be open for inspection. Afternoon tea (25c) will be served in the graduate dining-room.

Varsity Win will Eliminate Mustangs and Bring Title to Toronto

On Saturday at London Warren Stevens' basketball squad take the floor against Western in the most important game of the season's schedule. Everything about this crucial encounter points to a classic struggle. The two teams are easily the class of the intercollegiate league, and as the season's end approaches they are racing neck and neck for championship honours. Western are anxious to see the Varsity in the standing to get a chance to repeat their stellar performance of last year, while the Blue and White boosters are equally determined to win the laurels for Toronto. In their last appearance here the Purple and White squad showed themselves a team to be reckoned with even though the Toronto basketballers scored a decisive victory in their tilt at Hart House.

What might be the deciding factor in the tilt is the question of whether Hurley will be in the Western line-up. This chippie makes a grand defense-mate for his partner Casey, who travels the floor like greased lightning. Moreover, Hurley is the steady influence the Mustangs need in their defensive (Continued on Page 4)

VARSITY PUCKMEN TO AVENGE DEFEAT

If Dartmouth Beats McGill and if Blues Take Guelph—Title Hope Remains

Since a cold Friday night several weeks ago in Kingston, Aee Bailey's Blues have been waiting for the opportunity which is presented to them this Saturday afternoon in Varsity Arena, when they play hosts to the Queen's senior hockey outfit. For on that wintry Friday night, Flat Walsh's Tricolour squad delivered a death blow to Varsity's title aspirations.

The Blues' sterling win over the champion McGill Redmen last Saturday, left them with still an outside chance of winning the title. The Blues only hope is that Dartmouth, a strong American team, will hand Russ McConnell and company defeat number two when they meet on March the fourth. Thus with this slight ray of hope, and the desire to finish the season in a blaze of glory, title or no title, the Blues have been hearing down their practices and are really flying.

Jock Maynard, injured in pre-season, and who joined the club just before they entrained for the States, has come along fast and did a noble job of filling in Bill Morrison's place against McGill. Craig, Boddington, Callon and the rest of the forwards are in high gear and will be out to pour as many pucks past Goalie Burrows as time permits. The Blue rearguard, which has been steady all year, are hitting plenty hard and will be out to slow down the Queen's forwards with hard body-checks.

VARSITY FENCERS TO MEET MCGILL

Varsity's fencing squad will be attempting to lift the intercollegiate crown that was captured last year by McGill when they engage in the intercollegiate assault-at-arms this Saturday night in Hart House against teams from McGill and O.A.C.

Last year McGill took the title after a hard struggle with the locals, but this year things may be different. In their previous showings against teams from across the border the Blues have compiled a good record and will certainly extend their opposition to the limit.

Varsity is sending a three-man squad into action composed of Garcia, Emerson and Wilson. This is as fine a trio of bladesmen as can be found most anywhere and it will be a sterling tribute to Mr. Charles Walters if his proteges can cop the championship.

DAFFYDIL DRAWS CAPACITY CROWDS

Medical Society Presents Eight Skits Plus Free Epistaxis

Two mirth-shaken capacity audiences have witnessed the hilarious presentation of the Medical Society, Daffydil Night, in Hart House Theatre. Presented annually, this year's outburst of medical good spirits has maintained the usual low standard of former years. Seven skits, one from each year plus one put on by the Medettes, make up the program. A scientific medical journal called Epistaxis is given each patron as a memento.

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Aphrodite, The Dionne Quintuplets, and the medical staff take quite a beating during the course of the evening, as the close but not very clean competition for the trophy to be presented to the winning year for the best skit takes place.

The committee in charge of the affair consists of C. Sheard, chairman, J. Rathbone, B. Laski, L. E. Prowse, R. J. Probert, I. Schiffer, M. H. Little, K. L. Shapiro, C. L. Gray, T. West, G. Gold, M. H. Little, W. Wilson and R. Menies.

VICTORIA MEN TO DANCE AT JUNIOR-SENIOR HOP

On Saturday night Burwash Hall will be the scene of the Junior-Senior, Headgear Hop, to the music of Jack Taylor and his orchestra. For the senior year and all pass students of the class of 470 this will be the last class party. In an effort to get the party going earlier Tom Jackson, senior president, has announced that prizes will be given to all early arrivals. Dancing starts at eight o'clock.

The idea of wearing half-grown headgear originated with Ross Dunford. He plans to wear a spittoon. A froth threatens to come bald-headed.

To the Victor

It is a well known fact that the civil war in Spain was expanded and prolonged beyond its original proportions by the interference of foreign powers. Throughout the war Franco was aided by troops and money from the Fascist powers, despite numerous promises and treaties made to the contrary. The Loyalists, on the other hand, had moral and monetary support from the democratic powers. But since the outcome of the struggle has been decided, there has been a general shifting of alliances. Both Britain and France, on successive days, agreed to full recognition for Franco's regime as the most effective means of securing peace. As a result the Loyalists reduced their terms of peace from insistence upon a plebiscite and Spain's freedom from foreign influence, to a mere demand for some form of amnesty for the defeated forces and leaders. France is urging the nationalist chieftain to deal leniently with the Loyalists, and at the same time urging on General Franco "the need for our two countries to establish the relation of good neighbours."

Meantime the Fascist powers, determined to claim dividends for the men and money invested in Franco's cause, are hastening to outmanoeuvre France and Britain. Mussolini has stated that "It is the fashion with Fascist Italy to march with one's friend to the end, no matter what happens." Italian newspapers forecast a meeting between Franco, the Duce, and Hitler at some city in Northern Italy to forge a "common front". Franco is being courted back into the Fascist parlour.

The Generalissimo himself has not committed himself one way or the other. That he is not indifferent to British and French advances is evinced by the fact that his treatment of the defeated Loyalists has to date been surprisingly liberal. There have been no reports of mass executions, and only a few political enemies have been brought to trial. On the other hand, he is too well aware of the strength of his old allies to risk antagonizing them. And he is in no position to play one force against the other. For the present he is remaining enigmatical, but before many days the victorious Franco will have to show leanings in one direction or the other. And barring the precipitation of some unforeseen crisis, there can be little doubt which way he will turn.—B.K.

Wanted-- A New Etiquette

Etiquette, dictionary-defined as "the code of rules for living in polite society, has another aspect for Thorstein Veblen, author of "Theory of the Leisure Class". To him it is the technique of sustaining privilege, sponsored by those enjoying it. It is behaviour ritualized for the purpose of maintaining a status quo. As an example he cites the position of women since the Middle Ages, which is based on sentiment rather than merit, and protected by the trappings of chivalry. In every aspect of life we preserve customs for which there is no longer any need or justification beyond the fact that they have always been respected.

Mr. Veblen has here hit upon something fundamental. Most of the niceties which we preserve under the name of etiquette are quite defunct though harmless. As expounded by experts such as Emily Post and Margery Wilson, they require of the individual a passionless gallantry which is quite out of keeping with the modern mode of life. Middle class morality, that target for literary satire, has built up a code for its own protection. It contains many essential points, and is on the whole based on an adequate ethic. But middle class morality is fast changing its character. Consequently the corresponding code of etiquette is becoming obsolete and no new code is appearing to replace it. Attempts to formulate a new etiquette have been numerous.

Margaret Fishback's recent contribution to the subject, entitled, "Safe Conduct", illustrates this tendency in the United States. On the technical side, she dictates only a bare minimum of ritual; her golden rule is "Use the head and heart, and let the boiled shirts fall where they may." Present bad manners she attributes to the fact that urban dwellers, for the most part, are indifferent to each other.

Miss Fishback is right in maintaining that the best behaviour springs from a kind heart. But such spontaneous behaviour can hardly be called "etiquette" which, strictly speaking, implies a rigid code of rules for proper conduct, with more regard for grace than sincerity. A code of manners based on the dictates of the heart, which would "let the boiled shirts fall where they may" would not provide for the deficiency left with the passing of passionless gallantry. Sincerity is essential in dealing with the more fundamental issues of life, which etiquette does not touch. But etiquette is admittedly an artificiality, and as such its only justification lies in its being artistic or useful. The old ethic is now useless, since few people observe it; the new, as expounded in Miss Fishback's book, is hardly artistic. The need still remains for a code which is sufficiently in keeping with the modern mode of life to be applicable, and yet requires that gallantry and finesse which makes for gracious living.—B.K.

"The New Advance"

Many students have expressed interest in the articles printed in the magazine "The New Advance". This is definitely a youth magazine, for those devoted to maintaining the principles of democracy, and working towards a betterment of social conditions.

We have noticed that there are several graduates of the University of Toronto on the editorial board, and that each month there are at least two or three articles written by students at present attending this university. The editors are to be commended for the splendid issues that they have been turning out to date, and to be congratulated on the large circulation which they have attained. Especially commendable was the anniversary issue printed last fall, of which the make-up and cover design itself were worthy of praise.

The fact that there is very little advertising as yet, and that the writers are writing for the purpose of educating its readers on social, economic and political matters of tantamount importance, rather than for any material benefit, makes the magazine more commendable to some. However, we feel that if their editorial ideas were not so clearly defined in all the articles, and that a little more attempt to give the publication more popular appeal, it might achieve its purpose to a greater degree.

There certainly is a place in Canada for such a youth magazine, and we wish "The New Advance" the greatest of success in accomplishing its aim.

THE HEADMASTER DETECTIVE

It was dusk when the five chums of the Remove gathered in Tom Merry's study to toast a few kippers. Suddenly without a word of warning the door was flung open and Billy Bunter staggered in, bumping into the bronzed young Maharajah of Watabbore.

"I say you chaps," he roared, "the Grammar School bouncers have collared Massington-Massington Minor and stolen his hamper of tuck!" A whistle left Tom Merry's lips. Then he straightened himself as an idea struck. "There's only one thing to do, and that is to play a joke on the cads. What a lark." A murmur of assent ran around the room.

"Cave!" cried a voice and Tom Merry & Co. hid themselves under the carpet as Snell, the burly bullying prefect walked by twisting a bag's arm. Needless to say a snigger was fixed on his bloated face as the poor little bag cried out with pain. His toadies crowded around him and laughed with him.

Tom Merry jumped out from under the carpet and said, "Let him go, Snell, or I'll strike you." The bully tried to stare the brave lad out and finally dropped his eyes and slunk away. "I'll cane you later," he hissed to the doughty fag.

Ordering the fag to brew some tea and toast some crumpets, Tom Merry & Co. sat down to plan their little joke. After a half-hour all was set. It was the day of the Cup Match and a more thrilling day in the history of footer has never been recorded.

Tom Merry kicked off and passed to the Maharajah who in turn passed to Viscount Roderick de Smith-Dostoevsky who shot the ball into the Grammar School goal to give St. Pancras the lead.

Suddenly without a word of warning Tom Merry & Co. pulled out automatics which they had concealed in their footer boots and shot the whole Grammar School team through the hearts. Then they turned upon the Grammar School staff, and inflicted mortal wounds with long knives.

And as the happy chums of the Remove marched off the blood-soaked field they were greeted with cries of "Three cheers for Tom Merry & Co.!"

wiregarters

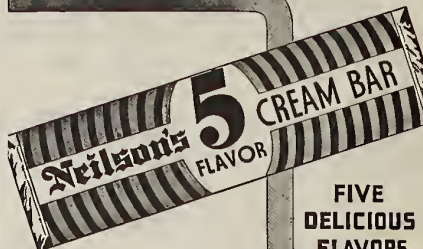

Tibbett's methods of singing. Whatever cold reflection may lead one to think of his voice and the way he uses it, it is impossible in the presence of the man to be other than enthralled by the effects he creates. Personality doesn't explain him completely—lots of people have "personality" as Hollywood understands the term, but there is only one Tibbett, and the results he produces must be attributed, in part at least, to some unique form of artistry that he has developed to fit his own vocal (and physical) characteristics.

There is quite a bit wrong with his voice. Often it is little more than a speaking tone of high quality with pitch added to it—and even so a great preponderance of overtones frequently makes his intonation markedly uncertain. Tibbett is an opera singer and takes the utmost advantage of the dramatic possibilities in his material within a very limited range. Outside of this his voice largely ceases to be effective, and he must rely on pantomime to convey his meaning. We don't hold these things against him, we praise the way in which he has turned them to his own ends.

As we have mentioned, Tibbett is an opera singer, and a robust one; therefore his operatic excerpts in last night's program at Eaton Auditorium were irreproachable, while a purist might maintain that his art songs of the more exalted variety smelt a little too strongly of greasepaint; it's much

By Bernie Shifman

THE CUSTOMERS WRITE

"Dear Dope," writes some guy that signs himself "The Iceman," "The University of Toronto, the Athletic Directorate, the management of the Arena and everyone else concerned ought to be ashamed of themselves for the disgraceful condition of the ice surface at the Arena last Saturday afternoon when the Blue team met the Redmen. The game started with the players skating in a little pond of nice clean water. By the third period the players would have to sweep away the snow with their sticks first, and then take their shots. You know yourself, that this game that might have been an epic on fast ice was turned into a rather good game of shiny with more than a usual amount of excitement. If it hadn't been for the enthusiasm of the crowd and the addition of a clock that ticked off the final seconds, the game would have been a disappointment to followers of Canada's national sport."

"Now this isn't the first time that the ice surface has been in this condition. For the past few years in the intercollegiate games and the interfaculty games the boys have been playing under a handicap of poor ice. So why don't you do something?"

"The Iceman" and others, including Lester Patrick, who made a similar remark, are right as to the condition of the ice last Saturday afternoon, so on receiving your letter we called Mr. Workman, who admitted it all. He claims that there was a breakdown in the coil and the ammonia leaked out, therefore they didn't get the temperature they should have out of the machine, and the resulting thaw in the ice surface. (Clear?) As for the interfaculty game it would seem a flood of the rink prior and after each game in order to have a good ice surface, thus losing two valuable hours, one before and after each game.

Writes "Pain in the Neck" regarding the seating accommodations at the basketball games. . . . After hearing you and your staff harp every week on the thrilling basketball games and the wonders of "The Moose" and "Scrubby" Aitchison, I decided to take in one of these marvellous games. After paying the nominal fee (I didn't mind that) I found every seat on the floor taken so I climbed the spiral staircase until I was dizzy and I reached the track. Here there were hundreds of people standing, and hanging over the rail in order to get just a glimpse of the game. I too pushed my way to one of the rails but the pressure of the crowd pushed me against the rails and almost cut me in two so I had to make way for a stronger guy. As a result, after coming all the way for the basketball game, I wound up in the swimming pool watching a bunch of fish. Now is that fair? Is it justice? After all you did promise a basketball game, or didn't you? Until there is better accommodation for the spectators at these games I refuse to attend them because I was laid up all Sunday afternoon with a pain in the neck from stretching to get a glimpse of the basketballers."

"My Pain in the Neck," we agree that the seating accommodations are scarcely adequate at present and we look forward to a large field house with the seating capacity of eight to ten thousand people. Meanwhile it is necessary to go back into the history of Hart House gymnasium. Speaking to Mr. T. A. Read the other A.M. we got a little dope on the building. Remembering that the House was started in 1911 when basketball was still a baby even in the States there wasn't the necessity for building a gym. Instead a large room was planned for classes in P.T. only. Then came the war and the partially completed building was converted into a military training camp. A miniature shooting gallery was put into the present Theatre. The swimming pool, which hadn't been filled with water, was used as a hospital, and the gym floor was used for a classroom for embryonic aviators. In 1919 basketball was emerging into an intercollegiate sport, glass backboards, now considered the ultra-modern thing in basketball, were set up in the gym. McGill refused to play on these backboards and they were removed. (We'll fix them if they try to put glass ones up in their projected gym.) The remains of one of the glasses is still in the rowing room.

So you see that the present floor is still the conversion of the old gym floor, and better seating capacity can hardly be expected. We pray with you for this new building and better accommodation. . . .

THE WIND UP

Be sure to get up and see the band, among other things at the Arena tomorrow afternoon when the Tricolour team, who defeated Varsity, putting them out of the championship class, tangles with the Varsity Ice Scrappers. . . . Over at London Stevens' mob meet their Waterloo when they play the Mustang hoopers, who have lost but one game, and that to Varsity. This game means the championship to Varsity if they win, and an additional game to decide the championship if they are unfortunate and lose. The intermediates will also go along for a deciding contest. The girls will be in London too in an attempt to bring home the baby, the Bronze Baby, to be specific, emblematic of the girls' basketball championship. . . . Tonight and tomorrow night the boxers, wrestlers and fencers will be swarming the Hart House athletic wing. Western, McGill, O.A.C. and Varsity will all be out to win the meet and you would be well advised to make the gym your hangout for this week-end. . . . Meanwhile, the swimmers go down to Montreal to engage in the intercollegiate swimming meet. So watch your Varsity for results.

A Profession Worth Considering

During the past few years many university graduates have recognized the merits of life insurance salesmanship as a profession, and have made it their life work. Intelligent, well-educated young men, faced with the important duty of choosing a career, are invited to investigate the opportunities offered by The Mutual Life of Canada, Canada's oldest and largest "mutual" life insurance company, which has room among its sales force for additional men. Our nearest Branch Manager, or the Head Office at Waterloo, Ontario, will be glad to give you full particulars regarding the company, and qualifications for representation.

100 points in the diving, thus assuring Varsity of an almost sure first place.

In the sprints, the combination presented by Earl, Murphy, Meen, Menzies and Clawson should dispel any hopes that McGill or McMaster might cherish. In fact the only thing that remains in doubt as to the outcome of the meet is whether McMaster can again gain more points than McGill.

The fact, however, that the meet is being held in Montreal may react in McGill's favour and serve to cancel Toronto's advantages due to faster swimmers. The Blue team's times this year have been record-smashing and in all, 8 records have topped since Christmas in competition with U.S. colleges.
However, Coach McCarty who has been giving his charges a very thorough and careful last week's grooming, is fairly confident that the Blue and White splashes will come through with flying colours. At any rate, the boys will give their all, which should prove good enough for another Varsity championship.

Kingston, Feb. 24. It's a mid-winter invasion of Toronto this week-end for Queen's, with the hockey team and boxers and wrestlers in town to try conclusions with their old rivals.

The boxing and wrestling team is more or less an unknown quantity with the latter having had no outside competition this year. The boxers fought in Toronto and Yale previously this winter and if the "flu" epidemic will only pass up the boys, they are being counted on for several wins.

Coach "Flat" Walsh will likely use the same team which proved so effective against Varsity in Kingston some time back. Mel Williamson at centre is the league's second highest scorer as well as a great defensive forward—Bill Morrison got exactly nowhere playing against him. Johnny Poupore, a Toronto boy, and captain, Norv Williamson, no relation to Mel, but a mighty good player just the same, are on the wings. On defence are Jim Neilson and Ding McGill, the latter a member of Ted Reeve's football machine.

Jim Burrows in goal is a product of Kirkland Lake and has one more year to go in mining. Bob Neilson, Rick Heppburn, Bob Cowley, Hal Carter and Mace Truman provide strong reserve strength.

Fearing Neither Man nor Beast Co-eds Flee at Sight of Mice

By Harry Eichler

The fear of mice, commonly associated with the tender sex, was the controversial problem into which a number of co-eds sank their pearly teeth when interviewed yesterday. Several sophisticated sophs and seniors, hoping to further the emancipation of the modern women's reputation from such Varsity hangovers, vehemently denied their fear of mice. One soph even went so far as to confidentially cite instances when she had disposed of several particularly obnoxious "rats" in one evening and with no ill effects. But on the whole, most of the co-eds prescribed to the Victorian mood in degrees varying from mild discomfiture to epileptic fits.

And from Whitney Hall comes the comforting news, from a petite co-ed who prefers not to be quoted, that there are no mice at the residence—not for years anyway, but a friend of hers, Miss K. Hagmeier also in residence, was being disturbed of late by swarms of mustachioed "rats" (are you listening Winchell?). But invariably she'd cut them down to half their size and send them off home, feeling more like mice than half nasty "rats".

Miss Dorothy Holbert, II Vic, "has had no experience with either mice or "rats", nor does she think this has dependence, traced from her knowledge and experience.

One young lady, when asked for her reaction to mice asked, "Are you pulling my leg?" Assuring her that we were restraining ourselves by a superhuman effort and that this was neither the time nor place, she asked, "Are you trying to out-rat the 'Cat'?" At this point your reporter made a hurried exit.

Miss Grace Genesee, II U.C., told of her repulsion at the sight of her brother's pet white mouse, but added,
"I know it's silly but I'm just built that way." But this did not annoy her near as much as some snowball-throwing "rats". It appears that these curious St. George Street rodents started tossing snowballs at her the other day and this annoyed her no end.

Recalling her summer experiences at a summer cottage occupied by a number of young misses, Isabel Cork, III Vic, stated, "We found several dead mice when we first moved in. I recall one was found on top of the radio and another was caught in a trap; neither this nor their scamping around at night, annoyed us unduly." She continued, "I don't believe that most girls are really afraid of mice running up their legs to such an extent that they must jump up on a chair and scream themselves into a state of hysteria." Miss Cork has had no experience with
"rats".

Blues Victorious on All Fronts in Assault-at-Arms Western Hoopsters Force Play-off

Margin of One Point Spells Toronto Defeat

Make Last-Minute Spurt to Overcome Varsity Lead

After the fashion of a condemned man earning a last-second reprieve, a grimly determined band of University of Western Ontario cagers swept back from the brink of elimination to gain a 42-41 photo finish decision over Varsity Saturday night at the London Tech gymnasium. The game ended on a high note of excitement amid highly dramatic circumstances as Western snatched the all-important victory from Varsity after the Blue Shirts appeared to have had the game and the championship safely tucked away.

Stymied by their opponents' defensive tactics and handicapped by the larger court, Varsity trailed Western until a concerted drive sparked by Moose Rogin was good for eight points and a 39-32 lead with four minutes remaining.

The lead appeared insurmountable but the Mustangs were far from felled. Krol and Farmer played inspired ball to garner a basket each and Farmer was successful on a free throw, making it 39-37 for the visitors with seconds remaining. Cahill plummeted Western hopes with a successful foul shot and

Outlines History of Japanese Island, Source of Eight Per Cent of World's Camphor

With Mr. George Mackay, missionary, as guest speaker, Dr. Edith Gordon's Bible Class met on Sunday afternoon at 44 Hoskin Ave.

The history of Formosa, an island off the coast of Japan, was briefly outlined by Mr. Mackay, who has preached there for thirty years. At first suspicious of Christians and the new faith, the natives have built up a considerable establishment of it today, said the speaker.

Formosa being Japanese territory, that language is the official one, but Chinese is the more common. Among the exports of this island is camphor, of which it produces eight per cent of the world's supply.

WHEELWRIGHT SHOWS POLAROID PROPERTY

Demonstrations of three-dimensional motion pictures in full colour, desktop illumination completely free from glaring reflection, and the principle of the much-talked-of Polaroid automobile headlights was included in a lecture-demonstration Saturday night under the sponsorship of the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall.

The new invention is considered so important that its properties are already being demonstrated in colleges and universities throughout the world. Shortly after the invention of the material it was put to use in anti-glare sunglasses. Now, it has been found possible to adapt the material to indoor use. The first lighting until now to employ the material is an instrument for desk lighting. The new unit works indoors very much as the special Polaroid glasses work outdoors and with the same effect; ability to see with greater precision and comfort together with freedom from eye strain caused by reflected glare.

Those familiar with the new material describe it as a transparent sheet like slightly darkened cellophane. Two sheets of it, one over the other may be transparent, or perfectly black, depending upon how it is turned. A bright light covered with it can be made to disappear, even if it is miles away, if the observer looks through another piece properly turned.

Mr. Wheelwright came armed with the largest portable "polariscope" ever built, and with special Polaroid spectacles for his audience to wear in viewing the three-dimensional colour movies.

MOVIE PRODUCED BY MANITOBA GRAD

According to The Manitoban the story of Cecil Broadhurst reads like a typical Horatio Alger romance. Broadhurst, who appeared on the stage of the Up-town theatre some time ago, when the picture Youth Marches On made its first appearance on the screen, has been touring Canada since that time making public appearances on first nights, and his fellow students from the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg have been acclaiming him as their own college product.

Typically the college boy, the young cowboy singer sang and acted his way through life and his studies, crooning cowboy love songs over the ether to his classmates to pay his board and fees. Then suddenly there came a difference in the type of songs sung, and Broadhurst started on a fantastic scheme with a bunch of his pals to make an all-Canadian movie.

The first shots started at Regina, and then they moved across to England, to finish up the picture and put in some sound effects. Now the picture Youth

PARTY PLANNED BY YOUTH MAGAZINE

According to The New Advance party committee, "The pie-eyed pipers of Hart House" are expected to pipe at their party in the Women's Union tomorrow night. The youth magazine, edited to a considerable extent by students of the university, is making plans to run a special U. of T. supplement in the near future, but at the present time reports that it has been running into certain economic difficulties, due to lack of advertising.

For Tuesday night they have arranged a party to help make up some expenses, and the dance band of Harry Sanders has been procured to supply the music.

STUDENTS OPPOSE SELECTION SCHEME

That a scheme of selecting only those with real ability to proceed to higher education as proposed by W. J. Stewart was declared by students here to be not only impossible but completely undemocratic.

When approached with the suggestion most students counter-queried "How could such a selection be made fairly?" Ruth Smith, III Vic, stated, "An arbitrary selection can not be made because some people find themselves in university. On the other hand there are some who go to university for professional training, who would be better fitted for a trade."

"Everybody should be allowed to go on if they wish and there is no definite way of choosing," firmly declared Jim McEwen, Graduate Studies.

III yr. Moderns was represented by Anta Faessler in whose opinion it would benefit the state if those people with the best brains had enthusiasm to work for the state, but speaking democratically, it would be a bad thing.

Eleven Out of Sixteen Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Titles
Taken by Toronto in Week-End Session at Hart House

The University of Toronto swept through all opposition to grab eleven out of sixteen boxing and wrestling titles in the Intercollegiate Senior Assault held at Hart House on Friday and Saturday. Spirited competition for fistic and grappling honours had the appreciative crowds at a high pitch of enthusiasm as the representatives of Queen's, O.A.C., McGill and Varsity battled their way to intercollegiate championships. The official scoring on the meet was Varsity 10-6-8, Queen's 2-3-4, O.A.C. 2-0, and McGill 1-0. The figures tell the story of Varsity's supremacy throughout. The Blue and White emerged with five wrestling champions out of eight weights, and the leather pushers garnered six boxing titles out of seven weights in which they had finalists. Their only loss was a default in the 175 lb. class. Queen's gained one boxing and two wrestling crowns, while O.A.C.'s lone victory was turned in by Carriere, who defeated Lapin of McGill in straight falls for the 118 lb. mat crown.

On Saturday afternoon the Intercollegiate Fencing Championships were held in conjunction with, but separate in points from, the Assault. In a twenty-seven bout tournament the Blue and White kept another championship on the campus as the foil-men of this university won both their pools against McGill and O.A.C. The bout score chalked up by Emerson, Wilson and Garcia against McGill was 6-3, and 8-1 against O.A.C. The Red team from Montreal which gave Varsity its strongest opposition, defeated the Guelph trio by a 9-0 whitewash. The Charles Walters Trophy for the individual intercollegiate championship, was also secured for Toronto. This championship goes to the individual fencer winning the most bouts during the meet. Captain Al Garcia and Bill Wilson of Varsity came through both their pools without dropping a bout, and had to stage a private duel which Garcia took at five hits to one to gain possession of the trophy.

The big and little gyms on Friday and Saturday provided the most crowd-pleasing action that could possibly be obtained anywhere. The boxing and wrestling had everything from knock-

Limberlost Lures Students With Gala Muskoka Week-end

Next Friday evening winter sports minded students will take advantage of the last Varsity ski week-end as they depart from the Union Station for the ski train enroute to Limberlost Lodge near Huntsville in the Muskoka district.

Judging from the reception of the first trip and the several which have succeeded it, this last special week-end shows promises of being the gala event of the snow-sports season, according to Mr. N. W. Kingsland, one of the directors of the lodge.

Taking advantage of a special rate which includes train-fare and lodging, along with meals, students are looking forward to a riotous two days of skiing, skating, skiing, tobogganing, bob-sledding, snowshoeing, skeet-shooting and what have you. Report has it that there are even elk in them that hills where a shot-gun never looks out of place.

With about 150 miles of all kinds of trails, more miles of glassy lake surface long frozen solid by old man winter, plenty of wild and rugged country for shooting, and a main lodge for old fashioned square dances mixed with round dancing, this coming occasion should leave nothing to be desired in the hearts of the sporting undergraduates who deem it fitting to go forth and challenge King Winter in his lair.

Fear is Felt For Students' Stew As Local Kitchen Loses Bunny

It is to be regretted that the Great Hall will be unable to serve the special "piece de resistance" at noon today. Earlier comers to the Sunday Evening Concert in Hart House last evening were startled to spy an individual of the species Lepus vulgaris bounding through the shrubbery west of the Queen's Park band.

Where could such a creature of the wilds have come from in the midst of a great city? Immediately one's mind ranged to the Physiology Department, with visions of some poor Med looking in vain for the subject for the nine hours lab. in micrurition (with apologies to the Daffydil committee). But that was definitely out for the animal keeper had just made a very careful check and the correct number were present. Could it have come from the Banting, or could it be that the Dean of Arts was going into the fur farming business to provide for the trimming for the cowls to be draped over the shoulders of Fair Graduates in June? But no, that could never be, for the trail by which the timid creature had escaped led back by devious ways to the far-eastern door of Hart House which leads not to the gymnasium, the swimming pool or the library, but down to the kitchens. Then like a flash the significance came upon us. The main property for a toothsome delicacy had escaped from the custody of the chefs. And so again we are sorry to announce that we are afraid that there will be no rabbit stew tomorrow.

Jittery With Isms

Toronto's getting more ism-conscious every day, and it seems impossible to criticize certain social conditions, or governmental schemes without being termed some one of the enemies of democracy, which end in an ism.

Everybody knows that democracy in Canada needs not only to press its pants, but to wash them in water sterilized with the antiseptic of public opinion and bespoken with a little love and charity. But when a newspaper takes up the cudgels for the worker and the down-and-outer, and expresses a need for social reform and is called Communist, poor old Marx must almost turn over in his grave at the way his principles are abused and exploited.

And when some individual perhaps a little young and immature and a little too conscious of the power of mining millions, starts a campaign for reduction of taxes, cutting down of over-government, and eradication of a few other abuses of society, but fails to show how it's all going to be done, he gets called a fascist.

But the unkindest cut of all comes when The Varsity is also accused of being fascist. And it comes straight from a professor who expects an editorial soon to appear, entitled "The Jew Problem", and starting with the words, "After all we have got to face the facts". . . .

The accusation is apparently based on the fact that we used the words "leadership" and "discipline" in a recent editorial. The latter smacks of Hitler, and the former smacks of the Globe and Mail, so as we decided we needed a little of both, we are propagating the ideas of fascism.

Now that the fact is out, we might as well take our stand. And in doing it, confess that we really couldn't tell whether "Professor Mamlock" and Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here" were hitting at what happens when a state becomes Fascist or when it goes Communist. It is a terrific indictment of our ignorance, we admit, but we really didn't know whether the incidents shown were descriptive of what happened under the Hitler regime, or during the early stages of the Russian revolution.

But whatever was represented it was pretty bad, and as it may have meant communism, from now on we take a definite stand against that great evil. The Red Menace is after all quite a menace. Those people who try to say that the forty some thousand votes Tim Buckley collected at the recent civic elections, were only votes cast by Toronto taxpayers who thought it would be a good idea to have someone on the Board of Control who would stir things up a little, and after all couldn't do any harm, are wrong. There is little doubt about it. They were votes cast by Torontonians who are Reds and they wanted to throw over the whole present regime.

We can quote Colonel Drew, the Globe and Mail and a few other authorities on the evils of Communism, but here is a statement made by one of America's greats, which should clinch the argument for all our readers.

In his beautiful literary style Al Capone writes: "Bolshevism is knocking (read knocking) on our gates. We can't afford to let it in. We have got to organize ourselves against it, and put our shoulders together and hold fast. We must keep America whole, and safe and unspoiled. We must keep the worker away from Red literature and Red ruses; we must see that his mind remains healthy."

So that's Communism disposed of. And the same goes for all the rest of the proponents of the ism doctrines who have sniffed at the fleshpots of materialism, and become immersed in their subversive idealisms.

But most people haven't become immersed; they're just sniffing.—A.C.F.

Ending Exam Worries

(Daily Northwestern)

Writing final examinations has long been an ordeal to some people—needlessly. It's all in the attitude you take. If you will follow the course suggested by many former Northwestern undergraduates, your worries will be over.

First, enter each examination room with the determination not to let the professor put anything over on you. Just because he knows more about the course than you do doesn't mean that he can ask a lot of questions that you can't answer. If he tries to slip in a tough one, just show him where to get off by refusing to answer.

Second, add a bit of humour to your writing. Professors like to see smart remarks in the usually drab lines of examinations. If he asks you what you know about Bacon, tell him it's the nation's favourite breakfast food, or striped ham, or shrivelled pork, or something clever.

Don't take the exam too seriously. Just because you're writing it, don't exclude yourself from social relationships. If you feel like talking to the person next to you, go ahead. Remember that you get more out of college from the people you know than the course you take.

Finally, don't bother to write legibly. If the professor can't read your writing he'll always give you the benefit of the doubt. After all, you're writing in a hurry and can't be bothered with what it looks like.

We assure you that if you follow these suggestions, you too will soon be a former Northwestern undergraduate. Don't say we didn't tell you.

EDITORIAL NOTES—

It is a pleasure to be able to report that President Cody is almost completely recovered from his recent illness, and hopes to be able to return to his office again on Tuesday. The Varsity is sure that it expresses the feeling of the students of the University in welcoming back the President, and in expressing best wishes for his continued good health.

* * *

Students who have not yet availed themselves of the opportunity which they have of attending the Monday Pops, should do so today if possible. After all we may not realize how really fortunate we are in having the privilege of these concerts, and anyone who has any appreciation of music at all should not fail to hear the Hart House string quartet as often as possible during this series.

Town Tonics

Once a year, a group of local performers put their heads together and present to an unsuspecting audience a merry concoction of music and nonsense. Jane Mallett is the ringleader of the outfit, and the production is staged at Eaton's Auditorium under the title of "Town Tonics".

Last Saturday evening, a capacity audience witnessed the latest edition of the Tonics, and it provided a refreshing change from the usual run of stage entertainment. The performance consisted of skits, impersonations, musical tid-bits and stuff. Call it what you will—hodge-podge or pot-pourri, it's still amusing entertainment.

Jane Mallett provided most of the chuckles of the evening. Her songs and monologues were worthy of Beatrice Lillie, and her impersonation of Elsa Maxwell was the highlight of the performance. Frances Adaskin provided a more serious note with her charming piano moods, and her interpretation of several songs.

Unfortunately, the male element of the show was decidedly inferior to the weaker sex. Frederick Manning and F. J. Mallett both failed completely to give the audience anything to smile about. However, in spite of their lack of talent, they played blithely

Berlin: Today your screwloose reporter finds himself at the top end of the Rome-Berlin axis, and certainly there is no oil lacking at this end to facilitate turning. But we are ahead of ourselves.

Yesterday we arrived at the border, and were received by a welcoming committee of customs officials. Captain Otto Spitzbube, chief customs officer, was kind enough to assist us from the tender of the Berlin Express—with the business end of a bayonet. Then came a cursory, routine search for contraband and seditious literature. First to be found was a copy of The Varsity (for identification purposes only) and this was taken to the three o'clock book-burning.

The rest of the search was somewhat embarrassing to my new friend, Otto, who, on discovering the contents of our pockets, blushed, averted his eyes, and muttered: "Ah, youth!"

From here we were allowed to proceed to Berlin, the Reichskapital. The first thing to be visited, was, of course, the newspaper offices since we wished to arrange for an interview with Der Fuey himself. There are several daily newspapers in Berlin, but only one office, since they all print the same stuff. Here we met a man called Gables, who is controller of the printed page. One look at him and we found what was wrong with the press in Germany.

As we entered he was refusing advertising space to a firm dealing in horsewhips and saddlery, and interrupting him in this work, we made arrangements for the aforementioned interview.

Wandering through the streets of the capital, we are struck by the new spirit of Germany. (The oldest we can get is 1935 stuff.) There are so many kinds of uniforms here that the managers of the theatres back home would turn green with envy, and look with a dissatisfied eye upon their ushering staffs. But there is, above all, a spirit of happiness here. The noise of the crowds making sounds like people enjoying themselves is almost enough to drown out the rifle shots, smashing glass and a few assorted screams.

Night is falling, so we are going out to study more conditions. See you in an early issue.

A glamorous Dorothy Lamour rebelling against the sonnet in which she has been so successfully typed in jungle pictures stars in "St. IMPERIAL Louis Blues" now at the DOUBLE IMPERIAL. As the famous Broadway "native singer", Miss Lamour tires of her typed role and runs away to a showboat where she conceals her identity and sings in complete costume. Much of the usual showboat life is shown.

The picture jumps in a rather disconnected fashion from music to drama while Maxine Sullivan, the famous coloured blues singer sings a few nice numbers, among them of course the song after which the picture is named. You'll enjoy the famed "double talk" in the style of an auctioneer.

An interne crime drama is the second feature. "Persons in Hiding" uses the same method of the Crime Does Not Pay series but is more interesting because of the finesse with which the leading feminine part is played by Pat Morrison.—B.G.

in the university believed that academic standing was no foundation for a choice for higher education.

The view of Prof. Ashley of the Economics Department on Mr. Stewart's proposal was that the standards of entrance into the university have already made that selection very effectively. He went on to say that a decrease in the attendance necessitates a corresponding decrease in the staff, thus limiting specialization on the part of the teachers.

A different slant was given by Hal- verson, IV yr. C. & F., when he said it would be best if the better brains went to work as soon as they left high school and let the poorer brains go on to stagnate and graduate to a

WEEK-END BRINGS VICTORIES FOR SWIMMING, GYM TEAMS

Swimmers Surge Ahead Of McGill Foes; Gymnasts Retain Cup

Montrealers Trail 18-51; McMaster Ranks Third with Only Eight Points

Montreal, Sat. Feb. 25: Leaving McGill and McMaster easily behind, the University of Toronto missed a total of 51 points to win the third consecutive senior swimming title, while McGill came a distant second with 18 points and McMaster third with eight points. Varsity jumped into an early lead by taking an easy win in the medley relay a lap ahead of McGill in second place. A first and second in the diving, the 100 free and the 200 breast put the inspired Blue splashes in an undisputed position of first place and then on it was just a question of how far ahead in points the U. of T. team could get.

The well trained McCattian swimmers lost a first place in only one event, where the speedy Pete Bourne of McGill just managed to move out Staples of Toronto in the backstroke after trailing far 95 yards. The two most spectacular races of the evening were the 100 free and the 440 free. Nels Earl in the 100, after having previously won the 50 free, put on a Frank Merriwell finish and forged ahead to take the event. The 440 ended in a dead heat. Lewington of McMaster and Green of Toronto battled out the 17 lengths, with Doug Green of Toronto, clinching his third year on the senior intercollegiate team, after trailing for the better part of the race, slowly closed up the distance separating him from Lewington and tying for first place in 5 mins. 41 secs. Green's fastest time in senior competition.

In the diving both Clarkson and Badman performed beautifully, easily outclassing their rivals. In the 200 yd. breast stroke, Clawson, as was expected, again broke the intercollegiate mark, turning up the 200 yards in 2:36.1. And so for another year Varsity remains senior champs and Coach McCatty having done his work, can turn his attention to the intermediates, who compete next Saturday.

University of Toronto's gymnastic team retained the Carson Cup, emblematic of the intercollegiate championship, for the eighth consecutive year on Saturday night. The Blue squad, coached by Charlie Zwygard, scored an impressive victory over McGill, with nearly a maximum number of points.

For the first time since the sport's intercollegiate inauguration a Queen's team was present by invitation, and probably will be officially entered next year. Chaput, the Triclorol tumbler, gave an interesting exhibition.

The star of the competition and winner of the Werry Cup for the individual championship was "Stu" Macdonald. "Stu" edged out his team-mate Patterson by a 902 to 881 score out of a possible 1200 points. This is the third year that Macdonald has emerged as victor, previously winning in 1937 and 1935.

Top scorer for McGill was Henderson with 756 points. The highest recorded score of the evening was Macdonald's horse total of 265 points. Patterson tied in the parallel and mat competition while the high bars went to Lester of Toronto.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shifman

"LISTEN TO THE PARTY LINE"

"Say Dearie . . . I had the cutest time this week-end. Who'd I go out with? A collich boy . . . you know, an 'Oike-toike, oike-toike' kid took me to 'Bee Double U and Phew' . . . no it ain't a fraternity house but it's almost as rough as one . . . it's a sort of double card of boxers and wrestlers like they have down at the Gardens with the Phew standing for fencing or wrestling . . . I don't know which. You don't know what the fencing is for? No! not that kind of fencing, I mean sword fighting like Ronald Coleman in the Prisoner of Zenda. . . . Say, what a night, the place was packed and they had a real ring and everything. I sat right up close so that I could even see what the fighters looked like and not have my eyes burn out on account of the smoke like in the Gardens. . . . Gee the cutest little guy called The Wolfe was the prize of the evening . . . he was fighting someone called McGill I think . . . everyone kept hollering 'cum on McGill'. His first name was Stanley. This Stanley fellow in the first round kept hitting the Varsity boy until his teeth all fell out of his mouth in a sort of bridgework and the referee picked up the plate and threw them out of the ring. He smiled later and showed another set of teeth . . . these college kids are marvellous . . . imagine two sets of teeth in his mouth at the same time so that it shouldn't spoil his smile. Anyway this Wolf got mad and started hitting the Stanley boy until everybody wondered who was holding him up. Wolfe cracked himself with everything except the time-keeper's hammer and this other kid just stood up there and took it . . . everybody applauded for ten minutes after the decision, winner and loser alike. Blood? There was pails of it . . . one of the boys called Raemore worked like a surgeon . . . he cut up Olwyn's face along every vein until we realized why they call McGill, Redmen . . . boy, was it obvious . . . but there were a few knockouts. . . . In the baby class, you know the lightest division, Dillon was fighting an amateur Abramson, and it looked like Dillon was going to have trouble when suddenly Abramson caught one on the chin which sent him to the floor with such a thud that he was knocked into the middle of his final examinations . . . another kid, Parker, also from Toronto, got a knockout, but I think it was a technical one . . . the last boxing bout of the evening was between my favourite 'Piggy-Wiggy' Piggett and Percheson . . . for the first time in U. of Toronto's boxing history Piggett actually was hit about four or five times . . . then with about a four inch crack with his right hand he hit the button that starts things spinning and Percheson had all the starch taken out of him . . . The rasilin' wasn't half as good as the boxing . . . there was really only one bout that I enjoyed . . . Schwenger, a fellow with a towel wrapped around his head, wrestled Bunson and it was beautiful . . . Schwenger got arm locks, gave elbow rips and everything, and Bunson broke them all . . . Schwenger finally got one fall on a wrist-lock and the crowd cheered for an hour . . . Yes, I got his autograph . . . The funny bout of the evening was one between David and Polith . . . so help me one stood about seven feet, weighed two hundred and thirty, while the little chap stood five foot plus and weighed barely over 175 lbs. The little fellow had nerve and tried to push this big guy around . . . and just simply wore himself out . . . I felt like throwing him a sling shot and a pebble because it was the only way he could move the big boy . . . the bout ended with Phoenix 'the David' beating the Goliath, Queen's Malachowski . . . No I didn't sneeze . . . it's a name and he understands Pithauskie of the football team, took Amos in a close wrestling bout, which added to McDonald's ceded win in boxing and Wells in the wrestling makes up Queen's list of wins in 'Bee Double U and Phew'. . . . After the wrestling matches I was so tired . . . every time they applied the pressure I tensed with them so that I got a cramp in my feet and arms . . . no, I'm better now . . . but it sure is hard to talk, my throat is all sore from cheering the kids along . . . so I'll say goodbye Mazie dear . . . I'll see you at the boxing bouts tonight.

outs and slug-fests to lightly skilled sparring and grappling. As the assault began the Master of Ceremonies, Dr. W. Eason Brown, asked the audience to reserve any display of their enthusiasm for between rounds, a request which was permanently disregarded five minutes later as two scrappy 118-pounders warmed to their work. In this initial encounter Moses of O.A.C. rallied gamely to provide a whirlwind finish in the bout he lost to Abramson of Queen's. One of the most popular bouts on Friday was the 125 lb. fixture in which Hood of Toronto came from behind, scoring three sensational knockdowns to take a decision from Anderson of Guelph. Anderson's left jab had Hood disconcerted at the beginning but the Varsity boy avoided danger in the in-fighting by crouching low and then coupling up with a right to Anderson's head.

Saturday's boxing got off to a good start when Cudger Dillon scored a first round KO over Abramson of Queen's. The latter tried hard to make it a fight but the will Dillon was too experienced and soon hung a right on his chin to finish it off and take the 118 lb. crown.

Parker repeated his TKO of the previous evening, taking the 135 lb. title. Recovering from early jittery, he waded in to deliver a series of punishing wallops which were clinaxed by a brisk one-two punch at 2:10 of the first round.

Jack Piggett produced the expected knockout in the 165 lb. division. He sent the crowd home dazzled by the swiftness of his attack as he laid away Percheson of Queen's with a blow that travelled all of eight inches.

The best grappling of the meet was provided by Bill Schwenger of Toronto at 165, wrestling the popular Bunston of Queen's. The Toronto football flash entered the ring with his head swathed in a bandage to protect a badly hurt left ear. His attack was concentrated on a punishing armlock, and he finally tied Bunston in a neat bow and rolled his shoulders onto the mat for the only fall of the bout.

Title Hopes Shattered For Senior Pucksters

Varsity Loses 4-2, Year's Second Defeat at Hands of McGill Team, Now Headed for Championship

Varsity's hopes for a senior intercollegiate hockey title were completely shattered Saturday afternoon in Varsity Arena, when the Blues succumbed to the battling Queen's Gaels for the second time this year, and came out on the short end of a 4-2 score. With this second loss at the hands of Flat Walsh's sextet, the Blues were eliminated from any possible playoff with the champion McGill squad, even if the Redmen lost to Dartmouth next week, and McGill reign supreme in intercollegiate hockey.

A long shot which hit the top of Bing Caswell's stick and bounced into the net was the deciding factor in the game. With the score tied at one-all on first period goals by Cam MacLachlan and Mel Williamson, and eight and a half minutes gone of the last period, Truman, Queen's defenceman, shot from just inside Varsity's blue line, and the puck ended behind Caswell in the net. Before the Blues could recover from the shock, and just twenty seconds after Truman had put Queen's one up, Norv and Mel Williamson combined on a pretty goal, with the former flicking in a neat corner shot. This just about put the game on ice, and with the Blues battling desperately in an effort to tie it up, Queen's added another tally with Mel Williamson breaking away from the Varsity players, who were swarming around the Queen's net, and scoring his second goal. With only two and a half minutes remaining, the Blues finally retaliated with Thor Stephenson batting home the puck after a furious scramble, ending the scoring and the game.

Hard fought from start to finish, with frequent penalties, the game was featured by the body-checking and rough play of both teams, with Bob Copp leading the bumping brigade. The blonde defenceman was stepping into every Triclorol player who came his way, but didn't get a chance to upset Johnny Neilson, Queen's defenceman, who had aroused the spectators' ire. Once again, the two Williamsons stole the show, combining for three out of four of the Queen's goals, and were constant threats. Bobby Neilson and Rick Hepburn of the second line surprised with their tricky work, and combined effectively throughout the game. Best sharing honours with these players was Goalie Jim Burrows, robbing Varsity of several shots labelled goals.

The Blue forwards never seemed to hit their true stride and seemed to lack their usual driving power, probably Bill Morrison's absence accounting for a large part of it. Dick Craig and Jock Maynard showed up better than the rest and came close on more than one occasion. The Blue rear-guard played a steady game, rocking the Queen's forwards with stiff checks and taking a large part in Varsity's offence, scoring both goals.

Varsity: Goal, Caswell; defence, MacLachlan and L'Heureux; centre, Maynard; wings, Callon and Craig; subs, Cassels, Ross, Roddington, Copp and Stephenson.

Queen's: Goal, Burrows; defence, J. Neilson and McGill; centre, R. Neilson; wings, Carver and Hepburn; subs, Truman, Carter, M. Williamson, N. Williamson and J. Poupore.

usual heady type of ball, opened up the scoring, followed immediately by a beautiful solo attempt by petite and blonde Emily Irving of the Reds, who was outstanding during the entire meet as one of the tops in forward ranks. Helen Gurney, diminutive spark for the Blue and White, counted just before the period ended on a McGill charging foul. Jean Lennox, Varsity guard who turned in some fine intercepting efforts in the local zone, incurred a penalty upon which McGill failed to tally a minute after the second period began. Emily Irving scored on the rebound to give McGill a 9-8 lead which they immediately lost as Beryl Pollock tallied accurately on a two-count McGill penalty. The Scarlet squad tore down the floor in an attempt to win back the lead, but Patsy McLaren grabbed the loose ball, passed to Janie Church, who brought it into the forward area where Beryl Pollock made it count on one of the smoothest plays of the day. McGill guards were hard-pressed in checking the brilliant forward attack featured by the home team and rangy Ruth Schofield with Mary Ellen Rossiter worked overtime disposing of rebounds and breaking up sure-fire shots. Florence Lincoln, Scarlet threat, brought the count up to 12-10 with a one-point foul count. Mona Robinson, ace forward and captain for the Scarlet squad, was carried from the game with a wrenched knee, but was back in the third quarter leading the McGill attack. The Mount-real players left the crowd gasping with their tricky floor work, but the Varsity defence was impregnable. Bobbie McDonald chalked up two more points on free shots prior to Janie Church's encounter with the wall. The Varsity guard came up grinning and play continued with the local captain counting again on McGill penalties. Play became much faster as the Reds strove to reduce the Toronto lead, but Helen Gurney broke away to tally on a short shot from beneath the basket. In the fourth quarter Varsity led 17-10 but Florence Lincoln again raised McGill's hopes with a long accurate hoop, after both teams had missed chances on free shots.

Varsity now strove to maintain their lead and added only one more basket to make the count 19-12. A second later Emily Irving gave the Reds their last tally, then failing on a free shot for McGill. The whistle blew with the score 19-14 for Varsity. McGill: Flo Lincoln (3), Mona Robinson (5), Emily Irving (6), Norma Robinson, Ruth Schofield, Mary Ellen Rossiter, Peggy Lyndale, "Posy" Power, Pearl Summers. Varsity: Bobby McDonald (9), Helen Gurney (5), Beryl Pollock (5), Janie Church, Patsy McLaren, Jean Lennox, Nora Ream. Semi-finals—Varsity 18, Western 11. McGill 16, Queen's 15. Finals—Toronto 19, McGill 14. Western 14, Queen's 5.

the case of Debates or Squash Racquets Committees) and provided that a representative from his own faculty or college has not already been elected by the outgoing committee. It is brought to the attention of members that the faculty or college of the men carried over to next year's standing committees does apply in the working of the minimum vote rule except in the case of the Debates and Squash Racquets Committees.

It is pointed out that the Squash Racquets Committee has this year for the first time the status of a Standing Committee and therefore all members of Hart House may vote. Nominees for election shall be regular undergraduates and must sign the following statement:

"I have played squash at least six times during the present academic year and my name is now on the ranking list (A, B, or Freshmen section) and has been there at least three weeks prior to the date of the nomination".

The Camera Committee is elected by the undergraduate membership of the Camera Club and nominees must be undergraduate members of the club. The elections for this committee are held on the same day as the general elections (Wednesday, 9th March) in the Camera Club rooms.

The Glee Club Committee elections are held in the Music Room at the regular club rehearsal of Tuesday, 7th March. Only undergraduate members of the Glee Club are permitted to vote and to stand for election. Members are reminded that they must present their club membership cards in order to vote.

The Warden's office will furnish any further details on the elections.

Sunday Evening Concert

Last night in Hart House the Glee Club presented a well-balanced program in one of the most enjoyable musicals of the season's offerings. Those who heard their Christmas broadcast and were also present last night were able to judge how far the club has come in the last few months. Though it is impossible for The Varsity's reviewer to have a completely objective point of view of such an event, it can fairly be said that the organization has reached a high standard of excellence. The program was opened with the pleasing Roll the Old Chariot Along, which was enthusiastically applauded. This was followed by a negro spiritual, Steal Away, which was done with a peculiar softness of tone, truly indicative of the skill of the group. The Gaelic Oxianne Processional, admirably suited for such a program, was well handled.

Special mention must be made of the performance of the Pipes Group under Weldon Kilburn for their enjoyable presentations. In this department there has been a very marked improvement over last year. Only once did the pipes go off-key, just at the finish of The Reapers, but even this did not mar the number. The players also attempted a difficult Swedish folk-dance and carried it off in a pleasing manner.

George Lambert, a frequent visitor at these musicals, joined the Glee Club in a group of six numbers which revealed the club as being easily adaptable to the role of a supporting body. Of the selections the concluding number, The Old Super, was the best done and when the audience demanded an encore at the finish of the program Mr. Lambert wisely repeated this number.

All together it was a performance which showed the Glee Club as a well-trained aggregation which reflects much credit upon its director, Dr. Charles Peaker. He can only feel, as the audience did, that his efforts have once more met with unequalled success. Such a group as the Glee Club, on the basis of last night's performance, is an asset to this university. Let us hope that the future may bring even greater glory.

Rated underdogs as they entered Friday's competition owing to the absence of two of their strongest players, Varsity co-eds swept through Western and then McGill to annex intercollegiate basketball honours and incidentally win the Bronze Baby this week-end in London. Jay Bennett, Varsity guard just got to London in time to take the week-end rest cure at St. Joseph's Hospital where she has a heavy cold. Marg Pickering, forward and usual Varsity live-wire, was not allowed to play, owing to a weak ankle, so the team played both games without substitutions, which is some accomplishment, especially when they were so successful. The most thrilling game of the week-end apart from the Saturday night heart-breaker, when Western seniors eked out a win over our men's seniors, was the game between Queen's and McGill, Friday night, in which the most exciting battle of the meet was staged (all for the privilege of meeting Varsity in Saturday's finals). It was anybody's game until the final whistle and even then it was doubtful (the same thing occurred in the men's senior game Saturday night), but the decision went to McGill co-eds 16-15.

During lunch on Friday when all the visitors were entertained in the cafeteria at the University Science Building where the students have a joint lunch room, the Bronze Baby was temporarily forgotten while the Western Gazette was passed around. The paper carried the social aspects of the meet, and printed the names of all players and their "dates" for the following night. Since none of the men were known to them, the players peppered the Mustangs with vital questions—and for a while bedlam ruled.

After the banquet Saturday night all the teams went up in their formal clothes to see the men's game, after which everyone went back to the hotel for the dance. More fun to see a section of about fifty girls at a basketball game in best bib and tucker trying to out-shriek each other with college yells. It certainly lent atmosphere to the whole thing. Next year when Toronto are hostesses for the meet, you will see what it's like.

Hart House To Open Rare Book Collection

First Time in Twenty Years that Books may be Seen First Hand

For the first time in the twenty years that the Hart House Library has been in existence, its collection of rare books and first editions is being opened to all members. Formerly the books could be seen only in the display case in the library; now, anyone wishing to do so may examine the copies first-hand.

Hart House has been adding to its collection of valuable books for many years. The display case was introduced in 1935 as a means of exhibiting the costly volumes without risk of damage. For the earnest bibliophiles of the university this was felt to be inadequate; only eight books each open to the same place for a week, can be shown each month and so it was decided to let anyone interested view the entire collection privately.

Hart House has what is considered to be a fine group of rare editions and private press books. There are over sixty volumes in all. Two of the most interesting are now on view in the library, a facsimile of the Canterbury Psalter and a very costly edition of Maria Chappelaine. The illustrations of the latter by Clarence Gagnon took three years to complete. Even Hart House was unable to get a first edition of Euripides, but it does possess two finely printed volumes, translated by Gilbert Murray. There are many old

Why the blockade in the U.C. rotunda these last few days? Why the untold U.C. Lit. posters. Although the posters have always been a source of interest to the students, they appear to be out-dated themselves this year.

Many of the posters are drawn by A. W. B. Hewitt, a grad of '28, who has been making money for the past six years. Mr. Hewitt stated that "the boys running for office seem more interested this year in having good posters made than ever before."

GEOLOGY PROFESSOR DIES AT HOME HERE

Funeral services for the late Arthur Coleman, professor emeritus of geology, will be held this afternoon at three o'clock in Convocation Hall. Coleman died here Sunday in his eighty-sixth year.

Although retired from the teaching staff of the university in 1922, Dr. Coleman had continued active work in geology. He had planned a trip to British Guiana for geological work this spring, but cancelled it due to illness.

Dr. Coleman was the recipient of many awards and honours during his life. He was associated with the Geological Society of America, The Royal Canadian Institute, The Royal Geographical Society, and many others.

He was born in 1852, and educated at Victoria University. He was the recipient of honorary degrees from universities in Canada and abroad.

Recognized as the dean of North American geologists, he was the author of many scientific treatises and was a contributor to various journals.

He was awarded the Murchison medal for distinguished geological investigation in 1910 and the Flavelle medal by the Royal Society of Canada.

Interment will be in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

VIC HOOP-POPPERS HOLO DOCTORS TO TIE

St. Meds put an end to St. Vic's unbeaten string of four straight by holding them to a 23-11 tie in the upper gym yesterday. Down 9-13 at the end of the first half the doctors matched Vic's speed and the game wound up in see-saw fashion with Levy of Meds scoring the tying basket. Wallace Brown and Dales of Vic sank some real beauties, while Van Wyck got four points during his three minutes of play. Takefman, Levy and Mettler of Meds were the chief point-getters for their team.

St. Meds: Levy 6, Langer, Danno, Mettler 5, Boettger, Lane 3, Kyle 2, MacKinnon, Takefman 7.

St. Vic: Jarvis, Dales 5, W. Brown 8, Phillips, MacPherson 2, Prince 2, Sheldrake, Van Wyck 4, H. Brown 2.

in considering for whom to vote.

Stated Kay Cannon, II U.C., "I don't think I'd be influenced by posters, I want to know something about the person I vote for." Betty Ryan, II U.C., differed in her opinion by saying, "I think it is a novel idea, and I definitely think the most attractive poster will get the most votes."

The campaigning in Trinity College and Victoria College is quiet in comparison with U.C. elections. The doctors go in for it in a big way and go so far as to leave "vote for" pictures on seats in lecture rooms.

AWARDS TO BE MADE AT ATHLETES' DANCE

Next Friday, March 3, the stalwarts of the scarlet and gold will wind up the season's social activities with the annual Athletic At-Home. The celebration will begin with dinner in Burwash Hall at 6.30 p.m. and will continue with dancing at Wymwood to the music of Jack Taylor and his orchestra.

Over thirty college colours will be presented to members of winning teams. Some of these awards are to sophomores who won them during their first year. Following the custom inaugurated last year girls who have won more than two V's during their careers will be presented with specially designed pins.

Ted Hodggets, president of the Athletic Union, has announced that there will be no limitation on the attendance this year.

Lists will appear in the college hall today. A separate list will be posted for girls who wish to attend. Tickets may be obtained for the dance only if desired.

SURVEY REVEALS EPIDEMIC ON WANE

In a survey of campus residences late yesterday afternoon indications were that the recent flu epidemic, or "cruel" as it was christened by one hard-bitten fraternity house, is definitely on the wane. Plenty of coughs and sniffles are still in evidence but there are few students really ill.

Whitney Hall reported that the infirmary was getting back to normal after being overcrowded until Sunday. Miss Manning, warden of the Vic women's residences, stated that there were few students sick. Some pupils living in the city were sent home last week

S.A.C. ENDORSES YOUTH HOSTELS AS TRAVEL AIDS

Hostels Encourage Outdoor Activities; Provide Facilities

It is believed that the University of Toronto is the first Canadian university to co-operate actively with the Canadian Youth Hostel Association.

Many grads and undergrads from their travels abroad are already familiar with the triangular sign which points the way to the nearest youth hostel in over a score of countries. The youth hostel movement is essentially a facility for inexpensive travel through the best holiday country of any region where it is established. It particularly encourages bikers, hikers, canoeists and skiers because the type of country in which youth hostels are located is such as to induce the traveller to resort to these means of locomotion. A Youth Hostel in effect, provides adequate but inexpensive overnight accommodation, cooking facilities under the supervision of a responsible resident.

In endorsing the aims and objects of this association the S.A.C. is following the precedent already established in England and America, where the universities have played a prominent part in its development, both from the point of view of executive material and membership. Those who have had hosting experience abroad can readily appreciate that certain parts of Ontario are ideally adapted to this type of recreation.

The association, already established in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Montreal and the Maritimes, may anticipate considerable interest from the Varsity campus.

DAVIDSON TO PLAY AT JUNIOR-SENIOR DANCE

Marking the close of University College social activities for the year, the annual Junior-Senior dance will be held tomorrow evening in the Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel. A special feature of the affair is that the results of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society elections which are to be held tomorrow will be officially announced at the dance.

Members of the third year executive who are in charge of the dance have secured Trump Davidson and his orchestra to provide the music for this "last fling" as undergraduates of the final year students. Prior to the dance the annual graduation banquet will take place in the same room so it is expected a large crowd will attend the evening event. Wandering artists will be on hand to draw sketches of the guests for souvenirs of their last big undergraduate party.

"We have done our best to arrange a dance which will please the graduating students as well as undergraduates," said E. H. Smith, m.e.s. president. "The dance is informal and all students are welcome. We're expecting 'The Imperial Swing' which was introduced on the campus Saturday to be one of the popular features of the dance."

Tickets may still be procured from any member of the third year executive, from the office of the Registrar of University College, and at the general ticket sale in the rotunda from 11 to 1 o'clock today and tomorrow.

FREE ARAB STATE SEEN BY SAUNDERS

The relinquishing by Britain of her mandate over Palestine and the agreement to the establishment of an independent state announced yesterday morning was forecast last month by Dr. R. M. Saunders of the History Department. He made the prediction at a discussion meeting in the U.C. men's residence and reported in The Varsity on January 26.

He pointed out that Britain had reached a time when she must make a definite choice, and said, "The adjustment is going to be made in favour of the Arabs on the lines of the settlements in Iraq and Syria." Although the new announcement does not provide for an Arab national state as Dr. Saunders predicted, it amounts virtually to the same thing for the proposed system of representation by population in the independent state would give the Arabs an overwhelming majority over the Jews. In his talk Dr. Saunders said, however, that "Britain will make the transition as slow as possible for she will not wish to make the choice too plain."

DOUBLE BLUES DEFEAT DOCTORS IN ICE MATCH

At Varsity Arena yesterday the St. Mike's hockey squad forged ahead to eke out a 3-2 victory over Jr. Meds. Both the Doctors and the Double Blue scored two tallies in the opening period, and in the second stanza St. Mike's bulged the twice for the winning goal.

For Junior Meds the marksmen were Dennis and Caudwell, while the St. Mike's stars were Dixon and Buckley who scored once each and Hargan who had a goal and an assist to his credit.

St. Mike's: Silvester, Dixon, Hargan, Gendron, Hector, Lavery, Hills, McLean, Buckley, Dennick.

Jr. Meds: Baird, Sedgwick, Henderson, Pyke, Spence, Brillingier, Dennis, Piper, Caudwell, McNeill.

Literature Lovers Heart-broken As Hart House Library Closes

By John Ross

Time marches on! The old order changes. That venerable green notice which so long graced the wall outside Hart House Library was replaced yesterday by an upstart hand-written note which broke the hearts of many literature lovers and tome connoisseurs. "The special mid-term checking having shown a further loss of books, the library is closing pending action of the Library Committee which will meet at an early date."

As the Committee and other authorities refuse to divulge any information as to the number or the character of the books which have disappeared, conjecture is rife. No one knows whether the books were stolen or just borrowed. However, the prevailing opinion is that some of the undergraduate members of Hart House, believing that they owned at least a few of the books, took seriously the old green notice which requested that the books of readers be left outside. Psychology students wagged their heads with an "I told you so" air. Although some suspected an obscure Freudian principle at work, others maintained that the suggestiveness of many detective stories had induced a wave of mass kleptomania.

It is believed that a brilliant inventor from the School of Practical Science has already capitalized on this unfortunate state of affairs by patenting an individual showcase for books, the pages of which can easily be turned one at a time by pushing and pulling the appropriate levers, having first held the mouth at a suitable angle.

One thing at least is certain—Hart House Library is closed and the red-leather chairs rest in peace complete.

Professor Norwood of U.C. to Deliver Adjudicators' Remarks

Tonight in Hart House Theatre three of the colleges of the University of Toronto will present one play each in competition for the Cody Award. This will mark the third successive year that the festival has been held.

University College has won the award on both previous occasions with their productions of Eugene O'Neill's The Rope, and of Both-Sides of Soerenga. Their entry this time is an original play by Professor Louis MacKay entitled All Anyone Can Do.

Trinity and Victoria are the other entrants this year. Last year there were six entries, which included in addition to this year's competitors, plays from St. Michael's, St. Joseph's and the Faculty of Dentistry, necessitating a two-night run. The plays will all take place on the same evening.

Saul, the entry from Trinity College, was written by Alexander Lernet-Holenia, an Austrian, and is concerned with the Witch of Endor episode from the Old Testament. The Melodie scenes from Twelfth Night will be the contribution of the Victoria Dramatic Society.

Toronto Masquers

Good direction plus efficient acting featured the latest production of the Toronto Masquers last Thursday evening at Margaret Eaton Hall. Their choice of presentation was Sydney Howard's fine play The Silver Cord, and the small cast of five played competently to achieve reality.

The play tells the story of a selfish mother who loves her sons so much that she hinders them from living normal lives of their own. Constance Vernon played the mother with considerable restraint and a fine performance was the result. Her two sons were played by Frank Rostance and E. Ellison West. Rostance is one of the finest amateur actors in Canada, and his portrayal showed a keen insight into the depths of the character. Ellison West unfortunately, was the only jarring note in the entire performance. His apparent lack of understanding of the role was only too obvious, and his supercilious threatened at times to mar the entire proceedings.

A Gear-less Auto

We are living in a progressive world where improvements are apparently coming with a rush. But this does not imply that in some instances at least certain mechanical innovations are not impeded in their development. We see for the most part what is presented on the stage of progress after the curtain rises. We are uninformed and quite unconcerned what vexacious delays are taking place behind the stage-setting.

To quote a single instance: in the latter part of last year the "London News Review" reported that at a meeting of the British Association, Professor F. C. Lea announced a clutchless, gearless, automobile, product of the Italian inventor Salerni. It involved the principle that an ordinary gasoline engine drove a centrifugal pump which delivered oil to a turbine, and in turn, the turbine drove the propeller shaft. Professor Lea pronounced the invention, after an exhaustive test, a complete success.

The motor manufacturers are not so sanguine, for certain practical reasons. The change-over would mean the scrapping of many millions of dollars worth of gear-box and transmission plants, and require revolutionary changes in manufacturing equipment. Other less impressive impediments were presented by the industrialists, but the above were the primary objections submitted.

Thus a practical improvement cannot be accorded the cordial support of "practical interests", and man has to suffer.—S.W.A.

Annual Elections

In a few days the male undergraduates will find themselves in the thick of the various election campaigns at the University. Annually there are several criticisms made, several characteristic faults of our election schemes pointed out, and certain solutions offered. However, on the whole it may be said that campus politics may be considered very clean, and in some cases a great deal of fun. Very generally speaking also, we believe the best men are elected, and fill their positions to the best of their ability.

It does seem that some college might have a different scheme of election for president than that which is used at present. Usually it is taken for granted that the most able men will compete for this place in a student governing body, and yet it is only possible for one of these men to fill the position. The organization therefore suffers from the loss of the other applicant for presidency, who might easily fill a very worthy place in some other office of the executive.

This problem is solved by some societies which hold their election for a president one week previous to the elections for the other offices. Such a system not only stimulates competition for the presidency, but it frequently makes it possible for a much stronger executive to be appointed, especially in those colleges where it is found that more than two candidates are desirous to serve their college in the position of president.

Other weaknesses, such as voting for the most popular students, are only those which are prevalent in every democratic system of election. But the major weakness in regard to Hart House elections are seen in faculties "ganging up" to elect as many representatives as possible. The strength of Hart House committee depends to a great extent on a fair representation from the various colleges and faculties. And voters should take into consideration the respective merits of the candidates, before they decide to cast all their votes for the members of their own college, or for members of other colleges for which they may have promised to exchange votes. There cannot be too many good candidates nominated for the committees of the House, but every prospect should consider well the duties involved, and his own interests and qualifications, before allowing his name to stand.

There are many traditions which have been built up around college elections, and there are certain rules to be observed; unpopular will be the candidate who fails to observe them.—A.C.F.

Self Entertainment

Last Sunday evening's Hart House Musicales was remarkable insofar as it was made possible largely by the talent of House members themselves. It supplied a fine example of what can be achieved by individuals in various interest groups who get together under skilled leadership to provide a high type of entertainment of their own. In these days of commercialized culture and recreation there is room for more of this type of enterprise.

The Glee Club is composed entirely of members of Hart House who meet once a week for the sheer enjoyment of song. One of the older House activities, it has progressed under the capable direction of Dr. Charles Peaker till it does credit to all concerned.

The bamboo pipes played in the concert were made by the players themselves under the guidance of Professor Kemp, and have been the source of much enjoyment to those participating. Based on the shepherd's flute, these instruments are probably the cheapest of all to make and the easiest to play; they can be learned by anyone who can toot a tin whistle. Not only are they adaptable to chorus effects but they can do pleasing solo work as well.

Music, dramatics, books, art, public speaking, and other activities such as these are within reach of all persons, whether members of Hart House or not. Culture in the broadest sense requires the development of talent in such fields. It is also important in the development of personality.

It is a temptation today to occupy an expensive seat at a concert rather than learning to play; or to watch others entertaining at the movies rather than becoming proficient in one of the arts ourselves. With the coming of the radio and rapid transportation, this trend is invading rural as well as urban life. Any movement which furthers the development of individual initiative in the arts, and the principle of doing things for ourselves, should be encouraged.—C.McL.

ART MUSIC Drama

Angela is Twenty-two

High-pressure advertising has managed to spoil any of the fun a theatregoer might get from seeing Angela is Twenty-two, the current Royal Alexandra Theatre production. Sinclair Lewis wrote the play in collaboration with Fay Wray and the show posters scream at you that SINCLAIR LEWIS will be commentator at the play. At the conclusion of the performance, a patient audience is greeted by Mr. Lewis who spends eight minutes pondering on what a commentator is, and finally declares that he is extremely overjoyed to announce that Fay Wray is "one hundred percent Canadian".

The play itself is a very light and amusing comedy dealing with the domestic life of a doctor married to a girl twenty-seven years younger than himself. Philip Merivale, star of the play, turns in a very smooth and polished performance as the doctor. Flora Campbell is very convincing as the impetuous child-wife and Royal Beal as the cynical man-of-the-world bachelor is excellent. The cast perform splendidly and give a very entertaining presentation.

Chief cause for complaint is the fact that Sinclair Lewis is wasting his time writing drawing-room comedies. When the greatest living American writer turns towards frothy comedies and amusing little plays it strikes one as nothing more than a great mind yawning in public.

YOUTH DISSOLVES IN H.H. SHOWERS

BLUE SOLUTION

Before the astonished gaze of twenty dripping athletes, J. C. Timberloper, I. Forestry, dissolved in the Hart House showers late yesterday afternoon. Only a blue solution in puddles on the floor of the shower booth remained.

Word of the tragedy was instantly telephoned to the Athletic Office, and the following statement was issued at 5 p.m.: "We are very sorry about the tragic end of a first year Forestry student. If his P.T. credits are not completed by the end of the year as a result, the usual $10 supplementary fee will be waived."

Students present in the showers at the time of the unfortunate incident were held spellbound.

"The most remarkable thing I have ever seen," said a Science student. "The blue colour was beautiful," was the opinion of a student in Fine Art.

"Horrible," said a Theolog. Interviewed as to the probable cause of the accident, a usually unimpeachable source gave the following information:

"It was the sudden surge of hot water that did it. Usually the water is cold when first turned on, but when a number of showers are turned off, the steam just comes blasting out. I knew something like this would happen."

Identification of the victim could not be made until 6 p.m. when the athletic wing closed. The one unclaimed tote-box and established the vanished youth's identity.

Informed of the tragedy, Simcoe Hall gave out the following statement (with a sigh of relief): "He was a good student. His fees were all paid up."

Unless relatives claim the youth's clothes and effects from the Key Office before noon tomorrow, they will be sold at auction in the Big Gym at that time. U-NO-HU

Those who missed the Canadian produced picture "Youth Marches On", when it played at the Uptown theatre during the Christmas holidays now have their opportunity to see this a double feature at the Tivoli.

The picture, which is distinctly different, has been acclaimed across Canada as a challenge to all Canadian youth. For once we see youth marching, marching, in countless armies, across the plains, the prairies, the wheat-fields, and the mountains of Canada . . . and not in uniform, and not carrying arms. It is a challenge to all, to something greater, better and finer in life.

would like to make the trip with the team, they are advised to get in touch with Miss Parkes, Room 82, U.C., immediately.

faculty meet on March 8 will work out at Hart House on Tuesday, Feb. 28 from 8.30-10 p.m.

SKI TRAILS

The possibility of Toronto entering in intercollegiate ski competition with McGill, Dartmouth, Montreal et al.
seems highly problematic at present, but far from an impossibility. Witness the welcome victory of the Varsity co-eds in the international intercollegiate invitation meet at Montreal last weekend.

With early organization of the club next fall and some consistent practicing on the part of the more promising skiers enrolled here, a team of the high calibre of those entered by the eastern colleges for the past few years in the various intercollegiate meets might be sent down to represent Toronto.

AROUND THE TRACK

With Bob Somers

The famous distorted eskimos on the Hart House East Common Room wall quickly ducked into their igloos last Thursday, when a group of usually apathetic individuals created a riot. We had merely asked this column's ardent supporters what should be done for the future success of Around the Track, and with one accord they began to throw destructive criticism in all directions. It was quite apparent that we should best heed the advice of the Eastern Sage, Confucius: "On your marquee, get set, get out of town."

When the smoke had cleared and the scattered limbs had been returned to their rightful owners, they decided that from now until further disturbances we should present toe-mal sketches of local track luminaries, including themselves.
With this in mind, we sought out
Hec Phillips, former Olympic star, track and field coach extraordinary, etc. We found him on the indoor track (how odd), trying to distinguish which of the five bodies hurling themselves around the oval represented his "large" two-weekly practices. His scowl turned to a growl when we asked him for a few highlights of his great career in the sport he so ably coaches. A word from Dante's Inferno was then quoted giving evidence of his worried frame of mind at the time.

Undaunted by this set-back, we looked around for further material and recognized Harold Brown enveloped in a cloud of steam as he turned on the heat down the stretch. Slowing down gradually, he was able to stop by the third time around, but was off again on seeing us. (He trains so diligently!)
This comet lords it over his brother Wally on the track, but the other half of the Meaford twin-brother act is best on the field. Many a famous lake trout at their Georgian Bay fisherman's paradise, Meaford, must have been spared by the Browns with unerring aim developed by hurling the javelin.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Ed Goodman

STILL MORE TO COME

Although the various Varsity athletic teams are well down the home stretch for the year, there still remains quite a bit of excitement before the intercollegiate sport program comes to an official close. The senior hockey team have two engagements this week to end their schedule. On Wednesday they travel to Ann Arbor to play U. of Michigan, and on Saturday afternoon they meet Princeton.
As far as Bailey's lads are concerned there is nothing else at stake except international good-will, although if they beat Princeton it will leave them in a second place tie with Queen's.

Even if we failed to find anything else to enjoy in the hockey game last week we noticed that the ice was in excellent condition. It seems that when in full swing the Varsity ice plant, although it does not produce the type of ice that one can get from the much larger ice plants such as the Forum in Montreal which caters to the pro teams, does not suffer in comparison with the home ice of the other I.L.H.L. teams.

For when Toronto opened the season against Harvard in Boston at the Boston Arena (not the pro gardens) they took the ice practically sole deep in water, which lasted for a good part of the game. And the ice in Queen's home arena has so many bumps in it that the ski team very often use it for indoor practice (well anyway it is slightly uneven). According to no less an authority than Joe Carruthers, the team trainer, who has been right around the circuit, outside of the Forum, Varsity Arena is as good as any other surface and the surface during the McGill game was just an unfortunate incident.

WITH THE GENTLEMEN PUGILISTS

Varsity classy boxing champions entrain for Annapolis this week-end where they will engage U.S. Naval Academy's fighters. The Middies are ranked as one of the toughest aggregations in the States, and the meet should be a natural.

We hope that the Blue fighters will not be awed by the distinctive atmosphere that will pervade, for we learned yesterday that one can get tickets through invitation only, and that the navy officers and friends, must be either in full dress uniform or in dinner clothes.

While the senior boxers are travelling, the intermediate boxers, wrestlers and fencers engage in the annual intermediate intercollegiate assault against O.A.C. Western and Mc-Master. The meet takes place in Hart House on Saturday afternoon and evening and should provide fully as much action as the senior assault did last Saturday.

WITH EVERYTHING EXCEPT SILVERWARE

While all the quarrelling is going on in the upper gym, a triple feature will be taking place downstairs, where the Varsity intermediate basketball team play St. Mike's, the senior girls' team play the intermediate girls and Varsity seniors play McGill. The seniors should not have too much difficulty in defeating the Redmen, although this is the best basketball squad that McGill has fielded in several years. If Varsity win this encounter and Western also defeat McGill the championship will be settled by a sudden death game on neutral grounds.
The location is in the hands of the C.I.A.U.

The game between Mac McCutcheon's champion intermediates and St. Mike's is a little bit of a good-natured grudge affair, to settle the question of whether or not the fact that St. Mike's gained an even split in pre-season encounters was a fluke. But the game that I am looking forward to is the girls' game.
Last year the intermediate beat their senior sisters just before the Bronze Baby tourney.

This season the seniors are champions and even if the night editor wouldn't run the streamer that Punchy prepared and that this victory deserved (something like "Blue Babes Bag championship").

Bronze Baby"), they have a swell team and claim they will swamp the intermediates.

WITH THE NETTERS

The final item for the week concerns Toronto's newest intercollegiate team, the intermediate volleyball squad. The Blue netters finish off the league schedule with a round-robin with Central Y, Y.M.H.A., and Toronto Bible College. At the present time the Varsity squad are two games ahead of Central Y and Y.M.H.A. and should emerge this Wednesday as champions. The series starts at 7 o'clock in the upper gym and the spectators will see the finest brand of volleyball around these parts.

By Win Flanagan

Well, Varsity co-eds certainly made a sweep of it this week-end. Not only have we the much coveted Bronze Baby firmly tucked away under our wing, but also the ski team walked off with the invitation bid meet trophy at McGill on Sunday. Varsity had no little opposition in the form of teams from Mc-Gill, Vassar and Skidmore. "Punch" Gallie, St. Hilda's ace skier, showed just what she could do when she topped first place in both the main events, the run and the slalom. Joan Griffiths, also a St. Hilda's star, piled up points with 2 third place wins. The combined points for each team counted and Toronto came first with 389.8 points and Vassar, McGill I, Skidmore and McGill II followed in that order. Peggy Johansen, intercollegiate star, did not take part in the meet due to the burden of arranging the whole ski meet. McGill no doubt felt her loss keenly.

The women's intercollegiate swimming meet is coming off this Friday, March 3 in Kingston. The Varsity team has at long last been definitely chosen and is composed of the following girls for the events specified. Mary Casson, 50 yds. free style and relay; Margaret Hall, diving and relay; Bobbie Mc-Donald, 50 yds. back stroke and relay; Dot Hobson, 100 yds. free style and relay; Freddie Baxter, style and ornamental; Peggy Bailey, 50 yds. breast stroke and diving. This appears to be a rather formidable team. Mary Casson and Freddie Baxter have been working very hard for this event, to earn their place on the team, and of course there are the ever-dependable Bobbie Mc-Donald and Peggy Bailey to pile up points for Toronto. Then we have the

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

Your editorial "To the Victor" in Friday's Varsity contains an impossible interpretation of the relation of the democracies to Spanish affairs. One might wish that your statement were true, viz "The Loyalists had moral and monetary support from the democratic powers." The only support that Britain has given the Loyalists was the purely negative support of abstaining from active participation on behalf of the rebels. On the other hand, it cannot be denied that the British government has consistently given its moral support to Franco and his allies. Not even Chamberlain, Simon, Hoare and Halifax could have been blind to the fact that non-intervention was in effect very definite support of the rebels.

The unseemly haste of Britain and France to recognize Franco's rebel government, though a quarter of Spain is still in Loyalist hands, is only further evidence of their desire for a fascist victory. It is deeply humiliating to all lovers of democracy, and to all who look to England to give moral leadership in a troubled world, to find the present British government violating the principles of decency, and, I believe, flouting the will of the majority of Englishmen.

Herbert C. Linstead, II Emmanuel.

Ed. Note—

There will be many who will agree with Mr. Linstead's analysis of the British government's attitude to the Spanish Loyalists. But whatever the government says, we believe that the masses of the British people were behind the Loyalists. Regarding the statement to which our correspondent takes exception, there is no doubt that the Loyalists did receive moral and monetary support from outside Spain. We chose to call the nations lending that support "democratic powers."

OVER THE NET

Varsity's intermediate volleyball team vaulted over Central Y into a clear two-game lead in the Toronto city league as a result of four victories in four starts last Tuesday night at the Y.M.H.A. gym. The Toronto squad will be hosts to the other four teams in a round-robin series, the last of the season, on Wednesday night in the upper gym, Hart House. The standing to date reveals Toronto in the lead with 12 victories in 16 games, followed by Central and Y.M.H.A. with ten victories each.

In the first game at Y.M.H.A. last week, the Blue and White sextet downed the strong Central team 15-11. In this encounter, however, Bruce McDonald, lanky spiker, came into his own with a vengeance and his powerful spikes meant the difference between victory and defeat. In their second game of the evening Varsity maintained an early lead to defeat Y.M.H.A. 15-10 as Bob Brown and Bruce Mackenzie combined in fine fashion to dominate the play.

West End Y, however, threw a scare into the Varsity boys when they had obtained a 13-9 lead in what was a thrilling encounter from start to finish. The Blue squad succeeded in raising their count to 13 points with a burst of scoring power, but the game stood at match point 14-13 for West End. Nevertheless after the serve shifted from side to side twice in succession, the Toronto team succeeded in running out the game with three straight points. The final Toronto game of the evening saw the Varsity take an easy victory over Toronto Bible College 15-6.

It is rumoured that one of the bright spots of the evening will be the adjudicators' remarks following the performances, which will be delivered probably by Professor Gilbert Norwood of University College.

With Reuven Frank

THERE IS A MATHEMATICIAN IN THIS UNIVERSITY who is of a very peculiar guy. . . . He was born with what is known as a perfect sense of pitch. . . . Incidentally, his name is Irving Kaplansky, he has been dubbed genius by President Cody, he is a holder of a fellowship and a Harvard scholarship and teaches the green freshmen at the little red schoolhouse about the mysteries of calculating calculus. . . . This perfect pitch business enables said young savant to listen to anything including the squeak of a chair and spot the key in which the chair squeaks. . . . Well, the other day it was my doubtful pleasure to go see The Mikado in company of Mr. K. . . . While Yum Yum was just breaking out in that famous song about the sun whose rays are all ablaze the moon and I, my calculating companion leaned over to me and whispered, "She is singing that in F instead of G." . . . WHO WILL RID ME OF THIS TROUBLESOME MATHEMATICIAN? . . .

AND A STORY COMES FROM TWO SPORTS WRITERS who work for this undergraduate newspaper. . . . The two young Gallios were covering an intermediate hockey game in Hamilton. . . . Now you must know Anabasis that the Hamilton hockey arena is situated in Hell's Kitchen just off the Bowery—or a reasonable facsimile of same. . . . Little Parker and McLemore junior journeyed into a nearby blizzard academy (des arts et lettres) to—shall we say—shoot a stick. . . . Within they were accosted by the last of the Purple Gang who asked, "Are you from university?" . . . "Yup." . . . "Live off your old man's dough, eh?" . . . "Yup." . . . "Chee, some guys has it soft." . . . Little does he know that the flowers that bloom in the spring bring PROMISE OF FINAL EXAMS. . . .

BUT DON'T GO WAY YET, there's more to the story. . . . Returning to the bockey emporium (Sports-talk), they were approached in a very flippant way by a few of the Dead End Kids who live around the corner. . . . The same question was forthcoming, "Are you from university?" . . . "Yup." . . . The gas-house chappie was thoughtful. His brow puckered and his lips pursed. . . . "Do university girls neck?" . . . O TEMPORA, O MORALS. . . .

WHILE SHUSTER SLEEPS: . . . Professors at a New England college are perturbed about two duelling freshmen who fought on the field of honour for the love of a lady. . . . No cream puffs at twenty paces, either, but foils with the buttons filed off. . . . One was scratched once and the other twice (Oh horror!) but the loser has the inside rail in the fickle female's affections. . . . So the winner is perturbed too. . . . A resident student at Princeton has separated from his room-mate and applied to the Dean for decree nisi. . . . Aforementioned room-mate goes about in a state of nature with the windows wide open in all weather, and puts out cigarette-butts by pressing them against his body. . . . He's not nuts; he's a yogi. . . . Dartmouth men were surprised the other day when they read in the Harvard Crimson that they had lost the floor permit for the annual Junior Prom. . . . Story in the Crimson was accompanied by photostatic copy of permit and proved to be true. . . . Shuster, I SMELL A RAT. . . .

University of Manitoba. He played, sang, and worked himself through college. Now he has three Hollywood offers, has been singing on Broadway and has made a name for himself both on this continent and in Europe.

The other feature of the Tivoli-program is the Moonlight Sonata featuring Paderewski. This is one time when you can enjoy a moving picture show by shutting your eyes and listening to the great artist play.—A.C.

Once again the stage show steals the show at Shea's. Dave Apollon and Varieties of 1939 (10-acts-10) provide the vaudeville entertainment. SHEA'S ment, featuring dancing, VODVIL acrobatics, and a dog act. There is also a swing band.

The Six Honeyes, acrobats extraordinary as the billing says, are very effective with their bewildering tumblings, accompanied by rolls on the drum. Tommy Trent and Co. give evidence that the dog act is not yet dead.

There are, of course, a number of comely lasses to keep up the aesthetic tradition.

As for the screen attraction, if you like Bobby Breen (is that asking too much?) you'll like Fishermen's Wharf, a story of the San Francisco waterfront. If you don't, an otherwise passable picture will be spoiled.

On the whole, however, the new stage policy seems to be keeping its end up in improving entertainment at the Bay Street theatre.—L.G.M.

ART MUSIC AND DRAMA

Hart House Quartet

The greater part of the Hart House Quartet's "Monday Pop" yesterday was devoted to a magnificent reading of the String Quartet by Delius.

Delius was nominally an English composer though he spent much of his life in France and America, but his music cannot be linked with any country or any school. He is a mystic, but unlike Debussy and Ravel, whose orbits perhaps swing closest to his, he is preponderantly an introspective mystic, and the depth of his emotional and philosophical conceptions is such that only now, five years after his death, is the world beginning vaguely to realize what he was.

The Quartet is unmistakably one of his greatest creations, both artistically and as a piece of superb craftsmanship. Even a listener who actively disliked the work could hardly feel but feel the intense power in its passages of wild chaos, or of rich and weirdly intertwined melodies. It is great and difficult music, and the Hart House Quartet treated it as such.

YOUR ASSURANCE OF QUALITY

The Delius was followed by the two inner movements of a not very profound Quartet in A major by Beethoven; for once Beethoven, as this selection of his work represented him, was in greater company and seemed almost obvious. Still, it is enjoyable music and was admirably done when the players remembered, after the first few bars, that it was not Delius.

The audience was probably the smallest yet at one of these concerts; but the series is only half over, and there is still time for yesterday's record to be shattered more than once.

Hollywood Theatre

The historical romance Katjo was the French film at the Hollywood Theatre last Saturday morning. The fact that someone called the picture another Myerling built up a defense mechanism in our mind. However, the viewing of the film was quite sufficient to overcome this handicap and we enjoyed every minute of it.

The picture is based on the novel Penon Bleu by Princess Marthe Bibesco and is the love story of Alexander II and Princess Katia, who remain steadfast in their love through much court intrigue and Nihilist plots. The latter is responsible for the tragic end when the Tsar is killed by a bomb, robbing Katia of a throne and Russia of a constitution. The action moves on a plane remote enough to dull the keener edge of sorrow. It is a world apart in which there is no realistic discord.

Danielle Darrieux is again seen in a picture that requires something more than beauty. She has the happy ability to be able to live her roles and get the maximum amount of feeling in a scene. To the gayness and vivacity of Mlle Darrieux, Mr. John Loder plays a rather solemn Tsar. His voice is a little hoarse against the suave Latin tongue but perhaps this is as well for at that time all Russians were regarded as barbarians.

However, the outstanding part of the picture is Danielle's performance. For the sincerity and simplicity of characterization she is supreme.—Ted Meek.

"Religion and Life" Week Will Begin on March 5

Dr. Thurman to be Leader of Week Planned by S.C.M. to Help Clarify the Student Mind on Religious Questions

Dr. Howard Thurman, being brought to the Toronto campus as special leader for "Religion and Life Week", is "one of the most outstanding student leaders on the continent," said Dr. W. C. Lockhart of the Student Christian Movement yesterday.

Dr. Lockhart outlined plans for the week of March 5 to 12, which has been set aside by the S.C.M. "to remind the entire undergraduate body of the necessity of giving as much objective thought and consideration to the matter of religion as it does to science, literature, philosophy, psychology or any other subject," he said.

KING TO BE CROWNED BY NEWSPAPERWOMEN

A "King for a Day"—and perhaps it'll be a tad right in this university—will be chosen on March 4 at the annual charity dance of the Folks Farcin in the King Edward hotel.

Last Saturday night a "Queen of the Coronet Club" was selected. What good, argued members of the Folks Farcin women's division, is a queen without a king? So three prominent Toronto newspaperwomen were invited to act as judges at their dance on March 4 and select a "King".

Spelling Match Among Students Might Reveal Much Ignorance

Ye old spelling-bee participants can twist their own corn pipes and nod condescendingly at the modern young uns. According to expert opinion, spelling amongst the younger generation is "regrettably bad".

Dr. Saunders of the history department says that on the whole spelling among students is worse than a few years ago. The fault lies, he believes, in the present system of progressive teaching in high schools. When students get to college, professors have not the time to spend on spelling, although Dr. Saunders remarked that he himself always pointed out errors.

A classicist, Professor Woodside expressed the opinion that a study of

PRACTICAL JOKES ARE STILL PLAYED

Tipping Transoms and Burning Coins still Fool Unwary Schoolmen and Residence Dwellers. Such Jokes not as Frequent as Formerly

Practical jokes on a big scale seem to have left the U. of T. campus completely. However, a few still crop up now and then that are bad enough for the unfortunate fellow on the receiving end.

Residences and the Little Red Schoolhouse seem to be the main haunts of the practical pranksters.

Many an unsuspecting person along College Street has had his fingers burned trying to pick up red-hot coppers thrown on the sidewalk from the Mining Building. Many an experiment has been ruined because the gas and water connections were interchanged. Many a student has been sprayed by water when rubber tubing fastened to a slowly leaking tap gave way under the steadily increasing pressure.

MEMBERS OF FACULTY TO DEBATE ON THURSDAY

The final meeting of the University College Parliament will take place on Thursday presenting a debate led by Professor G. P. Glazebrook of the history department and Professor N. A. M. Mackenzie of the law department.

It has been announced that the final meeting for this term will be held in the true parliamentary tradition with the Governor-General attending with his retinue.

PROMINENT UNDERGRADS CONTINUE S.C.M. SERIES

At Ongley of Trinity, Ted Jarvis of Victoria and Bill Service of Medicine will continue the S.C.M. series in Hart House at noon today when they speak on "What Religion Means to Me".

In this series an effort has been made to secure various prominent undergraduates from different faculties and colleges who take an outstanding part in the life of the university to speak briefly on what significance religion has to them. Jarvis is well-known as one of the university's outstanding athletes. Service is a prominent medical student who has taken a large place in undergraduate societies and Ongley from Trinity is secretary of the Hart House Glee Club.

These addresses are a preliminary to the Religion and Life Week which commences this Sunday, March 5th.

Doctors and Engineers Blush As They Secretly Learn How

Med students and Schoolmen will probably be blushing today as a result of the following information.

Out of the two or three hundred Varsity students who attend dancing schools around the campus, the majority come from the aforementioned faculties—in equal numbers.

The dancing teachers report that there are few jitterbugs among these students, standard fox-trots and gentle swing being preferred. "This seems hardly credible," say students who have visited the At-Homes of the Medical and Science faculties.

Prof. Gilbert Norwood Judged Trinity Players Winners in Last Night's U. Drama Festival—Mrs. Cody Presented the Award

After Professor Gilbert Norwood had regaled the audience with his adjudication speech, Mrs. H. J. Cody, wife of the President of the university, presented the President's Award, to the Trinity College Dramatic Society's production of "Saul" at the University Drama Festival last night.

Also represented in the competition was the presentation of the University College Dramatic Society, "All Anyone Can Do", by Professor Louis A. MacKay, and scenes from "Twelfth Night" presented by the Victoria College Dramatic Society.

The winning production by Alexander Leroy-Holmes, with Hugh Henderson in the title role of Saul, and Elizabeth Blair as the Witch, evidently held the audience tensely, and afforded a contrast to the gambolings of Sir Toby Belch played by John D. Hilton and Tom Paton as the Clown in the scenes from "Twelfth Night". The Victoria production also included Wilmet Mercer as Malvolio and Dorothy Ferguson as Maria.

SWINGSTERS PRESENT ARTISTS AND JAM

Orchestra leader Bert Niosi, vocalist Louise King and Master of Ceremonies Bert Pearl are the attractions offered by the Swing Club at their final meeting of the season next week.

Bert Niosi and his Swing Quartet, including piano, drums and tenor sax, with Bert himself playing the clarinet, will all be there. John Niosi, the drummer, is considered to be top ranking by many big time drummers with whom he has played in name bands. Louise King, featured soloist on the CBC's "Music by Faith" program and singer with Ferde Mowry's orchestra at the Hotel Embassy, will be guest artist. Bert Pearl, popular master of ceremonies on the "Happy Gang" program will act in a similar capacity at the meeting.

The Swing Club has made reservations at Diana Sweets for Friday, March 10, from 4.30 to 6.30.

tending dancing schools. An average of twelve lessons usually suffice to enable the girls to hold their own at some coming affair, say the teachers. Even six lessons have been known to prepare them in some cases.

Some of the dancing students come in to brush up on their rusty steps, but the majority dash in frantically to learn the secret of the art in its entirety, it is reported. They usually do it too, added the teachers.

There is, however, a disappointment in store for students anxious to make friends and influence people, warn the instructors. All lessons are private.

Is it Lethargy?

So the undergraduates let the University Drama Committee down again, and left a few hundred empty seats among the scattered observers to stare at the players in the Cody competition last night. The same thing happened when "Holiday" was produced a few weeks ago.

And we'll guarantee that there were a lot of students taking in cheap third rate movies at the same time.

There can be nothing but commendation for the ideals of the Drama Committee which aims to stimulate interest in dramatics in the university, and create a better sense of co-operation among the various dramatic societies on the campus. The productions this year are worthy of praise, and a great number of students could have benefited by being present.

There must be some reason for the students' failure to co-operate in one of the finest undertakings of the university. Perhaps it is student lethargy, by which we account for the poor attendance at debates, Monday Pops, and other extra-curricular activities which should not be missed. Or perhaps it is that the undergraduates are so fortunate and have so many privileges that they just take them for granted, and slip out to a picture show for the most effortless type of amusement.

But the students can't be blamed entirely. They weren't sold on the idea of the production, and we think that the Drama Committee might have used a little more umph in stirring up enthusiasm for the competition. Some claim that the price was too high. It really wasn't and yet doubtlessly it was a deterrent to many. After all it would be better to have the house jammed at half the price than much less than half full of fifty cent customers.—A.C.F.

Pre-conditioned Listening

Many music lovers today are guilty of an artistic fallacy of the first degree. The majority of the symphonic-minded, particularly those who really believe themselves to be sincere, make the mistake of attending a concert with a pre-conditioned attitude toward the evening's program. If they know they are to hear Mozart's G Major Concerto one evening, they come prepared to impart so much passion to its accepted fineness, that they are inevitably satisfied. In the case of this particular concerto their satisfaction is justified, for they are undoubtedly a good deal stirred by its beauty; but there must be many occasions when this previous conditioning towards a musical composition prevents their knowing how little, in fact, they receive from it. With no foreknowledge of a given composer or his work, would they not bring to a first hearing, an ear trained to appreciate, attentive to excellence, and by its very musical nature, sensitive to inferiority? Would not then the resulting individual judgment be fairer and more beneficent to both the composer and the listener? Let the latter become an amateur critic himself, rather than contracting his ideas to the established view point. Otherwise his present laziness will not only in his essential musical faculties' becoming languid through such acceptance; but also in his sympathies' becoming so exclusive that many species of high excellence will escape entirely.

That this is the case is evident in the treatment meted out to modern composers. No doubt many will remember Percival Price's struggle for the final triumphal recognition of his St. Lawrence Symphony. Now it will be granted, we suppose, that if a symphonic minded person heard Beethoven's Symphony No. 6, not being acquainted with it or knowing Beethoven wrote it, he would still recognize it as expressing something to him personally. It is just as possible then, even probable, that when a modern work is given its premiere by an outstanding orchestra, it too can perhaps be acknowledged as beautiful. Yet, when at the conclusion of last Sunday's concert it was announced that Robert L. Sanders had conducted his own work—a prize-winning symphony, one of our music-minded commentators (who knew nothing whatever of him) was overheard to remark, "Oh I am glad I didn't hear that. I hate this modern stuff." Condemned without a thought or a hearing! The same situation was encountered last September when Harold Barlow gave the premiere of a symphonette by Charles Jones. The radio was about to be disconnected by one of our misguided music lovers; but when persuaded to listen, the deserter was fair enough to admit that though a little puzzled, he had liked the composition, was intrigued, and would like to hear it again.

Have our Habeas Corpus Laws and Bill of Rights been forgotten? Surely we are not going to kill a work before it has had a chance to breathe, and turn away with deadly indifference. Our modern composers have enough to discourage them when they look up and count the many Gibraltars already dominating the realm of music, without their having to agitate and resort to propaganda for a meagre hearing. If the music is inferior, it will go its way. If it great composer's work was unappreciated in his day is good, let it not be said by future generations, "This—not because he was misunderstood, but because his music was never heard."—J.L.H.

Drama Festival

Mr. George Jean Nathan claims that the critic's task is more difficult than that of any other single contributor to the theatrical world. Whether or not Mr. Nathan is justified in his generalization is a matter open to discussion, but today the critic of the University Drama Festival feels that his ours is even heavier than those of the actors, directors, technicians and adjudicators. For the latter have signed and sealed the final judgment of the plays, leaving the critic the unhappy duty of performing a post-mortem.

The President's award offered by Dr. Cody was won by the Trinity Dramatic Society for its production of "Saul".

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PLAYERS' GUILD

In the first performance of the evening the Player's Guild presented a house product, "All Anyone Can Do" by Prof. Louis McKay. Perhaps it is a reflex that Prof. McKay experienced from the writing of this play. For after spending many hours in the realm of a dead language he has produced a play which is very much alive. And the great promise manifest in this piece leads one to believe that though it is in many ways imperfect one may look forward to an interesting future perfect.

The play concerns an Ontario family whose youngest son, a university graduate, is unable to find a position which he thinks worthy of his education. His practical brothers censor his indolence and offer him money to leave home. His suicide at the end of the play left the critic wondering whether it is really worth while to bother about the approaching spring examinations.

Although the playwright has created some emotionally true and captivating moments his indefinite character portrayals restrain the potential power of the play.

I was tired and so I sat myself down to listen to Rudy Alley, MMM . . . mmm . . . what station is he on . . . Ah, here he is. "This is the wooden table program coming to you through the courtesy of etc. etc. The next number will be 'You leave me breathless'."

Gee but that's silly. Listen to the words. "You leave me breathless." Imagine a guy being left breathless. The only guys I know who are left breathless are the stiff in the hospital morgue—and what good is a fellow like that to a girl. The next line is just as funny—"You heavenly thing." What I'd like to know is whether she's dead or alive. In my country people who go to heaven are those who live a good life in this world and who have passed away. Unless the song writer happens to be a Theosophist and believes in reincarnation I don't see his point. Anyway the next line seems to make some sense—"You look so wonderful," but again the lyrics go crazy in the fourth line and say "You take my breath away." What is this girl, a murderer? How else can she take his breath away? The next sentence is still less understandable. "You leave me speechless." Now she's gone and slit his neck so that she's wrecked his vocal organs. Really she must be a terrible girl. First she takes his breath from him and then she slits his throat so as he can't talk any more. I guess the next sentence makes sense after analyzing what has come before this. "I'm just like the birds." Maybe he went up to heaven and became an angel with wings. But still he must have had an awful long time to give the appearance of a bird even with his wings. Well, I guess they've got me in the next line. "I'm filled with melody." Now he's gone and become a wurlitzer. "But at a loss for words." This last line seems to be all right—if you remember she had already slit his throat and left him speechless. The chorus analyzes the girl's chin which is supposed to be little, says that she carries a "funny" grin, and that all this has affected his heart. Really, hasn't she done enough to him already without affecting the poor fellow's heart? The last paragraph is really "nutty." "You leave me breathless" (the fourth time the poor fellow has been killed), "that's all I can say, I can't say more because, You take my breath away." Wow. Now they really have got me thinking. This person can't be human for he talks after he's left breathless (for the fifth time). Really there must be more to it than we realize offhand. In a country advanced as ours is in the realm of medicine and psychology, a person who talked like this would be placed in a straight jacket. This fellow gets paid for it. I guess one must study "swing-philosophy" before he can really understand this.

"Boby".

WEST END Y TO MEET VARSITY SWIMMERS

The Big Blue natators, fresh from their unparalleled victory in the inter-collegiate championship, are taking on West End Y.M.C.A. swimming team in a dual meet in the "Y" pool tonight at 9 o'clock. This will probably be the last opportunity for the local fans to see the intercollegiate stars in action this season. They'll all be there, including the divers, in the only meet of the year against a non-university team. The regular intercollegiate schedule of events is planned, including the two relays and the back, breast and free style races.

The West End Y team is coached by George Burleigh, three-time representative of Canada in the British Empire Games, and includes such swimmers as Fred Sansom who battled it out with Bob Pirie and Gord Devlin in the Exhibition swims last summer.

The meet will be open to the public; university students are invited to attend.

VOLLEYBALL—

Intermediate volleyball team plays round-robin tournament Wednesday evening in upper gym, Hart House, at 7 p.m.: Shuker, Mackenzie, Brown, Emmett, Cash, Wise, Peart, Murray, MacDonald, Gold please note. Irv Gould convenor for the evening.

SENIOR HOCKEYISTS TO VISIT MICHIGAN

The end of the trail is in sight for Ace Bailey and his battle-scarred senior hockeyists. This evening the Blue Shirts travel to Ann Arbor, Michigan, for an exhibition bout with the University of Michigan and wind up their regular schedule Saturday afternoon against Princeton.

At the commencement of puck activities back in December it was generally felt that Varsity had a team of championship calibre. Their imposing record on their coast-to-coast trip, which was marred by only one reverse, served to justify this opinion. However, an underrated Queen's team put the skids under them by dint of 2-1 and 4-2 victories which came as distinct surprises. The other loss on the record was handed them by McGill, which had the best of the breaks in that encounter.

On the whole, however, the season was a fairly satisfactory one. Most gratifying of all was their triumph over McGill, long a thorn in the side of Varsity hockey teams. In this game the Blue squad gave conclusive proof of their class. The newcomers to the team, particularly Bill L'Heureux and Bob Copp, performed brilliantly in this tilt, to augur well for the Blue team's chances next year.

INTRAMURAL
SPORT

Dents A baseball team knocked out a 1-41 victory over Trinity yesterday and kept their group lead intact. The Molarmen scored runs in every inning and only a run by Telfer prevented them shutting out the Red and Black aggregation.

Dents A: Weiller, Chappell, Nefsky, McColl, Kalyk, Hamby, Davies, Singer and Smokum.

Trinity: Easton, Seet, Morgan, Mabee, Parker, Licity, Telfer, McAdam and Stuart.

U.C. junior cagers practically clinched their group title yesterday when they downed Meds juniors 35-19 at Hart House.

S.P.S. juniors are in second place trailing by one point but both teams have only one game left and the Arts-men should have little trouble in beating the Victoria Junior five in their remaining contest.

U.C. took the lead right from the start and led 25-14 at half time. Meds pressed in the second frame but were unable to cut down the Red team's advantage. Scott, Detweiler and Kates were high men for the winners with 8 points each, while Axon, who was the spearhead of their attack scored 7. Whalen and Shapiro played well for the Doctors and nabbed 5 and 4 points respectively.

U.C. Jrs.: Scott (8), Pyne (4), Axon (7), Detweiler (8), Klein, Kates (8), Jones, Moore.

Meds Jrs.: Shapiro (4), Acker (3), McFadden, Bremi, McLeod (3), Koffman (2), Orr, Whalen (5), Nicholson (2), Fine.

VARSITY FAVOURED TO WIN TONIGHT

Spectators in the upper gym this evening will be treated to exhibitions of classy volleyball by some stellar aggregations as five teams meet in a round robin series to declare a winner of the Toronto and Districts Intermediate Volleyball Championship. The quintet of entries includes a team from this university plus representatives from Central Y, Y.M.H.A. and Toronto Bible College. The tournament takes the form of a round robin series on each home court, and this is the fifth. The winner of this regional contest will move into the provincial tournament against other regional champions, to be held at Central Y on March 18.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Charles Dubin

HIGHLIGHTS IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

The other night down in London, Western's basketball squad eked out a last minute 42-41 win over Warren Stevens' senior Blues, by scoring five points in the last thirty seconds. This thrilling finish got us thinking and talking about other Varsity sports thrillers. As this year's athletic program draws near its close, there have been several stirring moments provided for Varsity sports lovers to reminisce about.

THIS YEAR—

We can remember the roar of the crowd as Lou Somers made his sensational debut before Varsity fans in their first game against Queen's; the sensational forward passing of Charlie Prince against Western and also the play against the same team when Prince kicked to Hurley and then charged up to recover the ball; it bounced loose and Murray Scott scooped it up to romp over for a touch, putting the Blues back in the game and the title hunt. That rainy day in Montreal is still clear in our minds when Andy Anton spelt finish to Varsity's championship hopes by crossing the Blue deadline for three touchdowns.

Varsity's hockey team has provided the fans with plenty to talk about this year. Highly-rated by experts (no, we didn't include ourselves), Ace Bailey's boys were going at a fast rate until one cold January night in Kingston when the Gaels upset the old applecart and also the Blues by the score of 2-1, thereby clipping the wings of the fast-flying Varsity seniors. It's always a thrill to see the smooth working McGill Redmen, and an added pleasure to see Varsity scalp Russ McConnell and company, even though a title was not at stake.

Some mighty fine boxing bouts were served up for Varsity boxing fans this year. Last Saturday night's card being a stand-out. We saw Percheson of Queen's storm out of his corner in his bout with Jack Piggett, figuring that the only way to defeat the intercollegiate champion was to keep him crowded; we saw the champ hit for the first time this year, and felt the tenseness of the crowd as they thought for a moment that perhaps Piggett had met someone who could give him a battle. Then with unexpected suddenness, we heard the tremendous ovation of the crowd as Jack floored his opponent with a blow that travelled scarcely more than five or six inches.

These are just a few of the highlights that come to mind in thinking back over our year's sports calendar. What a wealth of material Warren Stevens and Mac McCutcheon must have amassed in their several years around Varsity.

YESTERYEAR—

Warren Stevens was telling us of a game in Kingston in 1932, the first year the Athletic Director came to Varsity, in which the two traditional rivals were tied with only seconds to go. Queen's kicked to Varsity and Bobby Coulter, one of the greatest quarterbacks Varsity has ever had, returned the kick behind the try-colour deadline, winning the game in the last play. The same year the Blues were tripping McGill in Montreal and needed a win to stay in the running for the championship. Near the end of the game, the score of the Queen's-Western game was 14-10 and Queen's had beaten the Mustangs. This meant that the Blues would win the title, if they defeated McGill and they were well on their way, leading by 5-1 with just a few minutes to play. Then McGill recovered a fumble on Varsity's 15 yard line. They tried an unsuccessful forward pass and end run. Then on their third down, they tried a perfect outside kick and Young of McGill just about had the ball in his hands for a touch, when out of nowhere Johnny Copp leaped high in the air to snatch the ball from the hands of the Montreal team, limiting them to one point and giving Varsity the championship.

There was also the game in which Varsity were tied with a few minutes left to play. Three times the Blues gained possession on their opponents' 20 yard line, and three times big Bob Isbister, in a class by himself as far as great kickers in intercollegiate rugby go, failed to kick the ball the short distance, and the game ended in a tie with Varsity on the 10 yard line.

A HARD JOB, WELL DONE

Mac McCutcheon is also in a great position to relate some exciting moments in sport. Mac has been here for 14 years, and at one time coached 3 Varsity basketball teams. In the seasons 1927-28 and 1928-29 Mac's senior squad went unbeaten against any Canadian team. With his intermediate team, Coach McCutcheon has compiled a record enviable in any sport, winning the title for the seventh consecutive year, compiling a record of 60 wins against 2 losses, and this is something!

In the season of 1936-37 an intramural department was set up on Mac's own motion and he was put at the head. His record speaks for itself, by the fact that there are 3500 registrations in intramural sport this year.

Mac was telling us that the greatest thrill he got out of his work, even above his success with the basketball teams was after compiling the figures of the new intramural setup, the year after he had sponsored it to find that there was an increase of 33 per cent of participation over the previous year, and the number has increased steadily every year.

THERE'S ACTIVITY YET

But all isn't over yet this year: the intermediate boxers and wrestlers perform this Saturday; the basketball squad still have McGill to play this Saturday and if both Varsity and Western hurdle this obstacle a real basketball classic will ensue to determine supremacy; the hockey team play Princeton and the intercollegiate leagues go merrily on.

At present the collegians are heavy favourites to win tonight, with twelve victories and four losses. Tied for second position are Central Y and Y.M.H.A., each having taken ten games and dropped six. Third place is held by West End with five wins out of sixteen, while the Toronto Bible College are in the cellar position with three victories and thirteen losses. The Blue and White need only three wins to clinch the title.

The probable Varsity line-up for tonight will be Shuker, Mackenzie and MacDonald on the spike line, with Cash, Peart and Brown setting them up, and Murray, Wise and Emmett on the reserve list. This squad is an all-star outfit chosen at the close of the intercollegiate schedule from the outstanding performers in intramural volleyball.

BLUE TEAM DEFEATS

The Western intermediate hockey team was beaten, 7 to 5, by Varsity in an intercollegiate game yesterday. The line-ups were as follows:

Western: Goal, Atcheson; defence, Webb and Francis; centre, King; wings, Allen and Ross; alternates, Dickson, Stewart, Thompson, Seager, Wong.

The Sportsman

By Marg Conlin

Well, the Bronze Babies rested on their laurels last night, foregoing the joys of practice in favour of a well-earned rest, and you can hardly blame them. It is expected that the seniors will again play the intermediates, who must feel pretty smug about having twice conquered the champion intercollegiate cagers. Just what title the ladies have after this achievement is still rather mythical but it's a cinch they must be good.

While we were in London we were out to the Western University Ski Club which is much more accessible than ours, but not as well-planned owing to the fact that this is the first year of its existence. Some of the skiers there are planning to make the Limerlost trip this week-end and are anxious to meet Varsity skiers competitively and otherwise. Ski Club take note.

Congratulations to St. Hilda's, winners of intercollegiate hockey honours. This is one championship which was predestined for the year, and the Saints who have worked hard to keep the intercollegiate league running smoothly deserve the privilege of exhibiting the much-battered hockey cup for the coming year.

Co-ed skiers must feel pretty elated around this campus with the results of the McGill invitation meet in which our entries captured the coveted trophy. Last Thursday before the team left, Joan Griffith, who played a major part in Varsity's success, said that she didn't expect we would win any firsts at the meet, but was anticipating good competition and a lot of fun down there. Such modesty.

of water up over someone's door by a series of strings so that it spills on anyone entering.

At Knox they have a different version of the same thing. A transom tipped horizontally is filled with water and set to spill on anyone entering the door under it.

At '73' they don't even bother with such complicated things as strings. They simply throw a pailful of water on some innocent lad who might be locked outside at three o'clock in the morning.

Several years back someone arranged by phone for five dates with Annesley girls to go out on a formal party. When the co-eds were almost tired waiting, somebody told them there were five milk cans sitting on the front steps. The word homo was displayed prominently on each of the cans, which had contained homogenized milk.

Not to be outdone, the girls phoned the senior tutor that five Burwash boys were lodged on the front steps, and couldn't navigate under their own power.

Like death and taxes, the final exams are inevitable (and imminent). This sad fact recalls a letter which a grateful American college man wrote to a magazine a few years ago. It seems that he had an exam to write, and knowing damn well that he wouldn't be able to answer any of the questions, he brought along a magazine to read. The prof supervising the exam became bored, poor chap. Spying the mag, he asked if he might borrow it. The student couldn't very well refuse, and soon the professor was deeply engrossed in the slick-paper spidee. Needless to say our hero as well as the rest of the class passed via the grapevine method. . . .

The Senate is respectfully asked to make the following ruling: "Candidates may use the following aids: pens, pencils, rulers and Esquire." . . .

Novelty. . . . At McMaster they have a weekly paper. The feature editor, a fellow named Ward, writes a column that he calls "The Wardrobe". Could Dark mystery surrounds a cryptic notice in the Queen's Journal. The Arts class of '42 held a year party recently and somebody stole a BAYONET, a practice upon which the government looks with extreme disfavour. It would be interesting to know what there is about Queen's year parties that they need bayonets there. . . .

You won't find it in the Calendar, but the Oddfellow's Hall is part of this university, and swing music is on the curriculum. Back when the Swing Club and The Varsity were still on speaking terms, the club held a meeting at the above hall, at which Dick McDougall, local radio-casting swing pundit, gave an interesting outline of swing. Last week a radio and movie publication hereabouts blurted: "Dick McDougall has even lectured at the University of Toronto on swing music". The Conservatory hasn't recovered yet.

Irwin Blackstone (Archie Wilson) the unhappy graduate, performed with adequate reality. He might well have stressed the cynical humour that Prof. McKay injected in the lines in order to crystallize the characterization. Frank Winn (Jim Wilson), one of the practical brothers, took his part with pain. Despite his stops and starts and jagged movements he succeeded in filling out a sketchy role.

Ralph Ireland (Bert Wilson) though too well dressed for his part, and even too immovable for the stolid man he characterized, acted well. Mary Bruck (Margaret), the adopted daughter, emotionalized with lack of restraint. Her profound misery smacked of Gorki and Dostoevski. But Ontario life should be different.

The ambition of the Players' Guild in attempting to produce a new and difficult play is worthy of congratulation. The performance merited only approval.

TRINITY COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY

The Trinity College Society was the rightful victor last night. And whatever spoils we can heap up it deserves most rightly. Unfortunately the medieval setting of "Saul" a Biblical story, added only confusion. For it is difficult to justify the recitation of the Lord's prayer in the presence of Old Testament characters.

It is safe to say, however, that Frank Lalor's production of Saul is one of the best pieces of amateur theatricals Hart House Theatre has seen in a long time. And few though the lines of John Barnes (Solomon) were, he acted with a deeply moving sincerity and subtle interpretation. The timing, the grouping and the setting of the play were excellent. Only the title role of "Saul" (Hugh Henderson) proved disappointing. For here an able actor and an ably written part did not seem to click. Saul, both in Biblical legend and in the play was a hardy warrior and King. Aging, weakening and foreseeing a defeat this emotionally unstable man declaims the power of God. He is a man who has lost faith. He is a man who to lose his life. Yet, Mr. Henderson's portrayal was as restrained as if he were portraying a retired English business-man discussing the political defeat of his party. The Witch (Elizabeth Blair) acted extremely well. She might have appeared a little less attractive. But then again even make-up has limitations. The Marshal of the King's Army (Edgar Bull) gave himself well to his role. Jonathan (Paul Christie) should have been a living military hero with vitality and spirit.

The play was deeply moving in its near professional production, deserving well the palm.

VICTORIA COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY

Victoria's production last night was not unlike an undisciplined vaudeville act. For though Mr. Shakespeare is renowned for his dexterous pen, Victoria showed that it takes more than a first rate script to put over a play. It is noteworthy too that the antics of the performers were good. It was lack of rhythm and measures that failed to give the production a convincing air. Malvolio (Wilmot Mercer), Sir Toby Belch (John D. Hilton) and the Clown (Tom Paton) are amusing comedians and imaginative actors. Congratulations to them!

It is to be regretted that the adjudicators did not analyze the performances in constructive terms. For the purpose of such movement as a drama festival it should be to raise the standard of drama on the campus. A Department of Drama would seem to be a success on this campus by last night's showing. S. Michael Gelber "Lohengrin"

The Opera Guild of Toronto, ably supported by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, presented the opera Lohengrin at Massey Hall last night.

The singing and the orchestration were well linked throughout. The two formed a unit whose perfection was marred only occasionally by orchestral overwhelming of the vocalization, or weakness of singing which produced the same effect.

Myron Taylor of the Metropolitan Opera sang the leading role. His operatic training was evident, the facile flexibility of his voice being a quality which some of the other singers lacked. Doris Gilmour as Elsa possesses a voice of remarkable tone purity. At the beginning she lacked dramatic power, but this she acquired as the opera progressed. The timbre of Telramund's voice was curiously suited to the harshness of his character without being in the least unpleasant.

In several places, the stage arrangements seemed unnecessarily complicated and cumbersome. However, the scenery and lighting were good, especially in the beginning of the second act. The singing of the chorus possessed plenty of verve, but often the blending of harmony was marred by lack of union. In the Bridal Chorus the rhythmic patterns formed by the stage figures were striking.

Throughout the opera the orchestration was most satisfactory, the blending of the Wagnerian motifs being excellently done. The Wedding March, however, was somewhat disappointing, the strings not being as predominant in the upward surges as they might have been. The piercing sweet strains with which the program opened were unfortunately marred by the disturbances caused by the inevitable late-comers. It seems too bad that these and also those who leave in the midst of the concluding aria must persist in their pernicious habits. Dorothy Northwood.

Toronto Graduates Bemoan Regimentation at Columbia

Find New York University well Equipped, but Courses soulless—Co-eds Stupid

By Arthur J. Benson
(Special to The Varsity)

New York, March 1: Are first impressions lasting? For Varsity students at Columbia the answer is apparently "Yes", judging from the results of a recent series of interviews. The opinion of several Toronto graduates who have been here a long while is in accord with the views aired by newcomers last fall.

Among students questioned was Stanislas Aquarone, who has been at Columbia on a scholarship in the French Department since graduation in 1937. The medical service, library and dormitories were particular objects of his praise. The University College graduate bemoaned the low intellectual level of Columbia students, however, and scored the extreme regimentation of courses.

The personalities of American co-eds appear to have been formed in the same mould, he further confided, although the many cosmopolitan girls studying here are une autre affaire. Aquarone concluded with the rather discouraging remark that "generalization is stupid, since New York is merely a lot of automobiles, buildings, and people."

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM AT ROYAL YORK

University College held its annual Junior-Senior dance in the Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel last night, following the graduation banquet. For many students of the graduating year this will be the last college party. Trump Davidson and his orchestra supplied music for the affair which was described as "very successful".

During the course of the dance, results of yesterday's U.C. Literary and Athletic Society elections were announced by Bill Bowlen, this year's president.

At the graduation banquet Frances Carlisle was introduced as University College's candidate for the Moss Scholarship award. Selected by vote of the U.C. graduating class yesterday, Miss Carlisle is a student in fourth year Philosophy and History. So far as is known, she is the first woman to win the U.C. nomination. President of the Women's Undergraduate Association, she has her A.T.C.M. certificate in piano, and has won first class honours in each of her first three years.

DR. FRITZ SPEAKS ON FOSSIL LIFE

The history of fossil life was the theme of Dr. Madeleine A. Fritz's illustrated lecture at the Royal Ontario Museum Tuesday. The Rise and Fall of the Fossil Dynasties was the subject of Dr. Fritz's talk. To the question of the life history of the fossils, Dr. Fritz applied the all-important law of nature. An organism must maintain its own existence, the race must continue. Failure to adhere to this law means downfall for the race concerned, said Dr. Fritz.

Fossils have provided us with groups of organisms which have grown from insignificance, spread and finally had their downfall, sometimes disappearing entirely. The shell type of fossil demonstrates this feature. To illustrate this point, Dr. Fritz showed pictures of the brachiopods, the ammonites and the trilobites. The brachiopods were an early stage of fossil and existed 500 million years ago and the trilobites are a more highly developed form of fossils whose downfall coincided with the development of fish caused by the development of back-boned fish.

MARGIN OF ONE DEFEATS M'GILL IN COLONY DEBATE

That Former German Colonies be Returned to Germany is Subject Under Discussion

McGill's touring debaters were defeated by Osgoode Hall in a hotly-contested debate yesterday afternoon when an audience decision went against them by one vote. Taking the government side of the measure that the former German colonies should be returned to the Third Reich, J. W. MacNaughton and Monty Berger represented McGill and upheld Germany's demands for expansion.

Bill MacNaughton opened the argument for the government, outlining the three claims of Germany as being desire for prestige, a source for raw materials and an outlet for excess populations. While the colonies would not be of much use to the Reich for population they were important for the other reasons, MacNaughton said, illustrating the point by citing as examples the (Continued on Page 4)

SPEAKER AT BANQUET SEES OPPORTUNITIES AWAITING VIGILANT

Banquet in Royal York Hotel

"Opportunities are as great today as they ever were," was the encouraging message brought by Justice Urquhart last night to over 250 students who crowded the Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York hotel for the annual University College Graduation Banquet. "They are only waiting to be discovered."

In a successful career there are elements of hard work, honesty, integrity and sobriety, said Justice Urquhart, but "the greatest element of all in my estimation is luck, an element which aids the vigilant and not the sleephead." He stressed the importance of active interest in public affairs in which "the element called luck will have a greater chance to light upon you some day."

"Choose your vocation with great care as your choice once made is practically irrevocable."

In accordance with the tradition of previous years, the Governor-General will be present with his retinue to prorogue the session.

Noon-Hour Addresses Given by Three Students at S.C.M. Meeting in Hart House

Three prominent students discussed their religious ideals and experiences in the S.C.M. noon-hour address yesterday afternoon, and outlined how they felt that they could be of greatest service in life.

Ted Jarvis, well-known as a member of the senior rugby team and an intercollegiate boxer, told how after four years in the university he had been very surprised when someone had questioned his speaking in an S.C.M. meeting because they thought he was an atheist. Since coming to university he had had a new experience of religion, after first undergoing a period of mental disturbance.

Hart House Illuminating Expert Revealed as Ingenious Artist

What an ermine wrap is to a co-ed, what a top hat is to an ad, that's what decorative lighting is to Hart House. Chief Electrician McKee, the man who keeps the university's lights burning, has personally designed and built dozens of special lighting fixtures to ornament the gothic halls for dances and parties.

There are so many different designs that Mr. McKee has lost count of them. He keeps them all at U.C. and sometimes ships sets to Guelph, when extra colour is needed at an O.A.C. Affair. Others are installed at the Arena for Prom concerts.

Whenever a dance is to be held at Hart House, McKee and his assistants get together and put down on paper every detail of fixtures, colours and extra wiring for every room and hallway that requires dressing up.

The university's illumination expert certainly believes in variety. He's done the lighting for eight affairs so far this season and every job has been different.

By switching fixtures and coloured lights there's almost no end to the variations he can turn out.

The piece de resistance of Mr. McKee's electrical ornamentations was the graduation ball last summer. "For one of the big dances," he said, "I really go right to town and dress the place up so you wouldn't know it." In addition to the usual lighting, the quadrangle was illuminated and by means of submerged lights and floating water lilies, the swimming pool was transformed into a sunken garden. The guests were so enthusiastic about it that Mr. McKee is doing a repeat performance this year.

For the last two months the lights in Hart House have brightened considerably from their former yellow tinge. To relieve the load on the university power system, the House was dropped from the network and now gets its electricity from the Toronto Hydro.

Unbeaten Seconds Plan Additional Conquests

WEEK-END TO SEE FINAL HODP GAMES

McGill and Varsity Vie Here
Saturday Night in Crucial Clash

The senior intercollegiate basketball schedule winds up this week-end with two potentially important games as McGill plays Western in London Friday night and Varsity here Saturday night.

The present set-up finds only one of the four starting quintets on the outside knighting knots—Queen's. The Montreal Redmen are two games behind the league-leading Londoners and Varsity, who are tied with four wins and one loss each. Thus McGill has a mathematical chance of forcing a three-way tie for first place by winning both games this week-end, but the odds are sky-high against that possibility. On the other hand, if they defeat one of the two leaders, the other team will automatically get the championship.

It seems quite probable that after the smoke of battle has cleared this weekend, Toronto and London will still be tied at the top of the heap with ten points apiece and a sudden death playoff game on neutral grounds will be necessary to determine the 1939 resting-place of the Wilson Cup.

If such a title match is required, it will be up to the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union through its three man board of reference to decide where and when the crucial encounter will be played. There are a number of possible sites. The logical geographical answer might seem to be Hamilton whereas a tilt at the wooden Kingston quarry would be keeping the struggle more or less local.

Intermediate Cagers Line Up Post-Season Series; Will Meet Gals Saturday

Mac McCutcheon's championship intermediate basketball team have not as yet decided to hang up their uniforms for the season. The unbeaten seconds will play two more exhibition games before they write fins to another successful year of cage competition. This Saturday they meet up with St. Michael's College intermediate squad and a week later they will clash with the Earl Grey championship playground quintet.

Unvanquished in their schedule this year, the McCutcheons romped to their sixth straight minor collegiate title. In only one game were they extended. In this clash with McMaster Maroons, however, they were without the services of five of their best men and every team is entitled to one off-day. Otherwise, they had an easy time of it.

Graduation will rob the intermediates of a number of worthy cagers, but this should not be too severe a blow to the team. McCutcheon has a habit of assembling a classy aggregation of stars no matter what the odds are. This can be testified by the fact that out of thirty-six contests in the last six years, Varsity has dropped only two.

Apart from the fact that the intermediates have won recognition for the university in the intermediate league, their chief claim to praise comes from the fact that many of the team's stars have won places on Warren Stevens' senior cagers and have shown up well in the higher company. Percy Singer, a regular on the Blue seniors this season, is a former intermediate player whose steady playing won him his starting position.

Of the nine regular members on this year's seconds, six will be back at school next fall. These include Humenick, Captain Clegg, Beers, Matthews, Avery and Dunn.

McLaughlin, Flynn and Winters are the graduating trio.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR COMMITTEES

Thirteen of the nominees are from U.C. Meds come next with nine.

Youth Hostels

During the winter frequent references have been made to the Ontario youth hostels, and a few days ago a news story carried the information that the Students' Administrative Council at U. of T. was believed to be the first Canadian student body to back youth hostels officially. The youth hostel movement first originated in Germany, and has been developed more extensively there and in some of the adjoining European nations than anywhere else in the world.

However they have been spreading rapidly, and former European wanderers who have found them to be of great advantage in travelling cheaply, are glad to know that each year there are more and more of them in America. The atmosphere of jovial comradeship which is characteristic of the youth hostels the world over, is pictured in the following traveller's report.

"On the steep side of the Saar valley, just below Jena, nestles a frame house. In its cosiness as the autumn mist settled down over the darkening flats there gathered a group of happy faces. When I found them they were laughing, joking and singing. They seemed to know each other well, and they called each other "Du", the familiar form of address in Germany. Yet I knew that no three of the merry group had ever seen each other before. Indeed as I settled down among them and ate my rye bread and Swiss cheese, I found that they were from all over Germany. There was one who talked a lot in a boastful but good-natured way. He was from Dresden, and a member of the Bach choral society of that city. There were other musical people there too. A young music teacher and his wife added to the life of the party by playing the piano and leading in the old songs that wanderers in Germany have sung for centuries. Another lad had a mandolin which had accompanied him all the way from far Silesia.—Some were dressed in the uniform of the Hitler Youth and others of the German Young Folk. There was a Bavarian with his short-waisted coat and leather shorts. Girls were wearing the picturesque little black, green and red-woven jackets from Berchtesgaden where Hitler lives, or the uniform of the League of German Girls."

At the present time there are five youth hostels in Ontario, with promise of many more being organized in the very near future. And this year for the first time Canadian youths will be able to have the advantage of summer hostelling in Ontario. They are being lined up in Muskoka, Niagara, Caledon and many of the other scenic parts of Ontario holiday land.

The first purpose of the youth hostel is to facilitate travel for young people, especially those who have straightened finances but desire to travel through the country, see the spots of beauty, live in the open air, and meet new friends with similar ideas.

They are established in chains or loops or networks, so that the traveller may travel from one interesting place to another, visiting spots of special historic or natural interest, taking their time in travel and yet always knowing that they will have an inexpensive place to stay at night.

Each hostel is a building with separate sleeping rooms, wash rooms, and toilet facilities for the sexes, and common kitchens and dining rooms. In charge of each hostel there is a house-father and a house-mother.

The scheme is most advantageous for those who travel lightly by bicycle, motor-cycle, or just hike. But it is quite possible that in the near future, as they have a chance to prove their popularity in this country, they will be established all through the northern country also, where they may be used by those who wish not only to travel overland but by canoe also.

The Varsity wishes to co-operate with the Canadian Youths Hostel Association, in giving all possible information to the university students, for it is believed that many should be able to profit by the system during the coming summer, and again next winter during the skiing season. It is possible to get information regarding the location of these hostels throughout the United States and Europe as well as in Canada, and students wishing to take advantage of them, or desirous of more information, should write or visit the offices of the Canadian Youth Hostels Association at 23 Union Station.

We Monkey Around

Those people who have made a study of simian behaviour explain that an ape "monkeys" and a monkey "apes". It has been demonstrated that the higher ape is capable of almost human reason within the range of its experience. The psychologist Kohler has observed a chimpanzee when he could not reach an object with one stick take a longer stick lying at hand to effect its purpose; that he has piled boxes upon one another to grasp a suspended banana, and discovering that he was unable to reach the fruit, piled more boxes until he reached his objective. These experiments plainly involved the creature in mental reactions closely corresponding to human behaviour. One anthropologist asserts that we can learn more in a week concerning the dawn of human reason, by scrupulously studying the anthropoid ape, than by observing the termites and ants for a million years.

The foregoing casual reflections are not submitted in support of the doctrine of organic evolution, but merely to indicate that many of our inventive achievements are realized by man's "monkeying" with things rather than by slavishly "aping" the conventional.

The modern science of chemistry, had its origin in which might be termed idle curiosity. Early research workers merely seemed to "monkey" blindly with crude apparatus, the meddlers wondering what they might come upon by chance. Had not these "impractical" men striven to satisfy an impelling curiosity chemistry as we know it, might never have been developed.

Much of the work going on in educational and industrial laboratories, probing into the mysteries of nature, is of a "trial and error" character. In a word, we are "monkeying" our way into the hidden recesses of the unknown. This is not said in disparagement of the procedure of research but, rather, to stress the simple principles involved in the work. Three hundred years ago Francis Bacon urged upon scientists the absolute necessity of the working from the simple toward the complex—from the known to the unknown.

And so it seems to us in the various fields of human endeavour we make actual progress, not indeed by inflexibly copying archaic practices and traditions but by cautiously and persistently trying out, or "monkeying with", new possibilities in educational, economic, industrial, and social activities.

Hallett and Poole

In a piano recital that was a credit to Canadian musicianship Gordon Hallett and Clifford Poole presented a program for one and two pianos at Eaton Auditorium last night. This was one of a series to acquaint the concert-goers with some of our own outstanding pianists. That a prophet should be appreciated at home is the belief of the sponsors of the series and Messrs. Hallett and Poole richly deserve such recognition.

Clifford Poole's Chopin group was outstanding. He appeared oblivious to the audience and it seemed as though his playing was as much for his own enjoyment as that of the audience. Smoothly moving through the C sharp minor nocturne, the pianist was DISCOVERED!

Reliably informed sources today revealed the presence of a man in the Faculty of Engineering who is perpetrating a gigantic hoax on the university.

Terence Musica, as he is known to his associates has been for the last three years in the employ of the Dean of Engineering. His job is simply to provide the scientific smells in the corridors of S.P.S.

The whole idea began a few years ago when Dr. Wiregarters of the Board of Governors stood up at an important meeting and said that although he knew that S.P.S. was a School of Science, did anybody else know? A gasp of wonder ran around the room until it was caught and tied to a leg of the table.

Then Dr. Wiregarters explained. The science was to employ a man who would during certain hours of the week provide scientific smells around the Engineering buildings. Thus Terence Musica was hired and he has proved himself invaluable. Now when Arts and Meds students walk by the Mining Building and notice a strange smell they say "Ah, the engineering students are doing some scientific work." But people in the know just say, "Good old Musica!"

Five times a week, at certain hours, Terence Musica walks up to the second floor of the mining building and drops a test tube of H₂S on the floor. Immediately the building takes on a scientific air. Musica's time-table is as follows:

Mon, 9:00 a.m. Drops a test-tube of hydrogen sulphide in Mining Bldg.
Tuesday 11:53 a.m. Burns a pair of goloshes on main floor of Electrical Bldg.

Wednesday 2:67 p.m. Throws three rotten eggs through the window of the McLennan Labs.

Thursday 8:00 a.m. Smears the S.P.S. door with liberal portions of Limburger cheese.

Friday No smell.

Saturday (all day) Repeats several jokes heard at Daffydil Night.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The first paragraph in your editorial "Back-to-the-Land" (issue Feb. 21), rather weakens the rest of the article. In your desire to get a crack at the "quack cure" your sense of logic ran away with you, for the article as a whole deals with the basic land question.

The responsibility for our present economic situation lies squarely at the door of the universities, and the following words of Prof. Stephen Leacock, who has acquired more letters after his name than you have so far, ought to keep university men humble. Leacock says:

"Forty years of hard work on economics has pretty well removed all the ideas I ever had about it. The whole science is a wreck. For our social problems there is about as much light from the older economies as from a glow-worm."

Ironically enough Prof. Leacock's words have been demonstrated to be true in the fact that, for four years, a professor of political science has been Minister of Labour at Ottawa, and he has not nearly got the better of the economic situation as yet. So when the orthodox economies fail to produce results, you can't afford to be supercilious about those who proffer a solution.

Man is a land animal and the natural place for his labour is on the land. If the professions and manufacturing and exchange will not afford him a living his only recourse is back to nature. Our present system denies him unassisted access to nature.

With one of the largest land surfaces on the globe, teeming with natural resources, and with one of the sparsest

SAINTS VICTORIOUS OVER MOLARMEN

Showing a combination of both offensive and defensive power, the St. Mike's "B" baseball team smashed out a decisive 11-3 victory in the big gym, Hart House, yesterday afternoon.

The Irish nine connected for four runs in the first innings, which combined with the fine twirling of their ace pitcher, McDermott, would have been enough to win the bat and ball tussle. The double blue hurler bled his opponents to three scratch hits. The St. Mike's team compiled fifteen bingles and committed one error.

Barry made it a perfect day at the bat for the Irish with three clouts in as many trips to the plate, and, along with McDermott's tricky pitching, starred for the St. Mike's team. Hurwitz and Coleman played good ball for the College strikers.

St. Mike's: Babcock, McGarry, Kavanaugh, Barry, Condon, Cronin, Denison, Dwyer, Ninio, Robertson, McDermott.
Dents: Passalis, Coleman, Beatty, Kankanis, Case, Hurwitz, Di Roberto, Cameron, McDonald.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYERS LOSE IN TOURNAMENT

University of Toronto intermediate volleyball team entered the last night of the Toronto and District volleyball tournament evening with the second point lead, but when the cease-fire sounded Central Y.M.C.A. had galloped off with top honours by virtue of four straight wins. The final standing of the three top teams was as follows:

Central Y.M.C.A. 14
Varsity 13
Y.M.H.A. 12

No trophy will be awarded to the victorious College Street team, unless they proceed to the Ontario finals.

Varsity won their first match at 10 and evening 15-10 from West End Y and appeared to be home free. Central, however, Continued on page 4

SAINT MIKE'S SCORE FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN

The accurate sharpshooting of Anarella led St. Mike's B basketball team to their fifth straight conquest in the upper gym last night as the Double Blue took the measure of Pharmacy B 27-15. The Gaels are sailing jauntily along in top spot in Group 6 of the interfaculty race with five victories against no defeats and should be a hard team to beat in the playdowns.

Anarella sunk five field goals and added a foul shot to make up his scoring total of eleven points. Macedonio and Moran both accounted for four points to bolster St. Mike's total. Gibbons with three baskets and Lipton with two were best for Pharmacy B.

Baskets were scarce in the early minutes of play but a short rally by St. Mike's brought the half-time total to 11-5. Pharmacy battled gamely all the way in the final frame but were unable to threaten seriously.

St. Mike's B: Anarella (11), Macedonio (4), Maloney (3), Keehan, Williams (2), Callan, Bryant, Moran (4), Doyle (3), Lambert.

Pharmacy B: Finch, Couson, Lipton (4), Collins (1), Gibbons (6), Friedman (3), Hogan (1).

Personalities Pictured In Print

From the thriving metropolis of Bradford, in the fall of '35, came William Coleman to register as a frosh at Wyckiffe and U.C. His academic work since then has been centred in a philosophy course at University College, but his athletic efforts have all been in behalf of Wyckiffe College, where he will continue in theology. Participating in basketball, baseball, football and hockey, Bill has contributed much to his college in those branches of sport. Perhaps his most notable feat was the Tony Galento act he gave at the end of the Michaelmas term, when he left Wyckiffe's dining hall after the annual Christmas dinner. He won more honour for faculty and himself by defeating a highly-touted rival in the Senior Interfaculty Assault, to take the 125 lb. championship. When Wyckiffe's hockey team recently won the season's first victory in the game against Forestry it was Bill Coleman who guarded the Anglican nets, registering a 3-0 shutout.

INTRAMURAL SPORT

Vic II won the curtain-raiser in yesterday's twilight title-header, beating U.C. II 4-2. Beaton of Vic was top scorer with 2 goals, while Kirkland and Cam MacKenzie got their other two attempts. Duck and McAlbain registered 4 U.C. markers. The win puts Vic II one point behind the group 3 leaders, St. Meds.

In the second game Pharmacy had no trouble defeating a rejuvenated Forestry six 4-1. Snodgrass was the high scorer with two, and Soucy and Pitcher got the other two. Hope fooled the Pharmacy goalie for Forestry's lone counter. Pharmacy are now on top of group 4, two points up on Knox.

The last game saw the holders of the group two cellar position, Jr. Meds, throw the proverbial wrench into the previously unbeaten Trinity I machine with a 2-1 win. Murray and Brilling scored for Jr. Meds, while Harris got Trinity's effort. The loss sees Trinity I on top of the group 2 heap by only one point over St. S.P.S.

COMING EVENTS

Members of the Cauliflower Cult and their affiliated devotees, the Fencers, hold the spotlight again this week at Hart House. The intermediate assault, which lacks much of the glamour but little of the quality of the senior assault, will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, as counter attraction to the Varsity-Princeton pug embroglio and the McGill-Varsity cage tilt. Varsity will be represented in the intermediate joustings by contenders who failed to make the grade in the senior interfaculty assault.

The senior pugsters had their hopes for a championship rather unexpectedly erased by Queen's last week and will round out a bitter-sweet season against Princeton on Saturday. The basketballers are still very definitely in the running, however. This McGill team, easy winner recently at Queen's, might conceivably upset the form charts and give either Western or Toronto a licking, in which case the anticipated Western-Toronto playoff will not come off.

If you've been glancing at the "Sportswoman" at all recently you will have noticed terms of publicity about the Bronze Baby. On Saturday night you will have a chance to look at the two teams that brought home the Baby, when the local intermediate and senior girls' teams take the floor. McCutcheon's incredible intermediates, unbeaten this year, will also be seen in action against St. Mike's. Which pretty well completes the bill of fare.

TOUCHING ALL THE BASES

Fight fans are still talking in hushed whispers about the way "One Punch" Piggett lashed across that brace of hammers at the assault last week-end. Jock laced a Now-I-Lay-Me to the chin of Percheson of Queen's and there wasn't any argument. Speculation is rife as to where Piggett stores away the dynamite.

St. Mike's basketball team go serenely on their way at the head of Group 6 in the interfaculty cage circuit, unbeaten and untied in five games. The Gaels trimmed Pharmacy B yesterday 27-15 to open a wide lead over their rivals. Anarella, Bousneau and Moran are some of the stars of this outfit.

The intermediate swimming team will defend its title against competition provided by McMaster, O.A.C. and Western at the swimming meet in Hamilton Saturday. Loring, track luminary, and Jimmie Farmer, chunky Western star of basketball and football, are listed on the London roster.

A despoiled Toronto Bible College outfit cost Varsity a championship chance last night. The Blue volleyball team, lacking only a single point to tie Central Y.M.C.A. for the honours, succumbed to the Biblical boys 15-13 in a stunning upset, as Toronto Bible College were deeply entrenched in the cellar. It was just one of those things.

A fellow named Paul Rowe, late of Calgary Bronks and University of Oregon, is reported headed for Queen's in search of higher education. For your information, Mr. Reeve, Notre Dame's Four Horsemen are open to offers.

International Hockey League

The Dartmouth team and Russ McConnell, captain of McGill, shared the spotlight in the International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League competition as the February phase of the campaign ended last Monday. Still running over all opposition, Dartmouth clinched the Quadrangular League title for the second straight year and gained a mathematical chance of tying for the International Division crown by defeating Yale, 4 to 2, for its fifth consecutive victory.

McConnell, the league's high scorer last year, tallied 20 points in two games and brought his total to 41, equalling the mark he set last season in ten games. He has one more to go.

McGill won twice in the week's play, trouncing Harvard and Montreal, the latter by 15 to 5, the high-water mark of offensive power in the circuit this season. The Red now has won 8 and lost 1. Toronto and Queen's, tied for second with 6 and 3, are out of the running. Dartmouth is fourth with 5 and 2 and if it wins all three of its remaining games, including the one with McGill, the Big Green will tie the Canadian sextet for the greater-league title with the other opponents. The McGill game will be played next Tuesday at Montreal.

In other Quadrangular competition, Princeton split two games, beating Yale and losing to Harvard in overtime, placing the Cantabs second in the Quad standing. Queen's put Toronto out of the race by beating the Varsity 4 to 2.

McConnell's scoring spree was featured by the 7 goals he chalked up against Harvard, high for the season. McGill's team or individuals now hold every best performance in the league. In fact the first four top scorers are McGill players. Harvard's captain, Austin Harding, is the leading American scorer, as he was last year. He has 19 points.

Three games are scheduled for the remainder of this week, including the second Harvard-Dartmouth contest tonight and the second Harvard-Yale embroglio on Saturday. The first resulted in a 1-1 tie, only deadlock of the season. Princeton will begin its Canadian trip on Saturday, meeting Toronto.

The league records:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
McGill	8	1	0	16
Toronto	6	3	0	12
Queen's	6	3	0	12
Dartmouth	5	2	0	10

Armaments

London: The House of Commons yesterday received further proof of the intensity of British armament when the estimate of army expenditures for the next year was submitted as £161,000,000.

By Marg Conlin

We were amazed to hear yesterday that there are actually some few people on this campus who just can't visualize the Bronze Baby. It really must be seen to be appreciated because it defies description. It is so heavy that it can't be carried by any one lone co-ed but must be dismembered while being moved from place to place. For the benefit of all you curious people who haven't yet seen the monstrosity (that's what it really is) it was suggested yesterday that it should be put on public view for the edification of Varsity students. The winners of this trophy are making an appearance at Hart House Saturday night against the Inties so if a suitable shrine could be found in the vicinity during the girls' game, the Baby might appropriately make its first formal bow since leaving London. If someone arranging the games Saturday night would attend to the necessary details, a Bronze Baby appearance would add to the general hilarity.

Usually trophies of this nature are presented temporarily to the captain of the team, so that U.C. will eventually hold the honour for the year, since Captain Bobby McDonald is one of their chief joys. The 3rd team, present reposes in Miss Parkes' office, but will end up in the Women's Union, since "Punch" Gallie, the ski captain, is also a U.C. product.

Kingston will be a mecca for athletes this week-end when the intercollegiate co-ed swim meet booked for Friday and Saturday and the invasion of R.M.C. Saturday by the West Point hockey club. Queen's co-eds have joint privileges and rights with the men to the students' gym, and the pool there is ideally located, and perfectly appointed for an important meet of this sort. Some of the Western cities also starred on the basketball floor last week-end, while from Varsity Bobby McDonald, clever forward and captain of the winning senior team, is also expected to bring home aquatic honours. It should be a great reunion, and Queen's, who last entertained intercollegiate co-eds during the Bronze Baby meet a year ago, have made extensive arrangements to keep their visitors happy.

AROUND THE TRACK

With Bob Somers

"Yes, I'm a very useful piece of Hart House equipment." We agreed and asked Old Man Indoor-Track to tell us exactly what he had in mind.

"A lot of sports take advantage of my position up here in the Athletic Wing," he continued. "Take those muth-ball artists for example. All they have to do is swat the ball securely onto my surface, and they're automatically on second base. It's as easy as that. Then when some big show is held in the gym, I'm used as a gallery. That's when I'm appreciated. Then, too, when are the basketball players in the upper gym who throw the ball onto me whenever they're tired and want time out."

He was quiet for a moment as he tried to think of some other sport. A sad expression came over his face.

"Yes, I almost forgot," he mused. "A few stray runners pound over me every day. Twice a week, Tuesday and Thursday, I believe, a few of them get in a group and try to see who can make the most noise or tire themselves out."

I've eaten. It's been a long time since I've fastest one real trackman. Oh, I won't say there aren't two or three who look pretty good, but I know of many more whom I rarely see."

He told us names of runners he had watched within the last year or so who had impressed him greatly.

"I see on the notice-board that there is a big meet at Hamilton on March 18th," Grandpa Track said. "Do you know, son, if all the runners whom I mentioned would enter this meet, good old U. of T. could easily win top-rail. But take it from me, you need at least three weeks of almost daily training to be in the pink of condition, and that's what I can't understand. The boys used to take three or four hours of their recreation time a week, and come up here for workouts. Hee was always around after five, and still is, and his coaching is invaluable. No, I can't let myself worry. The lads will all be up here next week. When Hee wants two relay teams, or mile men, they never let him down."

"Thanks a lot, Grandpa," we said, and walked away greatly encouraged.

M'GILL DEFEATED IN COLONY DEBATE

products of New Guinea and Tanganyika.

George Clement, third year law student at Osseode Hall, opened the opposition presentation by claiming that all democratic countries had condemned return of colonies and accused the "Government of the Mock Parliament" of being impractical. He went on to show that the value of the colonies to Germany before the war had been negligible both for exports and imports and claimed that the only reason Germany was after the colonies was because they could turn them to advantage for military purposes as air and submarine bases.

Monty Berger, second speaker for the government, reprised the leader of the opposition for disregarding Britain's lack of strength. Britain's way was to yield slightly and gradually and allow the dictatorships enough rope to hang themselves. He showed that these aggressor countries were no longer "lessor breeds without the law" and without modern weapons. To fight now would be to do so at a disadvantage. Since the opposition admitted that the colonies were of no economic value, then it would be just as well to give the colonies back because the eventual downfall would be from economic pressure from within rather than war from without.

James Macdonald, second speaker for the opposition, smoothly repeated that the demand for colonies was a bluff toward further penetration in the east and that if the colonies were turned back they would lead to Britain's defeat later on. Following several speeches from the floor, Bill MacNaughton summarized the debate and a vote was taken.

URQUHART GUEST AT U.C. BANQUET

tically irrevocable," warned the speaker. In the choice he emphasized the "choice of the heart" and urged students to be patient once they got positions. "A man who has gone into a large firm and worked up from the bottom gradually finds himself in a better position than those who have fine jobs handed out to them." In closing Justice Urquhart spoke of the importance of remaining students throughout life.

W. M. Bowlen acted as toastmaster, proposing the toast to the king, followed by the toast to the university by G. W. Stoddart, to which Dean G. S. Brett responded. Principal Wallace replied to the toast to the college, proposed by Fran Carlisle. Miss Marion Ferguson, Dean of Women, proposed the toast to the graduating year, which was responded to by Doris Bailey and G. M. Dent. Among those at the head table were Dean and Mrs. Brett, Principal and Mrs. Wallace, Professor and Mrs. MacAndrew, Professor and Mrs. A. F. Plumptre, and Miss Ferguson. The committee in charge of arrangements for the banquet consisted of G. M. Dent, Ian G. Ferguson, H. E. L. McLaughlin, Doris Bailey, Kitty Guest, Jean Loblaw and Ruth Taylor.

ABOUT BOOKS

By Lloyd G. McDonald

I Give You Yesterday, by William R. Watson. The MacMillan Co., Toronto. $2.00.

How a man can go through life without the use of his arms—and enjoy it—is revealed in William R. Watson's new book, I Give You Yesterday.

The book is an odyssey of the travels of Watson and his wife as they go from place to place studying facilities for the care of the physically handicapped. The reader is taken back and forth across Canada, and even to Europe in the fast-moving narrative.

There is more to the book than narrative, however. It is a study of an attitude. The author, by giving his outward self a separate characterization, is able to describe his own actions and reactions in what almost succeeds in being an objective manner. He attempts to bring about, by the story of his own accomplishments, a saner outlook among normal people to those who are handicapped physically. The book itself is a physical accomplishment. Watson wrote it with his foot.

The style is rather pleasing. I Give You Yesterday is a bright, fast-moving story. It is interspersed with anecdotes and the occasional poem. The descriptions of characters met throughout the book are refreshingly frank. The story of the trip to Europe is written in a sort of stream-of-consciousness in style which offers variety. The author's impressions are clear-cut and realistic.

Of special interest to students here is the fact that a large part of the story deals with Toronto and its inhabitants. Several amusing passages deal with the university, chief among them being the description of a visit to the office of the President. Hart House is called "a little bit of England" and Watson seems quite pleased with it, except for the fact that the benches at Sunday Evening Concerts are, or were, uncomfortable. His impressions of Toronto will be endorsed, doubtless, by anyone who has ever spent a year in the city.

A law graduate of the University of Alberta, Watson has abandoned the call of a legal career to aid the physically handicapped. If one is interested in this work, excellent statistical information may be found in the Epilogue.

STUDENTS DISCUSS

He now feels that true religion is found in emulating Jesus, and in devoting one's life to the service of mankind. He was hastened to this conclusion when doing certain social work one Christmas, he first came to a full realization of the great need of the people. His religious faith he testified, will be a great force in determining what he will do with his life.

Al Ongley, brother of Fred Ongley, a graduate of Trinity theological college, is still in Arts, but he is considering the possibility of offering himself for the ministry. His background was quite conventional, and in studying philosophy at the university he underwent a period of emotional and intellectual disturbance similar to that of many other students. After this he had a new understanding of religion based on an experience of God as Father, and Jesus as brother; on the whole he stressed the importance of the more personal aspect of religion.

Bill Service, a medical student, was born in China, where he had the fortune to receive a training in the very intelligent Christian faith of his missionary parents. Consequently he was able to escape the great intellectual strain during his early years in college. He plans to serve his fellowman through the field of medicine, and hopes to return to China where the need is so very great. Through serving the physical needs of his fellowmen he believes that he will find it possible to serve them spiritually as well.

TORONTO GRADUATES ATTEND COLUMBIA

injected a new note by contrasting New York with London, where she spent last year in advanced work in economics. Interviewed at 2 a.m. in a picturesque Greenwich Village restaurant, she remarked that "London is my idea of heaven; New York isn't." She regards Columbia as a most beautifully equipped university, but quite soulless. When asked how Manhattan morality compared with that of Toronto the guest ascribed any difference to the fact that "New York is a big city, with a lot of people away from home."

Ernest Paine, a veteran New Yorker of almost three years' standing, has been attending classes in Journalism, and doing free-lance writing for the New Yorker, Star Weekly and other publications. After all this time he has still not seen an American football game, except in the newsreels, whence he characterized the tackling as "feeble." He much prefers New York to Toronto, although he found the girls at Varsity much more attractive, although not as stylishly dressed. He had nothing but praise for the school of Journalism, which is "one of the best in the country."

populations to develop and share this actual and potential wealth, our system has turned out some 300 millionaires, put a million of our people on relief, and condemned several millions more to live on less than an adequate wage.

In remedying that situation, the university should give leadership; but no professor of economics yet has been able to improve on Henry George's formula, which is in operation, in varying extent, in many parts of the British Empire and elsewhere.

Yours very truly,

Just imagine a single economics professor has been working for four years and hasn't got the better of the situation as yet. This is really appalling.

at his best. Something very fundamental and vital was expressed in his interpretation. The heavily-underlined Polonaise in A flat, which might have been just another rather hackneyed number, was played with amazing skill and clarity of purpose.

The two pianists, uniting in the familiar Danse Macabre played it with more realism than many orchestras we have heard. In all their numbers the vitality and spontaneity of youth was the dominating factor.

Mr. Hallen's solo group included a rather conventional sonatina by Ravel—conventional at least for Ravel. Colour and warmth was lacking. The now oh so familiar Reverie by Debussy was enjoyably received even if a swing classic has been built around the melody.

Fantasia and Fugue in A minor was perhaps the only regrettable number. It was played much too loudly. A more subtle interpretation could have made this more enjoyable.—Ted Meek.

less a family-affair. Windsor would be a Western choice for a neutral rock of war. However, the whole matter would have to be decided in committee, and it is even possible that Hart House or the Western gym could be the scene of the super-struggle. Time will tell.

Which all adds up to the fact that Captain Walt McGregor and company will be out to win this Saturday and ensure their playoff berth or, if such be the case, to capture the cherished championship that slipped through their fingers last week. That one-point defeat inflicted by London was a major catastrophe and a heart-breaker if there ever was one, and Warren Stevens' hoopsmen can be seen coveting about the courts these days with a determined glint in their eyes that says they will get that championship or else.

Universities Declared Main Source of Talent

John Wildberg, Producer of "Angela is Twenty-Two" Says Actors and Actresses Trained in Colleges

By Norman J. Altstetter

That universities are one of the main sources of actors and actresses today was the opinion expressed by John Wildberg, producer of the current Angela is Twenty-Two, by Sinclair Lewis and Fay Wray, in an interview at the Royal York Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Wildberg believes that there is a lot of room at the top in the theatre for young people and pointed out that a number of members in the cast of his present production received their early training in connection with various university dramatic associations.

"The theatre is today working itself out of a bad spot and I believe that regeneration will come from an awakened interest in such cities as Toronto," said Mr. Wildberg. He admitted that the "sorry" condition of the theatre in Toronto, that is as far as the number of performances is concerned, is also prevalent throughout the States, and that only the interest of theatre-loving

SOLITUDE UPHELD BY VIC DEBATERS

U.C. Loses to Victoria in Inter-faculty Fixture at Women's Union

The championship debate for the shield, held yesterday afternoon at the Women's Union, was won by the Victoria debating team who upheld the affirmative against U.C. on the topic "Resolved that solitude contributes more to the welfare of the individual than does society."

Speaking for the affirmative were Margaret Grant, II Vic, and Mary Carter, I Vic, and for the negative were Jocelyn Ritchie, III U.C., and Margaret Milne, U.C.

The affirmative side pointed out that they were not dealing with either solitude or society in the extreme, but with that element which entered more forcibly into the individual personality.

The arguments advanced by the opposition were centred upon man's inherent need of companionship and his necessity of society's exchange of ideas for the material advancement of civilization.

STUDENTS CRITICIZE SINGLE TAX LETTER

Professors Also Disagree with Plan for Levies on Real Estate Only

The letter printed yesterday morning in The Varsity criticizing the present orthodox economics for inability to solve Canada's problems and placing an emphasis on land, evoked a considerable amount of criticism among students. The correspondence came from Herbert T. Owens, secretary of the Single Tax Association of Canada.

Although agreeing that there is something wrong with our present economic situation, Lloyd Francis, III U.C., protested, "If the writer believes our economy is supported by agriculture he is absolutely wrong. An analysis of Canadian economy in the terms of the role of agriculture is shallow."

Professor A. F. W. Plumptre of the economics department said that Henry George's single-tax idea has been rejected by orthodox economists as "completely unworkable" for it proposes to tax but one form of property, ignoring all others. "This would be all right," he said, "if we were starting a new society on a desert island, but we have built up a complex society where many people have invested in land. This single tax would make land valueless and harm one class of people."

"The single tax system is a ridiculous over-simplification for our present structure," said Ted Hodgetts, IV Vic.

Ski Heil! All Aboard!

University of Toronto ski enthusiasts who intend making the trip to Timberlost Lodge for this week-end's sports-fest are reminded that the ski train leaves the Union Station this evening at 7.50. The arrival home on Sunday night is slated for 10.30.

With the present weather everything points to a satisfactory winter sports outing and a large number of ski fans have already signified their intention of taking advantage of this last special week-end in the north country. Tickets and information are available at the Students' Administrative Council Office in Hart House.

'TELEPATHY MORE THAN MERE LUCK' SAYS D. B. DELURY

Results of Rhine Tests Show Others Factors Are Present. Calculating Probabilities Is Mathematical Problem

That clairvoyance and mental telepathy may be a scientific fact was advanced by D. B. DeLury of the Mathematics Department, addressing a meeting of the Mathematics and Physics Society here yesterday.

"Results of the Rhine Tests of Telepathy and Clairvoyance cannot conceivably be happening by chance," he said, "since the probabilities against chance are too high."

The tests are made with a pack of twenty-five cards, of five types, marked with a simple design such as a star, a square or a circle. Mr. DeLury said. Clairvoyance is tested by having a person guess the order of cards in the pack. For the telepathy demonstration, one person looks at the cards and another tries to "read his mind" and call out the order of the cards in the pack.

Mr. DeLury demonstrated the calculation of probabilities and said that one man had made 3,746 correct guesses out of 10,300. This, he said, was about twice the number that the man would have guessed by chance. The probability of such a performance occurring by chance is less than one in ten million.

LAW AND HISTORY PROFESSORS SPEAK AT LAST SESSION

Canadian Neutrality Upheld by University College Parliament at Last Night's Session

Canadian neutrality in the event of Great Britain participating in a European war was upheld by a vote of 29-18 at the last session of the U.C. Parliament yesterday afternoon. Professor Norman Mackenzie of the Law Department spoke for the Government and Professor G. P. deT. Glazebrook, Department of History, for the Opposition.

Professor Mackenzie pointed out that the House had already passed some neutrality legislation, and that a vote in favour of Canadian neutrality would be only another step in the same direction. He also observed that it is not legal status only which determines the relation of two countries, but their common interests.

Professor Glazebrook, for the Opposition, declared that to resolve on unrelenting neutrality would be disastrous for Canada, and that in the event of war Great Britain and U.S.A. will stand together, leaving Canada "with no friends and no future."

"Our debt to Great Britain is paid," declared the Rt. Hon. Irving Sussman. "Traditions are not worth another expeditionary force. Canada's interests now lie in North America, and a policy

Dr. and Mrs. Thurman, who arrive in Toronto tomorrow and who are being honoured at a reception given in Queen's Park in the afternoon, begin their week of meetings with a service in Convocation Hall, Sunday at 11 a.m. Dr. Thurman has chosen as his topic "The Vision of God" and will speak from the text in St. Matthew, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Dr. Thurman is recognized on this continent as a leader of students.

CLUB TO WELCOME ENGLISH DIVINE

Former Presbyterian Addressing Members of Adopted Faith

Newman Club will welcome to this campus the distinguished English churchman, Rev. William Orchard, M.A., D.D., once a Presbyterian minister, now an ordained priest of the Roman Catholic Church, this evening at 9.15.

Though his time is at a premium during his week stay at St. Peter's Church, Dr. Orchard evinced a desire to meet university students. Consequently it was arranged for him to visit Newman Club and though he will not deliver an address, club officials hope that many students of all denominations will attend the reception.

Dr. Orchard has been described as the greatest Protestant received into the Roman Catholic Church since the time of Cardinal Newman.

Result of Tonight's Game at London Deemed Inevitable Win for Western with Play-off on Neutral Court

The sword of Damocles hangs over the heads of Warren Stevens' senior cagers as they prepare for the final game of the season tomorrow night at Hart House against McGill University.

In the hands of the Redmen from Montreal lies the power to force a treble tie for first place in the senior intercollegiate basketball league. McGill have lost only two games this season and if they can upset Western at London tonight and down Varsity tomorrow, the three teams will be tied for first position. However, it is highly improbable that Van Wagner's pets can take Western at the latter's camp, and so it will be up to the Blue and White quintet to take McGill at Hart House or drop out of the picture. A win for the home squad will place Western and Toronto at the top of the heap and necessitate a play-off on a neutral court.

Assuming that Western should take McGill easily, fans are sure to watch a great game tomorrow.

In the opening game at Montreal, McGill gave Varsity a hard battle before they faded out by fifteen points. With the psychological advantage of having nothing to lose they will be able to take chances which may throw Toronto for a loss.

TWENTY DELEGATES TO VISIT OTTAWA

About twenty delegates will represent Varsity at the Student Assembly at Ottawa this week-end. Along with representatives from ten other Canadian universities they will debate topics of interest to Canadian students. The party leaves today at 4 p.m. and will arrive at Ottawa late tonight.

On March 4 and 5 the delegates will discuss Foreign Affairs, Dominion Provincial Relations, National Scholarships and other topics, and hear reports of the various committees.

Besides those from Varsity there will be representatives from Western, McMaster, O.A.C., Queen's, McGill, University of Montreal, Laval, and Sir George Williams' College.

Bedlam Reigns Supreme in School But Engineers Will Never Fool

By Mauden Bishop

Today is the day when Arts men are seen running cautiously from building to building, and Meds are conspicuous by their absence on the campus. For the enlightenment of freshmen, the annual School elections have rolled around once more.

This is the day of the year when Osprey Annex is taken over from the law students, and School comes into its own. Even the manager can't figure who is putting on the show—the paid entertainers or the toke-oliers.

Each year the men of the forty beers try to outdo the record of past years, and if there aren't too many police around they sometimes succeed. Deeds of the past have gained added colour in the telling, but the removal of the front doors of U.C. two years ago is vividly remembered by many as a good half-dollar's worth.

All this week the little red school-house has been a blaze of colour—with not a little art thrown in. There has been much shaking of hands, and candidates have even been able to get a few serious remarks into their speeches. The proverbial forty beers could be absorbed by the blotters given away.

After the customary parade to Hart House for lunch, an event in itself, the actual voting begins. Amidst a bedlam of barkers, sirens, and general noise, the hardest thing to do is to make up one's mind, and it is a wise man who has his mind picked out. And for the program after voting—ask any Schoolman.

As for boosting the candidates, it isn't Done—or is it?

The Price of Peace

Chamberlain's "peace in our time" policy, has gained him further opposition both at home and abroad. On February 26, when formal recognition of Franco's National Government was made, the National Council of Labour staged a mass meeting in Trafalgar Square. Five thousand demonstrators marched down Whitehall shouting, "No recognition for Franco! Chamberlain must go!" Three fire engines and one hundred police were stationed to guard No. 10 Downing Street. When the Prime Minister reported his action to the House of Commons, the one Communist member shouted, "You should be impeached as a traitor to Britain!"

Chamberlain, by this time well armoured against shouts and demonstrations, has made no reply. As the furore dies down, it becomes apparent that he took the only feasible course. From the outset Britain and France have done their utmost, both singly and together, to end a war that threatened to engulf all Europe. Britain, although in sympathy with the Loyalist cause, refused to send military aid, and threatened to break off relations with France should she interfere. Since the fall of Barcelona both democracies have concentrated on trying to weaken Franco's ties with the dictators. Their latest move, the recognition of Franco's government, was one calculated first and foremost to bring the war to an end. It achieved its purpose, for it made peace imminent by withdrawing the last element of support, material or moral, from the Madrid government. When, at the encouragement of France, Loyalist President Azana resigned, Republican Spain became a thing of the past, except for a few groups of diehards. Franco's victory was clinched by British-French recognition.

Throughout the world in various quarters Chamberlain has been labelled a second time the betrayer of democracy. But from a pragmatic point of view he did the only thing possible. It was not, after all, Britain's war. Chamberlain's interests were primarily in the cause of peace. His recognition was tempered by the conditions that foreign troops be ejected from Spain, and that prosecution of the Loyalists be restricted to those against whom criminal charges have been laid.

In the interests of temporary peace Chamberlain has acted wisely. It remains for the future to pronounce judgment on the ultimate integrity of his decision.—B.K.

A Distinguished Visitor

The visit of Dr. Howard Thurman to the university as special leader for "Religion and Life Week" is of more than ordinary significance. Due to his race and position as a scholar, he is well qualified to present the claims of Christianity to students in an intelligent and forceful manner.

President Cody has officially commended Religion and Life Week as follows: "I trust that the mission will be an occasion of special teaching concerning the fundamentals of our Christian faith, and of definite conviction to be faithful soldiers and servants of Christ on the part of many of the members of the university. In these perplexing and restless days, heart and mind and soul cry out for some sure and certain hope, for some Person who can re-make us and give us strength to carry on; to overcome, and to be of help to others. May that Person be set forth with persuasiveness and power."

Dr. Thurman has done much to further the educational movement among Negroes in the United States. Recently he made a tour of the colleges in India in answer to the request of students in that country to hear about Christianity from a black man's point of view.

Those who have heard him speak recall the occasion as an unforgettable and invaluable experience. During his last visit to Stanford he so stirred the students, it is said, that they sat in silence for nearly an hour after his speech, pondering over the thoughts which had been inspired in their minds.

When there is so much exaggerated racial antipathy in certain parts of the world, it is significant of the universal character of Christianity that Canadian students should be ready to hear the message of this great thinker of the Negro race.—C.McL.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Elsewhere on this page is a reprint of a letter from the Chairman and Secretary of the Library Committee of Hart House. The text of the letter is to the effect that the committee has discovered the loss of a considerable number of books, that they have closed the Library, that members of Hart House might possibly know where the books are, and that any member of Hart House seeing any person in possession of a Hart House Library book should give that person's name to the Committee if the book is not immediately returned. They hope for the return of some of the missing books.

The letter is merely a polite comment on a situation which is embarrassing to all concerned. Through some curious cavorting of fate the books have found their way out of the library. Now the library is closed. And with great inconvenience to university literature lovers. There is only one way out. When the books are returned to the Hall Porter's desk in the very immediate future it will remedy the present situation.

Gregor Piatigorsky

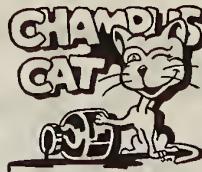

Despite the breathless, if not altogether unqualified, admiration which engaged us during most of Gregor Piatigorsky's 'cello recital at Eaton Auditorium last night, one question kept suggesting itself: what kind of musician is the man trying to be? Those few items on his program that contained any musical substance were apparently treated with infinite respect and depth of understanding, but something, in his mannerisms perhaps, aroused the suspicion that this appearance was quite superficial, an imposing facade with no meaning behind it.

A simple dearth of suitable material may be partially responsible. The nearest approach to great music on the program was a Sonata in E minor by Brahms, which fails almost completely to be effective because the composer doesn't seem to have realized the acoustical properties of the 'cello. Passages that should be wildly passionate are just a lot of indefinite fury because they are placed too low in the register, and only the slow movement achieves its purpose.

A short Sonata by Handel was completely satisfying; the rest of the program was given over almost exclusively to display stuff of the dazzling variety, about which we have nothing to say except that it was very entertaining, and that fireworks on the 'cello are neither as impressive nor as successful as they are on the violin—particularly if they happen to have been written originally for the latter instrument. With the possible exception of two pieces by Debussy and Ravel all this was just downing.

Now undeniably Mr. Piatigorsky can make his 'cello do reasonably well what he wants, and the

"There will be no final examinations this year!"

As this startling announcement was made from the steps of Simcoe Hall late last night, thousands of students who had been standing knee-deep in slush for hours, turned away sadly, and sought their various dwellings.

Rumours of this unprecedented move had spread rapidly, and the crowd had marched on the university offices to demand confirmation. After the announcement the only voice raised was that of Isaac McGregor, I.U.C., who sobbed: "Will they no be gein' us our P.T. credits the no?"

Reason for this action was lack of finances, university officials said, in tears. A financial statement was presented for publication.

Although it's unusual to hold the intercollegiate swim meet after the intercollegiate titles have been decided, this year there was no other alternative since the various meets followed each other so closely. The upshot being that local stars after competing in Kingston this week-end, will return to town in time to participate in the intercollegiate meet at Hart House next Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Here's hoping that Varsity mermaids will continue the winning streak started by the skiers and cagers last week-end. Best luck in Kingston.

Arrangements have been completed for the Wednesday night card, with the medley relay appearing in co-ed competition for the first time. In this feature, the teams are composed of three swimmers each. The first to swim 1 length back stroke, the second breast stroke, and the last doing the crawl.
In addition to the competitive events, a surf-board demonstration will be given by Bob Furness for the benefit of the spectators. Aubrey Ireland, Jr., has promised to display his best canoe tricks so you can't lose on the evening. Of course the preliminaries in plunging and diving will be completed Tuesday night so there will be no delays on Wednesday. The finals in ornamental and style swimming are also booked for Tuesday.

And now for the boring details. Skip this unless you are competing. Each person may enter four events, only two of which may be speed. The two relays are not included in this ruling. Miss Cochran would like enter blanks filled in by Monday and Dr. Gordon's examination must be passed before any event is entered. And that is all for now, children.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shifman

A LIL BI O' EVERYTHIN

You know, sport writers are supposed to be ignorant, at least they're not supposed to be able to speak or spell or anything. Well there's a story now going the rounds about that sport scribe Kieran who appears on the "Information Please" program that we think is a pipin. It seems that one of the scholarly professors down at Columbia was introducing Mr. Kieran to a class of students and in doing so he sort of apologized for the fact that the speaker was a sports writer. The rather annoying introduction peeved the speaker, so he delivered his lengthy speech entirely in Latin. Was the professor's face red? . . . But not so far from home we find the sport editor of the McGill Daily, Monty Berger was in town this week debating against the Osgoode Hall debaters. This proves something but we can't imagine what. . . Note to Football Player Wholesalers:
After the football season at the University of California, 11 out of the 11 regular football players cashed in W.P.A. cheques. That's even better than academic scholarships which require a little explanation. . . Last week's health destroying basketball game (Eh Steve) with Western put both teams in a tie for the championship. This thriller-diller looked as if the championship would have to be decided in an extra game. There is however a slight possibility of Varsity winning the championship on McGill's good work. Tonight the Redmen tangle with the Mustangs with the slight possibility of them defeating them.
Saturday night they move into Toronto and Rogin and crew will try to stop the Redmen. If the Redmen win both contests there will be a triple tie for first place, but we're willing to put up our current copy of the Esquire against today's Varsity that the Redmen drop both games. The C.I.A.U. will have to decide where the next game, which is supposed to be on neutral ground, will be.
A full evening of entertainment has been added to this show on Saturday night with the girls champion basketball team playing, the intermediates playing and a first class intermediate B. W. and F. up stairs in the gym. . . In the afternoon up at the ice house (?) the Baileymen meet the Princes of Princeton. This is one game that we guarantee to call correctly and we assure you of a Varsity victory here. . . And in closing if you want to see a good marathon runner be sure to take in Frankie Shuster's performance of "Koko" in The Mikado at Harbord this week-end. Continuing in the more serious vein you can . . .

BLAME IT ON THE SUN

It takes just one sunny day and a few stories in the other papers about famous football players who have just found out that an education is an essential requisite for an athlete, to set us talking about our first love, football. In 1929 the Carnegie institute made a full survey of college sport in America and found several thousand ways of universities, whether through the medium of alumni, fraternities, or the college itself, supporting the footballer. It was then noted that this wasn't a necessary evil, as in Canada there were four colleges who participated in athletics without the necessity of subsidizing their athletes. We wonder what the result would be if they made this investigation today? We would wager that it would rock the old Intercollegiate union right out of their state of lethargy; and would they be surprised? We hardly think so. There is without doubt that in our reputable football setup, a wholesale traffic in football ivory. This is not a condition that exists merely in one, or the other football leagues. Starting right from some of the more "advanced" high-schools in the city until we reach the university teams including the super-athletes from the super-amateur senior football leagues subsidization has crept in to the extent that we seriously feel that university sport is headed for commercialization with the necessity of the team paying for its expenses or else the firing of the squad.

In this filthy mess it isn't the colleges that are to blame. There are individuals throughout the country that demand winners from the coach that is entrusted with their alma mater's team. That there is no material at the school this year is of no importance; that they have dominated the football league for the past few years is also of no importance, what is of importance is the fact that they must have a winner. There are four colleges in the league and each desiring a championship makes a complex situation, to say the least. Now every time we kick about this situation immediately we are answered with the accusation that because of the fact that we have so large an enrollment it isn't necessary for us to worry about getting players, but surely there can't be a successful league if some of the teams drag in players from over the entire country and play them against purely amateur players. There is no room for professionalism in university sport and it is a direct challenge to the Intercollegiate union to step in and squelch any attempt to commercialize this sport. Rules must be made, without convenient dodges, prohibiting the selection and transporting of football players to the colleges. Surely they suspect it or are they bliss in their ignorance.

VARSITY MITTMEN LEAVE TO TUSSLE WITH MIDSHIPMEN

Tonight at six o'clock a picked team of Varsity boxers entrain for Maryland to engage in a tussle with the Midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy. In previous years the Toronto lads have been lucky to take one or two bouts from their hosts, but the recent showing of Dr. Les Black's charges in the recent senior intercollegiate assault leads the Varsity mentor to expect great things of the hottest team he has led in many seasons.

Leading the Blue and White leather pushers will be the most respected puncher in intercollegiate boxing circles, Captain Jack Piggett, the 165 lb. Hamilton Hurricane. Jack's understudy during the trip will be Ted Jarvis, of football fame.

In the 175 pound division a former champ returns to the wars in the person of Chuck McLean, one of the most rugged fighters ever to appear on this campus. Completing the Varsity team will be Ted DeWolfe at 155, Bill Ramore at 145, Stew Parker at 135, and either Hood or Zwisch at 125, while Hurst is a probable starter at 118 lbs.

The setting for this fistie encounter is one of the classiest that a Toronto team has ever been privileged to visit. Historic old Annapolis, just a few miles north of where the South begins, has long been renowned for the beauty of its location and the charm of its hospitality. Visiting athletes are given an open invitation to all entertainments and other events during their stay. The opposing fighters will meet in the big gymnasium which overlooks the blue waters of the Basin. Admission to the fights is not purchased in the ordinary way, but formal application cards for tickets must be filled in and sent to the Academy. Directions are also given to see that all the spectators are in correct attire for what the Middies deem a very formal occasion. Officers attached to the Academy must wear evening dress, midshipmen are to appear in full dress uniform, and even civilian instructors are requested to come garbed in evening or dinner clothes.

people can remedy this situation.

"Angelo is Twenty-Two should be of special interest to the medical students on the campus," Mr. Wildberg, who is also a New York attorney, continued. He pointed out that this streamlined comedy revolves about the character of a young doctor played by Philip Merivale, and that important mention is made of Sir Frederick Banting, famous Canadian doctor-scientist.

Mr. Wildberg intimated that the production will not be taken to New York until all the road territory is covered, despite the fact that the play, which has played in about fifty theatres already, was ready for Broadway some time ago. "We believe that the opinions of Toronto, Detroit, New Haven, Philadelphia, etc., are just as important as New York," he said.

Most of the eight members of the cast, who were picked from 2100 considered actors and actresses, were formerly studying at a small summer theatre near Boston, where Mr. Lewis had himself acted in his own plays. Mr. Wildberg revealed that Mr. Lewis is currently working on another comedy which he hopes to put before the public in a short time.

The Opposition argued that the interests of Canada are those of Great Britain, that popular opinion is in favour of supporting the Mother Country, and that Canadian foreign policy would be hopelessly disorganized by permanent neutrality.

Following the debate, the Governor-General prorogued the House.

all over the continent, Doctor Dafeo could not claim having had any previous experience in journalism on the staff of the undergraduate newspaper, "No," he explained, "all the writing I ever did was connected with passing examinations."

After graduation, the doctor practised setting broken limbs and yanking teeth in several mining and lumber camps to the wild north of the Rideau Lakes. Finally he found a "pretty picture" quiet little place on the shore of a beautiful lake and settled down there where game came to him twenty-five years later.

Yesterday morning, Doctor Dafeo surprised a group of second year Dents in the Prosthetic lab, as he went quietly looking around the college before visiting Dean Mason.

In a short impromptu talk to the boys he stressed the importance of the care of teeth, and explained how the gums' dentitions are in perfect condition. Then he followed that with news that last summer was the last one for the five famous babies to be on exhibition. "From now on," he informed them, "the children will be educated privately until their eighteenth year."

Doctor Dafeo sees state dentistry and state medicine hand in hand coming closer every year. "State control has its good points," he affirmed, "and I'm not on the fence by any means."

"TELEPATHY MORE THAN LUCK," SAYS D. B. DELURY (Continued from Page 1)

Professor J. P. Rhine, of Duke University, began to standardize the tests in 1930, and they have developed into their present state, he said.

The tests were primarily a problem in psychology, Mr. DeLury explained, but the calculation of probabilities was so important in obtaining results that mathematics entered into them as well.

ASSAULT PLANNED FOR HART HOUSE

The glory, gore and gusto of an intercollegiate assault-at-arms will be revived in full splendour this Saturday at Hart House as McMaster, O.A.C., Western and Toronto vie for intermediate honours in the realms of boxing, wrestling and fencing.

A tentative but probable line-up of the Toronto mittmen finds Bob Hurst, Mike Swick, Bob McAdam, Jack Mees and Joe Piggett in the five lighter classes. The last named gentleman is a brother of "One-Punch" Jack Piggett, which is a pretty good recommendation by the way, and is out to prove that furious fighting is a feature of the family-tree.

The blue and white will be well-represented in each class of the grant and groan game. Jack Mulligan has a Western opponent in the 118 pound contest and at 125 "Christmas-dinner" Bill Coleman has plenty of opposition from O.A.C. and London. Syd Patrick, Milt Engel, Bill Wachsmuth, A. Esson, Clarence Thompson and Roy McIntyre will be going about the gentle business of pinning shoulders in the other five divisions. Said Mr. McIntyre is he of football fame and will be wrestling in the heavyweight class.

Toronto's three-man fencing team will in all likelihood be Doug Macintosh, O. Reynolds and Bill Harvey. As yet their foil foes from the other colleges have not been definitely decided and it seems that O.A.C. will be unrepresented.

In all of the events where there are more than two contenders, the elimination bouts will be held tomorrow afternoon. Unlike last week, the fencers will not perform in mid-day matches but will strut their stuff as part and parcel of the three-ringed Stevens circus in the evening.

INTERMEDIATE SWIMMERS GUARD TITLE TOMORROW

Tomorrow night at the Hamilton Aquatic Club swimming pool, Varsity, Western, McMaster and O.A.C. will battle it out for intermediate intercollegiate swimming supremacy. With the senior title well tucked away the intermediate team is out to repeat the stellar performance of its senior brethren and successfully defend their laurels against Western, O.A.C. and McMaster.

Varsity's team are practically all newcomers with the exception of Love, Laari and Hicks. As yet untried, the team pins its hopes at record breaking on Hicks, an outstanding breast stroker and Love, an exceptionally fast sprinter. The Blue teams' strongest opponents, judging by all reports, will be the team pooled by Western. Loaring, famous as a track man, is a serious threat in the sprints, and Jim Farmer, if he is as good in a pool as he is on the football field or a basketball floor, should give the rest of the entrants plenty to worry about. McMaster and O.A.C. remain dark horses, although rumour has instead that McMaster have no exceptional swimmers.

In the diving and back stroke, Dobson, Hardy, Mabee and Rowell will represent the Blue team, while Brown, Wadds and Cronin will probably round out the rest of the events and bring to the University of Toronto another swim championship.

BAILEY'S BLUES HOSTS TO PRINCETON'S TIGERS

Ace Bailey's Varsity Blues wind up a rather disappointing season Saturday afternoon when they tangle with Princeton Tigers in Varsity Arena. The Blues' success against American teams this year has been excellent, and they have piled up high scores.

Seven of the seniors will be playing as if their very lives or the title were at stake. Against Princeton, Bing Caswell, Bill Morrison, Bill L'Heureux, Cam MacLachlan, Dick Craig, Art Boddington and Tony Cassels will be playing their last game for the blue and white.

But Princeton have a pretty fair squad and nothing would please them better than a win over a Canadian team. "Pec-wee!" Johnston, the Tiger goalie, has been coming along fast and will be hard to score on. Budge Miller, the Princeton captain, plays a steady game on defence and the first line of Cochran, Robbins and Barnacle will bear plenty of watching.

Loyalists Renew Resistance

Madrid: General Segismundo Casado, in the name of the popular army of Central Spain, seized the government from the hands of Premier Negrin yesterday and headed a defense council pledged to fight Franco and his Nationalists. A manifesto issued by the new military government suggested Negrin had been prevented from leaving Spain.

Report Royal Visit To Affect Exams Declared False

Final examinations will be held on schedule this year and will not be held earlier as has been rumoured, a source in the Registrar's office revealed Saturday. The pending visit of the king and queen was the reason given for this alleged move.

The preliminary timetable will be released the first week in April, just before Easter, they added.

Student reaction on bearing the rumour that exams would be held earlier due to the royal visit was varied. Some declared that such a shortening of time would very likely mean the loss of their year, while others said that if warned immediately the change would make no difference.

There were also a few who remarked that it was a fine thing to have the examinations earlier. "The less time to worry about them the better," was the remark of one co-ed.

Square Dances Add Final Touch To Hectic Limerlost Outing

Everything that could be called a cabin was utilized at Limerlost last weekend as over a hundred university students trekked to the north country to take in the last ski week-end before the dead months set in. Like so many congenial surdines they were packed ten to the room, after having made the 150 mile trip by train, motor or dog sled.

The condition of the snow was good, although it became soft in the afternoons. At that time, even the hardest hill, the "Top of the World" could be safely managed by amateurs. The 150 miles of trail were in fine condition, and were at all times patronized by the skiers.

Those who did not ski found plenty of other things to take up their time. They could toboggan down some of the steep slopes, ride, or cruise through the timber behind a husky team of wolf dogs.

Saturday night was featured by the square dancing when those who were still able to navigate after the day's exercise discarded their ski boots for slippers, and whipped through the intricacies of Birdie in the Cage, Grand Chain and so on.

Always a tender subject with skiers, FOOD was dished out and taken with gusto. It was a person's privilege to ask for more. Not only that but it was good right down to the last raspberry float.

Some pranksters, ready for a joke, astonished resident wolves and other wild game by conducting a form of Indian dance around a flare which they lighted on the side of a hill.

Half a dozen torpedoes on the track as the train left Huntville, a skunk which the train hit in the outskirts of Toronto, a masquerade parade from baggage car to observation platform and back, featuring many prominent and imaginary personages, Sally Rand, his Satanic majesty, and the mummy of Cleopatra, which won the prize of a free week-end at Limerlost, enlivened the homeward journey.

Assume Undisputed Possession of Second Place by Virtue of 6-1 Puck Conquest Saturday

CRAIG OPENS SCORING

Varsity senior hockeyists kept their record of conquest over American colleges intact by lacing Princeton Tigers 6-1 in their Saturday matinee puck-clash at Varsity Arena. The win showed Varsity into second place ahead of Queen's, and two points behind the pacesetter McGill Red Raiders. It was Varsity's last game of the I.L.H.L. season.

Varsity broke in front and were never in trouble from flagfall to finish. Princeton put up a good fight in the first two periods, but a determined last period assault by Varsity produced four goals to put the issue beyond doubt. Dick Craig opened the scoring in the first period after a neat passing bout with Tommy Callon. Princeton rallied midway of the second session, however, when Harry Turner, standing uncheked in front of the Varsity net, converted Bordley's pass for the Princeton team's lone goal. Maynard got that one back for Varsity at the eighteen minute mark, cashing George Wood's rebound.

Princeton carried the play in the early moments of the last period in an attempt to knot the count, but L'Heureux (Continued on page 3)

FAITH IN GOD VITAL STATES THURMAN

Belief that only a true vision of God will lead one to realize his own shortcomings and the failure of the society in which he lives, was expressed by Dr. Howard Thurman in Convocation Hall yesterday morning. Dr. Thurman, professor of philosophy at Howard University, Washington, D.C., was speaking at a special service inaugurating Religion and Life Week on the campus. Speaking on "The Vision of God", Dr. Thurman outlined three ways in which people might act. Some believed that God, if he exists, must be an un-natural God; and they looked for divine signs in unnatural happenings. By self-denial they "flee from the world", he said, giving monasticism as an example.

Another group, the Humanists, consider that any concept of God is "essentially unreal and has nothing really to do with the facts of life." Dr. Thurman considered that the biological emphasis and tendency to account for sin in terms of a defective "thyroid", was inadequate.

The third and most comprehensible idea, is the one that brings about a (Continued on page 3)

DR. AYDELOTTE WAS RHODES SCHOLAR

President of Swarthmore University Finds Chief Interest in English Literature

STRESSES ATHLETICS

By Anita Freedman

"Although I'm a college president I still manage to maintain a connection with the intellectual life," smiled Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore University, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania, in an interview on Friday. Dr. Aydelotte delivered the three Mar-fist lectures last week at Convocation Hall on "The Vision of Cecil Rhodes".

He is himself a Rhodes Scholar of 1905. At that time he was taking a research degree in English literature. Today his main interest still lies in literature—the Elizabethan field. Besides he is writing a book about the Rhodes scholars and the lectures which he gave here will be published.

Fun, Frivoly At School Elections

By Munden Bishop

While the townspeople of Toronto were anxiously enquiring whether an invasion from Mars was actually taking place Friday, the men from the little red schoolhouse were blithely celebrating their elections. The cause of it all was a miniature cannon which had been rescored for the occasion. Fearing an invasion, the gates of U.C. were hastily slammed shut, and Arts students, thankful at being locked out from an exam, stayed to watch the excitement.

There was no invasion of U.C., however. The Schoolmen, mindful of past fines, as well as the presence of the police and representatives of their faculty, behaved like gentlemen, at least till they were past U.C.

After the annual brawl at Hart House voting was indulged in spasmodically when the Engineers repaired to their favourite place of entertainment. A new high was set this year, as the stage was invaded on invitation. A new school yell was born. "We want Butch".

The final colour of the day was at Hart House, when free food and election results were featured in the evening. Schoolmen, happy that their men had been elected, or sorrowful that they had not, turned their steps homeward—indirectly.

Fighting McGill Quintet Edges Out Western and Varsity Cagers on Successive Nights

BEAT WESTERN 42-41

By Mike Greenstein

What started out as a "suicide trip" ended in a blaze of glory for the fighting Redmen of McGill University when they downed the highly-touted Varsity cage quintet 39-33 in the final game of the intercollegiate basketball season at Hart House Saturday evening. Thus for the first time in the history of the league three teams are tied for leadership as foils in written to the 1939 schedule and after a month and a half of campaigning a play-off will be necessary if the right to wear the mantle of success is to fall on either McGill, Varsity or Western, last year's title-holders. Only Queen's remains on the outside looking in.

Overjoyed at the news that McGill had unexpectedly downed Western the night before and needing only a win over the under-rated Redmen from Montreal to bring the Wilson Cup back to Toronto after a one-year absence, the boys in blue fired out like wet firecrackers at the crucial moments.

It just wasn't Varsity's night to shine and fans who came expecting a home team win were disappointed. Toronto was outshout and outplayed and only once late in the second half, did they seriously threaten Coach Van Wagner's lads from Quebec.

Although McGill scored a good deal of their baskets on long shots, they got about as many on breakaways from their own baskets after grabbing the rebounds off the boards. Wylkes at (Continued on page 3)

DR. AYDELOTTE GIVES FINAL RHODES TALK

Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore University, gave a talk last Friday evening in Convocation Hall on "The Record of Rhodes Scholars after Returning Home." This concluded a series of lectures given by President Aydelotte, entitled "The Vision of Cecil Rhodes."

Dr. Aydelotte stated that there are about a thousand Rhodes Scholars in the United States. These are scattered unevenly over the country and seem to concentrate in large cities such as New York. They are engaged in such fields as law, business, politics, journalism, medicine and the ministry.

Particularly stressed in the lecture was the expansion of education in the United States. There are now twenty times as many students and three times as many colleges as formerly.

7,000 ATTEND AS VARSITY BOXERS LOSE TO NAVY

Annapolis, March 4: An estimated crowd of 7,000 spectators, the largest to witness a Navy meet this year, saw United States Naval Academy boxers edge out the University of Toronto representatives by a single bout here this evening. Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, refereed the match. The absence of Lou Dillon, Varsity's 118-lb. title holder, proved the deciding factor of the evening. In this division, Dillon's plucky understudy, Bob Hurst, was defeated by Midshipman T. M. Bennett. Boxing at 127 Midshipman J. E. Shepherd outlasted Toronto's Mike Swick, who was replacing Adam Hood. Steved Parker held Varsity's W. D. Coyne to a draw in the 135-lb. class.

Wildcat Bill Ramore recorded U. of T.'s first victory in the 145-lb. bracket, pounding out a verdict over Naval Academy's F. Robertson. Ted De Wolfe at 155 fell victim to the flying fists of Varsity's captain, E. G. Fairfax. At 165 reliable Jack Piggott proved a handy winner by decision over Midshipman S. E. Wagenbols. The only knockout of the evening went to Chuck McLean of Toronto, who stopped opponent A. B. Wallace in the last round. The heavyweight division went to Navy by default.

Ted Jarvis, understudy Jack Piggott, went three rounds against J. S. Eversole of Navy in a bout that had no bearing on the result of the meet.

Hart House Library and Borrowed Books

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir,

The checkings of the Hart House Library conducted in December and again a week ago have revealed the loss of a considerable number of books. It is in the hope of securing the return of the missing books that the Committee take the unusual step of requesting you to publish this letter.

The library is at present closed until further notice.

It is possible that members of Hart House may know where these books are. The Committee suggest that it is the duty of members to warn any person in possession of a Hart House Library book that his name will be given to the Committee if the book is not immediately handed in at the Hall Porter's desk.

Yours truly,

(signed) Cecil Lewis.
Chairman of the Library Committee.
(signed) S. McClatchie,
Secretary of the Library Committee.

In case the letter printed last Friday was missed by some who might be interested, it is reprinted again today. In the past it seems that certain undergraduate members of Hart House have been aware of others who have removed books from the library, and I have warned them that if the books were not returned, the Hart House authorities would be informed.

It has been announced that it is now possible for anyone who has taken books this year to return them to the Hall Porter's desk, and "no questions will be asked".

Possibly it is no exaggeration to say that hundreds of undergraduates have been greatly disappointed that Hart House library has been closed again. For leisure reading it is unsurpassed, as every possible convenience for one's comfort is there. There is no other library in Toronto which offers a wider selection, and the books may be picked out personally with ease, with no red tape of signing or consulting an attendant.

But there is one rule which must be observed. And that is that books are not to be removed from the room. But books have been taken. We would gladly believe if possible that these books had not been taken by students, and put the blame on some outsider. And we would gladly refrain from making public the fact that books have been stolen, for it is a terrible reflection on the undergraduate body to realize the lack of integrity of some of its members.

Perhaps in some cases it is merely thoughtlessness which prompts someone to remove a book, so that they will be able to finish it at home. And it may be thoughtlessness which allows them to forget to bring it back. However, it means that the whole male body of the university has to be kept in the finest private libraries in the world. Anyone who has in his possession a Hart House Library book should realize that it is marked sufficiently to make it impossible to show or loan to a friend without being found out. It can be of no value to him except for purely selfish reasons.

Offenders are being treated very considerably, when they are allowed to return their takings with no questions asked. All offenders are urged to do so immediately for the sake of the whole university.

And for any offender who still neglects to do what he can to remedy his mistake, we can only suggest that he be treated with the utmost severity, and any student should feel it his duty to use extreme methods in forcing any purloiner to restore "borrowed" books.—A.C.F.

A Class-room Trend

While children in Fascist countries are being schooled under a regime of the strictest discipline, a trend in the extreme opposite direction is forecast for education in America. A group at the University of Chicago investigating methods of pedagogy, has compiled its findings into a work entitled "Emotion and the Educative Process". They advocate "soft-peddling of teaching methods and stressing instead individual personality differences, especially emotions". Claiming that emotional development should be stimulated in the classroom, they advocate sympathetic personal treatment on the part of teachers, and a radical revision of curricula which would render school less distasteful for the children. "Is it more important," they ask, "that children develop adjusted integrated personalities, or that they fulfill some . . . traditional academic objectives?"

While individual personality adjustment is of supreme importance, one is inclined to wonder if it should be the aim of an educational curriculum. Surely the child trained from kindergarten up to develop his emotions will come to place undue importance on them. This is a human failing which makes an appearance under any system, and it is just possible that the child would benefit more by having his emotions disregarded in the classroom. An element of discipline is essential if the individual is to become socially adjusted and it is at school that most children learn their first lesson in discipline. While there is vast room for improvement in the old educational system, it must be remembered that there are pitfalls in the extreme application of a new theory.

—B.K.

Good Old McGill

Supporters of the Red and White need not shout "What's the matter with Old McGill" this year, for judging by her athletic success, she is quite all right. Last fall, after many years out of the running, the Redmen came through to win the intercollegiate rugby championship, and just failed to win the intercollegiate track meet also. Then keeping up her record, McGill captured the hockey title this winter.

But it seems that no one rated her chances in basketball very highly, especially after Varsity had little trouble in defeating the cagers right in Montreal some time ago. No one was very surprised when things worked out to make it look as though the struggle was all between Varsity and Western, and when Toronto failed by one point to tie the Mustangs in London, the local fans were starting to name the neutral court for the play-off.

And then McGill came along, and on two successive nights defeated both the league leaders on their own courts, to make it a three-cornered tie for first place. It was a blow and a surprise to both the Ontario teams, but it looks to be a good thing for intercollegiate basketball, which wasn't getting as much support at McGill as it warranted. Now it will be necessary to have two play-off games, and the attention of university sports fans will be directed towards this very thrilling university game for the next few days.—A.C.F.

APRIL MUSIC Drama

U.T.S. Dramatic Society

When a high school or collegiate presents a play by Shakespeare, the audience (with the possible exception of parents of the actors) usually goes prepared to see an immature performance.

This attitude, however, did not apply to the University of Toronto Schools' presentation of Macbeth last week. The audience saw James Goodson in the title role, John Dickson as Banquo, and Iain Dow as Lady Macbeth give mature and creditable performances. Many of the minor parts, of course, looked rather out of place, with beards at the terminations of fresh young faces, and the lines spoken by them lacked confidence.

Since the play revolved mainly about the aforementioned leading characters, however, the result

MIDS ASTOUNDED AS LAB SUBJECT COMES TO LIFE

Dead Ten Years, Man Gets Up and Walks Out of Dissection Room

THEOLOGIANS PROTEST

When a laboratory subject who had been dead for ten years got up and walked out of a dissection room in the medical building yesterday, the campus was thrown into a turmoil.

A group in anatomy were just going to start work on 7-B-373, as he is familiarly known, when he got up, stretched, and haughtily walked out of the lab, attired only in a white sheet.

Recovering from their surprise, the mids immediately set out in pursuit of the specimen, but could not find him. Last person to see him was a campus policeman who reported: "Yes, I saw a man smelling of formaldehyde and wrapped in a sheet walking across the campus. But is that so unusual?"

Informed of the event, Boris O'Rourke, aged attendant in the medical morgue, fell on his knees and said: "May hivin preserve us. 'Tis surely a portent. Ten years, and no trouble till now."

Theologians from the various federated colleges immediately issued a formal protest. "There is something immoral about it," read the statement, "if we had been meant to rise from the dead providence would have given us some kind of apparatus to do so. We will discuss this regrettable incident at the next synod."

A professor of Philosophy issued the following solution for the affair: "The man had a desire to become a living being again. He could not be happy until he lived. Therefore he came to life."

"We cannot offer a solution," said a source in the Department of Psychology, "until we get 463 similar cases to provide data."

"It can't happen here," said Sinclair Lewis tersely, when telephoned about the matter.

Officials of the Medical Faculty announced that they will bring suit against the man for ten years' lodging. "The boulder has disrupted our whole laboratory schedule," they said.

was an effective production. Goodson and Dow might be said to have carried the play. Their interpretations of the "murderous" Macbeth and his scheming wife were manifestations of the spirit of the play, and only occasionally did they tend to over-act. This tendency was marked in the soliloquies, but, since this tendency in soliloquies has become almost traditional, it seems excusable.

Iain Dow as Lady Macbeth was confronted not only by a difficult role, but also by the necessity of a figurative change of sex. He accomplished both tasks in a competent manner, although he was aided, doubtless, by the traditional masculinity of the lady he portrayed.

One minor character deserves mention. George Gibson as the porter in the comic relief scene following the murder did some very accomplished clowning. As might be expected, he was the most popular of the players in the minds of the audience.

Some clever lighting effects were used in the witches' scene. Off-stage voices were used, but they tended to become monotonous in the longer speeches.

It is not likely that the Bard of Avon turned over in his grave as a result of the performance.—Lloyd G. McDonald.

Varsity Mermaids Take Intercollegiate Swim Honours

Naiads Sweep Card Shatter Four Records

Varsity mermaids stroked their way to intercollegiate swimming honours Friday night in Kingston when they captured every event in the annual meet breaking four records in the bargain. By virtue of ranking first in all of eight events Varsity totalled 43 points. Queen's, with three seconds, ranked next in place, and third position was awarded McMaster, whose Hope Gray took second in style, later trailing Varsity's ace, Peggy Bailey, in the breast stroke. This event was the closest race of the night, although the local naiad led all the way. Mary Casson, blonde Toronto star, established a new mark of 29.25 seconds for the 50 yard free style, breaking the old mark of 32.15 seconds formerly held by Gert Evans of Varsity. Dot Hobson, well-known Toronto nator in winning the century free style for Varsity, set a new record of 106 3-5, lowering the time set by Bobby McDonald last year. Smashing her own previous record, Bobby set a new mark of 37 2-5 in the back-stroke event, which she won handily. Win Baxter was twice winner for the Blue and White when she was awarded first place in both style and ornamental swimming. Two Varsity entries tied for diving honours, Marg Hall and Peggy Bailey, with 45.6 points.

Handicapped by Loss of Loaring Varsity is Third in Swim Meet

By Sam Lipin

Hamilton, March 4: Handicapped by the last minute ruling out of Loaring, Varsity's intercollegiate swimmer swimmers nevertheless managed to keep well up in the running at the intermediate meet held in Hamilton last Saturday night. With only the final relay left the Blue mermaids were still threatening to retain the championship, but were unable to match the strong teams pooled by O.A.C. and Western. The race was a thrilling one with Varsity just nosed out in the last twenty-five yards, giving the meet to Western, with 28 points, second place to O.A.C. with 27 points, and third place to Varsity with 22 points.

All the races were very close but only one record was smashed when Hicks burned up the last lap in the 200 breast stroke to finish in 2 mins. 51.1 seconds, 37 seconds under the old record, held by Hicks himself. Waddis placed second in the same event, with Laari doing the same in the 300 free, and Hardy and Mabce taking second and third in the back stroke. Varsity's strong medley relay team of Mabce, Hicks and Laari placed in first position and Fred Rowell, Varsity's ace diver, was well up in the running.

Varsity Athletes Take Third Spot In Intermediate Assault-at-Arms

Sad was the sports story that emanated from Hart House Saturday evening, for while the senior basketballers were being toppled by McGill, the Varsity intermediate boxing, wrestling and fencing teams were likewise being snowed under in the intercollegiate assault-at-arms. In the fencing, Western took top honours and in the boxing and wrestling O.A.C. came through in no uncertain manner to defeat the other three colleges, McMaster, London and Toronto.

The boxing was spasmodically furious but there was not a knockout all evening and only one K.O. in the eliminations in the afternoon, that being a technical in the second round by Logie Allen of the 135 pounders over Ord of McMaster. It remained for Bob McAdam of Varsity to quash the Allen aspirations in the final although it was a close bout, Mahlon Beach of O.A.C. at 118, Mort Golden, Western, at 175 and Vern Wyles of O.A.C. in the heavy division were the only entrants in their respective classes, while in the 165 division Will Joyce of O.A.C. won by default. Don Cooke of London had a wicked left that subdued Harold Kleinman of Guelph in the 125 class. At 145, Phil Cameron of Western eliminated Mee, representing the blue and white, but lost to Don MacDonald of the Aggie aggregation in the evening bout. Joe Piggott of Toronto was apparently saving his punches for a rainy day and was outpointed by the Western wallflower Roy Kent, who continued his winning ways in the final bout of the evening by securing the nod over Fred O'Callaghan of O.A.C.

RESULTS

The grand totals found O.A.C. with 7.5 points, Western with 6.5, Toronto with 1.5 and McMaster with .5.

The fencing comprised six bouts, each worth two points to the winning three-man team. The trio of Hord Taylor, John Lee and Reg Haskins from London captured high honours by winning all its bouts for 6 points, while Orr Reynolds, Bill Horsey and Doug MacIntosh fought the blues into the runner-up position by amassing four points. Low individual score for the evening went to Western's John Lee with but 22 hits against him.

SENIOR CO-ED CAGERS WHIP INTIES 24-13

Intercollegiate Title-Holders Easy Winners Over Weakened Intermediate Squad

Defeating the Inties for the first time in three games, the Varsity senior co-ed cagers making their first public bow since winning the intercollegiate title, overcame a weakened intermediate team 24-13 in a slow fixture at Hart House Saturday night. Bobby McDonald, senior captain, chalked up ten points, while slither Annabelle Macklin turned in a fine performance for the Inties with six points. Mary Bennett, chief scoring threat for the latter team, was out of the game, as was her sister Kay of the seniors' guard line.

Seniors: Bobby McDonald (10), Helen Gurney (10), Beryl Pollock (4), Norah Rean, Jean Lennox, Patsy McLaren, Janie Church.

Intermediates: Ruth Danard (4), Annabelle Macklin (6), Berna Christie (2), Eric Armstrong (1), Agnes Cameron, Mary Carson, Molly Moore, Kay Bryans.

M'GILL HOOPSTERS EDGE VARSITY TEAM

(Continued from Page 1) centre and Sandberg at guard were high men for the winners, scoring twenty-five points between them. Purdie and Kingston also turned in excellent performances, while Giannasio was always a threat with his fast passing and field-generalship.

Bill Rogin, Varsity guard and the league's leading scorer, was well watched throughout the night, but tossed in five field goals and one free throw for a total of eleven points. Mahoney was the eighth while Aitchison and Captain Walt McGregor, playing his final league game in a Varsity uniform, turned in starry performances.

McGill jumped into the lead right after the starting whistle when Captain Frank Giannasio rapped in a fast field goal from under the basket and New Wykes followed up with a rebound off Kingston's shot. The winners kept splitting the twice with successive hoops and after eight minutes of play led 12-0. Rogin broke the ice for Varsity with a long shot but the luckless hoopers were unable to break away from the close-checking McGill players and the score at half-time stood 21-14 in favour of the visitors.

McGill: Wykes 13, Mislal, Giannasio 2, Drysdale, Purdie 6, Keyes, Sandberg 12, Kingston 6.

Varsity: Lavarano 3, Cahill 2, Singer, Minehan, Mahoney & McGregor 4, Flaherty 2, Rogin 11, Aitchison 3.

BLUE SHIRTS DEFEAT PRINCETON RIVALS

(Continued from Page 1) and McLachlan, Varsity's rearguard pair, fired blue-line shots to make the count 4-1 and salt the game away. Cassels and Craig added superfluous last-minute counters, Craig's score being awarded by the referee when Fraker of Princeton threw his stick at the Toronto player.

There are still a few contests in the I.H.L.L. carded for decision. Princeton meet Queen's Monday night in Kingston and a Tricolour victory will send the latter team into a second-place tie with Varsity. McGill play Dartmouth on Tuesday and can clinch the title by beating the American squad.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

NICE WORK, RED TEAM

In spite of the fact that we feel like moaning low over the disaster which occurred in the big gym at Hart House on Saturday, no one would begrudge unstinted praise to the Red Raiders of McGill for their well-earned victory over Stevens' Startled Stalwarts. The Montrealers were not playing any flash-in-the-pan game, plainly outplaying the Toronto cage quitters throughout the encounter. What is more, McGill has come up to the final series the hard way, being faced with a schedule which demanded that they win two games away from home in order to stay in the running. Saturday night the trophy was at Hart House, ready for presentation to the Blue and White should they come through, but now Western and McGill stand an equal chance to capture the honours. Varsity's cagers certainly picked a bad night to play mediocre basketball, but Rogin, Aitchison, McGregor and company are still capable of rising to their former class type.

The men of Old McGill have a particular urge to spur them on to victory in the final series, since they have high hopes of scoring a triple win in the three big sports of football, hockey and basketball.

THE MEN IN WHITE

Among the oft-maligned and little-appreciated figures in sport you can list the referees. Every sport has its anecdotes concerning the whistle-tooting fraternity to live up with a session of the Hot Stove League. Most of these tales are of the same type as the one about the National League baseball umpire who had his mail read to him for years. However, the athletic arbiters are not all a blind and doddling lot. For instance, those who officiate at intercollegiate games in and around Hart House are chosen by merit, and must keep their work up to par or else. . . . This year the referees in the various lines of sport have been holding what they call "interpretation meetings" to talk over technicalities which arise in their handling of the games.

Even the most casual spectator realizes that to a great degree the whole tone of a game can be made or marred by the ref's manner. If the arbiter chooses to act as if a basketball player has committed high treason in taking too many steps or failing to give a yard on a throw-in, said player is very likely to grow resentful and cannot play his best game. Intramural sport has been fortunate this year in having among its refs and umpire some fellows who realize that the players in intercollegiate leagues are not stars, and who take a few seconds now and then to explain the infraction to the offender.

NOTED IN PASSING

Speaking of referees, the third man in the ring at Annapolis Saturday evening was none other than the old Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey. . . . The game of hockey, which was so ably exhibited by Bailey's Boys in their 6-1 victory over Princeton Tigers, is also played after a fashion by the natives of Abyssinia (no reflections intended). . . . The star performance of the week-end was given by Varsity's swimstresses, who splashed their way to victory in every event at the Kingston meet. . . . At the hockey match, Bill L'Heureux won a great ovation from the crowd when he recovered from a blow in the mouth by a glancing puck to score a minute later on a beautiful shot from the Princeton blue line. . . . And Seaborn Albright thrilled thousands at Limerlost by an exhibition of how to take curves on one skid.

several respects. It has an endowment of six million dollars and a student body limited to 600 boys and girls in equal number. There is a large staff, with the result that there are only six or seven students to a professor. "This tutorial system allows for more individual instruction," he explained. "We get about a thousand applications every year of which 200 are sifted out for the freshman year."

Athletics play an important role at Swarthmore. "But we don't place emphasis on athletics on a championship basis," Dr. Aydelotte said. "Actually about sixty-seven percent of our students are on teams which play against one another. They're not good," he admitted, "but everyone gets a chance."

"You see, all of the students are going to live sedentary lives in a few years, and we believe that they will be healthier and happier for participating in sports during their college years."

ART MUSIC AND DRAMA

Sunday Evening Musicals took place at the Women's Union. The program consisted of songs by the Women's Glee Club, songs by a sextet chosen from the Women's Glee Club, piano selections by Miss Margaret James, and several solos by Miss Dora Follett. Mr. George Lambert conducted the Glee Club, who were assisted by Miss Frances Carlisle at the piano.

A varied program of music, serious and otherwise, was the Glee Club's delightful contribution. The chorus was not always in unison, but the effect was enthusiastic at least. Palmgren's May Night was played by Miss James with fine touch and tone. The Dohnanyi Rhapsody was excellently played, but the Chopin was unfortunately weak. The singing of the sextet lacked balance and tonal variety but the voices themselves were rather good, even if somewhat disconnected. Among other things they sang the charming French Canadian A la Claire Fontaine. Miss Dora Follett sang several things, including One Fine Day from Madame Butterfly, Vissi d'Arte from La Tosca and Strauss' Allerwells. In all, the soft parts were preferable to those of greater volume.

IN MIGHTY OCEAN LINERS

OR IN A TINY PUTT-PUTT...

Canadian Nickel

GIVES GREATER STRENGTH WITH LIGHTER WEIGHT

THE WORKING PARTS of that powerful, light-weight out-board motor of today must stand terrific stresses. Nickel alloys supply the needed strength with minimum weight.

The mighty marine engine too, operates continuously with fewer overhauls because parts subject to severe stresses are made of Nickel Steel or Nickel Iron.

Tons of Canadian Nickel go into the condenser tubes, the turbine parts, the anchor chains and the kitchens of the modern ocean liner. Tons too go into the machinery in mines, machine shops, steel mills and all types of manufacturing plants.

Industry the world over operates with fewer breakdowns because of the increased strength, toughness, and resistance to wear and corrosion which Nickel imparts to other metals. So the demand for Canadian Nickel continues to grow.

Mining, smelting and refining the Nickel from Canadian ore provide wages for thousands of Canadians. Cutting the timber, handling the freight, producing the equipment and supplies for the Nickel mines and plants provide employment for other thousands of Canadians. The increased production of Canadian Nickel means more jobs, more money in circulation throughout the land.

SPRING, SPRING! BUT NO SPRING FEVER

So far the cooing pigeons and gentle zephyrs of spring have not brought on an epidemic of spring fever. Varsity students, hidden behind a pile of books, merely raise a questioning eyebrow at the mention of the once-common disease.

It is too early yet for those pieces of paper scrawled with doggerel to appear on the library floor. Of course, you can't get some people to admit writing them either. One timid soul replied emphatically, "I never write poetry. At least not much anyway. Well, anyhow, I don't remember."

To Elsie Ashworth, II Vic, spring fever means action. "I just want to get into a car and drive and drive" ... her voice trailed off. A companion preferred to sit in the sun while another co-ed dryly remarked that spring fever made her look wan and haggard.

Religious Leader Speaks to Many Students in Hart House and Wycliffe

RELIGION AND LIFE WEEK

Religion and Life Week continued on the campus yesterday as Dr. Howard Thurman, special leader from Washington, D.C., presented his message before many students. At noon he addressed a group of men in Hart House Music Room, and later gave the first in the week's series of daily 5 p.m. talks in Sheraton Hall, Wycliffe College.

In his first Hart House talk, Dr. Thurman set forth and answered in outline three questions which will form the basis of the week's discussions. These were: "What must be for me an adequate object of worship?" "What must I believe about this object of my worship?" and "How must I live my life so as to be true to my belief about my object of worship?"

All religions are unanimous in making God the object of worship, he said. "God" he described as "the only ultimate guarantee for the meaning of the human spirit and human values."

Regarding beliefs, he said, "The Christian religion does not claim to know all that is knowable about God, but it does claim to learn something of God through the life of Christ."

In reply to the third question he stated, "Religion says that a man should live his life as a child of God, with the full consciousness of his true (Continued on Page 4)

FINAL ISSUE MARCH 17

Only six more issues of The Varsity will appear this year, and the last issue will be published on Friday the 17th of March. The last regular issue will appear next Tuesday, and then the final issue will be a special eight page edition.

It has been the custom for the Students' Administrative Council to appoint the new editor for the coming year after the paper has ceased publication, but last year due to the epidemic of paralysis in the summer and fall, and the late opening of college, it was necessary for The Varsity to continue in publication one week later; the editor thereby was appointed in time for the announcement to appear in the final issue.

According to a motion passed by the Council last week the same plan will be followed this year, and the new editor will be appointed on March 15th. This will again make it possible for the final (Continued on Page 4)

COLLEGE HOCKEY IN FINAL STRETCH

Having won the Quadrangular League title for the second year in a row, Dartmouth now faces the golden opportunity of being the first team in the American section ever to share the championship of the International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League. With the third annual campaign of the circuit entering its last week, victories by the Hanover Indians over McGill McGill. The Green should have no difficulty and Montreal will earn them a tie with culty with last-place Montreal on Wednesday, but getting by McGill, which has won both previous races, the night before, is an extremely large order, particularly since the game will be played in Canada.

At any rate, Dartmouth, which now has a record of six victories and two defeats, can finish no worse than fourth in the final standing and a victory in one of the two remaining games will place it no worse than a tie for second. The Green finished its Quad season unbeaten for the second year in a row by defeating Harvard, 4 to 2, last Wednesday. (Continued on Page 4)

Posters Adorn Hart House As Annual Elections Near

Coloured posters galore adorn the walls of Hart House these days as hopeful candidates prepare for the forthcoming annual Hart House elections. A check-up with the posters of previous years which are now on display in the art room shows that this year's crop of posters is well up to the standard of previous years in artistic and advertising appeal.

According to the Hall Porter, however, the number of posters exhibited is not equal to that of other years. Although the candidates for library, music and house are fairly well represented, the camera section cannot boast a single poster. One of the best displays is that representing the candidates for the art committee.

There is also an indication that more candidates are making their own posters than in previous years. A. W.

Admitting the Value and Need Rogers Held Little Hope for Federal Scholarships

STUDENT AID

Ottawa, March 6 (CUP)—There is no hope for the government granting the proposed national scholarships, a delegation of sixteen students from the Canadian Students Assembly conference at Ottawa, learned yesterday.

Student aid through the youth training program will be the federal government's only immediate step towards a system of national scholarships, according to the Honorable Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour, who received the delegation.

While the members of the Student Assembly felt that the Minister of Labour's statement was a definite setback, some members of the house urged them to continue their plea for scholarships.

The national scholarship campaign has received the support of most of the university papers and student councils in Canada, and has been very active throughout the past months. It was one of the chief reasons for the student conference at Winnipeg. The N.F.C.U.S. did not support the C.S.A. scheme, according to John H. McDonald, of McGill University, who is president of the Federation.

MICKLE FELLOWSHIP AWARDED TO DR. BEST

The University of Toronto yesterday announced the award of the Charles Mickle Fellowship for 1939 to Charles Herbert Best, M.A., M.D., D.Sc., F.R.S., professor of physiology in this university.

Professor Best was awarded the fellowship for his contribution in certain branches of physiology, in particular those related to diabetes and carbohydrate metabolism; to histamine and histaminase; to choline and fat metabolism; and to thrombosis and heparin.

This fellowship, bequeathed by the late Dr. W. J. Mickle, is the income from an endowment of $25,000, and is awarded annually to that member of the medical profession who is considered by the council of the Faculty of Medicine of the university to have done most during the preceding ten years to advance sound knowledge of a practical kind in medical art or science.

Hall Porter Claims Honesty A Virtue of the Undergrads

Whether it is a profound faith in human nature, true sincerity or just tact, Jack Warwick, popular Hall Porter in Hart House, thinks that the undergraduates are a pretty honest lot on the whole. When it comes to returning lost articles, they are about all that can be desired.

"Why, take last Saturday," he said. "A fellow had come down from Windsor to Hart House. He hadn't been gone five minutes when a couple of the members came in with a pocketbook with three five-dollar bills in it. They turned it in to me and an hour later sure enough the fellow from Windsor came back in a great state with his pocketbook gone. If those two chaps hadn't been good enough to turn that in, that fellow wouldn't have had a cent to get home out."

The list of good deeds is long. In fact, Jack could not recall a single instance when some valued article was lost in Hart House and not returned. Perhaps the most costly loss was a $100 watch, a Christmas gift which one young lady lost in Hart House at a New Year's dance. "That was returned within an hour," he reported. Diamond rings, fraternity pins and other such treasures have often gone astray within the Gothic halls but always some honest person has brought them back before much time has elapsed.

The things that don't come back are the inexpensive articles like books, scarves, and rubbers which the students may find but do not get around to turning in. Money nearly always finds its way back. There are many cases of lost papers and notes coming back after weeks of frantic search. There is one curious case which happened not long ago when an undergrad returned from the library to find that someone had made off accidentally with one of his rubbers and left his own. "Just leave out the one he left and he will notice his mistake and change them back," he was advised. In the morning he returned to find both gone.

Is Southern Ontario Becoming a Desert?

Although Canadian have become alarmed at the growth of the great desert in Western Canada, and attempts to restore the land are being made, settlers are allowed to demolish great sections of woodland area in other parts which must be retained if there is to be sufficient moisture for the future welfare of farming conditions.

In southern Ontario, for example, it is quite impossible to account for the drying up of streams and wells, the prevalence of floods and the abandoned farms as just mere freaks of nature. The truth is that many of the richest and most fertile areas of the province are becoming more impoverished year after year, and it will be necessary to awaken both the farmer and the government to the necessity of halting the deterioration through some adequate means of rehabilitation.

Last year through the interest of Mr. Aubrey Davis of Newmarket, Ontario, a survey was taken of the past and present conditions of King township, in order to procure a basis for a plan of rehabilitation. Mr. Davis knew that a few decades ago this township was much better suited to agricultural pursuits than it is today, and also that its deterioration has been greatly and most alarmingly accelerated during the past few years.

From the report of the survey committee we learn that the effective wood-lands had been reduced to 4.9 percent of the total area of the township; the ground and surface water has been greatly reduced, and the total woodland is quite inadequate for the preservation of soil, water and wild-life.

Where there was once two hundred miles of permanent streams there is now less than thirty, and streams which once could be used for paddling a canoe may now be jumped across with ease. Two hundred and sixty-four wells no longer give a permanent supply of water. Erosion has moved much of the top-soil, and some farms have been abandoned.

"The conditions of the natural resources of King township are now unstable, and the present trend is towards poorer soils and a further impoverishment of the woods, water reserves and wild-life. Definite action is needed to prevent further deterioration and to restore the township to stable conditions."

In this one small area of our province we see that there is a need for reforestation of very large areas. The same is true of the greater sections of southern Ontario. At the present time, although trained foresters are being graduated each year, and it has been made simple for land-owners to get advice and free trees for planting, many trees are being cut down, and far too few planted.

An extensive and well-organized program of tree-planting is essential for the future welfare of the province. We have the labourers. We have the trees, and much of this land now belongs to the government. The farmers would be willing to co-operate, although at the present time they are cutting down trees in such a way that it will be disastrous to the future. But in many cases they find that it is one of the few ways that they have of making a living, and present farm conditions are forcing them to do this in order to maintain their independence.

The response, or lack of response, to the report of the committee, and their suggestions, on the part of the provincial government, so far has been quite disappointing. The federal government on the other hand we understand has expressed its desire to co-operate and its willingness to assist in working out a scheme of rehabilitation.

With the hundreds of young men who are at the present time unemployed, it would not be difficult to have an extensive program of tree-planting organized during the coming months. For the farmer tree-planting comes at an inopportune and busy period of the year. It is not a difficult or heavy job, but it is necessary, and would have greater and more permanent results than some of the works schemes which have been organized in the past.—A.C.F.

Subsidizing Athletes

During the winter false accusations have been levelled at certain members of University of Toronto athletic teams, to the effect that they are attending this university on so-called athletic scholarships. For years there have been rumours afloat that athletes at Queen's University are subsidized, and recently some quarters have become suspicious of Western University also. As far as is known there have been no criticisms of McGill, and for that matter although it is not impossible to conceive rumours concerning them also, anyone who is familiar with intercollegiate sport knows that McGill is above any such reproach.

An article which has recently appeared in the Daily Mirror puts Queen's in a bad light, and brings the subject out in the open. It is quite possible that the article is based on both fact and fiction, but a little clearing up is desirable in the interests of Canadian university sport.

There are many things which could be said in favour of athletic scholarships, and while sport continues to play an important part in our society there is no reason why a good athlete and a good student should not receive financial assistance in receiving an education, especially when he intends to use his athletic ability in physical training work after graduation. But under no consideration should athletic scholarships be allowed to interfere with academic standards.

If athletes are subsidized in Canadian universities it may be to the good. But at least it should be open and above board, or our educational system will be in danger of suffering in the same way that education has suffered in many American universities.

Religion and Life

Speaking in Hart House Music Room last week, two senior students related how the orthodoxy of their religious beliefs had at first been upset when they came to university. It had taken them some time after their initial shock to re-discover what bearing religion could have on their lives.

Revolt against many simple religious teachings can be expected amongst persons who determine to analyse all things critically. But the unfortunate phase arises when students fail to accord religion the same objective treatment as they do psychology, philosophy, or any science.

One of the best guides in finding out what motivates a person is found in the amount of time spent in any interest.

There is a place in life for material values, and ethical standards. But there is frequently too little thought put on the meaning of life itself, and too little effort spent on preserving its true values—which are far from being material alone.

Religion is relevant to life inasmuch as it provides the only criterion by which the value of certain of its phases can be judged. One of its concerns is to preserve balance in the life of man and give him a true perspective of its meaning.—C.McL.

Theatre of Action

The Theatre of Action broke out again last night at Margaret Eaton Hall in the world premiere of a new play called The Life and Death of an American, by George Sklar, to be produced shortly in New York by the Federal Theatre.

It's the old social problems stuff again, this time covering the period from 1900 to 1936, presented in a manner that owes as much to Noel Coward's Cavalcade as to any previous device of the theatre;

50 STUDENTS DIE AS LIBRARY CAGE FALLS DOWN SHAFT

Dying Screams Disturb Those at Work in Reading Room

SABOTAGE?

Fifty students plunged to their death in the library yesterday, when the cable broke on the elevator carrying them down to their day's study in the stacks.

The appalling tragedy occurred at 9:17 a.m. (E.S.T.) just as the first load was being taken down for the day. Forgetting even the thought of late books, the library staff rushed to the scene to render any aid possible. The entire student and staff body was summoned from the Medical Building, but their efforts were not required, as there were no survivors.

"This is terrible," commented a high library official, "the stacks will not be available now for about three months, and the exams are near!"

A cordon of police was thrown around a desperate crowd bent on getting into the stacks for books they wanted before it was sealed for the proposed investigation. They had to be dispersed with tear-gas.

Hardest hit was the library janitor. "A deuce of a mess to clean up," he moaned. (Harder hit was a librarian. She was underneath.)

Thousands of telegrams poured into the university last night offering condolences. Several are printed below.

"Honourable regrets and apologies."—Emperor Hirohito.

"Tough luck, Blues!"—Queen's University.

"We warned you about this in 1908."—Amalgamated Elevator Co.

"Obviously the work of Communists."—Your Morning Paper.

"Obviously the work of Fascists."—Josef Stalin.

Ruddy-faced Bishop Rowe has three other sons—two of them are organists; but you can tell that it's Fulback Paul Rowe that is papa's special pride. You can tell a lot about a man by seeing what kind of children he raises; that's why we publish the picture of son Paul.

U.C. are planning a gala celebration for next Tuesday the twenty-first, when their co-eds do some deserving back slapping at their annual athletic banquet. Whether the Collegians come out on top in the swim meet this week or not there will still be plenty left for them to crow about. The basketball champions, ski marvels and various intercollegiate starlets will be honoured, and much-coveted "T's" of assorted sizes will be passed around.

Winding up a star-studded athletic year, the Directorate will hold what will probably be its final meeting this Thursday for the purpose of deciding who are to receive shields and such distinctions for outstanding athletic achievements this year.

St. Hilda's, winners of the hockey championship, haven't set a date yet for their athletic dinner, but Vic have decided to hold their tea of celebration the week after next. On Tuesday the fourteenth, elections for next year's Directorate will be held, and since like-nominations aren't definite yet, we won't divulge the few we do know. Elections for the various club executives will be carried off Thursday the sixteenth. From past experience we know that this affair is one of the most hectic and confusing events of the year. Mainly because of the inexperience of the electors. If the faculty representatives could put their "stoges" through a brief training period, some of the din next Thursday might be avoided. Hope-hope.

Physical Eds enter only one inter-faculty meet every year. The swimming fixture this year seems destined for success. With three of their students on the intercollegiate winning team, it looks as if they are slated to finally break the jinx and deprive U.C. of the title which they have been monopolizing for so long.

PAUL ROWE WILL GO TO KINGSTON?

By Bernie Shiffman

A week ago a small item appeared in the morning paper, containing the news that a football player, already famous on the Pacific coast, was planning to further his academic studies at Queen's. This Paul Rowe is the son of the famous Right Reverend Peter Trimble Rowe, Bishop of Alaska. Paul has played football out west for the past few years and before that he wore the uniform of the University of Oregon for two years.

The announcement of his intention to go to Queen's University created quite a stir in athletic circles. Various explanations were offered by people who were supposed to be in the know. A complete explanation of this intended sojourn in Kingston was made, however, last week-end when the Reverend P. T. Rowe was interviewed by Candide of the New York Daily Mirror. The cut appearing in this paper is the photographic duplicate of the column that appeared in the Mirror.

The reproduction of this article will surprise the people down at Queen's as much as it surprised the members of the University of Toronto, but of course there will be a complete explanation of this unfortunate incident in the near future.

TRINITY BATSMEN LOSE TO O. C. E.

Starting with a four-run burst in the first inning, O.C.E. swept to a decisive 14-3 triumph over Trinity in a baseball game in the lower gym yesterday afternoon.

Trinity were held scoreless until the last inning when Carruthers, Seed and Campbell crossed the plate in succession. O.C.E. scored in every inning with Rogin, Stewart and Salmoni getting three runs each.

Trinity: O'Grady, Carruthers, Seed, Campbell, Snyder, Tidy, Barker, Telfer, Maber.

O.C.E.: Gilmore, Aitchison, Rogin, Stewart, Dudgeon, Salmoni, Tolovson, Munro, Barbour, Bailey, Temple.

Battling tooth and nail throughout the contest, Pharmacy and Emmanuel ended up with a 7-7 draw verdict in the second of yesterday's marshall games.

Each team counted one run in the first inning and the score was kept very close all the way. Elmslie and Gifford scored two each for Emmanuel and Wright and Callaghan did the same thing for Pharmacy.

Pharmacy: English, Griffiths, Wood, Rewbotten, Callaghan, Derquitte, Duster, Hogan, Wright.

Emmanuel: McKennith, Lawson, Elmslie, Gifford, Thompson, Thrower, Stead, Goodger, Currie, Brydon.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shiffman

HEY YOU!

Read the story on Paul Rowe at the left hand side of this column. Finished? Well what do you think? I guess somebody ought to tell somebody. But who? No one telling Teddie Reeve about it because he probably knows and there's nothing he can do about it as long as the supporters demand winning teams. How about the Intercollegiate Union, won't they do anything? Maybe, but they surely have known of this scandalous method of getting players to come to college for a few years, and have done nothing about it, so why should they do anything now? How about telling everybody in general so that maybe something will be done? Well, here goes. . .

AN APOLOGY IS IN ORDER

First, we feel that we owe Queen's an apology. For years now it has been pointed out that The Varsity has taken every opportunity in making cracks at the fact that some of the colleges were in the habit of taking care of promising athletes by paying their expenses (there is no need for anyone to point out that there are scholarship men that are active in athletics. One look at the Western handbook will show that Casey, Farmer, Hurley and Krol are all winners of the Sir Arthur Currie Scholarship, value $900). It seems too that we objected most strenuously to the fact that these monetary aids weren't open to everyone, but rather that the offenders did this on the Q.T. (meaning under-cover) and never made their philanthropic gestures public. So we apologize. Surely nobody can say, if Rev. P. T. Rowe's interview is correct, that Queen's University is paying his son's expenses because he can play football so well, was done under-cover. Why, the New York Daily Mirror, which has nine million American readers and a few hundred thousand Canadian readers, quite openly, without any attempt at subterfuge, had an interview with a father of one of these lads, in which he proudly made the above quote. What the facts are we cannot ascertain. However, we feel that for the good of amateur intercollegiate sport, athletic scholarships, and whispers of professionalism, should be brought into the open . . . explained . . . and a clear, concise report be made by the Intercollegiate Union. The example we have here certainly requires some clarification.

AN EXPLANATION IN ORDER

Ever since the erection of million dollar forums in the United States and the accompanying mortgages, American colleges have found it necessary to go out of their way (putting it politely) to get the best football players they possibly can so as to fill their stone structures with a hundred thousand people on Saturday afternoons. Soon colleges found that they were competing with each other and that their offers were not as readily taken up by promising gridiron high-school stars. The Carnegie Foundation made a scientific study of college athletics and found that the players would send in their diplomas and peddle themselves to the highest bidder, Canada being at least ten years behind the States in everything, was not affected by this practice until quite recently. For a few years now it has been suspected that people who showed promise on the gridiron were educated free of charge with the understanding of course that they would play football. Even now we are not sure this condition exists. We have to base our assumption on the interview in the Daily Mirror with Reverend P. T. Rowe who said "next year my son is going to Queen's in Ontario, with all his expenses paid because he plays football so well." Perhaps Paul Rowe's father was misinformed and Paul earned his tuition by being a prizefighter like Winnie Winkle's husband, but that would make him a pro, and everyone knows pros are barred in amateur sport. . . . Whatever has happened here an explanation is in order and we think that an explanation will probably be forthcoming. Probably? Certainly.

KEEP IT CLEAN!

All this has placed us in rather an embarrassing position. We certainly don't relish the idea of picking out an individual or a college, on the strength of an interview with a person who is not in any official way representing the college. We feel and feel rather strongly that nothing should be done that might in any way injure Canadian sport. It has been our boast that Canadian intercollegiate sport is, if nothing else, clean of professionalism . . . of commercialism . . . and we would do anything to keep it that way. Even if necessary reproducing cuts (at great expense). We think that there are thousands that feel the same way we do and that would like to see university sport kept clean. This is only possible with the co-operation of the other colleges. We do know that in spite of the item that appeared in the Globe and Mail and the interview in the Daily Mirror, that Paul Rowe was going to Queen's; it still is not a certainty. He is coming east . . . and may wind up anywhere. He might even wind up at Varsity. . . . So we'll just wait.

COLLEGE HOCKEY IN FINAL STRETCH

Harvard returned from that setback to trounce Yale, 7 to 3, on Saturday and won the series with the Blue, completing its international season with 11 points and its Quad campaign with 7, ranking second behind Dartmouth. Another week-end game resulted in a 6-1 victory for Toronto over Princeton, giving the Varsity current possession of second place in the international division standing. This was the first game for the Tigers in Canada. They met Queen's tonight in the season's finale for both teams.

There was no change in the individual scoring leadership, since Russ McConnell, McGill captain and league leader in 1938 also, is so far ahead of the rest of the field that he is practically a certainty to repeat. Harvard's captain, Austie Harding, scored seven points in his two final games and rose to fourth place, with 26 points. He is the leading American scorer, as he was last year. McConnell's total is 41 points, his grand total in ten games last year.

"THE VARSITY" SOON TO END YEAR

issue of The Varsity to carry the story of the announcement of the appointment of the editor of the Torontonensis as well as the editor-in-chief of The Varsity.
All other members of the mast-head including the women's editor, and the editorial board, will be chosen by the editor some time during the summer, and as usual it is expected that he will discriminate against anyone with low standing or who has failed in the annual examinations. These appointments will be ratified by the Students' Administrative Council at the first meeting in October.

Although the editor of The Varsity has been a graduate during the past four years, this is not a definite ruling of the Council, although it is usually considered advisable to have a graduate if it is possible. A vote of the complete staff of The Varsity is always taken, and this is sent as a recommendation to the Publications Commission of the S.A.C., which considers it in choosing the new editor.

In many of the universities in the United States the editor is appointed by the Board of Governors or some other administrative body, and very seldom is he appointed by the students themselves. In appointing editors of publications the students of the university have a more democratic system than is to be found in most universities. In Canada with the exception of McGill University, the editors all receive salaries or honorariums, and in most of the larger weeklies and bi-weeklies, at least several members of the editorial staff receive salaries also.

DR. THURMAN BEGINS SERIES OF ADDRESSES

dignity and worthfulness, and sensitive to all the meanings by which his life is surrounded."

Students are apt to be lax in following the ideals in which they actually believe, Dr. Thurman told a large audience at Wycliffe College. Insofar as they are lax, he said, they are actually being untrue to these very ideals—which, if they would but admit them, they would be compelled to follow.

People are obliged to take a stand as to whether they live up to their better ideals, or just drift, he said. They must have a "frame of experience" to which they may refer every act of their life.

Every part of life must be true to the ideals that make up this frame of experience, the speaker affirmed. Otherwise, failure to abide by the implicit demands of this standard of values makes for an aimless and meaningless life, he said. One's private conduct and one's world of values must conform.

Dr. Thurman spoke of the need for great humility on the part of individuals, and willingness to learn from the ordinary aspects of one's life. He indicated that life becomes richer according to the degree to which one commits himself to the way of life that is best for all.

COLUMBIA TREATS SEX EDUCATION

made the encouraging discovery that our alma mater No. 2 has a progressive and very successful way of dealing with that stumbling-block of all student confessions, sex education. In fact, we became so interested in chatting with the sympathetic yet efficient counsellor and custodian of Columbia's 400-volume sex library, that we almost left without the book after which we had come.

The present system has arisen out of the series of splendid lectures on personal hygiene and public health, required of all students registered in Columbia College, i.e., male undergraduates. Besides being a skillful presentation of more or less formal material, this course was intended to afford students an opportunity to air any problems which might be bothering them. But freshmen and sophomores (at least) with all at costs to appear sophisticated in front of their fellow eds; they maintained a relatively stony silence. Thus was knowledge sacrificed on the altar of vanity.

The department of hygiene, realizing the inability of lectures to get at personal problems, adopted the additional expedient of having conference hours. Now students could go individually to one of several remarkably understanding and confidence-inspiring members of the department, either to chat or to discuss some specific question. The success of this measure may be judged by the fact that last year saw one-third of the 1,800 male undergraduates pay a visit to the conference room.

An added refinement is present, in that the readily accessible library of sex literature is housed in the conference room, affording a further subtle concession to the vagaries of human nature. For the manner of the counsellors is so genuine and helpful (without, thank goodness, being gushing) that many students who come merely to borrow a book stay to enjoy a cigarette and a stimulating conversation, as did we.

Nowadays educators and the clergy have little doubt as to the advisability of sex education for youth, but no completely satisfactory system has been devised. Certainly Columbia's department of hygiene would be the last to make any claim to perfection, but their present admirable approach undoubtedly represents a great advance in that direction.

hither and yon

With Munden Bishop

We were pleasantly surprised the other day. We were sitting drowsing in a lecture, when a hat came floating over our heads. The prof. saw it and remarked that he was once thrown out of a lecture for throwing a hat down the room. "But I don't want you fellows to get a wrong idea," he said. "I didn't do it. I was sound asleep."

It happens, so we are told, when the intermediate basketball team journeys to Guelph, to play O.A.C. The girls' team goes along in the same bus, to play Mac Hall. The boys have a nice custom of getting to the bus first, whereupon they sit one in each seat.

Not to be outdone by an article appearing in a recent issue of Life, a party of eight Varsity undergraduates organized a rabbit-shoot for themselves last week-end. After tramping twenty miles through snow two feet deep, covered with a thin crust, the boys returned home with one rabbit.

A new high in quick thinking was evidenced recently by a student at Ohio State University. It was getting on to wards midnight, when our hero was approached by a slightly irate house-mother. "Do you think you can stay here all night?" she asked. "Well, I dunno," came the reply. "Maybe I'd better phone my roommate first, huh?"

An English professor recently returned a paper on which four illegible words were scrawled. The owner of the paper couldn't decipher them, so took them to the prof. The latter, after several minutes' scrutiny, successfully interpreted his comment, which was "Write more plainly, please."

An incident which happened at Minnesota U. might well have here. Two students attended one professor's lecture alternately. Smith answered for Jones and himself. Jones, in his turn, answered for Smith. Smith one day had answered for himself, and when the prof. called Jones' name, Smith replied "Here". "Where?" asked the prof. Receiving no answer, he asked again, but there was still no answer. "In the future, Mr. Jones, please don't answer roll unless you are actually in class," came the admonition.

With Bob Somers

The Sunnyside "merry-go-round" has nothing on the Hart House track. Your life isn't worth a plugged nickel if you dare step onto the local whirling dervish during these days prior to the big Hamilton meet. U. of T. aspirants to track fame are hard at it, and the results should be gratifying.

There is one lad slated for the top. Nobody trains more diligently than he. His style is distinctive, so spotting him amongst the bevy of bustling bodies is not difficult. While Harold Brown was running the indoor hundred yards in 10.9 seconds, recently, our rangy runner was making a new world record for the distance. His time of 27.8 seconds was 2 seconds slower than the slowest century run in competition. We asked him for the secret of his success.

"Was it Grape Nuts or Wheatena?" we queried.

"Neither," he replied. "My daily diet of Ma's molasses did it."

We were astounded and it was some time before continuing the interview. We asked him if track was his first love.

"No," he proudly retorted. "My heart belongs to dadday."

There is now one less luminary lumbering around the oval.

Thursday: An interview with the man who removed the other corkscrewed chairs between the track and big gym, and why.

ART MUSIC AND DRAMA

but this is a stylized Cavalcade, making use of mass chanting and gestures, impersonal announcements, even the stream-of-consciousness technique, as well as completely abstract lighting and setting: all the action takes place on a cleverly designed ramp, the various parts of which represent any required scene. There is considerable incidental music by Alex. North and Earl Robinson. None of these ideas are new—the mass-chants, for example, aren't a very far cry from the Greek Chorus, and the ramp is only a modification of the currently fashionable bare stage—but the way in which they are combined may justly be said to constitute a new form.

The play concerns itself with the struggles of the American labouring class from the turn of the century until the strikes of 1936, using as a focus the life of Jerry Dorgan, a unit in this mechanized mob, and his valiant but vain fight to become an individual, who can live decently in society. His failure is a repetition of his father's and apparently a forecast of what his son may hope for. All the phases of the period are shown vividly, and through it all the ironically ineffective and inappropriate appearances of a Priest symbolize the utter inability of the Church as a social institution to resolve the chaos.

If this slightly weird creation were not competently performed it would be an absurdity; as the Theatre of Action does it is always gripping and deadly serious—ergo, it is very competently performed. Apart from the central figure of Jerry Dorgan, convincingly portrayed, as a child by Garnett Banks and thereafter by Norval Gray, there isn't a great deal of individual acting that needs comment; most of the show is obviously to be attributed to the director, Daniel Mann; but excellent work is done by Alex. Schatz and Toby Gordon as Jerry's parents, Michael and Kathleen Dorgan, and by Elaine Bales as Mary, his sweetheart and wife. The scenes in which Jerry and his associates appear as obnoxious boys of about twelve could scarcely have been done better.

The play is to be presented all this week, exclusive of Wednesday, and will be entered next week in the Central Ontario Regional Drama Festival. It will be a dangerous contender there.

Hollywood Theatre

The triumph of the American genius, Cecil B. DeMille, has been transcribed into a triumph for the French genius, Marcel L'Herbier, in the film Forlure which was shown at the Hollywood Theatre Saturday morning. Although the original The Cheat was made in the war days of 1915 it must be well remembered because of its subsequent revivals. Full credit was given the original in a well chosen scene from that film in the introduction. Great indeed has been the historic development of the cinema as this short scene from DeMille's picture showed the heroine mugging all over the set whereas the French actress played the same scene with subtle simplicity.

The one criticism we could offer is that through it all we had a realization that this was an old film in a new dress. This made the emotions a little blurred and distant and failed to arouse the enthusiasm that the original no doubt did.

From a rather slow moving beginning the film speeded up at the climax in the court room where our heroine confesses all. This scene was particularly well-handled. All the confused noise and general bedlam was realistically present serving as a background to the questions and answers of the witnesses. Seldom have we heard sound used with such telling effect.

Louis Jouvet was excellent in his role. Although it was only a small part it nevertheless required great acting ability.

The recording in the picture was a great deal better than that in most French films. More technical difficulties seem to be the only weaknesses in the French cinema industry. Certainly their artistic development cannot be equalled in any country.—Ted Meek.

MARKSMEN DESIGN NOVELTY TARGETS

Club Members Tire of Ordinary Targets—Shoot at Cards, Thumb-Tacks

The members of the Rifle Club are turning their talents to novelty shooting at the range this week. Having tired of shooting at ordinary targets, they have designed new ones, reminiscent of training for a Wild-West show.

The members are allowed five shots at a straight target, just to keep their hands in, and then they take five shots at a target which has been reversed. The idea is to hit the bull, if you can guess where it is. Another five shots are taken at a playing card, drawn from a pack, and five spots on the card are supposed to disappear. A milder trick is to put a thumb-tack over the bull, and try to hit the tack. For the better shots, the target is (Continued on Page 4)

AMERICAN ARTIST TO LECTURE HERE

Director of Albright Art Gallery, Buffalo, to Speak at Art Gallery Here

Robert Tyler Davis, director of Art Education at the Albright Art Gallery, Buffalo, who lectured on the famous Van Gogh exhibition when it was in Toronto, will lecture on "Significant Living Painters" on Wednesday, March 8 from five to six o'clock at the Art Gallery of Toronto.

It will be the second of a series of free, Wednesday lectures on "Significant Living Artists".

Last week Martin Baldwin, curator of the Art Gallery, spoke on Architecture. This is one of the annual spring series of lectures on art presented by the Art Gallery in co-operation with the Department of Extension, University of Toronto. The series, which will be illustrated with coloured slides, will cover a wide range of contemporary art activity although each lecture will be complete in itself.

State Scholarships Possible, Says Rogers

Student Aid Project may be Financed through Grant for Youth Training

FIRST REPORT MISLEADING

By Paul C. McGillicuddy (Chairman of C.S.A. Delegation to Minister of Labour)

Last Monday morning a delegation from the Canadian Student Association was granted a one-hour interview with Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labour in the Federal Cabinet, to discuss the question of a proposed system of state scholarships in Canada.

The Minister admitted the need for more scholarships and suggested that a Student Aid Project might well be added to the various projects now financed by the Canadian Youth Training Administration, which received a million dollar grant from the Federal Government in 1938 and may expect a fifty per cent increase in this year's grant. If the provincial governments chose to include student aid projects in their programs for youth training, little opposition may be expected from the federal administration, assured Mr. Rogers. He recommended that action be taken to interest the provincial governments in taking full advantage of the grant in aid of youth training and to urge them to consider a project whereby scholarships would be provided for needy students to enable them to pursue their studies at university.

While he did not oppose an appeal to the Federal Government for a special grant for state scholarships, Mr. Rogers (Continued on Page 4)

NEW CONSTITUTION GIVEN FESTIVALS

Inter-Varsity Drama League Organizes for Annual Presentations

COMMITTEE SELECTS PLAYS

The Universities of Western Ontario, Toronto, Queen's, McMaster and O.A.C. have formally drawn up a constitution for the Inter-Varsity Drama League, under whose auspices future intercollegiate drama festivals are to be held.

A committee consisting of a stated number of college representatives will supervise the choice of all plays to be presented at the festival which are to be of one act. Other responsibilities will include the arrangements for properties, directors, stage directing and awards. Any college winning the award one year will be ineligible for it the following year.

Finances of the league are to be based on an entry fee of ten dollars and any profits are to be used first for the sinking fund and after that to be returned to the entrants.

This establishment of an official position for the intercollegiate drama competition will provide a central control for the presentation of future plays.

TOM RUTHERFORD WINS EMMANUEL ELECTION

Tom Rutherford, outstanding intercollegiate rugby and soccer player, was elected president of the Emmanuel College Student Society in the annual election yesterday afternoon, to succeed Harold Bailey.

The nominations for the other offices of the society will be completed today, and the college will hold its annual graduation banquet in Burwash Hall tonight.

U.B.C. STUDENTS PRESENT BRIEF

Student Committee Protests Attendance Limitation and Fee Increase

REGISTRATION DECREASED

University of B.C., March 6 (CUP)—As a result of an announcement made last spring by the university Board of Governors that fees would be raised by $25 and attendance restricted to 2,000, a campaign committee of five members was appointed.

The policy of this committee comprised extensive research as to the capacity of the University of B.C. and as to conditions in other Canadian universities. Investigations were made into the financing of the university. In April the committee presented a twenty-eight page brief to the board suggesting more efficient utilization of university facilities by using laboratory equipment in the mornings and lecture rooms in the afternoons. (This has been carried out to a certain extent.)

Following the board of governors' reply that the limitation and the increased fees would still go in effect, the committee made presentations to the provincial government. Carson McGuire, student president, presented to the government a memorandum—the substance of the brief to the governors.

The committee realized their first objective when the government demanded early in September that the governors withdraw the limitation clause, but they have, as yet, been unsuccessful in lowering the fees.

Reorganization of the committee into an active undergraduate body and an advisory alumni group occurred last week.

EXHIBIT OF PICTURES BY ANDREW McDUGALL ON VIEW IN HART HOUSE

A very interesting exhibit of photographs by Mr. Andrew McDugall, A.R.P.S., is now on view in the Hart House Art Gallery.

Included in his exhibit of fifty photographs are many Scotch landscapes and coastal scenes, as well as views of old country bridges. Also in the collection are a group of four pictures, conveying Canadian winter scenes.

Electoral Campaign Terminates As Hart House Candidates Go To Polls

The elections for the Hart House committees will take place today. The polls will be open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 4.30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Elections for general committees will be held in the west common room, and the reading room, but the Camera Club Committee votes will be cast in the Camera Rooms.

All members of Hart House can vote for the general committees, Library, House, Music, Art, Debates and Squash Raquets. Only members of the Camera Club can vote for the Camera Committee.

Each faculty having a candidate polling three hundred votes for a committee is entitled to representation. Once each faculty has someone who has polled over three hundred votes on the committee, the choice goes to the remaining candidates who polled the largest

THURMAN STRESSES NEED FOR HARMONY OF PERSONALITY

Imagination must be Placed Under Discipline of Central Authority

WILL POWER NEEDED

"What demands am I as a Christian to make upon myself?" This was the theme of the lecture of Dr. Howard Thurman last night in Wycliffe College in the Religion and Life Week series.

"You must accept as a self-conscious effort of your will the interpretation of the destiny of man on earth as Jesus willed it. Christ lived gently but ardently that vision of a perfect life, declaring that life as he envisioned it was available to all people, no matter to what class they belonged, no matter in what degree of spiritual degradation they found themselves. Christ died as an extreme exemplification of this. Imagination must be disciplined. It is necessary to struggle against 'all the pullings of one's personality to go in the old direction.' Everything in life that is not toward this central commitment must be effaced until man arrives at an inner harmony.

Dr. Thurman exemplified this by a story about St. Thomas Aquinas who, when his brain became weary with the study of metaphysics, would turn to devotional literature for relaxation. Then, refreshed and exhilarated, he would return to his work.

No Comment Caused By Rowe's Remarks

There have been no further developments in the Paul Rowe case, a survey of local newspapers revealed today.

It was anticipated by the sports staff of The Varsity, who published a story in Tuesday's issue on the statement of Rev. Rowe that his son Paul would attend Queen's University "with all expenses paid because he plays football so well", that much comment would be excited. It was also felt that an explanation would be forthcoming.

However, the downtown newspapers contained no comment on the affair and the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union failed to take any decisive action. And Ted Reeve, football coach at Queen's, spoke yesterday in his column of detective stories. No reference was made to Paul Rowe.

Electoral Campaign Terminates As Hart House Candidates Go To Polls

est number of votes, regardless of faculty or of the number of votes they polled. This does not apply to the Debates Committee, where only two hundred votes are necessary nor to the Squash Raquets Committee where only one hundred votes are necessary. The faculties or colleges represented by the men carried over to the committee from the previous year are not entitled to additional representation until each other faculty is represented under the 300 vote rule. This, however, does not apply in the case of the Debates and Squash Raquets Committees.

No member of Hart House will be allowed to vote without his registration card or his Hart House membership card. The officials of Hart House have announced that no election permits will be issued.

Sir Joseph Flavelle, Noted Financier, Dies

VARSITY STAFF

Final and important meeting of "The Varsity" staff Thursday at 4.30 p.m. Place to be announced in tomorrow's issue.

Member of Board of Governors, Baronet Made Many Gifts to University

HELD LL.D. DEGREE

Sir Joseph Flavelle, member of the Board of Governors, and noted financier, died yesterday while on a vacation in Florida. He was 82 years old.

Sir Joseph was a noted figure in the university as well as in the world of finance. His home, on Queen's Park Crescent, was a familiar sight to all university students.

He was noted for his work in 1905 as chairman of the royal commission to reorganize the University of Toronto. Also notable was his work during the Great War in speeding munition production.

As well as a member of the Board of Governors, he was on the Board of Trustees of the Toronto General Hospital and the Royal Ontario Museum.

Among his philanthropies are many scholarships and gifts to the university. In 1905 he founded a travelling fellowship in classics here and was awarded the LL.D. degree the following year. He endowed a chair in Hebrew in Victoria University and also contributed to the University Fund. He also contributed generously to the erection of new residences for students here.

The title of baronet, which will be inherited by his son, was conferred on him in 1917 in recognition of his services during the Great War.

News of his death reached here by telephone yesterday afternoon. He had been ill only a few days. Death was attributed to heart failure.

Sir Joseph's body will be brought here for burial, but funeral arrangements are as yet incomplete.

GRADUATE WRITES FESTIVAL ENTRY

Margaret Ness, Former Toronto Student, is Authoress of "Short Circuit"

PRODUCED BY ALUMNAE

Short Circuit, the play which the Dramatic Club of the University College Alumnae Association is entering in the Central Ontario Drama Festival in Hart House next week, is written by Margaret Ness, a former member of The Varsity staff and a one-time playwright of the Players' Guild of University College.

Short Circuit is directed by Rai Purdy of CFB fame, and the players are Edna Norwich, Margaret Tytler, Florian Moore, Aileen O'Brien, who graduated from University College last year, and Murray Bonycastle, who is also contributing valuable advice on scenery.

The Dramatic Club of the University College Alumnae Association has the distinction of being the only group in Toronto which has entered a play in the Drama Festival every year since the Festival began.

OR. THURMAN FINOS CANADIAN STUDENTS MORE THOROUGHGOING

"More thoroughgoing" is perhaps the adjective Dr. Thurman would apply to Canadian S.C.M. students as compared with American students in their religious pursuits.

Amid a busy rush of enthusiastic students Dr. Thurman had only a few moments for The Varsity last night. S.C.M. people in Canada seem to be much more church-conscious than Americans. They have a more active interest even in the theoretical side of religion, such as ecumenical councils and so forth. Dr. Thurman, however, has not visited Varsity long to form a decided opinion about Canadian students.

A. H. ROBSON, PROMINENT CANADIAN CRITIC, DIES

The death of Mr. A. H. Robson, prominent in Canadian literary and art circles, occurred Monday. An artist of note, and vice-president of the Toronto Art Gallery, Mr. Robson was author of "Canadian Landscape Painters" and several biographies in the "Canadian Artists' Series". Appointed by Lord Bessborough as one of the original governors of the Dominion Festival, he served for three years as Ontario Regional president. From 1935 to 1937 he was president of the Toronto branch Canadian Authors' Association. He was largely responsible for the building of the new wing of the Toronto Art Gallery.

FURNITURE LISTED AT HART HOUSE

Operates as Smoothly as a First Class Hotel, States
Giley

ANNUAL INVENTORY TAKEN

Hart House has often been called the finest haven of liberal education on the continent. It is the centre of university tradition and activities, but it is also an organization that keeps books like a bank and operates as smoothly as a first-class hotel, according to Comptroller J. R. Giley.

The furniture in the House is itself very valuable, and one of the many duties of Comptroller Giley is to see that this equipment stays in the House and is kept in good condition.

In his office Mr. Giley has records of everything in the building that isn't nailed down. Desks, tables, piano stools, floor polishers and dozens of other items have identifying numbers stamped on them. "We have a form for each piece of furniture or equipment which gives a description of it, the date purchased, the cost, and the estimated life," Mr. Giley explained.

If some piece of equipment is expected to last ten years, a tenth of its value is put aside every year. In this way, by the time it has to be replaced, the money is already provided for the purchase.

All these reserves are added up and charged off in twelve monthly units. The auditors come in every month and check the books. "So far they have always agreed with the depreciation we allow for," said Mr. Giley.

Signs of Degeneration

One of the most alarming aspects of twentieth century civilization in America is the tremendous increase in the number of criminals and defectives. They are an enormous burden for the part of the population that has remained normal. Gigantic sums are now required to maintain prisons and insane asylums and protect the public against gangsters and lunatics. The number of these public burdens is appalling. In Ontario alone some thirty thousand persons are lodged in asylum at government expense. An equally staggering number fill the penitentiaries, jails, and reformatories. The asylum at Orillia, Ontario, has a waiting list of five thousand.

What is the cause of this tremendous increase in crime and insanity? Crowded cities, unemployment, industrial discontent might account for the maladjustment of the petty criminal, the victim of neurosis. Indeed, of the 500 killings of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company policy holders in 1937, studies by the company show that 50 per cent of the slayings were due to fits of temper arising from trifling causes. The owner of a lunchroom shot a man who didn't like a sandwich; one man knifed another to death because he wanted to play a needlepoint first. "Jealousy or thwarted love" motivated the second greatest number of slayings, robberies, burglaries or jail breaks accounted for most of the others. The majority of these victims were police officers or bystanders. If these figures are representative they indicate the main reasons for United States' 10,000 homicides each year to be petty and avoidable.

The causes of insanity are much more complex. The legal term covers some 20 types of aberration, only about 30 per cent of which can be tied down to a physical basis. Yet 75,000 new patients are admitted to United States mental institutions every year, from all classes of life. Appropriately has insanity been labelled "civilization's disease".

What can be done about these incumbrances on society? Certainly building larger and more comfortable prisons will not prevent crime, nor will real health and sanity be promoted by larger and more scientific hospitals. These are but provisional measures. Criminality and insanity can be prevented only by a better knowledge of man, by eugenics, by changes in education and in social conditions. The restoration of man to the harmony of his physiological and mental self is a large order, but we must face it. The increase of crime and insanity, together with a decrease in population spells only one thing in the light of past experience—racial degeneration. The advance of science enables us to discern what is happening. For the first time in the history of humanity a crumbling civilization is capable of discerning the causes of its decay. For the first time, also, it has at its disposal the weapons for recovery. Western civilization must throw off its torpor and begin a work of regeneration, or suffer the fate common to all great civilizations of the past.—B.K.

The Trans-Canada Route

Amongst all the aspects of national unity with which Canadian statesmen and writers are dealing today, one of the most important seems to have escaped attention. Good highways become a necessity in modern times for rapid communication, and are a potent factor in the development of national feeling. Connections must be made easy before any feeling of kinship can grow between the provinces.

"It is an absurdity," says Mr. W. G. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League, "that one cannot drive across Canada today on a road lying within our own country. There is probably no physical project that one can conceive of that would be more conducive to cementing the unity of all the provinces of Canada than the completion of the Trans-Canada Highway."

Two interesting historical examples serve to illustrate Mr. Robertson's position. It will be recalled that a century ago Lord Durham, one of the first persons to concern himself with the building of Canadian nationality, favoured construction of an inter-colonial railroad between Montreal and the Maritimes as a necessary prerequisite to any sort of union. Again in 1871 it was the promise to connect the Pacific Coast to the rest of Canada with a railway that won British Columbia to Confederation.

Today railroads are on the wane. The trend is more and more toward travel by bus or private automobile. A good highway system becomes a necessity if a nation is to keep abreast of the times.

At present there are two gaps in the coast-to-coast motor link. At the first, on the Big Bend of the Columbia River in British Columbia, the Dominion Government has already stepped in and hopes to finish the work this year. The second is more serious, however, and consists of a two hundred mile break north of Lake Superior within "Canada's Premier Province". Ontario is progressing slowly on this, with dollar-for-dollar assistance from Ottawa.

Canada should maintain its self respect by refusing to be dependent any longer upon the United States for its east-west motor transportation. For the sake of national cohesion, the Dominion Government should assume full responsibility for the main Trans-Canada route, and hasten this work to completion.—C.McL.

A Letter

Printed below is a communication from our predecessor in command of this department, Tom Northwood, who is at present a resident of Montreal. It's apparent from his review that he has made a thorough investigation of the musical and dramatic situation in the metropolis.—H.C.

By Tom Northwood

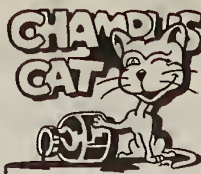

Montreal, March 3: I am glad to say that my first impression of Montreal was a false one; it isn't such a cultural desert after all. It was probably the depressing effect of the hall in which their concerts are held that made me think the Montreal Symphony Orchestra was stodgy, because when I came across them on the radio a few nights ago I nearly ruined a bridge game listening to them. Maybe it was the hall that made Trudi Schoop seem a little below par this year too. But during the last week I've discovered an auditorium comparable with Eaton Auditorium (except the lounge and the punch), two interesting local dramatic groups, a small symphony orchestra and a pianist that can play Debussy almost as well as Walter Gieseking.

Located in the Y.M.C.A. here is a tiny college called the Sir George Williams College, which sponsors a very ambitious dramatic group. They have all the hardy readiness for experiment of Orson Welles, albeit not his technical advantages. I saw them produce Ascent of the F-6—one of those heavily ironic sociological plays, with abstract characters like The Politician and The Big Business Man, and much perturbation about the present and future of the world. The group was further handicapped by poor stage facilities, a bad audience and not enough experience with better constructed plays, but on the whole I think the experiment was a success. The players were young enough to import a semblance of reality to the sound and fury of the dialogue.

The other group I encountered was the Montreal Repertory Theatre, who made a charming job of Brian Doherty's play, Father Malachy's Miracle. I'm beginning to like that play very much.

But the highlight of the week was a production of Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal, in Plateau Auditorium. The auditorium, incidentally, contains about two thousand good seats and no bad ones. The man who designed it knew a little about acoustics, and was safely past the garish stage in modern

30 ARE BUTCHERED AS HUNGER-CRAZED STUDENT RUNS AMOK

Great Hall Scene of Chaos After Tragedy at Dinner Time

FUN AND GAMES

Thirty students lie dead today after the running amok of a Great Hall diner at 145 yesterday.

Crazed with hunger, the student rushed from the table, and with the aid of a water jug and the jawbone of an ass (found on the floor, and causing considerable embarrassment to the caretaker) succeeded in killing over a score of students. His murderous career was brought to an end when he was lured from his victims by a plate of food from the Faculty Dining Room and despatched by a firing squad rushed from C.O.T.C. headquarters.

The tuck-shop was hastily converted into a morgue as the bodies were carried from the Great Hall. It was cold enough there to preserve them indefinitely. They were a horrible sight, a source from the shop claimed, and tended to wreck the noon-hour business there.

Reason for the event was given as starvation. "I don't know why he did it," exclaimed a waitress, "he had only been waiting three days to get served." Students sitting at the table occupied by the dead youth said that he tended to become moody as two o'clock approached, and suddenly, without a word of warning, jumped to his feet and proceeded on his rather fanatical errand. "It was a protest," runs the consensus of opinion.

The man at the cash register was rather bitter about the affair. "I'll have to go over the financial statement again," he said, "in order to account for the error of twenty cents which will undoubtedly show since he did not pay for his meal."—Algernon.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Alan Harvey

NEWS ITEM

You fans who occasionally trade in coin of the realm for blue seats at professional hockey games are in for a treat. This morning, between the hours of ten and twelve (approximately), Toronto Goodyears engage Conny Smythe's Maple Leafs, who are currently pointing for a shot at Mr. Stanley's cup, in an exhibition game at our own Varsity Arena. The teams practiced there separately recently, being forced from the Maple Leaf Gardens, their natural habitat, through the fact that the Gardens is being used for the Skating Carnival.

AND SUDDEN DEATH

Through a quirk of fate, Queen's basketball fans, whose representatives failed to win a single game this year, may witness the sudden death cage playoffs which will decide a winner between the three contending teams, McGill, Western and Varsity.

The athletic directorate of this university went into confab yesterday to decide Toronto's stand in the matter. It was decided that the best plan would be to have all three teams meet in Kingston, with one squad drawing the bye. Stress was laid on the fact that the championship should be decided in the single evening. This proposal was forwarded to the two-man board of reference of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, McGill, who are playing in a city series Thursday evening, are hopeful of securing the bye. Western's stand in the matter is not known at this writing.

Moose Rogin's suggestion of tossing coins to decide the resting place of the Wilson Cup, facetiously voiced after the disappointing defeat Saturday evening, was promptly vetoed.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Yesterday the winners and runners-up in the various groups of interfaculty sport were duly established and the feverish playoffs will commence Monday. Full details of the elimination series appear elsewhere.

Because Lou Dillon, Varsity's 118-pound dynamic boxing champion, forsook kather slinging in favour of higher learning last week-end, Varsity lost an important boxing meet and large rolls of publicity and prestige. Or such is the whispered opinion of fight fans around the university. Dillon's place at Annapolis was taken by game but inexperienced Bob Hurst, and it is felt that Dillon's presence would have swung the balance in favour of Varsity. As it was, the Blues lost the meet by a margin of a single bout to highly-rated United States Naval Academy. Seven thousand spectators viewed the proceedings.

Owing to an unfortunate incident the Jr. Vic-Jr. U.C. basketball match of two days ago, which was covered by a reporter, failed to appear in this paper. U.C. won the game 28-25. Bill Scott turned in a starry performance for the winners, with Axon and Klein next in line. Victoria's Cliff Stance turned in an impressive effort with seventeen points.

University College Firsts and Junior S.P.S. are being touted as the teams to beat for Jennings Cup honours, symbolic of interfaculty hockey supremacy. U.C. boasts a luminary in Don Grosskurth, who played for Tip Tops in the West End Mercantile League, while Schoof's Wally Glynn was one of the stars of the 1937-38 Varsity juniors and intermediates.

MEDS' FOURTH TEAM DEFEATED BY DENTS

Yesterday afternoon Dents B swept on to the championship of its basketball group by swamping Meds IV 23 to 8 in the upper gym at Hart House.

Meds had already played S.P.S. in the early afternoon with only five men and were rather tired. Dents had beaten Meds in their previous game and so the odds seemed to point to a win for the Dents.

Dents played a zone defence which the struggling Meds could not break up, and because of the close checking Meds could not even get away many long shots. The Dents were much the fresher and soon established a fairly comfortable lead. Though Meds scored six points in the first period they only managed to get one basket in the last half. Dents split their points up evenly, getting 11 in the first stanza and 12 in the last.

Hambley was the star of the game and potted 13 points for Dents. He was particularly valuable on rebounds and broke up many plays on the floor. Levitt and Freedman carried the play for Meds but were too tired to show their usual pep.

Meds IV: Levitt (4), McClure (2), Marchant (2), Freedman, Clarke, Fireman, Bohann.

Dents B: Hambley (13), McColl (4), MacDonald (2), Clee (2), Chaple (2), Hunt, Sussman, Scott, Moore, and Smyth.

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

With the semi-finals of the water polo well under way a fighting junior embryo team held the Sr. Vic squad present holders of the Eckhardt trophy, to a 2-2 tie in the first of the two game play-off. Vic were much handicapped by the absence of Lipin and Woodsworth, who are sick with the flu. The game opened with Sr. Vic's veteran Doug Best pouring into two goals past the redoubtable Meds goalie. Jr. Meds began to press and in the second half Bill Wadds evened the count. Both teams seemed to be fairly evenly matched in this encounter, but the final game today ought to see a different story with Dave Woodsworth of Vic back in the game. Baldwin and Hair of Meds were outstanding with their fast breaking and hard checking.

Sr. Vic: Hoffman, McRae, S. Best, D. Best, Carter, Kerr, Fleming.

Jr. Meds: Baldwin, Hair, Turner, Wadds, Young, Ernest, Quigley, Park, Martin.

In the second semi-final game between Trinity and St. Mike's, St. Mike's did the unbelievable and also held the Trinity squad to a 1-1 tie. St. Mike's showing a sudden reversal

"Why doesn't Eddie's brother talk to him any more?"

"Well, his brother not only borrowed Eddie's clothes all the time but he complained they weren't smart enough."

"Well?"

"So Eddie went to Tip Top Tailors to get more stylish suits but they tailored them to perfectly to his measurements, his brother can't wear 'em—so he's sore."

of form checked the fast swimming Trinity team to a standstill. Keefe opened the scoring for St. Mike's with a neat shot, low in the corner which completely fooled Rowan who was guarding the net for Trinity. Early in the second half Gardner of Trinity became the third man this season to score a goal against St. Mike's team. From this point on Trinity dominated the play but were unable to capitalize on their scoring possibilities owing to weak shooting.

St. Mike's: Cronin, Keefe, Waters, Goglion, Flynn, Sliotnick, Remmer, Bennett, Dunn.

Trinity: Charles, Rowan, Love, Gardiner, Renwick, Harbinson, George, Telfer.

The style swimmers will be Freddie Baxter, intercollegiate holder of the style and ornamental championships, Peggy Bailey and Lib Secombe.

In the ornamental will be Marg Hall, Freddie Baxter and Helen Scott.

The teams represented were Physical Ed., U.C., St. Hilda's and Vic Nurses and Physios failed to enter a team this year. Gertrude Evans, star of the U.C. swimming meet, is suffering from a severe cold and was unable to compete. It was reported that Dot Hobson, intercollegiate champion, is also caught in the grip of the flu and her absence from the final meet would be a severe loss both to the swimmers and to the gallery.

As an added innovation Molly Moore and Helen Gurney will lend their efforts in a comedy skit dressed in old fashioned hoop skirts with all the trimmings. Swimming enthusiasts have a real treat in store for them tonight with this galaxy of stars on the program. So see you at Hart House tonight at 7.30.

SPEAKING OF SWING

By Les Vipond

Somewhat or other the "cause" of swing seems to have maneuvered into a rut during the last few months. There have been many light spots but they are left unnoticed by the millions of swing devotees who are blindly barking up the wrong idols. The unrestrained flood of popularity has made swing a business, to such an extent that it is losing its aesthetic significance. It is true everybody isn't on the wrong side of the fence; some bands and musicians seem to be able to maintain their integrity in spite of the howling mobs. Ellington and Henderson are still in the public eye, and doing better than ever. Hosts of other great musicians are loyal to the traditions of true jazz although Johnny Q. isn't giving them a tumble. Another encouraging part is that some talent is being given special attention for the first time, especially in the piano line. Head "Lux" Lewis, and Albert Ammons are boogie woogieing their way to fame in New York's crowded Cafe Society. Joy McShan has at last broken loose from Kansas City and is setting Chicago on its ears.

But what about the biggest names that are riding the crest of the wave and before whom a continent of jitterbugs scream in reverence? Take Artie Shaw. His recent skyrocketing act is probably unprecedented in the world of music (maybe Verdi, I'm not sure). But did Artie become famous for the right things? A year ago Artie's outfit could play as fine jazz as ever came from white musicians. Those who were present at the Palais last summer when he played The Blues for over twenty minutes will never forget it. But Artie didn't become famous for The Blues. It was trick arrangements of antediluvian favorites like Indian Love Call or powerhouse versions of current "Pops" that sent him on his way. Not that I don't admire the aforementioned. For sheer cleverness of orchestration and arrangement they are unsurpassed.

MEDS' FOURTH TEAM EDGE OUT SCHOLMEN

In the upper gym at Hart House yesterday the Meds fourth edged out S.P.S. fourths 22 to 21 in the inter-faculty basketball. The win put Meds tie with Dents for first place—a loss would have made Dents group champions.

The game was very close and hard-fought and was quite a strain on the players. At the half way mark School was winning 12 to eight but a rally in the second half supported by some smooth long shots gave the Doctors the lead. Despite the closeness of the contest there was no ill feeling and both teams were well satisfied with the results of their efforts.

Meds had only five men and were obliged to play again later in the day, which put them at a slight disadvantage. Levitt and Freedman were outstanding for Meds while Montgomery was the mainstay of his team, scoring 13 points. S.P.S. IV: Montgomery (13), Bell (4), Bryce (2), Moorehead (2), Schell, Mark, Simpson.

Meds IV: Freedman (10), Levitt (2), McClure (5), Reingold (4), and Marchant (1).

U.B.C. STUDENTS PRESENT BRIEF

The total registration has increased at the rate of about ten percent for the past five years. In 1933-34 the attendance was 2,100 as compared with 3,152 in 1937-38 and an estimated 3,100 for the year.

The grant in the same period increased from $250,000 in 1933-34 to $400,000 in 1937-38. The additional $30,000 granted this year approximates the annual increase over the five-year period.

The registration for the winter session decreased 172 over that of 1937-38 showing the effect of the threat of limitation and the increase in fees.

HERE WE ARE AGAIN . . . back at work with jolly quips, bits of whimsy, and interesting data on the various camps here and across the border. . . There has been an ugly rumour floating around the campus that we have not been spending the past two weeks at the Stacks. . . Unfortunately, this is true, but we do want to say here and now that it was only yesterday that we did pop into the library . . . to make a telephone call. . . Interesting place, isn't it?

WE SEE BY THE PAPERS THAT West Point finally scored its first victory over R.M.C. after sixteen years of hockey rivalry. . . It is hard to understand why this flashy Canadian team should go down in defeat to the West Pointers, but we think that we have arrived at the solution. . . It seems that recently a movie entitled "The Duke at West Point" was made in Hollywood. . . This film told the story of the sixteen-year-old rivalry of the R.M.C. lads and the West Pointers, and pictured the former's loss on the ice for the first time in the history of the colleges. . . On this film do we base our opinion for the Canadians' loss. . . Upon arriving at West Point before the game, the visitors were immediately taken to the local theatre which was presenting this picture. . . Here they were forced to witness the film over and over again until they were firmly convinced that West Point deserved the win, and thus our noble boys went down to defeat. . . Fantastic, you say? . . . Nonsense, power of suggestion is the answer. . . I read it in a book. . .

GATE-CRASHERS LIVE ON! . . . And the Harvard Crimson has just uncovered one who has perfected this art. . . His name is A. Montague Fitzpatrick and he lives in Boston. . . Due to a superior technique he claims the title, "Boston's most uninvited guest". . . His plan of attack is to call up the hotel at which the party is being given and question someone in authority as to its worth. . . If there is to be champagne and caviar, our friend Fitzpatrick puts it on his must list. . . His method of getting in is to stagger in, champagne glass in hand, pretending to be "One of the boys". . . If this fails, his last resort is to dress up in a butler's uniform and come through the kitchen. . . Degrading but effective. . .

architecture. (Methinks architecture is no place for passing whims and fashions, because people still have to look at the results twenty years after.)

But to get back to the orchestra: the conductor was an ex-music-critic by the name of O'Connell, who looked like a college student, with a recalcitrant look of hair and awkward, crude, gangling movements, but he and the orchestra went to town. He did some risky things with tempo but got away with them every time. They played Beethoven's Fifth Symphony with some excellent modern—even impressionistic—touches. The andante movement sounded a little like a "tone poem". Jesus-Maria Sanroma, the pianist I mentioned, played with the orchestra the same Concertino by Weber that Casadesu and I ago. I think I preferred the Sanroma-Ford Symphony played a few weeks O'Connell combination in the flesh to Casadesu-Pelletier(?) via radio.

Sanroma played a solo group: Debussy's Feu d'Artifice, which was the most perfectly entrancing Debussy I've heard for a long long time, and Debussy's Cathedral Engloutie, which, however, was not as good as Norman Wilkes' version last year; and some Spanish stuff which had the sparkling tang of champagne. One of his encores was that breath-taking pastel of Schumann's: The Prophet Bird.

The orchestra then played three more Spanish pieces: Turina's explosive Sacro Monte, Albéniz's quietly beautiful Cordoba (whence, I'm afraid, came Victor Herbert's Kiss Me Again), and finally the pulse-quickening rhythms of de Falla's Ritual Fire Dance. And tired but happy about fifty million Frenchmen and I went home.

Art Gallery

The portraitist perhaps provides the most disappointments in the sixty-seventh Annual Exhibition of the Ontario Society of Artists, which is now hanging at the gallery in Grange Park.

A few of the offerings are so strikingly "merely decorative" that magazines would hesitate to use them as cover designs, though manufacturers of second rate chocolates might snap them up to attract attention to their boxes.

Some of the portraits are irreproachable in their technique, are indeed very pretty pieces, but expressed no vital character, unless mere prettiness is the only characteristic the sitter possesses. Apparently also the mugs must have contained a great many doubles of persons still believed to be alive. By contrast the strength of both hands and face in Steiger's Wanderer, the vitality of Bonycastle's Telephone Portrayal, and the insight of Alfens's Portrait, stand out.

Air Raid, also by John Alfens, catches with powerful force the mood of blind desperation. Franklin Arbuckle's Saturday Night presents most convincingly the atmosphere of another just of contemporary life. In her Just Cows, Mrs. Couric presents something very different and refreshing in the cubist mode.

Excellent landscape is there in abundance and space would fall me to tell of Brigden, Gauthier, Hallam, Harris, Jackson, Lismore, Murphy, Panabaker, and many others, who with true art have captured the beauty of our Canadian vistas. In the sculpture, Pepper's forceful Head of Negro, and Stewart's rhythmic, Confusion of Mind both reveal depth of insight and true artistic conception.

who plays the part of Mlle. Beaugre. The plot of the play is based on the poignant tale of a child's adoration for a great artist, who, in the end, proves unworthy of it. Janine Charrat, as Rose Couris, offers a very accomplished child actor's portrayal of a young ballet student who goes to extreme lengths in her love for a dancer. SCHOLARSHIPS ARE SEEN POSSIBLE pointed out that many appeals for grants in aid to the provinces had already been made, and advised against an effort which would be unlikely to meet with success at this time. Such an appeal would involve another money bill which is never popular in the House, and if it was finally passed, the bill could hardly achieve more than is already possible with much less trouble under the Youth Training Program.

The report issued Monday by the Canadian University Press corresponded was misleading when it stated, "There is no hope for the government granting the proposed national scholarships." No such observation was warranted by the facts. The exact opposite is true, since the initial grant from the federal government which was the primary objective of the Scholarship Campaign is potentially available in the grant in aid of youth training. It only remains for the provinces to reach out for their quota of state scholarships. The Canadian Student Assembly had not hoped to realize such a favourable situation before 1940.

FURNITURE LISTED AT HART HOUSE

Every spring an inventory is made of the House equipment. Every item taken to the last chair and table is tracked down and inspected to make sure that nobody has walked off with it and that it is still in good shape.

Sometimes when furniture has outlived its usefulness in one part of the House it gets a new lease on life in another. The chairs in the Tuck Shop at one time were what is known as the Windsor style. Then the backs were cut down and now they're tossed around by the amateur furniture movers in the lunch-hour crowd.

EMMANUEL COLLEGE SAID RATED HIGHLY ON CONTINENT

Is Classed Among the First Eleven of 250 North American Protestant Theological Colleges

Of two hundred and fifty North American Protestant theological colleges, Emmanuel College has been classed among the first eleven by the Association of Theological Seminaries for North America, according to a statement made by Principal Davidson at the annual graduation banquet in Burwash Hall last night.

Emmanuel made official application for classification last year, and of the two hundred and fifty which applied forty-nine were accredited by the association as giving "reasonably good" courses in training for the ministry. Of these all but eleven were qualified with certain annotations. Emmanuel was the only Canadian seminary not to have one of these annotations.

Trinity and Queen's were also listed among the forty-nine, and it is possible that when certain details are overcome the reservation will be removed. This was the first time that an official statement had been made to the students of the college concerning the result of the (Continued on Page 4)

No Organ Grinder and No Swing But Elections Far From Quiet

Voting for Hart House elections started at eleven o'clock and for an hour or so trying to get a chance to vote was worse for the coming exams.

For some reason the organ grinder and his companion were not in attendance but the bewildered freshman (if such remains) did not miss them, for he found himself bombarded by poster-plastered, blotter-battered, blotter-pocketed, red faced, shouting candidates.

Veterans of former elections commented on the lost glamour of non-flag years. Although interest has been felt in this important event they felt the loss of roller skates, bells, jazz and music, pictures of a certain kind, and a buck board the way of Ben Hur, campus after the way to a man's heart. And, oh yes,—the way to a man's heart,—through peanuts, gum, candy, and

New Committees Elected At Hart House Polls

Results Released at 9.30 Last Night Show Case of Tie Between Candidates Standing for Camera Committee

Over a thousand male undergraduates turned out to vote for their favourite candidates in yesterday's annual Hart House elections. In the Camera Committee race all aspirants for office were elected due to the fact that in the final count it was found that there was a tie between the candidates standing fifth and sixth. The results were released by the Warden's office at 9.30 last night and are as follows:

THURMAN CONTINUES LECTURE SERIES

"Must Achieve Harmony with the World of Nature to Change Fear of Life to Love of Life"

"I must achieve harmony with the world of nature so that my fear of life will be transformed into love of life," said Dr. Howard Thurman in the third of his series of lectures yesterday afternoon.

Man has always been surrounded by the impersonal world of nature and he has always spent much effort in trying to reduce nature to manageable units, trying to "put the face of man on the world of nature," he said.

In Dr. Thurman's opinion these attempts may be divided into several stages of development. In the first, man did not attempt to conquer nature; it seemed friendly. Soon, however, with the help of religion, he came to look upon the world of nature as evil and awful. Then it seemed to be man's personal enemy, pursuing him relentlessly. In the next stage it was not his enemy, but rather an impersonal force ignoring him. But this erection of a gulf between nature and the individual has been countered by psychology, by biology, by physiology. Science approves instead the attitude in the next stage of development. Physical Eds Take Honours In Swimming Meet

Win Interfaculty Swim Trophy for Their First Time as They Pile up Fifty Points

Physical Eds in their sole appearance in annual interfaculty sport captured the co-ed swimming meet in Hart House last night when they piled up 50 points and an 18-point lead over Victoria, who placed second. U.C. with 7 points, were followed by St. Hilda's with 6.

Peggy Bailey, Varsity Swimming Club president, and performer extraordinary for Vic, turned in the best individual performance with 26 points. Mary Hall, smooth-stroking leader of the Physical Eds outfit, annexed 21 points with a ten point margin over Freddie Baxter, her teammate from the P.T. school. The Eds swept the meet, capturing the long plunges, the medley relay, ornamental and style, and the back stroke, in which Freddie Baxter set a new record of 36 9-10 seconds.

Vic took the free style with Mary Casson establishing a new record of 29 9-10 and another Vic co-ed, Peggy Bailey, led the diving field. The thrilling relay climaxed the meet, with Vic coming out on top.

Long plunge: Molly Moore, Phys. Ed., 62' 4"; Janie Church, Phys. Ed., 60' 3"; Jean Howson, St. Hilda's, 59' 6".

Medley relay: Physical Ed., 51 seconds; Vic, U.C. (Continued on Page 4)

FOOTBALL COACH DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF ROWE INTENTIONS

Ted Reeve Claims Possibility of Rowe Having Expenses Paid in Rugby Set-up Unlikely

Ted Reeve, football coach of Queen's University, in an interview yesterday, said he was unaware of the report that Paul Rowe is to attend Queen's this year.

A statement of the Rev. Rowe, Paul's father, was featured in Tuesday's issue of The Varsity. It was that Paul would attend Queen's "with all expenses paid because he plays football so well". Mr. Reeve stated that the article in The Varsity was the first intimation he had of the affair. He thought that the event of Rowe's having all his expenses paid, because of his ability to play football, was extremely unlikely.

To dispel all rumours, a news dispatch, printed in last night's issue of the Evening Telegram, arrived during the interview. It was a statement from the officials of Queen's University that the grades presented by Rowe were in- (Continued on Page 4)

LINGUIST AT FIVE YEARS MISS ANNE THURMAN GUEST AT FAULKNER HOUSE

Miss Anne Thurman, five-year-old daughter of Dr. Howard Thurman, negro educationalist and philosopher, who is here with her father in connection with the Student Christian Movement's annual Religion and Life Week, was entertained at dinner last night at Faulkner House.

Miss Thurman, who likes to be known simply as "Anne", is able to converse fluently in French, a language which she mastered before English while in Geneva. She can also write, and her father expects that she soon will master the art of reading.

VIC HOOPSTERS CONTINUE SCORING

Sr. Vic, champions of group one in interfaculty basketball, yesterday edged out Sr. U.C. 65 to 19 in the upper gym at Hart House.

Vic had the edge all the way and after the first few minutes threw in basket after basket. By half time they had piled up 31 points to U.C.'s 10 and in the second period did even better, outscoring U.C. 34 to 9. Though there was no hope of victory the U.C. team fought gamely till the very last minute. For Vic it was merely a good practice.

Shuster was high scorer for U.C. with 8 points and Shiffman, Greenstein and McLean also played well for the losers. For Vic, the Brown brothers scored 18 points apiece and Dales 12. Sr. Vic did not lose a game during the season, although it was once held to a tie.

The Browns and Ted Jarvis make up one of the tallest forward lines and what Dales lacks in height he makes up in skill. Macpherson is a very steady man and fits in well with the others of his team. The Vic Srs. play well together and make use of some tricky plays. It is no wonder that they are favourites in the interfaculty finals.

Lockhart To Lead Group To Amsterdam Conference

Staff Meeting Slated For To-day

The final open meeting of the staff of The Varsity will be held in the Women's Union today at four-thirty. Every member of the staff is urged to be out and hear the applicants for the position of Editor-in-Chief for the coming year as they make their campaign speeches.

The results of the voting, done by the Hare-Spence system, will be submitted to the S.A.C. to express the wishes of the staff concerning the appointment to the position.

BRUENING RECEIVES POST AT HARVARD

Was Former Chancellor of the German Republic (1930-35) and is Late of Oxford University

Cambridge, Mass., March 8—The president of Harvard University announced last week that Dr. Heinrich Bruening has been appointed Littauer Professor of Government in the Graduate School of Public Administration.

Dr. Bruening, former Chancellor of the German Republic (1930-35), has been for the past two academic years lecturer on Government during the first half of the year and lecturer at Oxford University, England, during the second half. While at Harvard he conducted a seminar on "Government Regulation of Industry: Some Post-War Experiments in European Industrial Control."

Born in 1895 in Muenster, Westphalia, he was educated at the Universities of Strasbourg, Munich, Muenster, and Bonn, receiving a Doctor of Economics degree from Bonn in 1915. From 1915 to 1918 he was on the Western Front as an officer in the German army. As a member of the Christ party, he was elected to the Reichstag for the first time in 1924, and in 1929 became head of his party in the Reichstag.

ALPINE COUNTRY DISCUSSED BY REID

Captain Fred H. Reid conducted another in the series of illustrated travelogues Tuesday night at Eaton Auditorium.

Sound motion pictures and coloured dissolving views, described by Captain Reid, transported the audience through the Alpine country. Beginning at the port of Marseilles and travelling on to Nice, Grenoble and Geneva, the various aspects of Switzerland's long history were pointed out, chiefly among the French, Swiss and Italian cantons.

Scenes of pastoral and domestic life, of old cathedrals and colourful costumes, with such highlights as the Dying Lion of Lucerne and the Swiss Horn, were dimmed by a display of the various species of mountain flowers which bloom in profusion throughout the Alpine country.

Present will be Fifty Delegates from Canada of which Three or Four are to be from U. of T.

In an interview with The Varsity on the World Conference of Christian Youth which is to meet at Amsterdam this summer it was revealed by Dr. Lockhart to be an effort to mobilize Christian youth that they might have consciousness of the urgency of world problems and the reality of the world fellowship of Christians. Dr. Lockhart is to lead the Canadian delegation.

Fifty delegates are to be allowed from Canada, three or possibly four of which will be from the University of Toronto. The Canadian delegates will be chosen from churches, the S.C.M. and other Christian organizations on the basis of those who would best represent them. Counting the provision made for leaders there could be a maximum of fifty-seven to represent Canada.

"These representatives of every part of the world will be meeting in the shadow of the European situation and it will have a tremendous effect on their thinking," Dr. Lockhart said. He informed us that the conference is a follow-up of others such as those at Madras and Oxford, but different in that it would be wholly made up of youth—the age limit being thirty-five (Continued on Page 4)

Nickels And Dimes --and then some!

Varsity men prefer milk to soda pop according to sales in the Tuck Shop. They drink 1600 bottles of it every week, but only 1500 nickels go across the counter for carbonated drinks.

A week's turnover also includes 1500 pies and 1400 sandwiches. The eds stay awake in lectures with the aid of sixty-five gallons of coffee, in which they dunk a weekly total of 750 doughnuts. If they feel too warm, they cool off by eating three hundred ice cream pies.

Into the Hart House barber shop 425 shaggy-headed students march each week of the school year. This means that every seven minutes that the shop is open, a Varsity man gets his hair cut.

Across the hall, Stan Elias turns out 150 shoe shines in a week. "It isn't very much," he said.

In the Great Hall they keep records of the number of each type of meal that is ordered, and can forecast almost to the last plate how much to prepare. Every month 1200 gallons of soup go into Great Hall customers, and they smoother their bread with three and a half tons of butter every season.

FACING EXAMS SCHOOLMEN FROLIC

Determined to forget approaching exams for at least one night, Schoolmen last evening flocked to the Royal York for the last party of the year. Repeating an innovation of last year, first, second and third years combined to put on what was voted one of the best dances of the year. To music supplied by Eddie Stroud and to Toilettes supplied by the Schoolmen, Engineers and their friends made merry throughout the evening.

The event was held in the Banquet Hall, scene of the annual Soph-Frosh.

Laugh It Off

The supercilious attitude assumed by some members of the staff of the university to the undergraduate newspaper is sometimes highly amusing. The unfortunate part of it all is that some of these third-rate professors who think that they are generally being funny when they do their back-biting to a selected group, or under cover, never come out in the open to vent their spleen, where the paper can get an opportunity to reply.

Professors who complain bitterly because they occasionally have their names misspelled, or get misquoted by a green reporter, should remember that they are not infallible themselves. In fact it would be possible for some of their intelligent students to be more amused at their pompous dignity and distorted sense of humour which causes them to treasure their stale jokes and tell them year after year, than at their jokes themselves.

But The Varsity has followed the policy of refraining as much as is possible from dealing with matters which are definitely the business of the professors, and attempts to keep its criticism in the realm of matters more distinctly of student interest. It attempts to serve a purpose in the university, and has tried to abstain from printing anything objectionable, destructive or subversive. When it realizes that something is in the interests of the students, it does not always find it necessary to burst into print about it all, but attempts to work in as quiet and as constructive a way as possible.

Mistakes there are, and more mistakes there will possibly be. There may be a certain amount of carelessness, but it should be remembered that The Varsity is the only newspaper in Canada where the complete editing is done by the students themselves. A college newspaper serves as a training and experimental field for students with a desire to write, who in many cases have had absolutely no previous experience. Technically therefore the proportion of errors may be greater than in a cosmopolitan newspaper.

"Baiting" a college newspaper of course is always considered good sport. It is expected from the students; it is good fun and we don't mind especially, when it usually comes from that group of students whose average intelligence rates at about ten below zero, and whose loudest spokesman is someone spending his third season in first year. But when it comes to Profs it is different. They are old enough to know better, and should have enough good taste to make their complaints to the proper place. If they don't like the A. M. and D. editor, tell him so in a letter. If they don't like the Sports Editor, tell him so; he will probably be glad to hear about it. But don't report the sub-editors to the Chief.

This is not meant to be any tirade against members of the staff of the university. On the whole there isn't a finer and more interesting group of men anywhere, than the professors who the editor has been privileged to meet. If it weren't for their co-operation it would be very difficult to edit a college paper; and their advice proves to be invaluable.

But there are a fussy few, who might be interested to know that members of the staff of The Varsity don't waste all their time, and that when the last survey was made two years ago, a staff of eighty won nineteen scholarships, and had two failures.

Last year's record was not as high, but there is not a group on the campus which can boast a higher academic record than the editor can boast for his staff. To disillusion a few more it might be added that the students are charged no subscription for the paper, which costs the S.A.C. in the neighbourhood of 25 cents per person, per hundred issues.

The highly critical few might learn a lesson from the men who really count around the university, who are all helpful and encouraging, and willing to overlook a few errors. They would be of much more value to The Varsity in its attempt to be a force for good in the university, if they attempted to emulate the policy of such men as the President of the university, the secretary of the Athletic Association, the Warden and Comptroller of Hart House, the president and secretary of the S.A.C., and the many others whose interest, sympathy and absolute co-operation are invaluable.—A.C.F.

The Leadership League

There has been much speculation in informed circles as to what purpose Mr. George C. McCullagh had in mind when he established his "Leadership League". Some interesting information was contained in the Globe and Mail of February 13th which stated that this organization will, "if the urgency should arise—be prepared to smash the present political set-up and launch a potential new party of power and propriety, of independent thought and action."

These words are singularly ambiguous, and are anything but a clear-cut definition of the aims of the movement. Some believe that it is a perfectly sincere attempt on the part of a brilliant young Canadian to get his country out of a rut. Others affirm that it has all the earmarks of incipient Fascism. They elaborate on the point by reference to the wealthy mining interests represented by the enterprise, and mention the paper's opposition to industrial unionization of the mines and other progressive steps. It is alleged that the movement, to all intents and purposes, is merely a tool for the preservation of vested interests. In any event it is a movement supposedly spontaneous and popular, but with heavy financial backing.

Some comparisons can be drawn with the rise of Fascism in Germany. A pseudo-progressive party of "action", supported by the middle class, the Nazis first won a hearing with a program of reforms. Nothing specific was said for a time about how these were to be accomplished. The party was brought to power, with the aid of strong financial interests, before any clear definition of policy was forthcoming. Only then was its true nature revealed, but it was too firmly entrenched for the people to put it out of office.

In a similar way today the Leadership League is clamouring for action and reform. Its call for a national administration and reduction of government falls into the same category, it appears to some. The Globe, in its Leadership page, is attacking one of the very fundamentals of democracy—the principle of free discussion in parliament. Under the date of March 4, it narrated some "hansardies" of the House which it reviewed as "alking time: three and three-quarters minutes; cost to taxpayer: two hundred and eighty-five dollars." The blank Hansard column, some people believe, is a bland attempt to cast aspersions on our present representative system. Granted that the movement remains democratic and sincere, it can perform a useful function and create an awakened interest in public affairs. But progressive folk must watch lest cries for "efficiency" lead them to yield traditional British liberties which have been won only at great cost through the centuries.

The Leadership League has now a paid organizer, although what it is organizing for has yet to be disclosed. A more specific definition of the movement's aims should be forthcoming. Until further clarification is made, intelligent people should be wary of supporting what may well be a Fascist trend.

Incredible havoc was wrought here yesterday following a student's prank. Little did the militiamen who were firing salutes at the opening of the legislature know that live shells had been substituted for the blanks in the three 18-pound field guns.

"MAKE YOUR FLORIST THE ARCADE FLORIST"

By Marg Conlin

Physical Eds came into their own last night when the combined brilliance of Janie Church, Lib Seconbe, Fredie Baxter, Dot Hobson and Marg Hall brought them their first interfaculty swim time. It wasn't hard to call the likely winners after the intercollegiate results last Friday, and the P.T. girls are feeling pretty happy. Their swim suits from our vantage point seemed to be dark blue and quite tricky, while second award for "style" would probably go to the black-clad, good looking Vic team. Our only problem connected with the meet was an attempt to assemble the evening's results after it was all over.

Aubrey Ireland Jr. gave a stiff and highly effective display of canoe tricks, which added greatly to the evening's program. The events were "swum" off in good time, no delays, and with the newly-innovated medley relay taking our vote for thrills. A small but critical gallery kept the performers on their toes, with the diving by Helen Scott and Joan Gribbill winning many plaudits.

The swimming club is to be congratulated for the smooth and efficient

The second and final game between Sr. Vic and Jr. Meds was played last night in Hart House pool at 5 o'clock with Sr. Vic emerging victors to the tune of 4 to 1. This win clinches the playoff berth for the Scarlet and Gold, who won the round 6-3. Vic will now meet the winners of the Trinity-St. Mike's game, which is being played tonight, in a three game series (games to count) which commences on Monday.

Jr. Meds: Bladwin, Hair, Wadda, Young, Turner, Park, Martin, Ernst, Quigley.

Sr. Vic: Hoffman, McRae, S. Best, D. Best, Lipin, Woodsworth, Fleming, Kerr, Carter.

TRINITY vs ST. MIKE'S

Tonight at 5 o'clock the second game of the double header between Trinity and St. Mike's is being played with both teams having one goal each while to start this game. The winner will play Sr. Vic in the finals next week. This game between these two evenly matched teams ought to be the most thrilling game of the season. Trinity excel in fast swimming, fast-breaking, poor shooting forwards, while St. Mike's to offset this advantage have a stalwart defense well versed in the difficulties of the shift, etc.

BOMBING? WE'RE PACIFISTS

"The devastating bomb" as Fred Jackson of the Toronto Daily Star so aptly described our attempt to open up the question of athletic scholarships, certainly didn't kill anybody yet (and are we sorry) and as for being ignored we're used to that. We are glad that the conclusion reached by the sports editor at the conclusion of his article was the same that we had in mind when we wrote the dud. (Ed. note: Bomb that didn't explode.) The freshmen rule, we feel, along with many others, has failed completely, and a substitution is necessary. The suggestion that "No first year man can play senior football" is one that we advocated for a while but no one else thought this rule was necessary. Now it seems that this affair can no longer be ignored. So that we feel that at last there will be something done on this phase of the question. The other question we had in mind when we wrote our story was that of the athletic scholarships.

Now some people might think from our "willed institution" that we were against athletic scholarships of all kinds. This erroneous impression we wish to correct immediately. We think and we have always thought that the individual who excels in sport and meets the necessary academic requirements has just as much right to financial aid in getting an education as the individual who excels in academic studies. Both are specialists who have devoted a great deal of time to their particular field—the one to studies, the other to sport. Each has a place in our community and there is no reason why one should get aid and the other should struggle through school unassisted. Our objection is that whereas the academic scholarships are put on a comprehensive basis . . . publicized . . . anyone can apply for them, the athletic scholarships or aids, if there are any of course, never are made known and an air of secrecy enshrouds them. We believe that athletic scholarships are a necessity that should be looked after immediately and that where they exist they should be made public for the sake of all concerned.

JEEPERS WEEPERS

What next? For the past two months Tommy Dorsey has been publishing a newspaper called the BANDSTAND. Now they are in the process of building up a sports page and they query us to find out which members of our basketball team and hockey squads play musical instruments and what instruments they play. Well, as far as we know the only musicians we have at the school are Moose Rogin, who was a child prodigy on the violin, and Tommy Callon is quite a singer if what the boys on the hockey team say is true. . . . After what appeared as a rather unsuccessful athletic winter season we find on a little addition that the Boys in Blue captured ten out of fourteen championships, with the Redmen from McGill getting the other four. . . . "You can't tell us that it doesn't cost plenty to send Rogin and Aitchison to the University of Toronto. It costs plenty," said Aitchison as he rubbed his last two dimes together as he gave the green tables of the billiard room a covetous look. Just here we would like to press long enough to give a Winchell orchid to Aitchison, who stayed with the team on week-ends which kept him from returning home where he works on the local paper and manages to earn enough to keep his body and soul together. . . . A scallion to Cudde Dillon who left his team in a sort of a fix last weekend when they made the trip to Annapolis. They lost by a five to four score before an audience of 7,000. Everyone feels that the result would have been the same only in Varsity's favour if the battling bantam had forsaken his books for the week-end. . . .

FLASH! BASKETBALL PLAYDOWNS?

With a triple tie for first position in the basketball league after a full season of the court game there is now the question of the playoffs. The wires have been hot carrying messages up and back across the country and here is the latest news. Dr. Simpson in Montreal when contacted by the Canadian Press said that he had nothing to say until later today. Western, by wire, say that they feel it would be unfair to play this week-end as it is too short a notice. Varsity and McGill both feel that if there are playoffs they should be played this week-end so that the boys on the teams would be able to get down to do some work. . . . Final results about this playoff will be made known in tomorrow's issue.

Playoffs For Jennings Cup To Be Closely Contested

Leaders Prepare for Semi-Finals as Annual Tilt for Title Looms on Sports Horizon

Interfaculty pucksters are sharpening their skates in anticipation of the approaching playoffs which begin on March 13th. The hockey enthusiasts of the different colleges have come through a long and arduous schedule since the beginning of the spring semester, and the leaders in the five groups making up the league now move into the semi-final brackets of the elimination series which will determine the winner of the Jennings Cup, emblematic of hockey supremacy on the campus.

The second round is to be played on March 14th and 15th. The finals will take place between March 17th and 22nd inclusive. Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules will govern the encounters between the finalists, making it a two-and-a-half series with goals to count on the round.

Last year Victoria College defeated St. Mike's in the finals to capture the trophy, but this year tells a different story. The Scarlet and Gold are right out of the picture, and St. Mike's have to defeat Trinity tomorrow to grab a place position in their group behind the leading Senior School squad.

University College First team have been granted a bye into the second round. Senior Meds have led Group III and now the Doctors meet Junior

S.P.S. The leading team in Group V is slated to tussle with the runner-up in Group II as soon as winners are declared. At present second position in the second group depends on the outcome of the encounter tomorrow between Trinity I and St. Mike's. The fifth group looks, like O.C.E.'s, if they defeat Emmanuel tomorrow, which is a likely thing. Should the Theologues upset the Teachers, S.P.S. III will move into the playoff berth.

U.C. BASEBALLERS DEFEATED BY JR. MEDS

Junior Meds moved into a contending position in the interfaculty baseball race by virtue of a clean-cut 11-4 victory over last-place University College juniors yesterday afternoon in the upper gym.

A seven-run spurge in the last half of the second inning gave the Meds their triumph. Two runs in the first and third frames completed the total. The Artsmen showed signs of life in the final inning, bunting four solid blows for three tallies, but their abortive rally was checked when Goldenberg nipped Boyce at the plate on a close play.

EMMANUEL COLLEGE RATED HIGHLY

inspection which was made last spring.

Rev. G. B. McLennan, minister of Manor Road United Church, was the guest speaker and delivered an inspiring address to the members of the graduating class. Don Elmslie, president of 2nd year, was toastmaster and the feature of the evening was the proposing of the toast to the members of the senior year, which followed the traditional custom of reading poetical take-offs on each member of the class.

The poems, longer than usual due to the smallness of the class of only thirteen members, were termed by members of the staff as "the best poetry, and the cleverest combination of wit and wisdom ever read to a graduating class at Emmanuel". The proceedings were topped off with Dr. Dow presenting athletic colours to the students for activities varying from playing volleyball to "lingering in the halls".

sufficient to permit his entering third year, as was anticipated, and that he could only enter as a freshman. This means that he would not be eligible to play intercollegiate football until 1940.

Ed. Note—If other reports are correct, however, and Paul Reeve already has left for Queen's, by enrolling for the remainder of the season and writing some examinations, he will no longer be a freshman when next football season comes around, and will be eligible to play—thus brooking the freshman ruling.

LOCKHART TO LEAD

and two-thirds of the group being under twenty-five.

With regard to the 136 German delegates expected, Dr. Lockhart stated that there was no definite word, although he believed that there was lately a little more laxity about the movement of delegates. In Germany they are alleviating the pressure on minorities and coming down on the more powerful religious groups, the Roman Catholics and the Lutherans.

"I know, regarding the Balkans, that there is increased pressure on Christian youth in connection with freedom in attending international gatherings as there has been a reduction in numbers," he said.

In Dr. Lockhart's opinion the conference should do two things for Canada, give greater consciousness of the particular urgencies of the problem facing them. "Here the danger is that we are very provincial. When our people meet other Christian youth it will make the whole problem vital," he continued. He said that would also give the youth of this country the reality of world community to be found among Christians and an understanding of the church in actuality.

Much preparation is to be done in anticipation of the conference. One of the main questions to be discussed is the relation between church and state especially with regard to the claims of totalitarian states.

ment when man considers himself in harmony with nature and an essential part of it. The world has now become a cosmos, not a chaos.

The last step, said Dr. Thurman, comes when man realizes that there are harmony and law and order in the world of nature and "they must be made to serve the ends of Christian commitments, rather than greed and selfishness and baseness". The great challenge of the Christian religion is to make the physical environment become the very agency of moral and spiritual ends.

With Frank Shuster

TULANE STUDENTS are on strike. . . . The cause is the food that is served at their local "dineria". . . . The main trouble is that the students feel that the amount of food on the dishes is a bit scant, and they are demanding "more calories and less Ferdinand". . . . The Tulane Hullabaloo puts it this way. . . . "Tongue sandwiches are fagged out and the egg sandwiches are no more than a yolk". . . . We feel that this is a poor way of getting better food. . . . As long as they insist on printing bad gags, they deserve bad food. . . . SO LET THAT BE A LESSON TO YOU. . . .

BOASTING IS A bad thing. . . . It has placed a Princeton freshman in a rather awkward position. . . . Because of an ill-considered boast, this freshman, namely Lothrop Withington will be faced with the prospect of downing a live goldfish. . . . Three freshmen, not believing it possible, have offered him $10 for the feat and tickets will be sold for the spectacle. . . . Withington has been practicing for a week now on small fish and he feels set for the performance. . . . Questioned on the technique of eating goldfish, he put forward two theories: immediate mastication which provides for the best digestive results, or a decisive gulch which has the virtue of getting the fish down. . . . This latter system is the better, but something must be done immediately to kill the live fish in the stomach by some strong beverage. . . . On being asked which strong beverage he would use, Withington said that he preferred iced tea. . . . OH YEAH, Mr. WITHINGTON?

NOTES OFF THE ELBOW. . . . The U. of Wisconsin will soon begin construction of a new cancer research building, to make the university one of the leading research centres in the United States. . . . Students of Cairo University, Egypt, spend ten days in registering for each term. . . . We know some students that do not attend more than ten days' lectures each term. . . . A father and his two sons comprise the professional staff of the Franklin and Marshall College history department. . . . The U. of Michigan is making a colour moving picture of life on its campus. . . . There is nothing like seeing campus life through rose-coloured technicolour. . . . There is a gag making the rounds now of the C.O.T.C. lad who asked the officer for a uniform, and the superior said, "Sure, how do you want it—too large or too small?" . . . N.Y.U. has established a new Fellowship House to further better understanding among students of different nationalities and religions. . . . Sad note of the week. . . . Hedy Lamarr has just married, and it is already rumoured that over ten college students have committed suicide. . . . This is more than a coincidence. . . . We have heard of various reasons for lectures being cancelled, but this is a new one. . . . At the University of Pennsylvania class was postponed because a swarm of bats flew into the room. . . . It has been reported also that every girl with the upper trend hair-do fainted. . . .

CHAMPUS CAT

An official communique issued by the University Avenue War Office laid the blame on students campaigning in Hart House elections.

First intimation of the tragedy came when the switchboard in The Varsity office was stormed by phone calls from indignant North Toronto taxpayers. The T.T.C. also expressed annoyance at the fact that four miles of rails were uprooted by falling shells.

The North Toronto Herald immediately rushed an extra to the street announcing the declaration of war, and had to be forcibly prevented from stoning the windows of the Japanese Embassy.

Movie goes in the Eglinton Theatre were mildly surprised when the roof fell in, interrupting a double feature. Panic was prevented by the showing of a Mickey Mouse cartoon. This lull gave a Communist agitator an opportunity to rush up on the stage and shout: "The Fourth International is proclaimed!"

Twenty students were rushed from the University Library suffering from shell shock.

A high official of the C.O.T.C. was finally found in a bombproof shelter, and gave out the following instructions to be carried out during air raids: "Above all, keep cool, and leave the underground shelters open for officers!"

A track meet at Lawrence Park Collegiate was temporarily interrupted when a pole-vaulter was blown to bits while at the peak of his jump.

Meanwhile, campus police are closely watching the activities of several Wycliffe students. The S.P.S. brass cannon has been confiscated to prevent a recurrence of the trouble and has been nailed down on the back campus surrounded by a guard of 18 R.C.M.P. on horseback.

(A closely guarded report issued last night stated that the bombardment did not go unanswered. Patriotic Forest Hill youths commended a battery of old German field guns from in front of the fire station, fired fifteen rounds southward in protest, and succeeded in sinking the Bluebell, popular Toronto Island ferry (4 trips daily) before they ran out of ammunition.)

Members of the History Department stated last night that the affair might have serious repercussions abroad. "It violates the Monroe Doctrine, doesn't it?" they announced.

choice for the Players' Guild, being not too difficult for a group with limited time and ability.

Some of the actors did their bit with real sincerity. It is impossible to say that any one of the performers was consistently bad. Of course, it is equally impossible to say that any one of the performers was consistently good. In point of fact, not one of the actors was consistently anything.

Betty Harrison was exaggerating a trifle in her presentation of Hildegarde but was by far the most convincing person on stage. But the part of a young, sentimental and slightly stupid girl is not as difficult to play as it would seem, and it is hard to say whether Miss Harrison would experience the same unpleasantness as a fellow-Thespians if she had to act a natural person.

The two most natural characters in the play were a little wooden on the stage. Ruth Brunk as Mrs. Cummings and Joan O'Sullivan as Julia seemed absolutely lost. This writer has never seen anyone so apparently bewildered by perfectly human and logical lines. In these cases, with one or two exceptions when the acting was competent, there was too little life in their voices and in their body movements.

The rest were fair. Gwen Plant as Mrs. Blessington could have been better, but she fitted the part and tried very hard. Her lines were good and carried the whole play. Cliff Blackhall as Bill Thornton was equally conscientious but not too inspired. Mr. O'Brien as Nona had a completely thoughtless part which she performed with ease and skill. Direction showed several lumps in places.—Reuben Frank.

Hart House Gallery

The photographs by Andrew McDougal now in the Hart House Art Gallery reveal Mr. McDougal as what might be called a romantic pictorialist. His pictures all carry that gentle air of beauty that takes one far from reality into a beautiful land of fancy. Perhaps the "old country" is like that but I doubt it. Mr. McDougal has some very beautiful landscapes. "Light Eternal" has a striking cloud effect. "The Lonely Atlantic" is well told by the simple breaking wave and lone bird. "Just About Home" and "The First Reading" carry some human interest which makes up for their shortcomings in other particulars. Two of his snow scenes "Snowdribs" and "Snowdawn" stand out from the rest of the show for their sparkle and the beautiful texture of the snow. "The Great Spirit is Calling" is an excellent picture with the bronze figure reaching toward his heaven.

Mr. McDougal has a penchant for bridges and old buildings. His photographs of them have the feeling which goes with these remnants of the "Romantic Age". However, in his approach he is going against the general trend of photography today. It, along with other branches of art, is seeking the strange, the new, and the real. It is turning away from the conventional and the purely beautiful and trying to reach something which has some bearing on the fundamentals of the universe. In this respect, Mr. McDougal is behind the moderns. Keith Jackson.

INCREASE IN FEES IMPROBABLE UNLESS GRANT CUT

Reduction in Provincial Grant to University Still Undecided According to Minister of Education

Rumours floating around the campus for the past few weeks to the effect that the provincial grant to the university might be cut, and the university forced to raise its fees, have had many of the students quite worried. It is impossible to ascertain whether the fees will be increased, but it is considered to be quite unlikely unless there is a further cut in the grant.

According to some sources if the grant were to be removed, a system of provincial scholarships might be inaugurated, and in this the provincial government would probably be assisted by the federal government through the Youth Training Project.

Shortly after the legislature adjourned yesterday afternoon, Honorable Leonard Simpson, Minister of Education for the province of Ontario, told The Varsity that it is still undecided whether or not the provincial grants to the University of Toronto will be reduced this year.

In view of Premier Hepburn's warning at the opening of parliament that expenditures would have to be cut down this year, it was feared in some circles that this university might be one of the victims of this further economy.

Available figures showed that in 1932 the provincial grants to the University of Toronto almost approximated one and one half million dollars. By 1936 that figure had fallen to little more than one and a quarter millions.

Honorable Mr. Simpson explained that even if estimates were at hand he still would not be free to make a statement.

ALUMNI HALL TO BE RENOVATED

Funds Voted at Final Meeting of Victoria College Union—Amendments to Constitution Passed

At the last open meeting of the Victoria College Union for the year yesterday afternoon, amendments to the constitution were passed, and money was voted to improve Alumni Hall for the use of students.

Treasurer Bill Frechette, in his financial statement, revealed that income from the Victoria College At-Home exceeded expenditures for the first time in a number of years. There was no V.C.U. subsidization of the college formal this year, following the recommendation of an open meeting last year that the affair be made self-supporting. (Some years grants have been as high as $200.) The financial success of this year's at-home was attributed to a slight increase in price over last year, and the largest attendance in many years.

Discussion at the meeting centred around means of renovating Alumni Hall and removing the old photographs of former graduates. President L. Nelson Earl pointed out that the cost of re-photographing the composite groups and placing them in a cabinet is beyond reach of the V.C.U. for the present.

The meeting voted $200 from the general reserve fund to be spent by the executive in improving Alumni Hall for the students' use. An interior decorator will be consulted as to the best way of spending the sum. The motion recommended that tables or drapes be purchased. This move follows expenditure of $300 for Windsor chairs last year.

LIBRARY OPEN AGAIN AFTER TWO WEEKS

This morning at 9 o'clock Hart House Library was re-opened. The famous collection was closed for nearly two weeks because of the large numbers of books missing.

In that time, between 100 and 150 men a day had to find other places for reading in Hart House. For the first few days, the ornate doors many times had to withstand the violent shaking of disappointed students. "Sixteen times a day" the Hall Porter was asked, "Is the library open?" Now at last the answer is "Yes".

After the fortnight of desertion it is back to its old self but there are two differences—about twenty-five new books have come in since the closing, and ten volumes are no longer on the shelves.

Canadian Writer Saw Service in Many Capacities as Volunteer in Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion

By Irving Liss

"I felt that those of us who were able should go to Spain to help the Spanish people against the Fascist invaders of their country, and that the overthrow of another democratic republic would provide a new point of attack on the remaining democracies of the world," Mr. S. H. Abramson, who recently returned to Canada from Spain, said in an interview yesterday.

Mr. Abramson, a native of Montreal, was formerly on the National Committee of the Canadian Youth Congress and has contributed to the Canadian Forum and other Canadian publications.

He joined the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion in Spain in June, 1937, he said after evading police all through France, and crossed into Spain after a fourteen-hour hike through snow-covered paths in the Pyrenees mountains.

"No volunteer was ever offered any monetary or other inducement to go to Loyalist Spain. All stories to the contrary are downright lies," Mr. Abramson stated. Of 1233 Canadians who fought in Spain, he estimated that less than 700 are still alive. He himself saw service as an ambulance driver on the Aragon front and behind the lines. He river the following summer.

COMMENT AROUSED ON FRESHMAN RULE BY ROWE CASE

Rules Vary Among C.I.A.U. Universities—Student Opinion Favours Exclusion of First Year Men from Senior Teams

The much-publicized case of Paul Rowe, famed western football player, who, it has been intimated, will enter Queen's University "with all expenses paid", has aroused a good deal of comment about the freshman ruling in intercollegiate sport.

The ruling at McGill and Toronto is that no first year man whether he be freshman, sophomore, or senior may play senior intercollegiate rugby. At McGill the ruling applies to all sports. On the other hand at Queen's and Western the only ruling is that no freshman may play on senior intercollegiate teams. Since it has been found that this regulation can be evaded, there is a move for some new regulation which would apply equally and fairly to all universities in the C.I.A.U.

VICTORIA DEBATERS TO ATTACK PACIFISM

Subject Suggested by S.C.M. Group on "The Christian and War", Led by Rev. Raymond Booth

The Victoria College Debating Parliament is holding its final debate of the year on Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the college. The resolution is: "That the doctrine of pacifism is a menace to our security".

The debate was suggested by a Student Christian Movement group on the subject of "The Christian and War" which was led by Rev. Raymond Booth. Mr. Booth will be the guest speaker at the debate.

Rowell Bowles has resigned from his position as Speaker of the House to lead the affirmative, and will be supported by Olive Mulhall. Joe Willard, recently elected president of the debating parliament for next year, collaborates with Mary Carter to uphold the negative.

Dr. Sclater, Outstanding Speaker, Urges Students to Memorize Poetry and Scriptural Passages and to Debate Extemporaneously

By Grant Shaver
"Memorize poetry and passages from the Scriptures and debate extemporaneously if you would speak in public," was the advice of the Rev. Dr. J. P. Sclater to university students in an interview with The Varsity on Wednesday night.

Dr. Sclater ushered this reporter to his private study, curled himself up in an easy-chair and between puffs from his pipe related in a pleasing Scotch accent the story of his life.

Dr. Sclater, who has been pastor at St. Andrews United Church for 16 years, is generally regarded as one of the outstanding preachers in the Dominion. Especially noted is he for his dexterity in painting word pictures, and (Continued on page 5)

Varsity, Western and McGill End in Three-Way Tie, Each with Four Wins and Two Losses

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union wired Warren Stevens, director of athletics of the University of Toronto yesterday, to the effect that there will be no playoff in the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League.

The reason for the cancelling of the playoffs was given as a failure to reach any satisfactory arrangement regarding place and time.

The league ended in a three-way tie between Western, Varsity and McGill, each team having won four, and lost two games.

At first it appeared as though Varsity and Western would end in a first place tie, but McGill defeated both teams on Friday and Saturday to tangle up matters further, meaning that the three teams will be joint title-holders. This leaves Queen's as the only team who are not part-champions. The Tricolour failed to win a game all season.

S.A.C. FINDS JOBS FOR MANY STUDENTS

Men Placed More Easily as Ushers, Tutors, Waiters, etc.—Domestic Positions Open to Girls

"More than one thousand men students in the university work during the winter months and many more seek employment," according to Mr. MacDonald, secretary of the S.A.C.

There are fewer jobs for women, but some positions are offered in homes where room and board is given in return for domestic service. A few girls take positions as waitresses or cashiers and several take care of children. There have been fewer positions for girls offered this year than for some time. The chief difficulty of the S.A.C., said Miss Parles, is to get in touch with possible employers.

It is easier to get jobs for men. Some of those available are for ushers at the stadium, in Convocation Hall or for concerts, in Eaton Auditorium. Some clever students tutor and type essays, letters. Several wait on table, in Burwash and in restaurants, while still others drive private cars and taxis.

State vs. National Scholarships

The problem of education costs is of paramount importance in Canada today, and on the whole our complete educational system needs some revising. The ideal system of course will be when education is entirely free, from kindergarten to post-graduate courses, with ability being the only criterion of admission to college or university.

Last winter the "National Scholarship Campaign" of the Canadian Student Assembly was not endorsed by the Students' Administrative Council at U. of T., and several aspects of the plan were criticized in these columns. The criticism on the part of The Varsity was directed at the impracticability of asking for 500,000 dollars for a thousand national scholarships, partly on the grounds that this was not properly proportioned; there would be a very serious danger that it would get beached on the sands of political patronage; and a loan fund would overcome the many weak points of the scheme.

We were criticized severely for our stand, but we feel that the action taken since that time by the Student Assembly has shown that our criticisms were not invalid. According to the brief submitted to the Minister of Labour this week we notice that they are no longer termed "national" but "state" scholarships, and there is no request for a set sum for a limited number of scholarships. In the brief it is suggested that these scholarships "should be provided at every educational level", which is far superior to the original plan of working for a privileged group of university students.

"Moreover, it was suggested that some assurance might be required from applicants that they will make their services available in Canada after graduation." This paragraph indicates that the Assembly now feels that students receiving the benefit of scholarships should be willing in some way or other to repay their debt. We still think that a loan fund itself would be superior, and evidence of the contributions made by graduates of this university through the Students' Council and the Alumni Federation prove that those who have been granted bursaries and loans are far more anxious to assist other needy students, than those who have obtained straight scholarships, and feel that they have only got that which they deserved.

In going to the Federal Government, as was foreseen, the Student Assembly ran into the difficulty of Dominion-Provincial relations. They should have realized that under the provisions of the B.N.A. Act education is a provincial matter, and the only way that a system of National Scholarships might be obtained would be through the Department of Labour or in aid of national defense, or some such department.

But it is possible to get State Scholarships through the provincial governments, and the Federal Government is apparently willing to assist in this program through the Youth Training Scheme. The problem of the students is now to concentrate their attention upon the provincial governments, to secure their co-operation in granting more assistance for education in general.

The main parts of the brief are reprinted below: "In Commission at the Regional Conference of the Canadian Student Assembly held at Ottawa,

March 4th and 5th, 1939, the following general principles were adopted—

"That the proposed grants-in-aid from the federal government to the provinces should be determined on the basis of population.

"That the scholarships should be provided at every educational level from primary instruction to post-graduate research.

"That eligibility for the proposed scholarships should be confined to "needy students", as the term "needy" may be defined by the selection committee in each province. Moreover, it was suggested that some assurance might be required from applicants that they will make their services available in Canada after graduation.

"That, since many students from rural areas are required to pay for room and board in addition to the basic expenditures required of all university students, some provision should be made in the scholarship funds for maintenance allowances, which would vary in size according to circumstances in each individual case. These maintenance allowances would be determined by the selection committee in each province.

"That scholarships at the matriculation level should apply on any course the candidate may choose.

"While the detailed problems of administration can only be settled by the federal and provincial authorities, the Canadian Student Assembly submits the following recommendations:

"That the federal government provide grants-in-aid to the provinces on the condition that the money be spent for scholarships only. If other conditions are necessary, they can best be prescribed by constitutional authorities.

"That federal and provincial administrative commissions be established by the appropriate governmental departments, presumably the Departments of Labour and Education, respectively.

"That political patronage be precluded by insuring that the selection committee in each province will be composed of representatives from every institution of higher learning in the province; and that the members shall not be affiliated with any political interests. Moreover, the members of the selection committee should serve without remuneration."

It is felt that this is far superior in policy to that submitted to the S.A.C. and The Varsity last fall, and contains a clearer analysis of what is proposed. It was partly on account of this lack of clarification that the S.A.C. did not wish to endorse the scheme.

There is still the danger of political patronage, although the proposal used to safeguard this, seems quite logical. If those who receive assistance through these scholarships are made to understand that they will owe a certain debt to the country which has assisted them, and if the proper emphasis is laid upon the fair expenditure in the various stages of education, many of which are suffering more than the university graduates, we feel that the scheme as synthesised above deserves student support, as an attempt to improve on the present situation.—A.C.F.

The Library Open Again

Today Hart House library is open again.

For nearly two weeks the favourite haunt of the man who likes to read for pleasure was deserted. Because of the action of a mere handful in breaking the regulations, the privileges of the library had to be withheld from all the members. But once again the room is open, the now-familiar notice, "By order of the Library Committee, the library is closed until further notice owing to the considerable loss of books", is taken down and the doors are unlocked.

Some students thought the list of missing books seemed too short to warrant shutting the library. In taking such an action, the Library Committee considered the fact that over a period of nine weeks ten books had been removed: ten times, in that period, someone had jeopardized his reputation, perhaps his career in the university by engaging in common theft. Whether or not in removing the book, the thief intended to return it, it is still a crime for anyone other than the Curator to take any book from the room.

Ten volumes in two months was considered by the Library Committee to be a very serious situation. If in the next checking a correspondingly large number is missing, it is quite possible a similar action will be taken. Members can prevent that by persuading friends who have stolen books to replace them immediately, in which case no questions will be asked.

But now the library is open. The red leather chairs will be filled again and the man who likes to take a few moments off from studying for leisure reading will no longer be disappointed. Also open is the Hart House collection of Bibles, private press books and first editions which anyone interested now may view.

Good entertainment, this "Trade Winds" now playing at Loew's. It is purely an adventure film, with plenty of alcohol, females and lyrics. Fredric March, as a very very clever detective, chases the tempo- rarily black-haired Joan Bennett about the globe. It is only a natural that they should fall in love with each other, which they proceed to do. Problem, what should the detective do? Arrest the girl and take her back to the gallows? Sail out to some unknown island and enjoy life? If you are still interested hop a trolley down Yonge.

Mr. Benchley will have you bumping into the usher when he meets up with his double. One Mr. Benchley will make you laugh. Two Benchleys drive you into hysterics. And if the two Benchleys do not Joe E. Brown as Ferdinand the Bull will. It's two cigarette butts to one.

I might also mention Fitzgerald, who will take you to Egypt.—H.N.L.

Eaton Operatic Society

Gilbert and Sullivan fans are in for another joyous week-end with their favourites. The Eaton Operatic Society under the capable direction of Thomas J. Crawford is presenting The Gondoliers, perhaps the most colourful and certainly the most tuneful operetta of the entire Gilbert and Sullivan cycle.

Both principals and chorus attacked the problems of the presentation with considerable vigour, and succeeded in giving the music a quality which amateur groups seldom attain. The Venetian settings provided a beautiful background for the excellent team-work of both principals and chorus, and the

JIU-JITSU RANKING TO BE GIVEN SOON

The jiu-jitsu boys will hold their final set to this Saturday. Instructor Art Menzies declares this will be the last chance for the boys to obtain higher ranking before he leaves the university. Certificates of rank are to be given to all those who attend.

Since its inception four years ago under Mr. Kurose and Mr. Matsumoto, the jiu jitsu club has grown steadily in popularity and numbers to its present peak of thirty active members. Space and instruction time do not permit a larger enrollment. Six men have been awarded the brown belt and six the green belt. Questioned as to the future of the club Art Menzies was somewhat dubious. He said that Pat Cavanagh, one of the brown belt men, might take the class next year. But he also intimated that negotiations were under way with the object of bringing a Japanese exchange student over who would help with the club. Finances were the chief problem in a venture of this nature. It is hoped, though, that some satisfactory scheme can be worked out in order that this fascinating oriental sport may be retained on this campus.

Mass Meeting Tickets

A number of tickets for the mass meeting in connection with the Leadership League which will be held in the Maple Leaf Gardens on Wednesday, March 15th, at 8.15 p.m., under the chairmanship of the Hon. Dr. H. A. Bruce, have been set aside for students of the university.

The meeting will be addressed by Mr. George McCullagh, the Hon. Dr. H. A. Bruce and Captain Nor-Rawson. Admission is by ticket only. Any students interested who wish to attend this meeting may obtain tickets while they last in the Students' Administrative Council office, Hart House.

ENGINEER TO SPEAK ON STEAM POWER

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers is to be addressed at next Tuesday's dinner in Hart House by the society's president, Professor A. G. Christie, who is professor of engineering at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Professor Christie has chosen as the subject of his address the topic of "Modern Steam Generators".

Students and members of the society are invited to a special luncheon meeting on Tuesday afternoon to hear President Christie speak on "Creative Engineering."

Professor Christie has achieved outstanding recognition internationally as a teacher and as a practising engineer of large steam electric power stations and has published many world power papers and contributed to the steam turbine section of Herts Handbook.

Speaking OF SPORT

A WEIRD RULING

There will be no senior intercollegiate basketball champion this year. Or rather, putting the matter more correctly, Western, McGill and Varsity will be joint title-holders. For yesterday afternoon Warren Stevens received a wire from the head of the C.I.A.U. to the effect that inasmuch as a satisfactory agreement could not be arrived at regarding the playoffs, the championship will be held jointly by the three teams that ended in a first place tie.

The reason that no playoffs could be arranged was that Western refused to play this week-end, on the grounds that "the notice was too short". The refusal of the Mustangs on this ground leaves this writer in an absolute daze. For six weeks Western has been playing basketball, and then suddenly they need longer notice to play. Both Toronto and McGill were willing to abide by any decision of the C.I.A.U. but Western just could not see eye to eye with the officials. It certainly would have been interesting to see who finally ended up with the cup. Toronto and Western started off strong but McGill improved with every game and finally ended off their season with wins over Toronto and Western right in the home grounds of those two teams. It is practically impossible to foretell what the results would have been and the intercollegiate basketball fans are missing an opportunity to see some of the finest basketball contests in the country by the Union's decision to call off the playoffs.

A VALEDICTORY

Varsity's basketball team this year was a mighty fine aggregation. Sparked by what is probably the finest basketball combination that ever hit Varsity, Rogin and Aitchison, the team turned in some good performances. It has been worth while to many Varsity students to come down just to see those two play, which certainly does not detract in any manner from the swell performances of Captain McGregor, Lavarnway, Singer, Mahoney and the rest of the team. If the playoffs had been held there certainly was an excellent chance, if not probability that Varsity would have finished on the top.

A MUCH NEEDED AWARD

The University of Toronto Athletic Directorate has just received a very fine addition to the trophies that are at present up for competition among Varsity students. The Massey Foundation has through the Hon. and Mrs. Vincent Massey given a trophy to be awarded to the most worthy member of the U. of T. intercollegiate boxing team. There will be an award made this year, that will be announced later.

BORN THREE MONTHS TOO LATE

As I with about another five hundred bored people sat watching the Princeton-Varsity game, I tried to think of what could be done to try and make the other hockey games beside the McGill-Varsity contest, drawing cards. Although last Saturday's exhibition was none too enjoyable, the games with the American colleges on the whole provide a lot of excitement, with all the scoring that takes place, and deserve a better turn-out than they are getting. For the Toronto Leafs' practice yesterday at the Arena drew practically as many people as some games. It occurred to me that for next year the Arena might try the scheme that was used in the Commercial League a few years ago, a moderati dance after the game. I don't know how practical such a step would be regarding the ice surface, and gaining sufficient heat in the Arena to allow the spectators to stay, but if at all possible, it might build up the attendance. If that doesn't work perhaps a Bank Nite will do.

INTRAMURAL ACTIVITIES

Now that intercollegiate sport is all wound up, there remains the intramural athletes. There are still plenty of basketball, hockey, baseball and water polo teams in the contention and as the weak sisters have been weeded out, the remaining games should be really interesting. It appears as though S.P.S. are certain of the T. A. Reed Trophy for another year, but the contest for second and third places should be really warm.

ROWING TEAM PERFECTS STROKES

Varsity Crew is Preparing for a Full Summer Schedule—Using Shell Purchased from Hamilton Leanders

The rowing machines up in the rowing room are taking an awful beating these days as stalwart Varsity sweepers perfect their strokes in preparation for a full schedule of rowing this summer. Last year the blue crew competed in races in Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal; the final race was in St. Kitt's where oarsmen gathered from all over Canada and the Eastern States to compete in the Royal Canadian Henley, which is the Canadian counterpart of the famous Thames classic.

Last summer during the training season, Varsity purchased a shell four from the Hamilton Leanders. Being rather impatient to start training in their new acquisition, the crew went down to Hamilton, when the lake was calm, and rowed the four home, a feat which had never before been attempted. They left Hamilton at 7 p.m., and arrived at their own boathouse at 3 a.m. the next morning, after dropping in at Bronte, Oakville and Port Credit, where they fed on hot dogs, beer and oranges.

This spring, the rowing club have borrowed some moving pictures of last year's Yale crew, which they intend showing to oarsmen around our own campus next Monday. The style which Yale rows is known as the Conbar style. The crews rowing this style have

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

There seems to be one fact that you did not consider when you wrote the editorial in Wednesday's issue and entitled it "Signs of Degeneration". Rather than say that the race is degenerating mentally I would like to suggest that the increased number of patients in our mental institutions is due to the fact that more abnormal persons are being sent to these institutions. In former times the idiot was kept at home and looked after to the best of its ability by the family. This was especially true in rural districts where there was no adequate information about the facilities of special institutions of this kind. Prejudice and family attachment were also deterrents from sending the weak-minded person away.

However, recently, due to increased education along this line, people are beginning to realize that the mental hospital is the best place for these persons. There is not so much prejudice now against sending a member of the family to a place where they know he will be well cared for. Having lived in several rural communities to me this seems to be the true state of affairs. I would not like to suggest that the race has always been as mentally deficient as it is proving to be but I like less the idea that we are in the process of degeneration.

Yours sincerely,
J. F. G. Morris.

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

One of the most thrilling water polo encounters ever witnessed in Hart House pool took place last night when Trinity took on fighting St. Mike's team by the score of 2-1, thus winning the round 3-2. This means that Trinity meet St. Vic in the playoffs which take place next week.

The game went two overtimes of three minutes before Trinity won the right to advance to the finals. The end of the regular periods found the opposing teams deadlocked and so overtime was declared.

The first half found the Trinity forwards viciously attacking but the stalwart Double Blue defence of Renner, Gaglianno and Bennett held off the Trinity attack. The second half found St. Mike's assuming the offensive and the ball was kept in the Trinity end of the pool for a good deal of this period but the defence of both teams was so unimpeachable that neither squad was able to score.

The first overtime saw the Trinity squad really clicking and two quick goals by Charles and Love in the first minute of this period put the Trinity team 2 goals up. St. Mike's not the least bit discouraged came right back and a neat goal by Waters made the score 2-1 which turned out to be the result at the end of the game. In the last 3 minute overtime a desperate St. Mike's squad tried to even the count but Trinity held them off. In this last period Love, Trinity centre, was taken out of the water with a severe cramp but even then St. Mike's could not capitalize on this unfortunate loss to the Trinity team. The game ended with the score 2-1 in favour of Trinity giving them the round 3-2.

TRINITY AT VIC

Next week on Monday, Wednesday and Friday (if necessary) Vic will play Trinity for the Eckhardt trophy. Vic, present holder of the trophy, has such veterans as Lipin, Kerr and the Best brothers, who each have played for at least three years. Such an aggregation backed up by Hoffman in goal, a well nigh unbeatable net minder, will be no easy team to beat. However, Trinity might be the team to do it for they have shown considerable improvement of late. The Vic team having beaten Trinity twice before in league games seem quite confident of victory which might prove their undoing. But there is no doubt that the games between these two finalists will show some fast and hard fought water polo.

AROUND THE TRACK

With Bob Somers

The Varsity track team almost made a clean sweep in last night's meet against West End Y, losing out only in the mile event. The local wizards of the oval came 1-2-3 in the 50 yards, 100 yards, 220 yards, and 1-2 in the 440. The Brown twins and young Prod. annexing the three sprints. McGill and Erick were the local stars, between them Stinson were 2-10 of a second apart in the 440, with Dickson and Bloomfield of W.E.Y. right in there with third and fourth places respectively. The mile was won in great style by Zafuda of the Y team, with the two Varsity runners, Louttit and Wilkins next, and Bloomfield fourth.

The times were near-record in all events. The Varsity success is partly due to their superiority in navigating the unique banking at the turns. With a little practise on our track the Y team would no doubt show much better times. Their team is really strong, and their showing on the neutral track at Hamilton on the 18th will be more comparable with ours.

Following are the results:
50 yards: 1. W. Brown (V), 2. Proderick (V), 3. H. Brown (V), 59 secs.
100 yards: 1. H. Brown (V), 2. Proderick (V), 3. W. Brown (V), 1.09 secs.
220 yards: 1. H. Brown (V), 2. Proderick (V), 3. W. Brown (V), 2.22 secs.

440 yards: 1. McGill (V), 2. Stinson (V), 3. Dickson (W), 4. Bloomfield (W), 57 secs.

1 mile: 1. Zafuda (W), 2. Louttit (V), 3. Wilkins (V), 4. Bloomfield (W), 4.48.2.

Varsity fielded an eleven-man team, and West End Y an eight-man team. Larry O'Connor, Jim Vorrall, and other local masters in the art, were stepping high between races, and generally livening up the proceedings.

On Next Tuesday, March 14th, the classy Achilles Club track team invades the campus Sports Palace. A win over this great team would raise the Varsity stock in the forthcoming Hamilton meet.

M'GILL SKATERS TAKE TITLE FOR THIRD YEAR

Red Raiders Total Up Highest Season Coal—Varsity Shares Second Place with Queen's and Dartmouth

McGill's mighty machine, beaten only once in ten starts, formally clinched the I.H.L.L. hockey title for the third year in succession by handcutting Dartmouth Indians in Montreal Tuesday evening.

In accomplishing their triumph by a 4-1 score the Red Raiders ran their season goal total to 76, far outdistancing their nearest rival. McGill also finished far in the van of the other teams in the matter of assists with 98. In addition, the best team scoring performance of the year went to Coach Farquharson's crew. In a game versus the University of Montreal the Red Raiders poured home fifteen shots and rang up a total of 23 assists.

Russ McConnell and Howie Walker, potent threats in the McGill victory march, won the individual scoring honours. McConnell led the scorers with 24 goals, and also captured the laurels for most goals scored in one evening, notching seven counters against Harvard. Howie Walker was credited with 22 assists. Most assists in one game were made by Walker with seven in the U. of Montreal contest.

L'Heureux, Morison and Craig finished well up in the scoring records for Varsity. On the season's play the Blues scored 44 goals against 20 fired by enemy snipers. Toronto finished the season with seven wins against three losses, for a second place tie with Queen's and Dartmouth.

WYCLIFFE MUSHBALLERS BEAT ST. MIKE'S

A third inning burst of power which was shut off only after seven runs had been scored swept Wycliffe's mushballers out of a 2-2 tie into a triumphant victory over St. Mike's B team yesterday at Hart House. The final score was 9-4.

Wycliffe: Green, Abbott, Louttit, Robinson, Rogers, Heiler, Murray and McKegney.
St. Mike's B: Macdonald, McGarry, Robertson, Barry, Heintz, Denison, McDermott, Dwyer, Comdon.

LECLAIR SPEAKS TO FORESTERS

Present Economic Difficulties Attributed to Slump in Lumber Trade by Manager of White Pine Bureau

Mr. W. J. LeClair, manager of the White Pine Bureau of Ontario, last evening addressed the Foresters' Club in its last meeting of the term. In outlining the three main objects of the bureau, the speaker pointed out the fact that our present economic difficulties could be traced to the great falling off of the demand for lumber both here and abroad.

Mr. LeClair showed how the production of this commodity employs 17 percent of all employables in Canada, whereas the entire mining industry employs only 9 percent of the same. The subsequent decline of the industry as a result of what Mr. LeClair called "trade promotion" projects, by producers of such substitutes for wood as steel, asphalt shingles, bricks and other building material, has added much to the general state of unemployment and depression now prevalent.

On the other hand, explained Mr. LeClair, the forest products industry is doing next to nothing to promote the use of its produce. On this basis does the White Pine Bureau work in its efforts to promote the usage of wood as a building material and for such other purposes as the substitute products are now being put forth.

In explaining this project of the bureau, the speaker pointed out that contrary to common opinion wood is government decided to retire the international volunteers," he said, "to demonstrate to the world that the war was a 1938, and took part in campaigns culminating in the crossing of the Ebro helped evacuate hospitals to Catalonia during the Fascist offensive in March. A League of Nations commission reported to Geneva that during the war 26,000 international volunteers had entered Spain. When they were retired there were 12,000 left, including effective at the front, cripples and wounded. The Fascists on their side had about 60,000 Italians, 20,000 Germans, mostly technicians, and 40,000 Moors."

"The Canadians did not leave Spain until four months after retirement due to lack of co-operation by the Canadian government," said Mr. Abramson. He added that arrangements for their evacuation were made by the C.P.R.'s Paris representative, Mr. Calkley. He was of such great help that the battalion had considered writing Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., in praise of his services.

"At the beginning of the war the Spanish republican army had no medical service," the veteran stated. "There was an acute shortage of medical supplies. Bandages were boiled, re-rolled and used over until they wore out." He said that anesthetics were also very scarce. Medical supplies and personnel were provided by many countries. The American Medical Bureau sent over 100 ambulances, and the British Medical Mission supported a large organization throughout the war. Dr. Bethune, of Montreal, founded the blood transfusion service at the front, which was later taken over by the Loyalist government, according to Mr. Abramson. With regard to bombings he said: "The Fascists carried on continuous bombing of cities and towns. The people most affected were women and children. The object of this policy was to destroy morale, but in this it failed. For this reason, and because they felt that women and children, even in Fascist territory, were their own brothers and sisters, the Republican government never retaliated by bombing civilians."

The volunteers' usual food was thick peas, lentils, rice and mule meat, boiled in olive oil. They each had 500 grams of bread a day. Catalonia fell, Mr. Abramson believed, only because of the tremendous superiority of the Fascists in artillery, tanks, and airplanes. "After the fall of Borja Blancas our own artillery was left without a single shell for their few guns. The army was always short of supplies. We ascribe the fall of Catalonia to the 'non-intervention' policy of England, France and America," he said. In reference to the current fight between Loyalist General Miaja and his former Communist allies, Mr. Abramson said: "It seems that the republican right wing, probably influenced by France and Britain, is trying to facilitate an early surrender." The opposition to this, he believed, came from other sources besides the Communists. Admitting that the Communists would suffer most from Fascist reprisals upon surrender, he emphasized that neither Premier Dr. Negrin nor Foreign Minister Del Vayo, who headed the recently deposed Loyalist cabinet, were Communists.

by far a greater first resistant material than steel may ever be. This fact, he claimed, was based on investigative work done by the fire underwriters of America. Combined with this work of promoting the use of wood to a much greater extent, Mr. LeClair outlined the other work of the bureau which includes keeping in touch with its mill and market men as to conditions and prices of woods, and the particular popularization of white pine.

The talk on the White Pine Bureau was followed with a talking picture of the white pine industry in Quebec and Ontario, complete from standing tree to final lumber and lath products. These pictures were presented with the assistance of Mr. Walker, who is connected with the British Columbia Cedar Shingle Bureau.

Announcement was made at the meeting of election of club officers for the coming year, to take place in the next few weeks.

Gypsy co-eds hit the trail for McGill this week-end where the Red and White are entertaining visiting badminton players from Western, Varsity, Queen's and McMaster. The local four left yesterday, and Captain Mary Becker with "Tibe" Annesley, Hildegard Good-fellow, and "Proxy" Bryans are determined to make it the battle of the century. Defending the doubles championship won last year by Pat Downey and "Johnny" Marshall, who have now joined the ranks of distinguished alumnae, the Toronto quartette are out for a double win in order to live up to the standard set by Varsity teams in other intercollegiate meets this year. Our singles hopes rest in the capable hands of Mary Becker, St. Hilda's and campus champion, and prominent tournament star at the Carlton Club. For further details read your daily papers Saturday.

U.C. have decided upon a week from Tuesday as the date for their athletic banquet which will be held at the Granite Club. Unlike the men's university athletic society, the women cannot unite to honour winning teams. Instead the teams are feting away from town, as the Bronze Babies were in London, and on returning the individual colleges celebrate with their own particular pride and joy. When Varsity letters or shields are awarded each college looks after its own products and the joint women's athletic society can only vote the awards, without personally awarding them. For this reason, and because there isn't any joint mantelpiece for displaying trophies won out of town by the various teams, the need for a joint women's athletic retreat is apparent. This and numerous other reasons, previously mentioned. Remember?

St. Joe's energetic ping-pong club is finally launched on its epic tournament in which the college champ will be decided. At present the residence students are fighting it out, the winner of this bracket will meet the cream of the day-top players in what should be an epic struggle. Favourites among the residence stars, Norah Costello, Marnie Corkery and Co., will have their toughest opposition when they meet the more-experienced players from the day-school, Jean Grant etc. Queen's co-eds turned out en masse for hockey this year, since the team was given a trip to Montreal as part of its schedule. Any co-eds down there who aren't skating are wading around the campus in rubber boots. Quite picturesque.

GREGORY CLARK

LOOKS AT ITALY FOR READERS OF THE TORONTO DAILY STAR

THOSE cables which Gregory Clark is sending to The Toronto Star from Rome make mighty interesting reading. Greg, as he is best known to hundreds of thousands who enjoy his articles in The Star Weekly, hopped a boat for Italy to see the coronation of Pius XII. There he is rubbing elbows with prelates and pontiffs, during the colorful ceremonies of the present week. In his more than 20 years' of newspaper writing, Greg has been in many exciting places, but no experience will have been so thrilling or impressive for him or his readers as his present sojourn in Vatican City.

THE coronation over, Greg will browse around Italy, sampling its delights, ancient and modern. He will turn dilettante and wander through marbled palazzos, inspecting basilicas and campaniles. He will strum classical arias in a Venetian gondola, appraise famous monuments of art and architecture, take a squint at Italian industry. He will tour cities, countryside, villages; will mingle with princes and peasants, blackshirts and officials; will sniff the air of sunny Sicily, sample the most delectable viands of famous Italian chefs-de-maitre. He will be more thoroughly Roman than Mussolini.

GREG'S Italian journey is already shaping into the most fascinating travelogue ever to be printed in a Canadian paper. It breathes that magic of humor and humanism which Greg infuses into every subject he touches. Journalists are legion, but there is only one Gregory Clark, and in his present series he is at his peak. Read and revel in his articles every day in The Daily Star.

MINISTER ADVISES WOULD-BE ORATORS

in tribute to this ability, Sir Arthur Meighen has said that the doctor is the "greatest master of spoken prose in Canada."

Asked how he acquired this ability he told of how for five years at college he "got up way before breakfast every morning and committed to memory as many extracts of poetry and passages of Scripture as possible." He pointed to a large shelf in his library devoted entirely to poetry. "In this way I acquired a vocabulary."

"What else should an aspiring public speaker practice?" he was asked. "Debating is the only thing," he replied, "and it is best to debate extemporaneously. That trains you to think on your feet. Speaking is now only dignified rhetoric is gone. Speak to five hundred as if you were conversing with two or three people." He told of how he had been president of the Speaking Union at Cambridge, and had spoken in public at every opportunity there.

To the question "What should be a student's goal at college?" he answered, "To create an intellectual interest that will last and to acquire a trained mind. Of course, the duty of a student is to study, but a great deal of the best education is acquired between the students themselves in clubs."

He recalled how he had been elected to a small discussion club at Cambridge; all the members of which have risen to eminence since. "I had to keep up with them," he said. Amongst this group of twelve men were George Trevelyan, the noted historian; Lord Montagu, secretary for India; and Sir James Jeans, the astronomer.

At college Dr. Selator made the practice of staying up all night once a week to immerse himself in long working hours. "Life is either all bed and no roses, or all roses and no bed," he explained. He also played football and cricket, was the stroke for the Cambridge eight and edited the Cambridge Review, the official undergraduate paper. (It was in this capacity that he first met John Buchan.)

During the course of the discussion he brought out an interesting sidelight on the British labour movement. "When I was a Presbyterian minister in a small English industrial town," he said, "I would have mechanics come and spend evenings with me reading Plato and they had taught themselves sufficient Greek to read the original. It is this stimulus for education amongst labour leaders which makes their labour movement so fine and produces perfectly stable labour governments."

Turning to the subject of preaching, he was asked, "Is it true that you speak extemporaneously in the pulpit?" "Yes. I use only a small brief, never notes. But that does not mean that I don't put a lot of preparation into them."

When asked what kind of reading he liked, Dr. Selator expressed a preference for poetry and biography.

"Any of the masters?" he was asked.

"No," he replied.

"And detective thrillers?"

"Good detective yarns," he corrected.

"Like Buchan."

"Do you think that the union of Protestant churches in Canada is feasible?"

"Yes. But it may not take the form you expect. It will probably be a federation of churches, so that Protestantism can speak with one voice, such as the World Conference of Churches."

The doctor came to Canada by chance in 1922 to conduct a mission in Ottawa. He liked it so well that he has stayed ever since. Although he has had many invitations to large congregations in other countries, he is "very happy here" and intends to stay for life.

INCREASE IN FEES IMPROBABLE

ment without their having been backed by the House.

Should the grant be cut sufficiently, it might easily mean that the fees would be raised so that some students would not be able to attend college. This in turn would mean that in order to maintain the present standard of the university a further increase of fees for those already in attendance.

If the grant were cut by very much it might mean that the increase in fees would be greater than any increase which has been made during recent years. Although it is expected that if the grant were cut for Toronto, it would be cut for the other Ontario universities, necessitating a proportionate raising of fees. Many students felt that they would be willing to go to other universities if they were raised here alone. Others realized many of the values of Toronto which would not be worth sacrificing.

Judging by the general trend of remarks made by a cross-section of students interrogated in the Arts colleges, it appears that they all, even those who would not be affected personally in a drastic way, caught a vision of a university attendance sadly depleted; a migration of many students to Queen's and Western; a serious dislocation in the business world as a result of hundreds of extra young men and women being thrust upon it; and all this clamouring in a generation of students issuing largely from the upper classes, only the part of whom would be able to attend university as a result of such a drastic increase in fees.

If fees were to be raised very much, it would be impossible for many of the girls in Victoria to return next year as it was believed. Those who are dependent upon families of average means felt that they would have to go to Queen's or Western, where they might be able to set up a co-operative apartment, unless the fees were increased there also.

It was noticeable, on the contrary, that fraternity girls at U.C. and Trinity girls, most of whom come from private schools, felt that they would be able to return to Toronto anyway, and that it would really not affect them as it would many others. Such was the sentiment of Winifred Baxter, II Trinity, and several U.C. women who wished to remain anonymous.

John Flager and Howard Hazel, II U.C., wished to be quoted as saying that "It wouldn't affect those in second and third years who are already established in their courses, as far as going to another university is concerned, but it would certainly affect those contemplating entrance to university."

Amy Schaffner, III Vic, felt that such a change would inevitably mean deeper class distinctions than ever, since the wealthy, not the brilliant, would be able to attend college. An interesting comparison was the opinion advanced by Frances Hill, III Trinity, who felt that "While numbers of students who didn't deserve to be so, would be adversely affected, at the same time a great many people who had no right to be here and were not fitted for academic work would be kept out." Students questioned did not agree with Mr. Hill.

Thus spoke Hugh Lloyd, III U.C., "In the future a migration to other universities to the disadvantage of Toronto would be apparent, but right now anyone who has started would make every effort to finish up at Varsity."

Bob Miller, II Vic, voiced the opinion of the majority when he said, "Such a change would certainly not be made unless because of great financial need, but the need would be a most unfortunate one."

singing of both left nothing to be desired.

Gilbert and Sullivan wrote this show in such a manner that no principal has a dominating part in the performance. This requires good acting on the part of all the leads, and unfortunately this was not the case. It seems unfortunate that many directors seem to be under the impression that singing is all-important in these operas and acting is given the back-seat. This is a fallacy and as a result of this, some effectiveness was lost. However, although wooden acting was prevalent, the work of some of the performers made up for this loss.

Gianetta and Tessa as played by Minnie Sinnet and Betty Barron were excellently sung and acted. The latter has a vibrant voice and a charming personality and her performance was the most delightful of the evening. Norman Cherrie played the pompous Dr. Inquisitor with excellent imagination and his rendition of I Stole the Prince, and There Lived a King, both received accolades. The Duke of Plaza Toro, the "celebrated, cultivated, underrated nobleman" was performed delightfully by Geoffrey Hutton.

Orchestral accompaniment under Dr. Crawford's direction was precise, as were both male and female choruses. The society may rest assured that they have given Toronto G. and S. lovers a treatment that is worthy of their genius. Frank Shuster.

COMMENT AROUSED ON FRESHMAN RULE

terday seemed to favour a ruling which would prohibit first year men—not freshmen only—from participating in senior intercollegiate athletics. Ross Dunford, IV Vic, expressed himself in favour of a new ruling. "Once a rule is put into effect and found to be incomplete in that it can be evaded, then it is only logical to complete that rule. The only sensible thing is to have a ruling by the C.I.A.U. which will apply equally to all."

"There should be a definite official ruling whereby all are bound," said Ken Stewart, IV Law. "We certainly won't want to have any loop-hole through which commercialism can creep into Canadian intercollegiate athletics."

"Only by having a strict eligibility rule which applies to all universities competing against each other, can we keep intercollegiate sports on a high, clean basis," was the opinion of Tom Jarvis, II U.C. "A ruling prohibiting men in their first year at university from playing senior intercollegiate athletics is the best policy."

W. B. Edmonds, I Trinity, thought a new ruling would be "a good idea, for unless we get a strict, official, and universally applicable regulation, we will find professionalism entering Canadian university sports."

THERE are mighty good reasons why the De Luxe Ford V-8 is a popular family car. And there's a luggage compartment more than equal to family vacation-trip needs. For another thing, the entire family will take real pride in this car's smart appearance . . . its streamlined heavy and richly upholstered interior. They'll like the deep-down comfort and remarkable quiet which characterize this car's "ride". But most of all, perhaps, they'll like the Ford V-8's low price and surprising economy. British Columbia Student Campaign Given Constitution

Committee Undergoes Revision as Students' Council Creates Two Executive Bodies in Place of One

PROVIDES CONTINUITY

Vancouver, March 8 (CUP)—The Student Campaign Committee, formed last February at the University of B.C. to fight a $25 fee raise and severe attendance restrictions, underwent spring cleaning over the week-end as Students' Council drew up the constitution of the committee, creating two committees in the place of one.

For the last year the committee, consisting of a number of students, and alumni advisory members, has operated with considerable success, but with the approach of the spring elections it was found that a formal constitution was required to provide a continuity for long term operation. The successes of the committee include the removal of all attendance restrictions and the gaining

Lack of Co-Education At Columbia University Declared Only Defect

Sources of Power Reviewed by Thurman At Last Lecture

The various sources of power for spiritual encouragement was the theme of the last lecture of Dr. Howard Thurman's series. It was given in Sheraton Hall, Wycliffe College, Friday.

A dynamic commitment to a great and compelling purpose is necessary for a happy life, said Dr. Thurman. Jesus Christ, he said, was devoted to trying to realize a kingdom of brothers, in which the life of one would be guaranteed by all.

"To meditate on the life of Jesus gives power," said the speaker. "He identified himself with the very best qualities in man," he continued, "and in so doing seems not to belong to any definite age, but to be a dedication to peace for all ages."

1,800 Eds and 900 Co-Eds Go Separate Ways During Their School Hours at New York Seat of Learning

COLLEGES SEPARATE

By Arthur J. Benson
New York, March 11—The greatest defect of undergraduate life at Columbia University is the lack of co-education. It is startling to find present-day young men and women segregated academically in an educational institution otherwise progressive.

Notwithstanding the paeans we have sung in praise of the Roaring Lion's libraries, medical services, sex education, and ample funds, we must record our disgust at the sight of 1,800 eds and 900 co-eds going their separate ways during school hours. There is, of course, ample opportunity for social contacts, but academically and in university extra-curricular activity the two sexes work independently. Those who have enjoyed the privilege of co-education will recognize the distortion of vision and lack of understanding which must ensue.

Outsiders Crash Final Swing Session

Both students and outsiders jammed the back room of a Bloor St. restaurant at the last meeting of the Swing Club held Friday. Featured on the program was Bert Nios's quartet.

Louise King, who was to be a vocalist for the session, was unable to attend at the last minute, and Pat Bailey, featured Toronto vocalist, was called in to replace her.

Bert Pearl, well-known radio artist, was master of ceremonies, and Chief Traynor Halpound, a full-blooded Irish, assisted Pat Bailey in the vocals. Swing enthusiasts surrounded the quartet during their performance, even while dancing was in progress.

Thanks to the students for their support were extended by Bruce Harris, president of the club, who promised that next year the Swing Club will be bigger and better than ever.

Dents "A" Decision Pharmacy Cagers 23-17 To Enter Playoffs

Pharmacy lost the right to enter the interfaculty basketball playoffs Friday afternoon when they were nosed out 23-17 by Dents "A" in one of the most hotly-contested cage games ever witnessed in the upper gym at Hart House. The win gave the Molarmen their group title and the right to enter the intramural playdowns which start this week.

Dents tied 15-9 at half-time but Pharmacy tied it up late in the second frame and only two last-minute field goals by Nefsky enabled the winners to break the determined attack of the Druggists. Levitt for the yellow clad pill dispensers was high man for the afternoon with seven points. Nefsky, Mullett and Brett split scoring honours for Dents with six markers apiece.

Dents A: Andrews (1), Shukun (3), Nefsky (6), Kulyk (1), Mullett (6), Brett (6), Brown, Hurwitz. Pharmacy A: Ritz (4), Ryan (2), Levitt (7), Wood, Callaghan (2), Bederman, Wallman, McVey, Barkley (2), Scagar.

Streamlined Comedy Directed by Willard Thomson May Proceed to Dominion Festival Finals

CAST IS LARGE

On Saturday afternoon a milestone in the history of university dramatic activity will be achieved, as the University Dramatic Society presents Holiday by Philip Barry in the Central Ontario Regional Drama Festival, at Hart House Theatre.

The invitation to compete in this festival, which is a forerunner to the Dominion Drama Festival, is the first to have been received by any undergraduate dramatic society on the campus. The play, directed by Willard Thomson, manager of Hart House Theatre, was elected to compete after the performances presented at the beginning of February, and it is successful in the regional competitions, will proceed to London, where the Dominion Drama Festival finals are to be held.

Toronto Girls Edge McGill by One-Point Margin for Fifth Intercollegiate Title in as Many Tries

ROUND-ROBIN TOURNEY

Rounding out the most successful year in the history of co-ed sport at the University of Toronto, a strong Blue and White badminton team chalked up 18 points, just one above McGill, to give Varsity co-eds the intercollegiate badminton title and their fifth win in as many entries in intercollegiate tourneys this year.

At the end of the first day of play in the two-day round-robin tournament which began Friday, Varsity trailed McGill by one point, with a total of twelve; but playing on the basis of a point a game, was able to chalk up six points in the final play Saturday. McGill won only four points on the final day, to take second place in the meet. Ten matches were played off Saturday, and the defending champions, McMaster, ended up with sixteen points after a bad beginning Friday when only eight points were garnered. Queen's finished with ten points, and Western with three.

Saturday's results—Singles: D. Tottenham, Queen's def. M. Scott, McGill 0-11, 12-11, 11-3; "Tibs" Annesley, Varsity def. D. Tottenham, Queen's 11-6, 11-5; A. Macfarlane, McMaster def. D. Madden, Western 11-5, 11-1; Isabel Matheson, Queen's def. M. Anderson, Western 11-3, 11-2; H. Bryce, McMaster def. Mary Becker, Varsity 11-3, 11-0; Tibs Annesley, Varsity def. M. Scott, McGill, 11-7, 8-11, 11-8.

Doubles: Goodfellow and Bryans, Varsity def. Gillies and Mahoney, Western, 15-5, 15-8; Dorsey and Simpson, McMaster def. Wilson and Hayward, Queen's 15-3, 15-7; Proven and Redmond, McGill def. Gillies and Mahoney, Western 15-1, 15-1.

Chinatown Host To Jiu-Jitsu Club

After their final tournament last Saturday, members of the Jiu-Jitsu Club invaded Chinatown to absorb some of the oriental atmosphere and to sample Chinese food.

The occasion was the dining banquet of the year. The boys stopped throwing each other around long enough to delve into the mysteries of chop suey and chow mein. Many of the newer members were novices at eating the Cantonese concoctions, but before the meal was over they did justice to everything on the menu.

Mac McCutcheon, university athletic director, was a guest of honour, and was reported to have had considerable difficulty in mastering the use of chopsticks. He was not the only one who had this trouble, however, and the dinner took much longer than was expected because of the slow progress most of the boys made in learning to eat with the oversized toothpicks.

Student Residence Founded on Principle of Co-Operation Encounters Few Shirkers in its Ranks

ANNUAL HIKE POPULAR

At the rear of the building on 65 St. George is the most unique men's residence on the campus. Here the students do all their own work—housekeeping and cooking, making the cubs, and managing the house. It is the Student Co-operative Residence, run on the basis of co-operation and mutual help for the benefit of the whole.

It was a very busy place when visited Saturday noon. The dinner table was already set. Some of the men were cussing about the kitchen in white aprons, while others, attracted by the scent of food, were already drifting into the dining room. Students not in duty were still streaming in from library or lecture. In another room a window was washed and the workman was setting a curtain just so before (Continued on Page 4)

Varsity Sailors Elect Executive

At last night's meeting in the Physics Building the members of the newly-formed University Sailing Club elected Blake Tedman as the club's Commodore.

The formation of the club has a three-fold aim in view; to bring together those members of the university who are interested in sailing, to promote interfaculty and intercollegiate racing, and to provide instruction in nautical subjects generally. The club's principal mission is to interest undergraduates who may be unfamiliar with the technicalities of the sport at present but who are anxious to acquire a knowledge of dinghy racing and other sailing sports. With this in view the club is planning a series of talks on elementary principles of sailing rules and tactics.

Other officers filled at last night's meeting besides that of Commodore, include the post of Vice-Commodore held by Jim Eason, and Secretary-Treasurer, held by Betsy Trees.

Censoring The C.I.A.U.

It is difficult to understand the action of the C.I.A.U. in cancelling the basketball playoffs, and in attempting to solve the situation by allowing the title to be held jointly by the three university teams, Western, Varsity and McGill. Although the important thing in any athletic competition is not who wins the title, but is found in the competition itself, the followers of a sport cannot be expected to maintain their interest when the season is climaxed in such an unsatisfying way.

If three teams were to be tied for first place in the intercollegiate rugby series, there would be a terrific amount of excitement about the playoffs, and the C.I.A.U. wouldn't even consider allowing the championship to be split three ways. But of course rugby playoffs bring in gate receipts, while basketball playoffs aren't on the whole a very profitable undertaking. Rugby is a major sport, apparently; but how about basketball!

There has been a tremendous amount of interest created in intercollegiate basketball during the past two years. Much of the work of those who have helped to build up that interest has been lost by this action, and it has been a keen disappointment to followers of basketball to see this intercollegiate sport treated as though it were a minor activity of little importance.—A.C.F.

The Alumni Federation

The approaching "Alumni Night" as well as the nearness of graduation for many, calls to mind the existence of the Alumni Federation and the fact that every student who has spent at least one year in attendance at the University of Toronto and is no longer enrolled as an undergraduate, is automatically one of the alumni.

This Federation which exists primarily for the welfare of the university and to deal as a body with all matters affecting the interests of the alumni, at the present time is carrying on many very worthy enterprises. One of the chief of these is the War Memorial Funds, from which each year there is granted a total of 5,000 dollars in scholarships, and at least 4,000 in loans. A very close examination is made of every applicant, and it is found that borrowers are prompt in repaying their loans.

Every year employment of a permanent nature is secured for about three hundred graduates, and there are usually more jobs requiring a certain type of man than can be filled. Not more than a hundred of these jobs are filled by new graduates, as approximately eighty percent of them find immediate work, or continue in some form of study. Then there are many agencies on the campus which find positions for the students, but the Alumni acts more as a service for those graduates who find after they have been out for a few years that they want to change their employment, or find themselves out of profitable work, and many of their best connections gone.

Among its many other services to the alumni, this Federation publishes the U. of T. Monthly, by which it endeavours to keep the graduates in touch with what has happened to each other, and with what is going on at the university. It endeavours to organize and maintain interest in some thirty-five local clubs, and have a sufficient number of dinners and social functions to stimulate an active loyalty to old Varsity. A small service which it renders is in supplying for graduates season tickets for choice seats at the rugby games at a cost which is lower than that to the general public.

The fact that since 1925 the Alumni Federation has been able to aid needy students in receiving an education, to the extent of 260,000 dollars in loans and 60,000 in gifts and scholarships, shows its great value to the maintenance of the high standard of education in the university. As graduation approaches we would suggest that every member of the final year give consideration to the work of the Alumni Federation, and after graduation assist this organization in its splendid work by becoming one of its active members.—A.C.F.

"Holiday"

During his recent visit to Toronto, Sinclair Lewis, novelist and playwright, deplored, in the course of one of his after-play commentaries, the lack of interest in the theatre on the part of the general public. He pointed out that although Toronto has a population close to three-quarters of a million it supports only one professional theatre and that only part of the time.

The same situation applies, only on a smaller scale, to university dramatic activity, with the exception that students do not adequately support even the infrequent performances with which their colleagues favour them. They have become blind, through the persuasive propaganda of the movies, to the fact that a strip of celluloid will never come close to the performance of the living actor.

The University Drama Committee, which represents the university as a whole, has had the signal honour of being invited to present its production of Philip Barry's Holiday in the Central Ontario Regional Festival, the semi-final leading to the Dominion Drama Festival. The cast includes those who have made their mark in dramatics already and others who are appearing on the stage for the first time in this production. Hugh Henderson of Trinity College, who takes an important part in the production, received the male award at the Dominion Drama Festival last year, and Ann Marshall of Victoria College, who takes the role of Julia Seton, played two years in repertory in England, from whence she recently returned. Furthermore, Lou Weingarten, director of the University College Follies, who provides a high spot of humour in the play, has taken part in the Dominion Drama Festival as a member of the Theatre of Action. It is thus evident that the university does not lack any of the talent which the student body might demand for its supply of entertainment or enlightenment.

This event represents a distinct achievement for university dramatics as it is the first time that an undergraduate production has been selected to compete, and as such it should receive the hearty congratulations of the students.—N.J.A.

Conservatory String Quartet

It is gratifying to report that the Conservatory String Quartet showed distinct improvement, both tonally and technically, in its final concert on Saturday evening; it sounded reasonably like a blended ensemble, instead of like four assorted fiddles, as it has been known to do in the past, so that apart from minor annoyances such as occasional raggedness and uncertain intonation, the concert was a satisfying one. Two quartets were played: Mozart's No. 18, in D major, and Debussy's in G minor. After a rather muddy start the Mozart received a good, conventional performance, but a little of the glossy streamlining that the Hart House Quartet would have given it would have been welcome.

The Debussy had obviously received much more careful preparation, and its misty, fragile beauties were transmitted faithfully enough, though without any astounding depth of understanding. In fact, if we seen customarily to skip over the element of interpretation in writing about the Conservatory Quartet it's simply because there is scarcely any to discuss. The consistency with which these players, Leo Smith excepted, keep themselves outside their music is something to be wondered at.

Notable among the Sketches on Folk Melodies that concluded the program were two of Mr. Smith's (Continued on Page 4)

HART HOUSE POOL IS GRAVE OF 7 AS CANOE TIPS

York County a Shambles—Refugees Flock to Pelee Island Along King's Highway No. 2

COMMITTED TO ASYLUM

A pleasure trip turned into tragedy late last night when a canoe thought to be carrying 7 students went down with all hands in the Hart House pool during a heavy fog. Small craft warnings displayed were apparently unnoticed.

Indications of the tragedy were first received when the observatory at Richmond Hill reported a number of astral bodies heading northward on schedule, weather clear, track fast, straight, place or show.

The canoe was found floating perpendicularly at the deep end of the tank early this morning, and a pool of oil floating on the surface offered mute testimony of the mishap.

Dragging operations were commenced as soon as the pool opened formally for the day, and are being rushed through in spite of the interruptions of diving students and a strong north-east gale (freshening towards evening). The bodies must be recovered before the water polo finals, it is announced, since the Victoria team refuse to play until all have been taken from the pool.

As this paper went to press this morning a late bulletin said that no bodies had been recovered. All that has been found is three worn rubber tires and a number of old tin cans.

"This is terrible," commented a high pool official, "if it had only happened last week their lives would have been spared, since there was three inches of ice on the surface."

Simcoe Hall issued a bulletin at 9:01 this morning in protest. It read as follows: "This is the last straw. Not a day goes by but some tragedy happens involving students here. Our registration is taking a frightful beating. We have lost a possible $12,000 in supplementary fees alone."

The press has been asked not to mention the fact that a woman's hat was recovered from the water early today. "It might cause a nasty scandal," is the official ruling.

let's go places

Kipling's immortal poem Gunga Din has been expertly dramatized for the screen in the movie bearing the same name. Although the UPTOWN—picture adheres very little to the subject matter of the poem, the style and method of dramatization does not in the least detract from the fame of that masterpiece.

The picture, starring three gay roustabouts, Victor McLaglen, Cary Grant, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., soldiers in the Indian Service, includes the last word in thrilling action and drama. The photography is superb, as witness a scene of native soldiers led by English commissioned and non-commissioned officers plus a detachment of bagpipers who are seen by the heroes from the top of a high mountain marching on a plain below into a trap which promises certain death to the whole battalion.

There is little love interest in the whole set-up, only one actress, and she has a minor role.

The story of the picture is built around Gunga Din, a slave, who takes an active part in the British attempt to wipe out a blood-thirsty tribe who worship the goddess Kali and whose religion is to kill.—S.W.A.

Cody Trophy Features List of Athletic Awards

By Hal Rubenstein

University College this year inaugurates an athletic banquet, which will be held March 23rd in the senior common room of University College. As a special feature of this banquet there will be the presentation of athletic awards to those who have gained them during the year for their athletic activities.

The greatest interest will be centred in the winner of the Cody Trophy, presented for the first time this year in University College. This trophy has been donated by Dr. Cody to further athletic activity in the school of the Red and White. The trophy will be given to the man who has contributed most to the athletic life of U.C. during his academic career. The winner has not yet been chosen but will be decided at a meeting to be held next Wednesday, Dr. Cody will make the presentation at the athletic banquet.

There will also be a prize presented to the individual who has won for U.C. the greatest number of points in the race for the T. A. Reed Trophy, emblematic of interfaculty sport supremacy.

The athletic banquet will also be highlighted by the presentation of the Swimming Trophy to the student who has gained most points for U.C. in senior interfaculty swimming competition. This year the award has been carried off by Ged Clawson, one of the most outstanding natators in the university.

An event which usually takes place at the closing meeting of the Literary and Athletic Society has been reserved for the athletic banquet. This will be the giving of keys to graduating members of the University College Athletic Board. There will also be the presentation of first and second colours to those athletes who have gained them in active competition.

In holding this first athletic banquet, the U.C. executive hopes that it is setting a precedent which will be continued for many years. There is also something historic in the fact that the banquet will be held in the senior common room of U.C., which for many years was the dining room of the University of Toronto.

Establishing a new record of brilliance at home and abroad, a four-member co-ed team from Varsity swept the badminton meet at McGill this weekend to give the Blue and White the fifth win out of five entries in intercollegiate sport this year. Mary Becker, "Tibs" Annesley, Hildegard Goodfellow and "Proxy" Bryans, inspired by the string of victories brought home earlier this month by the ski team, basketball squad and mermaids, added another wet title to the tennis leadership won by Varsity last fall. Closest opposition in the shuttlecock battle was McGill, our ancient rival on the tennis courts in October.

Mary Becker, competent Varsity captain, was pretty original in her wire after the finals Saturday—"Blue badminton babies beat bold buccannars. Bringing back bacon, beaming Becker."

When the Directorate met last Thursday to assign letters, shields and such awards for the year's work, the only indefinite business was the standing of the badminton team. Although Miss Parker explained it to us very clearly, we are still rather vague, however, on the basis of points obtained in McGill. Mary Becker will win her Senior "T", probably, as will her three team-mates. But don't quote us, "Tibs" Annesley, who is a St. Hilda's product, has been nominated for next year's Directorate by that college. Other nominations to date are Bobbie McDonald, of all-round intercollegiate fame, from U.C.; Gert Mulcahy, versatile athlete and C. and F. student from St. Mike's; Marj Mosbaugh, outstanding interfaculty star and Meds' nomination, and Marg Pickering, president of the Basketball Club, registered at Vic. U.C. will probably nominate an additional one, but today is the last day to do so. Elections tomorrow at the L.M.

We did have a story on the awards for today, but it can wait until tomorrow, if you can.

ECKHARDT CUP FINALS

Today at 5 o'clock Sr. Vic, present holders of the trophy, will defend their title against Trinity in the first of a best two out of three series. Trinity have earned their chance to win the championship the hard way. First the Trinity team had to defeat a powerful Sr. Meds squad in a sudden death game to get into the semi-finals. In the semi-finals St. Mike's led the Red and Black into two lengthy 3 minute overtime periods before Trinity won the two game series by one goal. In the finals Trinity meet a team which on two previous occasions has given them decisive defeats. The only chance Trinity seem to have of winning the series depends on their own fighting spirit and Vic's seeming over-confidence.

Vic's confidence, however, does not spring from any ill-founded source. The veteran Scarlet and Gold line-up boasts experienced players and a well-balanced outfit. The squad has yet to lose a game and romped through the regular schedule and the semi-finals with considerable ease. An exceptionally good goalie, an air-tight defence and a fast-swim-might as well be poles apart! Different classes, different courses, different teachers, carry on the work of reaction. Each college has its individual newspaper, musical show, dramatic group, glee club, etc. Only in a few rare instances are the students granted the opportunity of working together, of regarding each other with anything but a "social" eye.

Not that we would accuse Columbia of unreasoning prudery. The maintenance of the status quo is blamed on such things as the terms of bequests and the individuality of grants. Like Varsity, Columbia suffers from the congenital disorders attendant upon a birth in federation. Nor is the factor of tradition unimportant, for many eastern universities in this land of freedom, Columbia among them, worship tradition as fanatically as any corner of old England.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shipman

"SPRING IS IN THE AIR"

Talk about the Yanks' chances for becoming the first team to ever win four consecutive pennants, convinces us that the end of another winter sport season is near. Like "the flowers that bloom in the spring", the baseball talk, the first box-crowds of games, hold-outs and incidentally, of course, the list of examinations, are all harbingers of the final issue. It seems impossible, but nevertheless it's true; three or four more issues and the paper "goes to bed" for the last time, and all the gags(?) and items we have saved for another time are killed.

Why the gag that used to appear annually in the paper concerning the fighter who was getting a real pasting round after round, wasn't used. Every time he'd come back in his corner his manager would shout words of encouragement like "Stay in there," "He's licked" and "He can't even touch you". Finally after being walloped around mercilessly for the nine rounds, and with the manager's voice repeating "He can't even touch you", the punch-drunk pug tottered to the corner and whispered in his manager's ear, "Say, better keep your eye on the referee because somebody in the ring is knocking the stuffing out of me." Well it wasn't even used this year and the final issue comes out on Friday. Why, we've got an item in our pocket now since October that we've been waiting to use and haven't found the space... it's a little note, nothing extraordinary, giving the results of a wrestling match in the Junior Assault. Quote "Cohen of University College defeated Mulligan of St. Mike's." Unquote. Now the reason why we haven't printed it before is that we couldn't think of any wise-crack... and we still can't...

AND THEN THE FINAL ISSUE

Why for two months now we've been keeping a game by game record of the basketball squad. Their every step... every move, has been faithfully recorded. Reams of score-books have been checked and double checked in order to keep an accurate account on individual scorings, etc. Then when we get all these records in a systematic arrangement so that we can use it for our column we find that our final daily issue comes out on Friday. So the fact that Moose Rogin played a total of 608 minutes of basketball out of 680 has to remain unpublished... that he scored 227 points out of the team's total number of points, which was 649 (in the 17 games—excluding the McGill game) will also remain a deep dark secret... he also scored 71 out of 103 free throws, which is quite a feat... and beat Krol for top man in the intercollegiate basketball race by 4 points... That the team's average point gatherings in Canadian games was 46.5 until the McGill game came along... and you know what happened... so you see that just when we got the vital statistics of the basketball team down pat and would have made a peach of a column it will never be published because the final issue appears on Friday.

SO WE HAVE TO QUIT

Then just as we get into a perfect argument with Virtue and Honesty both on our side on the intercollegiate football set-up we find the final issue just around the corner. Just as we got all the sports men downtown to devote complete columns to intercollegiate sport we find we haven't enough time to devote a column to it ourselves. Even the Moaner lost track of space in this argument and wrote his two cents' worth and certainly worth the readers' three cents... that Friday's issue of the Telegram. In his column he wrote a great deal of stuff we heartily endorse. He also wrote a few things that we disagree with and can prove... well, off colour... but it would take a complete column to answer all these misstatements and the final issue is on Friday.

Then there's the comments we could make about the Maple Leaf-Goodyears game when the amateurs took the guys that get paid for doing it... we could compare Goodyears with McGill and then proceed to draw conclusions between McGill and the Leafs, but then we might get a telegram from Conny Smythe and we find the final issue is on Friday... and so we close...

Sunday Evening Concert

Beethoven's Sonata in B Flat Major (Opus 108), the major work on Viggo Kihl's program last night, was considered by the composer as his best work for the piano, so the program tells us. Not being acquainted with all of Beethoven's piano work, we cannot say, but it is certainly one of the most profound, most breath-taking compositions for the piano it has been our pleasure to hear.

This sonata is not very often performed because there are so few artists who can do justice to it. From the first majestic bars of the allegro to the climactic finale of the fuga it presents the gravest difficulties to any player's technique and power of interpretation. It is as exhausting to hear as to perform and it is, from every consideration, a magnificent work.

Last night was the first time a Hart House audience heard this work—as a matter of fact, it was the first time that any Toronto audience has heard it in its original form—and the slightest carelessness would have destroyed the fabric of the work and made it utterly boring. The fact that Mr. Kihl did not fall into this trap is a tribute to his virtuosity.

ers as Dave Crichton and Wally Glynn, while the Artsmen have Don Grosskurth, Munroe Murray and Lou Somers on their line-up.

However, Sr. S.P.S. and Trinity I cannot be counted out of the running as yet, though O.C.E. and Pharmacy, the other two teams to make the playoffs, are conceded little chance against their speedier opponents.

In the baseball finals, there are two playoff berths left, with Dents A and O.C.E. battling for one of them, and Jr. S.P.S. and Jr. Meds trying hard to land the other. Either Jr. S.P.S. or Jr. Meds are capable of winning the baseball championship, while Dents A last year's winners, and Sr. Meds also have great chances.

In basketball, Sr. Vic and Jr. U.C. have had pretty much their own way in their respective groups and should meet in the finals. Meds II, last year's champions, are again in the playoffs and might once again pull an upset and defeat their favoured opponents.

So for the next two weeks, Varsity sport fans are in for plenty of good entertainment in the gym and arena.

Hurries Over Cliff

200 STUDENTS WATCH

Vancouver, March 10 (CUP)—William Gross, third year student in Applied Science at the University of B.C., this week narrowly escaped hurtling to his death when, following the suggestion of an American magazine, he pushed his 1927 Buick sedan over a 300 foot cliff on West Point Grey not far from the campus, while some 200 students witnessed the crash for the nominal fee of ten cents per person.

Shortly after 12.30 noon Monday Gross stepped into the automobile, the engine of which was running, and slipped it into gear. As the vehicle moved towards the edge of the high bank he attempted to jump clear but his knee caught under the dashboard for a second. Just before the auto started on its 300 foot plunge Gross freed himself and leaped to the ground to watch his ancient "crate" sail over the ledge, landing 100 feet below and breaking in two. The body left the chassis and broke up, while the chassis rolled by a series of bounces to the beach 200 feet below where students attempted to ignite it with gasoline.

Must Dispose of Auto

Vancouver, March 11 (CUP)—Even deceased automobiles must be properly buried.

This is the salient fact which B.C. Provincial Police pointed out today to William Gross, third year U.B.C. engineer, whose latest hobby is wrecking automobiles.

Now, "Wild Bill", as he has been nicknamed at the university, will have to remove from the beach, or bury, all remnants of what used to be a motor car. Moreover he must provide the death warrant of the "chariot" by forwarding the registration papers to the provincial police at Victoria.

Organize Rolling Hostel For Trip To World's Fair

Colonist Cars Accommodating Forty Students to Leave for New York May 25th and Return to Toronto June 6th

LOWEST POSSIBLE COST

The Youth Hostel Committee of the University of Toronto at its first meeting held on Monday, March 13th, decided that in order to acquaint the students of the university with the purpose and importance of hostels, which have met with great success in the United States and Europe, a rolling hostel would be organized to make it possible for students at this university to attend the New York World's Fair at the lowest possible cost.

It is proposed to use Colonist Cars which will accommodate approximately 40 students. These cars may be used for sleeping and living accommodation and while in New York will be situated convenient to the fair. A tentative date for the party leaving Toronto has been set for Thursday, May 25th, returning to Toronto in time for graduation, on Tuesday, June 6th.

Students interested in making the trip in the rolling hostel have been requested to leave their names at the Students' Administrative Council office in Hart House. Complete information as to cost and supervision will be forwarded as soon as possible to those who leave their names.

MACDONALD INVITED TO PRESENT PAPER

Mr. E. A. Macdonald, secretary-treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, has been invited by the National Conference of Canadian Universities to present a paper on "Student Self-Government", before a meeting of that body in London, Ontario, next May.

Considered an authority on the subject by the conference executive, Mr. Macdonald is expected to outline student administration at the University of Toronto, with special reference to the S.A.C.'s student loan fund, housing service and employment bureau.

Mr. Macdonald will also review the Toronto student government set-up, in light of the survey a University of Toronto committee recently made of systems prevailing in leading American universities. This committee, composed of Prof. S. N. F. Chant and Mr. Macdonald, drew up a report of their findings for President Cuddy.

VICTORIA SUPPORTS 'CO-OP' RESIDENCE

Was First in Canada when it was Made Possible Two Years Ago by Generosity of Victoria College

By Bob Phillips

As pointed out in yesterday's Varsity Student Co-operative Residence is a place where the students themselves do all the work and manage the residence themselves. They attribute their success to co-operation. The residence here is one of the first of a series of co-operatives being established in universities across Canada.

The Co-operative Residence here, which was started two and a half years ago, was the first in Canada. It was made possible through the generosity of Victoria University, who let the students have the building at the bare cost of upkeep without any margin of profit. In that short time it has met with such approval and support that the co-operative hopes to enlarge to include another building next fall. This year there were 38 applications for admission of which only 21 could be accepted because of the limited accommodation.

The enterprise here is run according to the Rochdale system. An attempt was made to form a group for all university students interested to study the co-operative system but the idea was not successful because of the time chosen for the group.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION PRESENTS AWARDS

Without the crack of firearms the University of Toronto Rifle Association held its annual banquet in Hart House last Thursday evening. The feature of the occasion was the presentation to the club of the Uton Memorial Trophy. This valuable gift is in memory of the late Colonel Uton. It will be offered for competition in the fall of each year.

The various cups and shields won during the year were also presented to the winners. The Mitchell Cup, which is awarded for interfaculty indoor competition was won this year for the seventh time consecutively by the Faculty of Applied Science. The Delany Shield for outdoor interfaculty competition was won this year by the Faculty of Arts.

STUDENT ASSEMBLY ENDORSES YOUTH HOSTELS

Conference Divided Into Commissions to Facilitate Discussion — French-Speaking Students Officially Present for First Time

Ottawa, March 8: Preceding the interview with the Hon. Norman Rogers on March 6, the Canadian Student Assembly held a two-day conference, with representatives from fifteen different institutions, colleges and universities; over one hundred delegates in all. The conference was the first at which the French-speaking students had attended officially, an innovation designed to lead to closer relationships. It served also to bridge the gap between that held last year at Winnipeg, and that to be held next winter.

The conference was divided into commissions to facilitate discussion. Co-operatives and youth hostels were discussed by both French and English, and were recognized as a means of financial saving as well as an opportunity for training in democratic principles. Recommendations were made to the effect that courses on the economics of co-operation be included in university curricula, and that study groups on the philosophy and organization of co-operatives should be set up on all Canadian campuses. The Youth Hostel Movement was considered to be of great educational value, as well as providing an excellent means of travel, in the European fashion.

The French Canadians in the group on World Affairs agreed almost unanimously to maintain connections with the British Commonwealth. The commission realized the importance to Canada of good relations with the U.S., and also of the value of a separate, self-determined foreign policy to be attained through extended use of the Statute of Westminster. Both racial groups were unanimous on the question of Canadian defense, but they disagreed on the question of European immigration, which the French students opposed.

A LETTER FROM ENGLAND

London, March 3, 1939.

Dear Fellow Students:

Through our residence in London and our travels on the Continent we have come into much closer contact with the refugee problem than you in Canada. The indescribable misery and suffering of the helpless thousands in Germany, Czechoslovakia and what was Austria has impressed itself acutely upon us; and the effect of what we have seen and heard has been to produce in us the determination that something must be done.

As Canadians we are aware of the tremendous contribution that our country with its large territory and undeveloped resources and small population could make to a solution of this most pressing problem. We are also aware, to our shame, of the ridiculously inadequate measures that Canada has taken in this direction. Where countries with an absorptive capacity infinitely smaller than that of Canada have admitted thousands, our country has permitted the entry of but a few dozen. Where other countries have been enthusiastic in welcoming the distinguished scholars and scientists who have been cast out of their native lands, Canada has slammed its door in their faces. The horrible plight of these people whose sole crime is the fact of their existence should be more than enough to induce a more hospitable attitude among Canadians. But Canada can benefit immensely from a policy which would permit several thousands to enter its hitherto hermetically sealed borders. As Sir Samuel Hoare told the British House of Commons on November 21, the 11,000 refugees who had been admitted up to then had given employment to 15,000 British workers. As students, you surely realize what an important contribution to our national life a large number of able scholars could make. And in these days when liberty and democracy are being everywhere challenged and extinguished, the admission of these victims of persecution and tyranny would be an effective measure of defence against the forces of darkness spreading over the world. For to remain indifferent to tyranny abroad is ultimately to suffer tyranny at home.

It is because of these considerations that we appeal to you, our fellow Canadian students, to do all in your power to effect a decided change in the present Canadian attitude and policy in this matter. We feel that the Canadian student body, through press and platform, through meeting and demonstration, through petition and resolution, could mobilize public opinion to induce the authorities to adopt a more liberal immigration policy towards the refugees. You could surely adopt to some extent the methods of the American students who have brought a large number of scholars and students to their schools and universities. Whatever you do in this regard will be not only a great deed of humanitarianism but a signal blow for democracy and freedom. (Signed) A. Murray Smith, U. of Manitoba; T. L. M. Carter, Bishop's University; David W. Petegorsky, Ottawa, Ontario; R. D. Howland, McMaster; W. A. Scott, U. of Toronto; Jessie H. C. Storrle, U. of Toronto; G. B. Sanderson, U. of British Columbia.

A. M. Crawley to Show Religious Film "From Abraham to Allensby" Under Auspices of Student Christian Movement

Mr. A. M. Crawley, journalist and world traveller, will show the religious sound film, "From Abraham to Allensby", produced and directed by himself, in Convocation Hall on Sunday at 7 p.m., under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement.

The film itself shows the life of Palestine and of the Biblical lands with accurate depicting such events as the Samaritan Passover, held at night on Mount Gerizim; The Easter Ceremonies inside the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and others, and showing something of the struggle between the Jew and the Arab in Palestine today. Its title "From Abraham to Allensby" indicates the main development of the theme.

Mr. Crawley, who accompanied his film, is a well known British cricketer as well as an accomplished polo, tennis and squash racket player.

RESOLUTION VERSUS PACIFISM DEFEATED

Government of Victoria College Debating Parliament Defeated by Vote of 32-17 in Final Debate

The government of Victoria College Debating Parliament was upset by a vote of 32 to 17 in the final debate of the year last night when a resolution "that the doctrine of pacifism is a menace to our security", met with defeat. Affirmative speakers were Rowell Bowles and Olive Mulhally, while those appearing for the negative were Joe Willard and Mary Carter. Rev. Raymond Booth was present as guest.

"Physical force is evil only when directed towards an evil end," said Mr. Bowles. "Force is an indispensable means in society today for the maintenance of law and order."

Pacifism is no more a menace to our security than the teachings of Jesus Christ, said Mr. Willard, pointing out the "futility" of going to war again when the international situation was not improved by the sacrifice of 13,000,000 lives in the last one.

PIANO-VIOLIN TEAM TO PLAY SUNDAY

Next Sunday evening the fourth in a series of Sunday evening musicals will be presented in the Women's Union under the joint sponsorship of the U.C. Lit. and the W.U.A. Harry Tattersall, in charge of arrangements, announced last night that Dr. Thomas Crawford, well-known organist, and his wife, will be the guest artists. Dr. Crawford will play the piano, while his wife, an accomplished violinist, will share the program.

These musicals, an innovation this year, have proved popular with undergraduates, and it is hoped that a large number will attend next Sunday's concert, which will be the final one of the season. It is expected they will be continued next year. The concert will start at 9 p.m.

S.C.M. TO END ACTIVITIES WITH BANQUET-MEETING

The Student Christian Movement will officially close its activities for this term when it holds its banquet and annual meeting at Diana's Restaurant next Friday at 6.45 p.m. Members of the advisory board and graduate and undergraduate members of the S.C.M. in all faculties will be present to hear reports on the year's work.

President John Coleman and Associate President Amy Schaeffer will include their reports in the response to toasts to the University and S.C.M. A skit "taking off" various members of the council at an executive meeting is promised by a member of the committee.

S.P.S. OUSTS MEDS IN HOCKEY PLAYOFF

The highly favoured Jr. School sextet defeated Sr. Meds yesterday afternoon by the score of 5-3 in the first round of the interfaculty hockey playoffs, and were the right to meet U.C. The Schoolmen jumped into an early lead when Dave Critchton scored on a pass from Wally Glynn, and they added two more before the Meds replied, with Staples scoring.

Behind by the score of 4-1 at half-time, Sr. Meds turned on the pressure and outscored Jr. School by the score of 2-1 in the second half, but failed to tie the score. School showed a fast well balanced pass from Dave Critchton, who played with Varsity intermediates last year, and Spence, leading the attack, Critchton had two goals and an assist, while Spence countered twice. Robinson got the other goal for School.

St. Matthew Passion

On the evening of Tuesday, April 4th, Sir Ernest MacMillan will conduct Bach's St. Matthew Passion for his sixteenth annual presentation of this immortal work. This presentation will be in Convocation Hall under the aegis of the University of Toronto, as it has been for the past twelve years.

The story of the Passion lies in the very heart of Christianity and has for many centuries been celebrated in song in Christian churches during Holy Week. From earlier German passions Handel developed the oratorio, and the pious genius of Bach re-dedicated that form to recount "The Passion of Our Lord According to St. Matthew". His composition is in part narrative and in part reflective, each part being given variously by recitatives, arias, duets, and chorales. The great double chorus at times joins in the relation of the drama, and at times in the commentaries upon it, and so the oratorio has a certain general resemblance to the Greek tragedy. The St. Matthew Passion has been described by Lawrence Mason as a "monumental composition, wherein one of the most humbly devout and most Divinely inspired of all human beings has enshrined forever, music's crowning expression of that super-human tragedy."

The Toronto presentation of this splendid masterpiece is as elaborate as its vast proportions require. Some seventeen of the best artists in the city sing the solo parts, supported by the Conservatory Choir as a double chorus of about 150 voices. The masterly conducting of Sir Ernest is founded on his fifteen years of direction, from his first revival of the work in Timothy Eaton Church to the present time, when reverent music lovers come to Convocation Hall from as far away as New York to hear what is probably the most important performance of it in North America.

The performance is made possible by the generosity of a small group of Toronto people who subscribe to a fund for the purpose. The existence of this fund means that tickets may be offered to students of the university at a deficit price. Student exchange tickets will shortly be on sale by the Hart House Hall Porter, the Conservatory of Music, and the various college and faculty representatives.

Our Rural Conditions

Many university graduates, especially those who have chosen the professions of medicine, law, the ministry, or teaching, will find that there is a close to even chance that a great deal of their career may be spent serving the people of rural Canada. Unfortunately a university education does not fit the professional man with a sound knowledge of rural conditions or farm problems, and the work of the university graduate frequently suffers from an inadequate understanding of the problems of the people with whom he will find it necessary to work.

At the present time farm conditions in Canada are very bad, and the tremendous shift from farm to city which we have seen during the past few decades is apt to increase.

One of the big reasons for the shift is the poor price the farmer is receiving for his produce in proportion to the price he has to pay for his manufactured necessities. At the present time the Canadian farmer is staggering under a load of debt; and while the farm youth sees no future in his profession, he is seldom able to break into another sphere of life.

Canada has called for world markets. And yet last year the Canadian exports per capita are reported to be higher than in any other nation of the world. Last year Canada produced ten million pounds more butter than she needed, with the result butter is now on a world market price... a price which nets the farmer less than the cost of production.

Since the war our normal wheat crop has become upwards of double that of before the war. World imports at the present time are 540 millions of bushels of wheat. It is estimated that next July there will be 1,100 millions on hand in the world granaries. Had Western Canada sold her 1938 wheat on a world market, with double the production, she would have received 30 million dollars less than in 1937. So her wheat was subsidized and the rest of Canada paid the price.

Why doesn't the West start producing something else, is asked! If Western Canada were to start dairying and hog-raising on a big scale the Eastern farmer would be put out of business over night. And after all there is little advantage in turning from the producing of one commodity, for a market which pays below the cost of production, to producing another commodity on the same basis.

Since 1929 there has been a surplus of agricultural products both for Canada and the world markets. Since 1929 the farmer has not received a price high enough to enable him to buy manufactured products, and since that time men have been thrown out of work, and thereby the demand for farm produce has been decreased.

Through the years of depression some nations have solved their problems by legislation and co-operation, while in Canada we have allowed the problem to become greater by letting profiteering continue, and failing to have producers and consumers co-operate. It is true that last year's legislation benefitted the wheat farmer in the western provinces; the Empire Conference in 1932 has helped maintain a relatively good price for Canadian bacon, and the recent treaties with the United States have benefitted the Canadian farmer to a considerable degree.

But subsidizing one part of the agricultural industry is not enough. And the Canadian farmer has shown by his exports that his system is very loose, one month he ships twice as much bacon as another, and thereby he endangers the whole market.

The whole of our competitive business world with the exception of agriculture has adopted business practices in attempting to effect control of production over supply. The purchasing power of the consumer must be increased, and this can be done to a great extent by a co-operative distribution in a wholesale way. The farmer for the purpose of economic defense must co-operate in such a way as to regulate production to suit demand, and prevent unlawful profiteering in marketing his produce.

For six decades the Canadian farmer has tried to sell on an open market, and buy on a restricted one. The solution is not found by bolstering prices beyond that of a world market, by unnatural means.

Perhaps we are not too optimistic when we see in the future the co-ordination of all farm organization into one central body which can speak and act for all, and will develop an efficient system of planned production and marketing. And perhaps with this will come better co-operation and finer sympathy between producer and consumer, which will make it impossible for the unscrupulous profiteer to line his own pockets at the expense of the common people.—A.C.F.

ART MUSIC

Mischa Elman

Mischa Elman, violinist, played in Massey Hall last night, one in a series of non-sectarian benefit concerts which he is giving in aid of political refugees from Germany. His appearance here was sponsored by the Toronto branch of the Canadian National Committee on Refugees and Victims of Political Persecution.

The program was exceptionally well balanced between the classical and the romantic, the two major items being Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata and Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole. Elman's reading of the Kreutzer was an interesting contrast to that given by Szigei earlier in the season—much more emotional, much less cerebral, but equally great. This same tendency to emotionalism made the Lalo his best work; he didn't try to raise it above its not very exalted artistic level, but was content to make the most of its melodic beauty. His short group did not sacrifice musical interest to technical gymnastics.

The audience was not the one usually seen at Massey Hall concerts, and it didn't seem quite

FIFTY FOUND IN CONVOCATION HALL DURING GORY RAID

Professorial Stag Party is Rudely Interrupted by Police

NO VISIBLE SUPPORT

Seven hundred and two members of the faculty of the University of Toronto and one lone female dancer were arrested last night as the anti-vice squad of the campus police swooped down on Simcoe Hall to decimate its most vicious blow since the entire Physics department was indicted for sorcery and alchemy.

An advance guard of the university police, disguised as great aunts, attended the party on presentation of their registration cards which were stamped "voted". At a given signal, they carried the screaming dancer from the stage amid roars of applause from all present who thought it was part of the act until the black maria, with the university crest inscribed on its sides backed up at the door.

The arrested men were marched single file, under a special guard of the C.O.T.C. from Simcoe Hall to the Bloor St. Observatory where they were observed by Prof. C. A. Pant, M.A., Ph.D., Harv., LL.D., F.R.S.C., pending their appearance in court on twelve charges including being found in a powdery house.

When apprehended by the police, the lone girl, a pretty dark-eyed Russian girl named Chlorine Rimschovich, was wearing a strapless evening gown. She will be booked on a charge of vagrancy as having no visible means of support. At the preliminary hearing, she will face seventeen other charges, including inciting to riot and witchcraft.

She is held on bail of $25,000 which was provided by her manager G. Lawri and C. George Kennel, a high university official who scraped up some loose change from the bursar's office.

The arrested professors were a jolly lot as they were led by a kilted band from the 48th Highlanders from the scene of the annual staff stag party.

They shouted and uttered ribald catcalls at passers-by and sang "Tipperary" from Hoskin to Bloor. Latest estimates indicate that six professors and three sergeants from the C.O.T.C. disappeared in the neighbourhood of Whitney Hall.

Residents stared from their bedroom windows as the strange procession passed, the largest since mobilization in 1914. Fraternity boys, hurled insults and Royal Wof silverware into the merry throng.

"I love my wife, but oh you kid!" claimed one professor of organic chemistry.

AROUND THE TRACK

With Bob Somers

The Varsity whippets will be out to duplicate their splendid success of last Thursday over the West End "w", when they compete against the strong Achilles Club tonight at 8 on the Hart House oval. The "Winged" stars number among their members Art Clarke, Canada's no. 1 miler, and Alec Monroe, former Varsity undergraduate, who recently cleared 6' 3" in the high jump. Clarke won't be out tonight, though and there aren't any field events.

When you consider that the height reached in the recent local indoor meet was only 5' 6", Monroe would be more of a threat in that event if slated.

Last Thursday, the Brown twins and Frederick showed their superiority in the 50, 100, and 220 yards by flashing home 1-2-3 in all three. The Achilles Club sprinters will have to do some fast stepping if they want to beat the Varsity comets. Delaney, absent last week, will be teamed with McGill and Stinson in the 440, and this trio will be hard to beat.

The Sportsman

By Mary Conlin

Even though it is the last "regular" issue, we're saving all the sad, sad sentiment until Friday. All the inter-faculty tournaments have been decided but there is still some unfinished business lurking around. Elections to the Athletic Directorate will be held this afternoon; of the retiring Directorate only Mary Pedring of Vic running for re-election. The other five, Peggy Bailey, Vic, Helen Scott, U.C., Joan McMaster, St. Hilda's, Olive Mulhally, Vic, and Yours Truly found congenial work on the Directorate, but next year's group will have more responsibility since Varsity will be running the Bronze Bowl meet here, today, too, that little matter of nominations for next year's athletic clubs must be cleared up since the elections Thursday will really finish things. C'est tout fini, etc.

Much as we would like to avoid reminiscing because it makes the end so much closer (sniff, sniff) the time has come to look over what has happened this year. We never really thought this day would come. The only journey which has not yet been decided is the bowling, or any one of the numerous unofficial ping-pong tournaments. As far as the lucky strikers are concerned, last year's champion, Ruth Puhlow of Vic, is still a touch-meet in the bowling alley and the award has already been conceded to her for a second year.

Inter-faculty honours were well shuffled and re-dealt to everyone's satisfaction. A modestly efficient group of cagers, U.C. Jrs., snatched basketball honours from Vic while St. Hilda's superior pucksters retained their ice traditions. Vic Srs. never lost their secure grip on the baseball cup, but U.C. I finally flourished in their aquatic pursuits to give Physical Eds. a much-deserved inter-faculty win. Victoria and St. Hilda's doubled up on some of their victories by adding the tennis and badminton trophies to their collections.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Ed Goodman

ON ATHLETIC TRENDS

Like every other type of education, physical education has in the past decade sported many changes in policy and ideas. Probably the most outstanding trend particularly in college athletic circles has been towards an expansion of intramural activities. It has been increasingly evident that without intending to detract in any major degree from their intercollegiate plans, the various physical educators are following a policy of placing a great deal of stress upon inter-faculty, inter-group or inter-fraternity athletic programs.

The cause for this increased activity is easily found. It is at last being more fully realized by progressive thinkers that athletics as any other brand of knowledge can be of inestimable value in education. And naturally in an intramural sports program so many more people are effected, than had hitherto participated, it was an exceedingly important field.

CLOSER TO HOME

As far as other Canadian universities are concerned Toronto has been able to lead the way, due partially perhaps to its excellent facilities. But it is not only in Canadian circles that Varsity's well balanced intramural program is in the vanguard. For even in comparison with many of the leading American colleges with their higher fees and larger if not more efficient accommodation, Toronto certainly possesses A1 ranking.

For very few programs in the States are as wide as the one that Warren Stevens and Mac McCutcheon have prepared. Hart House as it now stands is not capable of giving accommodation for any more teams than are playing this year. It merely remains to increase the efficiency of the present set-up. The most important need is probably that of seeing that all the teams acquire suitable coaching.

IT IS A MAN'S WORLD

However, although we can survey the state of male intramurals with a certain amount of complacency, the girls are not in the same happy position. As yet there is certainly no sign of anyone building an edifice for their athletic pursuits, and it certainly is going to be difficult for them to make any further progress until this is done.

COMING BACK TO EARTH

All of which merely is a way of reminding you that the finals of the intramural hockey are approaching, and U.C. should grab its first championship of the season. Meds III basketball team should finally wind up on top of the league after a lot of trouble from Sr. Vic. The baseball title is a toss up with Jr. Meds carrying most of the money.

AND IN CONCLUSION

In as much as this is our second to last issue we must of necessity wax sentimental, and extend our thanks to Warren Stevens and his assistants who have been of such help during the year. For when the reporters have brought them to a point when they should be practically ready to commit homicide they still were ready to offer any news or information that they possessed.

"Say, this is the 10th successive day Henry

SPLASHES

By Sam Lipin

ECKHARDT CUP FINALS

Springing the biggest upset of the year the Trinity water polo team handed Sr. Vic a 3-1 defeat in the first game of the finals last night. Starting the game with a flashing attack, Love and Gold notched up three counters in the first half. The Red and Black had the play nearly all their own way in the first half and checked the Vic outfit to the stage where the Scarlet and Gold could only get the most feeble shots away.

In the second half, Sr. Vic, shed some of their disastrous over-confidence and showed a little more championship form. Although their checking was still lamentably weak and their shooting inaccurate, nevertheless Trinity were unable to tally again and Lipin managed to count once for Victoria on a shot that twisted out of Rowan's hands after he had practically stopped the shot.

Don't forget your Friday's issue, when we shall have room to deal with individual champions. There are too many to mention here, but they have all been nominated for special awards, and if the hockey club doesn't forget Uncle Wiggy's award it won't be such a bad year after all.

hither and yon

With Frank Shuster

THE U. OF MINNESOTA has worked on a charm school questionnaire and the information will no doubt be found very instructive. . . . We discover that the qualities that co-eds admire are consideration, courtesy, neatness, sense of humour, personality, brains, high moral standards, and intelligence (is that all?). . . . Distinguishing characteristics to the girls are untidiness, unshaved faces, dirty nails and bad posture. . . . One of the questions also asked was how to avoid being necked. . . . Some of the sidestepping devices were talking, lighting a cigarette, making a joke of it when he parks the car, etc. . . . One co-ed has an ideal method. When asked to neck, she asks "Why?" . . . This always stumps the fellow. . . . It always keeps me quiet too. . . .

IF YOU RECALL, we published a little item last week concerning one Lothrop Withington who decided to eat a live goldfish on a $10 bet. . . . Well, Lothrop came through with flying colours and because of this feat, he has been recognized as one of the great men of the century, and the fan-mail is pouring in by the hundreds. . . . Included in Withington's correspondence for the last few days are a letter from the Animal Rescue League deploring the inhumane deed, an offer from the Goldfish-eating Club of New England for membership, and an offer from the Raw Egg Club. . . . Withington has a beautiful future ahead of him. . . . As long as there are people willing to pay ten dollars to see him eat goldfish, his income is assured. . . . It sounds so good. I think I'll get into the racket myself. . . .

Royal Alexandra

Those people who are interested in the comedy of manners may trot down to the Royal Alexandra this week, where an excellent example of this type of play is being presented. Oscar Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest is the presentation, and a small competent cast play the satire to the hilt with successful results.

Fifty years ago when this production first saw the light of day, epigrams, asides and such like were the rage. However, this production carries its age rather well, and modern audiences need not fear that the particular opus is outdated. Perhaps we are inclined to scoff a bit at the manner in which Wilde unravels his complicated situations, but no one will deny that his sparkling wit has not suffered with the passage of time.

The cast is a capable one to say the least. Clifton Webb, Estelle Winwood and Hope Williams, are all well-known to Toronto theatre-goers, and they perform creditably. Florence McGee, although somewhat miscast in a rather flighty young ingenue role, manages to keep her head above water and turn in a capable characterization.

The settings for the production deserve special mention. They were designed by one Watson Barratt, and show excellent imagination. Unfortunately we cannot say the same for the direction which was simply stock stuff. However, the performers came to the rescue and all's well that ends well. (Shakespeare.)

The inherent economy of the 1939 Ford V-8 starts with the modest price tag, and "carries through" with every revolution of the powerful V-type 8-cylinder engine. (In fact, owners from every province report 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline!)

S. W. Albright Chosen As Next Year's Editor

An Undergraduate Editor Takes Over the Paper for the First Time in Five Years

By D. M. Elliott

Precedent was upset and a thriving tradition nipped when the Students' Administrative Council appointed an undergraduate to the position of editor-in-chief of the undergraduate newspaper on Wednesday night. For the first time in nearly five years The Varsity will justify its description and will be directed and edited by a student without a degree.

The person who has been chosen by the elected representatives of the students to occupy the highest position that the campus fourth estate can offer is Seaborn W. Albright, second year pass. (Continued on page 7)

HOSTELS ORGANIZE WORLD'S FAIR TRIP

By Lloyd McDonald

Complete information regarding the proposed World's Fair party, to be organized by the Youth Hostel Committee, will be available next week, Mr. E. A. Macdonald, Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council announced yesterday.

Information will be sent out to the large number of students who left their names and addresses at the office during the week, he said. It will be issued by certain railroads in the United States, who will supply details as to cost and other matters.

The trip will be made in colonist cars, each accommodating about 40 students. While in New York, the cars will be placed on a siding adjacent to the fair grounds, and they will be used for eating and sleeping accommodation. In this way the trip will be made with the lowest possible cost, the Committee announces.

May 25th has been named as a tentative date for the trip. Students will return about June 6th, in time for graduation.

Organization of a "rolling hostel" is only part of the plans of the Youth Hostel Committee, Mr. Macdonald pointed out. They are planning to establish hostels in Muskoka and intermediate points between there and Toronto. These will be available for hiking or cycling parties, he said.

There will be full rehearsals on Monday and Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Music Room. Tickets for Alumni Night will be given out on Tuesday. Remember to bring back your questionnaire.

TORONTO SYMPHONY APPEALS FOR FUNDS

By Irvin Blackstone

The Toronto Symphony Orchestra Association has recently been making a drive for funds for its maintenance. Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the symphony, stated yesterday that "it is our conviction that the orchestra has a wide circle of friends who, though unable to give large donations, would be glad to give such assistance as lies within their power."

"With this in mind a large number of special buttons are being sold at the price of one dollar each. This confers the privilege of attending, up to the limits imposed by the seating capacity of Massey Hall, the special concert to be given on Wednesday evening next by the orchestra and other prominent musical artists and organizations."

Society Formed By S.A.C. Honours Active Students

Outstanding Men and Women in Non-Athletic Fields will be Singled Out for Service Awards

An honour society was formed by the S.A.C. last Wednesday which will award certificates of merit to students who have made an outstanding contribution to the university in non-athletic, extra-curricular activities, to be bestowed in their graduating year.

A selections committee has been formed of members of the executive of the S.A.C., the staff and the President of the university. It is expected that each year there will be approximately forty-five members admitted, and some insignia will be chosen at a future date

C.O.T.C. TO SUPPLY GUARD OF HONOUR

Members of Corps Receive News with Great Acclaim—will Function During Visit of Their Majesties on Campus

When Their Majesties visit Toronto next May, the Canadian Officers' Training Corps of the University of Toronto will form part of the parade scheduled for the twenty-second of that month. This was arranged upon an invitation to corps headquarters from the authorities of Military District number two.

According to a plan already arranged, Hart House will be the luncheon occasion for Their Majesties, and it has been intimated that a Guard of Honour, formed of the members of the corps, will function during their visit on the campus.

This news was received by members with great acclaim, and according to Sgt. H. F. Burt-Gerrans, I.U.C., "it will be something which may never again happen during our lifetime." Other cadets likewise expressed their enthusiasm and approval.

Last night the C.O.T.C. had their annual inspection. Artillery, signalling, machine-gun, medical, and general drill were held in a manner which was highly commended by the inspecting officer, Brigadier Alexander.

which only members of the society may purchase.

As was pointed out in an editorial in The Varsity last January when the idea was first proposed, almost every year a Canadian university has a similar system. The Students' Council felt that such a society would prove to be of value to the university, strengthening the loyalty of the graduates.

Players' Guild Elections

At the final meeting of the U.C. Players' Guild the following executive for 1939-40 was elected:

Hon. President, Prof. L. A. MacKay; president, Frances Halpeny; vice-president, Irvin Blackstone; secretary, Frank Winn; treasurer, Alan Bruce-Robertson; publicity, Heather Hill.

M'CURDY CONSIDERS LEAGUE IDEAS OF LITTLE VALUE

Speaking at C.C.F. Club, Dr. McCurdy Claims Leadership League Has Nothing Constructive in its Program

"An empty program is the strongest club with which Fascism ever went into power. This kind of weapon is especially designed for a demagogue," said Dr. W. J. McCurdy of the Philosophy department of the university, speaking to the University C.C.F. Club on "The Leadership League", in the Women's Union Wednesday.

Referring to Mr. McCullagh's dislike of unemployment and his proposal to establish camps where vocational training and discipline would be given to men out of work, Dr. McCurdy asked, "Why should the unemployed be trained to fight for the protection of the property which they haven't got?" Regarding vocational training for these men, McCurdy said, "We need jobs rather than people trained to take them."

"We must remember that Nova Scotia and British Columbia are not at the back door of Ontario," said Dr. McCurdy, commenting on the recommendation of the Leadership League that our provincial governments be abolished. Graduates Will Return For Hart House Evening

A Program of Varied Entertainment is Promised at Annual Alumni Night Celebration on Friday

By John Clarry

They're coming back! Next Friday night will see Hart House at its best as hundreds of old-timers of every year and faculty get together and for once in the year celebrate Alumni Night. Undergraduates are invited too, in limited numbers. For their entertainment Stuart Bolton of the Alumni Federation and his committee have secured almost everything within reach to keep the crowd laughing, dancing, cheering and yelling in true Varsity manner.

The round of amusements includes everything from rifle shooting and canoe tilting to old-fashioned cinema and the Hart House Glee Club, and the whole show reaches a climax when everyone gathers in the big gym for a gigantic sing song under the direction of Ross Workman.

The biggest hit of last year's party is being repeated—the Keough-Heddie Marionettes, who will stage a thriller, "The House of the Hooting Owl", guaranteeing a murder every twenty minutes. Last year hundreds had to be turned away, but this year they will put on three shows. These marionettes are a Toronto company but they have been on many tours and are scheduled to go to England next year.

A big feature this year is the showing of old-time moving pictures. The Alumni Federation had a hard time getting these relics, but a Toronto distributor finally secured two of Charlie Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms" and "Shanghaied", as well as "Straight Shooting" and "Grinning Fists", two of the real Wild West type which used to have the kids die chewing the leather off the seats in front of them.

Bulletin

Art Walker, star basketball player for West End "Y", has been offered a $750 athletic scholarship to attend Western University. "The Varsity" learned last night. Walker is attending Bloor Collegiate, where he has two Middle School subjects to write.

Lou Davies, coach of the Western basketball team, came to Toronto to look over the West End team the other night and since then Walker has received the offer.

Expect 2000 Volumes Will be Borrowed On Easter Week-End

By Tom Heilington

There are still a few good seats but reservations are pouring in for the year's greatest dramatic event. This pre-examination spectacle, featuring a cast of thousands, has already opened at the University Library and will be presented continuously for the next two months.

A survey Wednesday morning revealed few empty seats in either reading room, and long lines waiting at the desk. The rush is expected to increase daily with the climax over the Easter week-end when 2000 volumes will be borrowed.

Miss M. E. Newton, head of the circulation department, produced statistics to show that more students used the library every year. A grand total of 43,288 volumes were circulated in February, including those from the Medical and Law libraries and the Political Science and U.C. reading rooms which are branches of the main organization.

Everything from Sadie Hawkins' Week to Communism, Including Elephants in Hart House, Comes Under the Critical Eye

By Ruven Frank

A day, a week, a month, a year—boom! 'tis soon the month of May. And as everything must come to an end, so must the happiness and abandon of the winter months at university. No more social functions, no more gala week-ends, no more of The Varsity.

And as your undergraduate newspaper winds up another year of faithful, untiring service we look back over one hundred crowded issues of sports and news and features written for you and despite you. Just as every year winds up with a review of the ten best news stories, so does our year wind up with mention of the ten college events that supplied this newspaper with the most exciting and readable copy.

Biggest news story of the year, beyond the shadow of a doubt in anyone's mind, was Sadie Hawkins' Week. The (Continued on page 6)

TORONTO DEBATERS TO TOUR WEST

Student will be Selected to Spend Month Debating at Western Universities Under Sponsorship of N.F.C.U.S.

The Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto have been asked to select a student to be a member of a debating team chosen from the University of Toronto and McGill University to tour Western Canada next fall and to debate at the universities in Western Canada.

The tour is sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students and all expenses will be paid. The selection committee of the Debated Committee of the Students' Administrative Council wish to consider any applicants who have debating ability and who would have the time available to be away from the university from four to five weeks next November. Selection of the debater will be made by the end of next week. Applications should be made at the Students' Administrative Council office, in Hart House at once.

STUDENTS PROVIDE $250 CHINESE AID

By Russell Gordon

Canadian students have raised more than $250 this year for Far Eastern Student Relief. Almost half this sum has been raised on this campus, the University of Manitoba has sent $31.12 and $16.25 has come from the University of British Columbia.

In an article in a recent issue of The China Press, Shanghai, Mr. Kiang Wen-han, Executive Secretary of the National Student Relief Committee, and the China branch of the International Student Service, thanks students of the world, including the students of Canada, for the aid already sent to China, and shows that the need is still urgent.

The Peiping Student Emergency Relief Committee has been trying to give cash relief, to some of the most needy students, not exceeding $100 (Mex.), about $16 Canadian, for the whole year.

The Royal Visit

Present plans for the visit of the royal party include luncheon at Hart House next May. Through the Students' Administrative Council there have been advances made to the Provincial Government requesting that the students of the University have an opportunity to see the King and Queen, and in so doing demonstrate their loyalty to the sovereign of the British Empire.

It is not probable, however, that there will be any possibility of reserving the quadrangle in Hart House for the students, as had been hoped. But whatever the plans will be, there should be a provision made for the undergraduates of this university to get a glimpse of the Royal Party. The feeling of the members on the S.A.C. has been such, that if it is representative of student opinion in general, there is a strong feeling that they do not want to be ignored.

We would not be so bold as to suggest that there be any change in the plans of the Royal Party, for after all their visit is not a visit to the University, but merely a visit to Hart House as a very suitable place for luncheon. But it is felt that some part of the University grounds, by which the party will pass, should be reserved for the students alone, so that they will have an opportunity to gather in a body at a place where there will be assurance of seeing the Imperial couple.

The Last Issue

Another year almost gone and once again the staff of The Varsity is forced to realize that the one hundredth issue has been reached. As we look back it has been a momentous year in international affairs although a fairly quiet and orderly year in student activities. As we look at the daily papers we realize that The Varsity is ceasing publication at a time when European politics do not look much more encouraging than they did on the night of the first issue before the famous Munich Conference.

Since Christmas we have attempted to apply ourselves more to topics of local University interest, striving first of all to work for a closer unity within the University, and endeavouring to avoid anything that would tend to an increase in sectionalism.

A Women's Athletic Building, an improved medical service and a T.B. test made compulsory, an enlargement of the S.A.C. staff and a regular radio broadcast are things which we hope the future will see. Already there has been established an Honour Society in the University, and CKCL and Mr. Jak Thomson are to be thanked for making possible the Varsity broadcast this winter. In the future we hope that such will be continued and improved.

THE NEW EDITOR

It is a pleasure to be able to announce in the final issue that Seaborn W. Albright has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of The Varsity for 1939-40. In all sincerity we feel that he is to be congratulated in attaining one of the most enviable positions which can be attained by any undergraduate.

For three years he has worked faithfully on the paper, in the sports and managing departments. To him goes the credit in part for The Varsity having one of the best lay-outs and front page make-ups of any undergraduate newspaper. His faithful service and his loyal support, together with his pleasing personality and qualities of leadership and organizing ability, have won for him the support of the staff, and we are happy to say that for the third successive year the Students' Administrative Council has appointed for editor the man who has been recommended by the vote of the staff of The Varsity. We feel that this is not only the fairest and most democratic system but is also the best. We would trust in the ability of any man to edit The Varsity who has been chosen with a majority vote of this year's staff.

It is with confidence tinged with a certain regret that we relinquish the reins of The Varsity to Mr. Albright, who personally has been our most loyal supporter during the past year, while we write our last editorial in the paper which has been the foremost interest of our college career. We know that he will be true to its policies, cherish its traditions, and strive for the realization of its ideals.

HIS SUPPORTERS

He is fortunate in inheriting a very efficient staff which has shown ability, loyalty, and willingness to work hard and efficiently throughout the year. To them go our sincerest thanks and good wishes. To Mr. Macdonald congratulations are due, in that this year The Varsity has had the greatest advertising year yet. To him also go the thanks of the staff, as well as the students of the University, for his kindness and co-operation, and his keen interest in helping The Varsity to fill its own place in undergraduate life.—A.C.F.

Needed . . . More Funds

Speaking as one of the generation about to leave these precincts, we make our last plea and testimony regarding the Women's Athletic Building which is to-be. From the day one September four years ago when we asked a hoary senior why girls were not allowed into Hart House, down to the present moment, it has been a thought near to our heart. Every co-ed who passes Hart House and hears the perpetual laughter and music from within asks herself the same question: "Why haven't we something like that?" And the answer is always, "We will have some day, but not yet."

The need for an athletic and social centre for women on this campus is a topic which needs no elaboration. When athletic activities are spread over an area extending from Cottingham Street on the north (C.N.R. Tennis Courts) to Queen Street on the south (Metropolitan Church Badminton Courts), a distance of some 4 miles; when athletic equipment is strewn over some twelve locker rooms in different corners of the campus; when visiting teams have to be unceremoniously sneaked into the men's athletic building, and privately entertained by faculties and fraternities; when literary and debating societies eke out a starved existence for lack of a permanent meeting place, this aching void in our campus life becomes extremely obvious. For years plans have been under way, and rumours have been in circulation to the effect that some time soon a building will be commenced. But to any concrete questions, the answer is an everlasting "No".

Yet much has been achieved. All thanks are due to Miss Parkes and Dr. Gordon and the committee who have devoted time and energy to this project. Two years ago they inspected athletic buildings at various American colleges and assisted the architects in drawing up blueprints. The plans are complete, but operations are at a standstill for lack of funds. At present the committee has access to sufficient funds for a cheap inadequate building, from money which was turned over to the women out of a university athletic fund when the men acquired Hart House. But they feel that this building should be one for the use of future generations and that it should not be attempted until it can be done properly. Over and above the present amount, $100,000 is needed.

It is up to women graduates of this university to bridge the gap. While very few either are or will be in a position to donate, there is a slim minority who can. It is to be hoped that every woman graduate who ever felt the need, while she was at college, of a social and athletic centre for women, will remember the building fund when she makes her first million.—B.K.

The East of the Auk

"... I tell you, the Great Auk is not extinct"—(Cromwell, in his address to the Commons, 1656.)

I
Harold the Auk was a lonely bird,
The last of his tribe they said,
He lived in a hole beneath the North Pole
With a wimple about his head.

II
He occupied his time 'tis told Engaged in a mad pursuit.
'Twas his pleasure to freeze young children's knees
And to cover their ears with soot.

III
His days were spent in fasting
His nights were spent in vice
He devoured with zeal his one daily meal
Of chutney and pink waltzing mice.

IV
It was his special pleasure
To tap the telephone wires
He injected remarks about pigeons and larks Whom he daily consigned to the fires.

V
He never got on with the rest of the birds
He cheated at bridge and at chess
He thumbed his nose at the Flamingoes
And the landlord's daughter Bess.

VI
A public appeal in The Times one day
Signed by a mother of five Exhorted the Owls to procure knotted towels
And bring back the great Auk alive.

VII
A posse of hunters was gathered at dawn
With beaters with dogs and with guns,
But Harold the huge by a swift subterfuge Escaped with his basket of buns.

VIII
Down to the city he came by night
Uttering morbid sounds
He decided to stay at the Y.M.C.A.
But was barred on religious grounds.

IX
He stayed in The Varsity office that night
And gave us his story in full,
He was praised for his deeds and the few coloured beads
Which he kept in his purse as a rule.

The hat was passed round for Harold
The tally was meagre but good
So armed with some nouns and a hand-ful of crowns
He set sail on the battleship Hood.

XI
That was the last that we saw of the bird
But several reports from the West
Avow that the Auk has started to talk
Of returning to build a new nest.

FLASH!

A flash has just come from the cables,
Signed by telegrapher Greig Saying Harold's the bird (of course)
It's absurd!

And so, with this little reminder that there are more things in heaven and earth than crises and leadership leagues, I, the Cat, will return to my summer hideout in the alley behind the press. Once again intramural athletes are closing shop for the year and once again all eyes are glued on the standings in the race for the T. A. Reed Trophy. According to the latest figures, S.P.S. has built up a well-nigh insurmountable lead and will capture the coveted award for the second year in a row.

TORONTO SWIMMERS WIND UP YEAR WITH CHAMPIONSHIP

By Sam Lipin

On the twenty-fourth of this month the University of Toronto senior inter-collegiate championship swimming team will be seen in action for the last time this year when they appear as part of the Alumni Night. The team coached by Winston McCarty has in the past season proved itself one of the outstanding teams ever to have worn Blue and White colours. At the annual inter-collegiate meet held in Montreal last Feb. 25, the Varsity natators captured seven out of eight first places, amassing the huge total of 51 points against McGill's 18 and McMaster's 8.

This enviable record Varsity maintained throughout the season against

SINCERITY, ABILITY DECLARED PRESENT IN CANADIAN ACTING

By Norman J. Altstetter

After adjudicating nearly seventy plays and interviewing approximately five hundred actors individually, George Skellan, English drama critic, said in an interview Tuesday he was still impressed by the sincerity and ability of Canadian actors and actresses.

Mr. Skellan, who has been commissioned by the Dominion Drama Festival Committee to adjudicate all plays taking part in the regional semi-finals, has spent ten weeks travelling from Halifax to Vancouver, choosing the plays which will compete in the Dominion Drama Festival in London.

That the Canadian amateur drama work has all the capability and earnestness required for a thriving Canadian theatre, was the opinion of Mr. Skellan, but he emphasized the fact that the direction was not all that it might be. He suggested that experienced directors should be detailed by various dramatic organizations to travel among the communities where this experience could be put to constructive use. Experienced direction is absolutely necessary for the technical treatment must be explained fully, he said.

"I have been tremendously impressed by the sincerity and ability of the amateurs I have seen perform in Canada." Mr. Skellan went on to explain that he had adjudicated a production in the West in which one of the performers gave the impression that he was an ex-professional. The adjudicator later discovered that the man was a farmer who had travelled almost twenty thousand miles in the course of the various rehearsals.

American competition. Although Varsity bowed to a mighty team from Penn State and fought heroically against Rochester, only to be nosed out by a 38-37 count, yet against their old rivals from Syracuse the Blue team, for the first time, humbled the boys from the Hill University, 44-31. Against Buffalo State the score was overwhelmingly in favour of Toronto, the splashers from Buffalo being no match for the Toronto mermen.

In the water polo this year Varsity did not fare as well although the team in losing to McGill 7-5 came closer to capturing the intercollegiate crown than they have for many years. Next year though should finally see the title changing hands. Report has it that at long last McGill's flock of Bourne has just about run out and this fact coupled with Toronto's growing strength should practically clinch victory for the home team.

Several Honour Students Continue Academic Work while Most Women Expect Marriage within Two Years

By Campbell McLean

Few of this year's graduating students have clear ideas yet of what pursuits will occupy them for the rest of their lives, it was revealed in a survey by The Varsity this week. Two things seemed certain: first, that O.C.E. will claim many arts students, both pass and honour, who have nowhere else to go; and secondly, that many co-eds will be married within a year or two.

Most honour students in history, English, philosophy and classics have hopes of doing post-graduate work abroad if they can get funds. Failing this, many will prepare to teach high school. Osgoode Hall and the theological colleges will receive a fair quota of armen.

Paul Anderson, electrical engineering, hopes to "test three meals a day and enjoy myself doing it" as well as "making a bit of use of what I have learned". Corporation law at Osgoode holds a lure for Bill Bowen, U.C. Lit. president. As an executive member of the Alumni Association he hopes to aid in the campaign for a new men's residence.

Frances Carlisle, U.C., taking philosophy and history, might go to London to study international affairs. "Of course I don't want to work all my life, though," she said, admitting that her future plans were "vague". Art Menzies, a Vic man in the same course, wants to study Far Eastern affairs at Columbia before joining the Canadian foreign service.

Either the copper mines of South Africa or the oil fields of Peru will attract John Douglas, a U.C. geologist; while "left wing movements for political and social change" are the interest of Harold Beveridge, political science. Marion Weymark, pass arts in Vic, will teach school, and possibly do social service work later.

YEAR'S ACTIVITIES REVIEWED BY S.A.C.

Over 1,000 Part-Time Jobs Have Been Found; Financial Assistance Has Been Given to Many

By Larry Smith

A brief review of the work of the Students' Administrative Council for the past year might be taken as an account of the activities of the university for 1938-39, so intimately is this organization connected with the student life. "I can truly say we have had one of the most active and most successful years in the history of the organization," stated Mr. E. A. Macdonald, secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C.

The activities of the Council, "the representative body of the students of the University of Toronto," continues through the whole year and the main business starts before college opens in the fall and continues until after exams have passed and students have departed. A feature which helps the incoming student is the housing service of the S.A.C., rapidly becoming one of its most important functions.

That the loan fund, which is administered by the S.A.C., was in greater demand this year and served more people, is indicated by the fact that loans amounting to over $5000 were made, an increase over recent years.

The S.A.C. has done much to promote music in the university in accordance with its policy "of supporting every worth-while student project."

According to Mr. Macdonald, the greatest advance was made in the realm of student help. During the year over one thousand part-time jobs were engaged in by students, and the number of summer placements promises to break all records. Already two hundred students have been placed and it is certain that the total will exceed the record of 1486 positions last year.

And so with all these varied activities, in addition to the regular work of publishing The Varsity and Torontoensis, the Handbook, the S.A.C. spends a busy year, culminating in the Graduation Ball and the two garden parties in June.

The Sportswoman

By Marg Canlin

Top of the morning and hope you've forgotten all about that weep we fore-saw, because even if it is la dernière column we have a distinct aversion to letting our hair down in public. Hope you don't mind. Last October when we took off with those helpful hints for freshies, we did not suspect that one hundred issues would nip so quickly. But they did and now it's your last chance to brush up on who's who and what's what in the no-man's land of sport. Congratulations to the new directorate, and athletic club executives (names supplied elsewhere), elected by popular and representative vote this week. Thanks after a pesky year of us, to the cheerful and co-operative powers-that-be who made our task so pleasant—Miss Parkes, Claire Walsh, Marg Pickering, Joan Griffith, Peggy Bailey, Gert Evans, Joan O'Donnell, Mary Becker, "Punch" Gallic, and Jane Urquhart. Without their aid you might never have known the activities of co-eds in sport with which we hope you were swamped. Vindictive, eh?

John Public advised us early in the game that even though he was conducting a sport column, no one would read the unglamorous details unless well seasoned and disguised. Hence our entry into the field of weather-forecasting, foreign correspondence and Winchelling without much success—we did agitate for co-ed cheer leaders, drum majors, etc.—anything to pep faded Varsity spirit;—remember the co-ed Hart House? We revived that—how thrilling were those interfaculty cage and puck games—us and the team's heart-throb bench-warming—raves over St. Hilda's tennis courts—blubs about Vic's sportsmanship—plugs for Meds' initiative—and much too much about St. Mike's—Despite criticism we refrained from mowing—refused to battle with Teddy Reeve—credit all our intelligent remarks to Phyl Griffiths—silly, interesting and usually unprintable tid-bits offered by our D. P. friends, bless 'em,—meaty, alluring advances from Limberlost—provocative rhythms via Arty Shaw—always the weather—winter sports enthusiasms—and hardest of all, trying to live down being "The Sportswoman" . . . all very much fun—it's over now—just try and get along without us very well.

SENIOR HOCKEYISTS GET SECOND PLACE

had coasted to an easy win over University of Montreal.
The Red Raiders came right back against the Toronto outfit the following week at Varsity Arena and this time the decision was reversed. A fleet set of forwards and a leechlike defence won Varsity a sweet 3-2 triumph in a thrilling contest. It was the first victory for Varsity over McGill in seven years.

Queen's upset the dope bucket for the second straight time the next Saturday, outplaying Varsity to earn a 4-2 decision. The Blues closed out their schedule with a 6-1 win over Princeton.
The season was marred by two injuries. Bill Morison, sad-eyed pivot-man of the first string line, broke his wrist before the McGill game, while Jock Simpson hurt his shoulder on the transcontinental trip.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bernie Shiffman

MEMORIES . . . MEMORIES . . .

It is with a feeling of real apprehension that we approach this, our final issue. For months now we've looked forward to it as the jumping-off place for studies but now we find that we possess several new habits which were speedily acquired, but the very devil to break. You know you just can't drink twenty pints of coffee, a cow's worth of hamburger in one hundred nights of publishing The Varsity, and just stop short and study . . . it just isn't done. Tonight's column will complete a half a mile of words that we've used in this column and will bring our total number of hours spent in preparing the column to twenty-five twenty-four-hour days. (A Rhodes scholarship it we'd employed them for the good old law course.) But it was fun, remember?

DO YOU REMEMBER . . .

Remember the thrilling football game in the fall when after travelling three hundred and fifty-seven miles to Montreal, to see the football championship decided, Varsity lost 22 to 6 and we got drenched to the skin in the bargain. That McGill team certainly was a hard-hitting point-gathering outfit and deserved the championship. We started off the season with a team that might have given Doug Kerr the ambitions to have a night class in football, but the breaks were against us and our championship hopes were drowned in a sea of mud. Then came the hockey and basketball season and boy we were busy. Especially as we counted on two championships in these sports. The result is now sport history. A double loss to the Tricolour squad put the finishing touches to Ace Bailey's "Gypsies on Skates". McGill, seven times champs, came through again and took the silverware in this sport too. The killer-diller was the basketball race. . . . After Varsity won their first four games they were defeated in London by the Western team by one point in a game that almost ended in a riot. The championship, however, was practically clinched for Varsity again, when the Redmen, who had been defeated in Montreal by both Varsity and Western by sizeable scores, came back and took a game in London by one point. Over-confidence, however, caused a relaxation of vigilance and when the final whistle blew to end the Toronto-McGill game, the Redmen had skyrocketed up to the first place position alongside of the Mustangs and the Boys in Blue. Queen's, who hadn't won a game, were comfortably resting in second place after a series of games. Playoffs that would have established a new attendance record in college basketball were cancelled and the stock of this sport fell with a thud . . . and the intercollegiate sports program was over.

The greatest thrills of the season, however, weren't in the major sports at all. Do you remember the Saturday nights when the Directorate put on their shows? Well, that was really something. Crowds turned out and hundreds more would have turned out if there had been the seating space and more publicity. Everybody that was out enjoyed himself with the show and the dance that followed. If things turn out right, next year Coach Stevens promises to have a seating arrangement ready that will accommodate as large a crowd as hang around the pool room before Christmas. But we won't say anything more about that now will we Steve?

It was great fun working with the Athletic Office too, in getting copy for stories. Gee, they helped us considerably, co-operated to the utmost, and we'll have to thank them personally before we quit. The sound of that word sort of makes the memories of the season fade away and the tears come rushing to our eyes, and . . . stops . . . us from . . . seeing . . . so we can't write any more. We just want to thank you (sniff) all for having read this (sniff) space for the past year without (sniff) complaining. Much . . . Thanks.

Interfaculty Sports Subject of Reminiscences

By Sid Roebuck

Spectacular spills and thrills are just about over in the realm of interfaculty sport as another intramural sports campaign draws rapidly to a close. Rugby, volleyball, soccer, track, gymnasium, harrier, boxing, wrestling, fencing, swimming, lacrosse, baseball, basketball, water polo, hockey, etc., will soon be completely forgotten as the long arm of examinations grips its victims.

Rugby hit a new high in interest this year with more players turning out, a better brand being played through the courteous aid of such men as Selkirk, Box, etc. It was Earl Selkirk and his mighty Sr. Meds pigskin carriers who smashed out a decisive victory over the fighting Schoolmen. It was the first rugby championship won by Meds in almost a decade. On the soccer field, the Meds eleven coped their second cup of the year after a grueling season. The present hockey situation sees the Doctors in the playoffs with another championship in sight. The Medical basketballers have more than a chance of winning the hoop trophy. Both Sr. and Jr. Meds are in the playoff series in baseball, while the Medical water polo team are the pick for water-ski supremacy. All in all it looks as though the surgical gang have a very successful year in the interfaculty sports lanes and deserve much credit considering the paucity of students in the course.
The S.P.S. gang lost the rugby championship to Meds but turned right around and walked off with laurels in boxing, wrestling, fencing, swimming and harrier. Jr. and Sr. School are still in the thick of the hockey campaign while S.P.S. IV have an even chance of pulling out with the baseball cup.

Victoria College, with most of her rugby stars graduating into intercollegiate senior company, failed to come through with anything like a championship team. But the Scarlet and Gold refused to be left out completely and came on to win the lacrosse championship. Vic also showed supremacy in gymnastics and won the indoor and outdoor track championships. Sr. Vic can still make it a near complete season by grabbing off the basketball and water polo trophies.

The boys from Wycliffe, with one of the smallest enrollments of students, managed to win the volleyball honours.

GOLF INSTRUCTION IN P.T. NEXT YEAR

By Norm Jones

During the last two years the value of golf as a follow-up sport has become increasingly more evident owing to the introduction of golf classes under the skillful instruction of Dave Hutchison. The purpose of these classes is to give preliminary instruction to undergraduates and thus stimulate interest in the sport for the summer months and future years. Unlike rugby and basketball, golf is a sport which can be continued in later life when one has left college.

The affiliation with the Woodbine Golf Club, enabling the students to play at a nominal fee during the summer, has met with gratifying response. Last summer over 1,000 students took advantage of this excellent opportunity and in the intramural tournament in the fall officials were pleasantly surprised by the number of entrants and the remarkably low scoring on the part of the students. The U. of T. made a clean sweep in the intercollegiate tournament, winning individual and team championships.

SPORT SPLASHES

By Sam Lipin

Returning to their previous championship form, Sr. Vic rained in five goals against Trinity in last Wednesday night's water polo final to make it 1-1 in games to date, necessitating a final encounter today to decide this year's winner of the Eckhardt Trophy.

After the lapse Sr. Vic suffered on Monday the team that played on Wednesday hardly looked like the same one. Checking was close and Trinity were unable to get any shots away and were limited to a few ineffectual attempts at scoring. Trinity played well, however, and appeared to advantage against the Scarlet and Gold who surpassed them only in the speed with which they got their shots away. Mac Carter, who seemed unable to miss and Doug Best with his hard shots, were the point getters for Vic, nobly backed up by the fierce checking of Woodsworth, Kerr and Stan Best.

BOXING, FENCING AND WRESTLING BRINGS BLUES GLORY

Winning of the Intercollegiate Senior Assault is High Point in Year of Mat and Sword Jousting

By Owen Prichard

The boxing, wrestling and fencing teams of this university have had an exceptionally prosperous year, with the diligent labours of the coaches being met by responding enthusiasm from the members of the various squads. Dr. Les Black and Mel Glionna have had the pleasure of guiding one of the hottest boxing teams seen here in years. Messrs. Martin and Chilcott are completely satisfied with the showing of their grapplers, and Charles Walters is duly proud of his intercollegiate fencing champions.

The great Varsity triumph was witnessed at Hart House when the Blue and White grapplers and mitmen mowed down stiff opposition from Queen's, O.A.C., and McGill to capture the intercollegiate Senior Assault. The leather-pushers, led by Captain Jock Piggott, gained six intercollegiate championships out of seven weights in which they had finished.

Besides their victory in the Senior Assault, the wrestlers won six out of nine bouts against Guelph at Hart House. They dropped their match at St. Lawrence University by seven to one, at Buffalo they took three out of eight against a starry group of grapplers.

The foil-men gave impressive exhibitions of their skill at different times during the year, a feature of their efforts being a triple win during one week-end over Western, Wayne and Lawrence Tech. At Lawrence Captain Garcia decided the issue in a photo finish when he took the final and deciding bout of the evening. When the Buffalo fencers visited Hart House the Toronto team were bested by a twelve to five margin.

The Cody Trophy

... which was won this year by Bill Morrison and Walt McGregor, stand-out intercollegiate athletes at the university. The Cody Trophy, awarded for the first time this year, goes to the man in the graduating year of University College who has contributed most to the athletic life of the college.

Injury Jinx Hits Line Rugby Team Starts Well Ends Up Behind

Win De Gruchy Cup—Trim Queen's in Kingston—Then Lose Mumford, Macdonald and Turner, who Check in on Hospital List

By Ed Goodman

Plagued by what was probably the worst injury jinx that has hit a Varsity team for many years Warren Stevens' senior football squad wound up their 1938 season with four victories and three defeats. At times the Blue squad showed flashes of brilliance, but with a hospital list a foot long they lacked reserve power and could not cope with McGill's mighty machine, and ended up in third place behind Western Mustangs.

The Toronto team started out strong by defeating Balmy Beach in the city finals for the De Gruchy Cup. The regular season also started off well with the breaking of a seven year jinx and winning over Queen's right in Kingston.

But by this time three regulars were on the sidelines for the season, Mumford with appendicitis, Macdonald with an ankle broken in the Queen's game, and Turner had his knee crooked. With two halves and a snap incapacitated the Varsity attack failed to regain the punch shown in their first two appearances, and lost two games to McGill split with Western, and ended up their year by defeating Kingston's winless Tricolour.

The game against Queen's marked the final appearance in a Varsity uniform of Captain Cam Gray, triple threat man and one of the greatest all-round halves that has ever performed for the Blues. Cam takes into retirement with him his friend Johnny Holden, all-star end, Ben Shukun, outside wing who was the team's high scorer, Al Isbister, Bill Beatty and Moose Rogin, the three giant linemen who were a tower of strength on the defensive. Although Cam MacLachlan and "Bucko" Macdonald were slated for graduation it is highly likely that they will both be back next year for further schooling.

If these two stalwarts return it means that Warren Stevens will only lose three regulars and three alternates by graduation, and will have practically a full team of veterans to throw against his intercollegiate rivals. At present unless some unknowns spring to the fore, Hugh Plaxton, flashy passer from the juniors, Bernie Shiffman, intermediate inside, and Bill Pennell, Varsity end of 1937, will probably fill the gaps. And if the stretcher and doctor forget to visit the stadium Toronto's 1939 hopefuls have an excellent chance of regaining the Yates Cup.

Senior Blue Hockeyists Attain Second Place In Three-way Tie

Blues Fail to Smash McGill Monopoly on Hockey Championship—Ice Season is Reviewed

By Alan Harvey

The celebrated Midas touch of the McGill University hockey team worked its magic effect again this season and the Red Raiders galloped off with their third straight I.H.L.L. title and their eighth straight hockey crown. Varsity, Dartmouth and Queen's were locked in a second-place tie as the season ended two weeks ago.

There was a time, back in December, when high hopes were entertained by local observers that Varsity would snap the McGill monopoly on the hockey championship. Coach Ace Bailey had plenty of material on hand and the outfit went along in fine style in pre-season prep.

The two prize packages among the Johnny-come-latelies to the Blue and White were, however, Bob Copp and Bill L'Heureux. The last mentioned, a Chatham product enrolled in O.C.E., proved the find of the season on the Blue rear-guard with clever defensive hockey and fast-breaking sorties. Copp came all the way from Nova Scotia, where he played with the Junior Eastern Canada finalists, Amhurst St. Pats. The bumping defenceman got his big chance when Jock Simpson was hurt, and came through with flying colours. The Baileymen played up to their early promise in the local pre-season warm-up tilts. They whipped Midland, Port Colborne, University of Southern California and succumbed to Goodyears by a 6-2 score. Just before Christmas the Blue Shirts embarked on their coast-to-coast tour, which included games in British Columbia, California and Maine. On this trip the Baileymen were phenomenally successful, losing only one contest and tying two others.

On the final leg of their American trip the Blues slipped in two victories in league contests, defeating Harvard 10-1 and Dartmouth 5-2. By the time the local schedule opened here against University of Montreal, Toronto fans were warmed up to expect a great season and the Blue Shirts lived up to rating with a clean-cut 10-3 victory.

The following week-end Varsity shipped to Kingston where disaster, in the shape of a narrow 2-1 defeat at the hands of Queen's, overtook them. Bailey's charges redeemed this unfortunate defeat one week later with a handy win at home over Yale.

Varsity dropped their second game a week later in Montreal, losing 5-3 against the McGill Red Raiders in a game that was marred by faulty officiating. The previous evening the locals

Jews and Arabs Peaceful in Future Believes Crawley

English Sportsman States that Creation of Arab National State will Solve Palestine Problem

"The important point is that the British government is at last making up its mind about Palestine," declared A. M. Crawley, English sportsman and journalist, in an interview with The Varsity yesterday. He pointed out that up till now neither the Jews nor the Arabs have known what their positions should be, consequently both groups should be free to insist on their full rights. In future, he believes, they will be able to co-operate successfully.

Mr. Crawley, who is at present on a lecture tour in Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education, spent over six months in Palestine filming an educational picture, of which a portion entitled from "Abraham to Allenby" will be shown on Sunday night in Convocation Hall.

By Bruce Smith
In reviewing the athletic achievements of the blue and white in 1938-39 a noteworthy niche must be reserved for the two starry soccer squads. The senior eleven was the class of the league and won the intercollegiate title hands down, while the intrepid intermediates lost out only by a close decision based on the season's total points.

Last fall marked the auspicious advent of soccer as a grade A sport in college circles and it was no little feather in Toronto's sports hat when Captain Jack Convey paced his formidable footballers to the cherished championship. The manner in which the Slademen accomplished this little trick is remarkable in so far as they never lost a league game and at the end of the schedule had piled up an impressive total of twenty-one goals for and only four against.

BASKETBALL TROPHY STILL A PROBLEM

By Mike Greenstein
For the first time in the history of the Canadian intercollegiate basketball league a situation exists where two weeks after the close of the season no championship has as yet been officially declared. Not until the C.I.A.U. meets March 25th will the problem of handing the Wilson Trophy to either Varsity, McGill or Western be settled. At the present writing all three teams are tied for first place.

After defeating Western in Toronto 47-40, Varsity were considered a sure thing for the title, but their hopes received a severe jolting when the fighting Redmen of old McGill whom they had already downed once in Montreal nosed out both the Londoners and the Blues forcing a triple tie for first place.

Purely on records the Stevelites may be considered group leaders. In a total of six league games, they ran in 277 points as compared with Western's 246 and McGill's 239. Bill Rogin, burly guard of the squad, led the league in scoring with 87 points. Western's Krol and Farmer were behind with 82 and 50, while Aitchison and Lavarway of the blue and white were fourth and sixth with 49 and 45. Knowles of Queen's was fifth man in the league with 47 markers.

In their scheduled exhibitions with American and Canadian teams, Varsity defeated Broadview Y, this year's Big Six title-holders, and nosed out Buffalo State and Assumption College by one point. In the rest of their games south they were clearly outclassed but put up a game fight and often led for at least one quarter of the game.

INTRAMURAL SPORT

By Charles Dubis
The outstanding intermediate intercollegiate sports event of the year from the Varsity viewpoint, is the accomplishment of Mac McCutcheon's basketball team in going through an undefeated season to win their sixth straight title. Though nothing new for the intermediate basketballers, their record this year is a mighty proud one and equal to any in almost every line of sport. Craig was the sparkplug of the team, scoring 67 points in 6 games, and he looks like the best bet for next year's senior squad.

But Varsity's triumphs in intermediate sport were not limited to the basketball league. The tennis squad won Varsity her first intercollegiate title of the year last fall, with Bob Young, walking off with the singles title and Charlie Seagram and Phillips combining for the doubles championship.

TEN BEST STORIES PICKED BY FRANK

University of Toronto pioneered in what is now a continent-wide institution. For one whole week in November the co-eds paid for their escorts' entertainment. When the week was ushered out at a special party at the Silver Slipper, fully eighty per cent. of the girls present paid their own way in and many paid taxi fare and accessories, while some sent corsages to the blushing young men.

Best Sadie Hawkins' story comes from Queen's, which took up the idea a few weeks after we had buried the Dogpatch Deb for one more year. It seems that a dame in that university invited a young man to go on to a dance with her, paid for the dance, the taxi, and the corsage, took him out to eat afterwards, paid for his food, took him home and tried to kiss him good-night. He slapped her face!

Number two on your newshawk's hit parade is the libel suit brought against this newspaper by the University of Toronto Swing Club Inc. After The Varsity had inaugurated a new column that dealt with writing as someone or other pleased, an alleged individual, Joe College by name, wrote an accusation of the Swing Club which everyone will remember, but which we cannot print because of the possibility of another libel suit.

The Law Club's Moot Court tried the case after a jury of twelve had been selected from fifty undergraduate Artsmen who were impelled. After all the rigmarole of a real trial had been undergone, and at least twelve Law students had had the time of their lives by quizzing people on relevant and irrelevant topics, the Swing Club Inc. was awarded one thousand dollars damages.

Third news story of the academic year 1938-1939 was the most heavily attended Hart House debate of the year, that of Wednesday, November 30 on the subject "Resolved that fraternities are a bad thing" or something to that effect. After the downtown of fraternities using lure girls, and other sensational claptrap, members of Hart House voted 62-25 in support of the fraternity ideal. On the same day that the result of this debate was announced The Varsity published a scoop regarding the large number of fraternity pins to be found in downtown book shops.

In fourth place on our honour list of news stories we find Rev. J. D. Parks. Under the sponsorship of the Student Christian Movement, Mr. Parks gave a series of noon-hour addresses on marriage and its ethics, and later conducted a weekly study-group on the same topic. Canadian University Press telegrams poured into the undergraduate newspaper's night offices from congratulations and envy on this innovation.

Mr. Frank O'Hara, Port Huron broker, supplied the fifth news story of the year by making a speech to the Rotarians in Sarnia charging that the university was full of radicals, the S.C.M. was rotten with Communism, and that the germ of revolution was fomented daily within the austere precincts of Victoria College. University officials were not even indignant when the charges were made, and Comrades Lockhart of the S.C.M. and Brown of Vic were inclined to treat the matter lightly.

Most highly publicized social-dramatic event on the campus and sixth news story in Toronto's No. 2 morning newspaper was (were) the U.C. Follies. Among other things, directors of the Follies were negotiating for the use of a baby elephant to be used on the stage. Various difficulties besides the fact that the elephant could not get into Hart House Theatre, quipped this project.

The Follies supplied a lot of other news. Miss Ferguson, dean of women of University College and member of the committee of patrons of the Follies, banned all pictures of the Follies chorus girls in which legs were shown to too great advantage for the good of academic tradition. A few days later, Thomas Richard Henry, columnist extraordinary for The Evening Telegram, said that the university was nothing more than an excuse for co-eds to waste taxpayers' money by favoring before a lascivious audience in a state of semi-nudity.

In seventh place so far as strictly news value is concerned is the coming visit of their majesties the King and Queen. Spasmodically, since the visit was announced last fall, rumours, confirmed and unconfirmed, drifted into our columns. Finally, it was established that the King and Queen will visit Hart House for luncheon on May 22, but whether the C.O.T.C. will act as a guard of honour is still undecided.

As the year drew to its close, and many students had their own troubles to worry about, a delegation of the Canadian Student Assembly visited Ottawa on the week-end of March 6, and, besides interviewing the federal minister of labour, supplied us with number eight in the list of events of interest and excitement.

CUP sent a dispatch which was carried saying that the conference in Ottawa was a flop and that the Hon. Norman McLeod Rogers had turned down the delegation with gloomy words. Next day, Paul C. McGillicuddy, chairman of the delegation, told The Varsity's readers that Mr. Rogers was encouraging and promised every aid if the provincial governments, who have control of education under the British North America Act, agree to the plan.

Second last in the list is the petition which the S.C.M., the Social Problems Club and the Avukah Society presented to the Prime Minister regarding the entrance of refugees into this country. Tied for number ten are two stories, first, the report that the editor of the campus newspaper of the University of Saskatchewan was fired for his Armistice Day editorial, and second, the production of Philip Barry's comedy, Holiday, by the University Drama Committee, and the news that the Drama Committee had been invited to present this comedy in the Dominion Drama Festival.

All these stories and many others were brought to you by hard-working, earnest reporters, to whom the news editors hereby express their thanks. But this year, by virtue of three graduates, The Varsity presented the most extensive exclusive outside news coverage of any college newspaper on the continent. Arthur Benson and Nelson Lochead, former undergraduate members of The Varsity staff, sent in regular exclusive reports of news from New York and London, tailored to suit the interest of the Toronto student. Ross Munro, also a former reporter of this paper, and now Canadian Press correspondent in Ottawa, kept The Varsity, along with other Canadian campus newspapers, in touch with the latest doings and most interesting gossip in the nation's capital. It has been an interesting year.

for the National Conference to be held next winter. Committees, anticipating this, will meet during the summer. Topics, such as curricula; closer co-operation between the French and English and national unity are to be discussed and investigated as a preparation for the conference.

According to Dave Woodsworth, the national conference may be held on this campus. Concrete suggestions are to be presented then and ideas co-ordinated with those of other universities.

for the production of sound. This man achieves on the piano miracles of something the same order as those that Toscanini brings from an orchestra. Both, when they play the most familiar music, can make a listener feel that he is hearing it for the first time as the composer must have intended it to be heard. Such results as this are not produced by the physical means employed, not wholly by the emotions, but by the brain, controlling and directing the musician's other resources. Lack of space prevents any detailed discussion of the program; everything on it was completely right in its position relative to the other items, so that the whole thing was a perfect artistic unit, and it seems hardly necessary even to try to analyze its various parts. I feel, though, that in his concluding number, Benediction de Dieu dans la solitude, by Liszt, Glucksmann surely threw a more all-embracing spell over his audience than anyone has ever done here before. It was an overpowering experience.—Herbert Cowan.

ALBRIGHT EDITOR OF 'VARSITY'

arts student in University College. The fifty-ninth editor, he has been chosen from several candidates for the position to occupy the editorial sanctum sanctorum and boss one of the oldest and most highly regarded college journals in North America.

Even in Junior Journalism there are various occupational strata that can be reached on through merit and seniority. Albright has touched them all. Arriving from Petrolia, Ont., in the fall of 1936, he enrolled simultaneously in the university as an arts student and in The Varsity as a sports reporter. As a sports reporter he demonstrated a monumental interest in his job—one that can be equalled only by that of some as yet undiscovered person who might prove that he remained sane during months of volleyball tournaments.

Sports reporting, in the opinion of a great many, can lead only to sports reporting. But it led Albright in 1937 to the berth of assistant managing editor.

This promotion was full of portent. Taking the blame for overtime and leaving the little credit available to his boss, Albright took out several issues of the paper which bore absolutely no resemblance to Jazz Issues, and was soon appointed managing editor himself. The die was made, the cast was set, and whether he knew it or not, Albright was careening on to the inevitable end.

For a year and a half he was managing editor. In a period of time longer than that he missed only one or two nights at the press. Each night the paper was put together under his observation. Each night he guided young night editors through the maze of typography, and dissolved for them the mysteries of headline writing, and instructed them in the art of make-up (balanced but not symmetrical). In between times—while the news editor watched for scandal—be watched for libel.

Managing editor for a year and a half, last week he gave a heave and he is now found in the upper brackets.

An editorial policy characterizes most papers. Some papers it stigmatizes. But The Varsity will have one, declares the new editor. What it will be depends on many things. He feels that he should not commit himself to any bias of world political character until the fall when there will be far fewer countries to talk about.

"If my administration, editorial and managerial, approximates the excellence of my predecessor, I will not be disappointed," he says.

ed the professor. It would mean that the central government at Ottawa would control everything, he added.

"If there are no provincial governments, we must have commissions to take care of government details. But these commissions are appointed not by Ontario, Nova Scotia, Quebec, etc., but by the central government. This is decidedly undemocratic," he said.

"Big business taxation is what he is worried about, not that of the working men," said Prof. M'Curdy, referring to Mr. McCullagh's desire to reduce taxation.

Canadian Nickel

GIVES GREATER DURABILITY

The ram of a 100 ton forging hammer rains 50-ton blows on the anvil. Ordinary metals cannot stand the strain or vibration.

The ring of a hand hammer resounds as metal meets metal. Sooner or later ordinary steel or iron will break under constant use and abuse.

So the makers of machinery and tools the world over have turned to Canadian Nickel to prolong the life of their products. Nickel alloys in actual use have lasted two, ten, even twenty times as long as the metals they have replaced. That is why the demand for Canadian Nickel has steadily increased. That is why the Nickel mine near Sudbury have periodically increased their output and employed more men. That is why additions have been made time after time to the immense smelting plants at Copper Cliff and the refinery at Port Colborne, Ontario.

This great Canadian industry stimulates Canadian prosperity. The millions it pays each year in wages, and for equipment, power, timber and freight, circulate to every corner of the Dominion. Every Canadian benefits as the Nickel industry prospers.

With Frank Shuster

THERE COMES A TIME in every columnist's life when he is forced to hang up his typewriter for the year, and seek the seclusion of the Stacks which have been waiting patiently for him for the past six months. . . . Writing a farewell column is no easy task. . . . As we write, a tear comes to our eye (the good one), but we brush it aside, and attempt to whistle carelessly the beautiful strains of Laugh Clown Laugh as we write.

JAZZ ISSUES are the rage at the present moment. . . . The latest one to go to press is none other than our friendly neighbour the McMaster St. Lawrence. . . . According to this issue, a communist has been found in the ranks of the student body. . . . Other amazing revelations are also made by a professor of Old English who advances the startling information that the law of gravity is false. . . . He proceeds to advance the thesis that bodies fall to the earth merely because they prefer doing it, then going up in the air. Sounds logical, doesn't it? . . . (Oh, it doesn't eh?) . . . There is also the interesting story which expresses the fact that due to the unsettled state of Europe the next Olympic games will be held in a bomb-proof shelter far below the soil of Finland. . . . Perhaps the most amusing item is a letter from Benito Mussolini who sends in an application for membership in the Leadership League. . . . The Duke enclosed with coupon three strings of spaghetti and a Fascist salute and he signed his name affectionately Benny. VIVA BENNY!

SADIE IS GONE. . . . After months of pleasure, friend Hawkins has left us. . . . She has gone to a world perhaps happier than this one, and we find the Montebello printing this epitaph for her:

EPITAPH

There lies the body of Sadie Jones, Resting beneath these polished stones. Her name was Hawkins instead of Jones, But Hawkins won't rhyme with polished stones, And she won't know if it's Hawkins or Jones.
